"We received Mr. McKesson's letter dated the 25th November. We have, according to your request, applied to Congress for leave to our State to raise another battalion, to be commanded by Colonel Du Bois, which is agreed to, and a resolve to that purpose is enclosed, as also a resolve for employing five Aid-Majors at the expense of our State. Blank commissions for both the battalions and Aid-Majors are herewith sent. There are forty-five blanks, a few more than the number wanted, to serve in case some might be spoiled in filling up. The rank of the officers of the five battalions is with you to settle. The Congress does not interfere, under the new arrangement in the rank of officers appointed by the several States.

"General Washington is at Trenton with his Army; General Cornwallis at Brunswick. This city had been in great confusion for some days; the consternation was great, from an apprehension that the enemy would march into this place; but they have now in a great measure recovered their spirits, and are marching out in considerable numbers to join General Washington, and in a few days our Army will be strong enough to face the enemy. We have no accounts where our troops under General Lee are at present, but are in hopes if they are within march, as is said, that Cornwallis will not proceed any further this way too speedily: if he delays a very few days longer, there is nothing to fear from him.

"We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

"PHIL. LIVINGSTON,
"FRA. LEWIS,
"WM. FLOYD.

"To the Convention of the State of New-York."

A Resolution of Congress therein enclosed, dated the 26th of November, 1776, was read, as follows, viz:

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the Legislatures of the United States respectively, to pass such laws as will effectually prevent the counterfeiting or forging the tickets of the publick lottery.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Sec'y."

And the Resolution of Congress therein enclosed, dated November 30th, 1776, was also read, as follows, viz:

"Resolved, That the State of New-York be empowered to raise another Battalion on the Continental establishment. That the Convention or Council of Safety of New-York be empowered to appoint an Aid-Major to each of the Battalions raised by that State, the pay and expense of which to be borne by that State.

"Extract from the Minutes:

"CHARLES THOMSON, Sec'y."

Ordered, That the said Letter and Resolves be referred to the Committee of Arrangements.

Resolved, That the Rangers of Tryon County be allowed Continental Rations instead of their weekly subsistence money, during the time they remain in garrison.

A draft of a Letter to General Schuyler was read and approved of, in the words following, to wit:

"Fishkill, December 10th, 1776.

"SIR: By a return express from Philadelphia, we have received a letter from our Delegates, dated the 4th instant, enclosing a resolution of Congress for enabling this State to raise a fifth battalion, to be commanded by Colonel Du Bois, which was applied for by the Convention. Another resolution of Congress is also transmitted, directing the respective States to pass acts for preventing the forgery of lottery tickets.

"The following extract will show the condition of the two Armies on the date of the Delegates' letter:

"'General Washington is at Trenton with his army; General Cornwallis is at Brunswick. This city has been in 'great confusion for some days; the consternation was great, 'from an apprehension that the enemy would march on to 'this place; but they have now in a great measure recovered 'their spirits, and are marching out in considerable numbers 'to join General Washington, and in a few days our army 'will be strong enough to face the enemy. We have no 'account where our troops under General Lee are at present, but are in hopes they are on their march, as it is said 'that Cornwallis will not proceed any further this way too 'speedily: if he delays a very few days longer, there is 'nothing to fear from him.'

"You will have the pleasure to observe that the report suggested in our last, that Congress had removed to Lancaster, was without foundation.

"General Lee, we are well informed, was a few days since at Morristown, where he is assembling a force to act in concert with General Washington. The Militia of Orange and Ulster are ordered to march under the command of Brigadier-General George Clinton, to coöperate with General Lee, revive the spirits of the New-Jersey Militia, and secure the passes in the Highlands.

"The Convention are of opinion, and have this day passed a resolution, that the Rangers of Tryon County ought to be allowed Continental rations instead of their weekly subsistence money, during the time they shall remain in garrison.

"I am directed to add that the Convention will soon send up the pay which is in arrear to the Rangers.

"I am, &c.

"General Schuyler."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be signed by the Vice President and transmitted.

A draft of a Letter to General McDougall was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fishkill, 10th December, 1776.

"SIR: We received your favour of yesterday, and in answer thereto have only to inform you, that previous to the receipt thereof we ordered a large body of the troops from the Counties of Orange and Ulster, under the command of Brigadier-General George Clinton, to march immediately through the Counties of Orange and Bergen, in order to protect the well-affected in that part of the country, and to coöperate with General Lee, as far as shall lie in his power, in distressing the enemy, raising and collecting the well-affected, and harassing and overawing the disaffected subjects of the State of New-Jersey. We submit to your prudence how far and to what persons this should be divulged before the arrival of General Clinton's corps.

"I am, &c.

"General McDougall."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be signed by the Vice President and transmitted.

Resolved, That the Militia of Orange and Ulster Counties ordered to be raised by the Resolution of the Convention of this State, passed the 9th day of December instant, do not march further south than Haverstraw, or west than Ringwood, till the further orders of this Convention.

A Letter from Major-General Heath being read, informing the Convention that he was ordered to go over, with his Division, to the west side of Hudson River, by which the Defiles in the Highlands will be exposed.

Resolved, That a Letter be written to his Excellency General Washington, enclosing the Resolutions passed on Monday last, stating the dangers attending the leaving the Passes through the Highlands unguarded, and requesting that the order for General Heath's Division to march may be countermanded.

Resolved, That the said Letter go by Express, who shall be, and hereby is, empowered to impress Horses every ten miles, and to ride night and day, both going and returning.

Resolved, That if the Express shall go and return in less than six days, that he shall be paid three Pounds per day, over and above his wages, for every day short of that time in which he shall perform the same; that is, if he shall perform the same in five days, he shall receive three Pounds; if in four days, six Pounds.

A draft of a Letter to General Washington was read and agreed to, in the words following, to wit:

"Fishkill, 11th December, 1776.

"SIR: I am directed by the Convention of the State of New-York to transmit to your Excellency the enclosed resolves, by which it will appear that we have made every exertion in favour of our sister States which our present situation will admit. But we are extremely sorry to find, by a letter received last night from General Heath, that he is ordered over to the western shore, by means of which the most important passes in America will be left unguarded, though within a short distance of the Army. Your Excellency must be fully satisfied, that though they, by marching through the flat country, may distress the inhabitants, yet that that measure will be productive of nothing decisive; whereas the fate of this country will probably depend upon their occupying the State of New-York, which is now in a great measure abandoned to them. We must therefore take the liberty to entreat your Excellency to countermand an order which, in our humble opinion, is putting every thing to the hazard, and leave the northeastern parts of New-Jersey to be strengthened in the way proposed by the within resolutions. If your Excellency should not be inclined to grant this request, we must beg to be favoured with an immediate answer, that we may not, by suffering our Militia to march, leave this State entirely defenceless, and thus abandon, with ourselves, the cause of America.

"Your Excellency will pardon the freedom with which we write. Our sanguine hopes of creating a very considerable diversion by the means pointed out in the enclosed resolves, without endangering the safety of this State, are, by the orders to General Heath, entirely vanished.

"I have the honour, &c.

"His Excellency General Washington."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be signed by the Chairman and transmitted.

Ordered, That the several Letters following, to wit: a Letter from Governour Tryon to William Smith, Esq.; a Letter from Mrs. Plenderleath to the same; a Letter from the same person to Mrs. Smith; a Letter from H. W. to William Smith, Esq.; a Letter from Mrs. Plenderleath to Mrs. Smith; a Letter from the same person to William Smith, Esq.; and a Letter from the same person to Miss Elizabeth Smith, which were sent severally open, but enclosed together, be enclosed, sealed up, and certified by the President to have been sealed up in Convention, without having been perused; also, that the Letter from John Moore to his wife, and the Letter from Mrs. Verplank to her husband, be in like manner enclosed, sealed up, and certified; and that all the said Letters be sent to the respective persons to whom they were written.

Several Letters which were sent up to this Convention by Major-General Heath, as having been conveyed to him by a flag of truce, for the purpose of procuring liberty for sundry persons to go, with their effects, to the City of New-York, being read,

Ordered, That they be referred to Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Yates, and General Scott, to take the said Letters.

Also, a Letter from James Jauncey, Jun., and a Memorial of Frederick Phillipse, being read, was referred to the same Committee; as also the case of Lady Johnson; and that the said Committee report on the matters aforesaid with all convenient speed.

Mr. Robert R. Livingston informed the Convention that he was informed by Abraham Livingston, son of Philip Livingston, Esq., that his said father had directed him to inform the Convention that in consequence of his long absence from his family, he will be under the necessity of leaving the Congress for the purpose of visiting his family at Esopus.

Resolved, That General Morris be directed to repair to Philadelphia, and take his seat in General Congress, in order that Philip Livingston, Esq., may be enabled to visit his family.

Mr. R. R. Livingston delivered in the Report on Samuel Tudor's Letter relative to De Grushe; which was read and agreed to, as follows, viz:

"The Committee to whom was referred a Letter from Samuel Tudor of the 9th instant, humbly report the following Letter and Resolution:

"SIR: The Convention have received yours of the 9th instant. They approve of your proposal to appoint Mr. De Grushe to do the business you mention, and have accordingly directed him to repair to Poughkeepsie for that purpose. You will be pleased to hire Mr. Ivers's tools on the most favourable terms in your power. The Convention would have you to proceed with all possible despatch in making the gun-carriages. You cannot be at a loss for the measure of the guns, since it will lay with you to give the necessary directions for making them.

"Mr. Rutgers declines having any agency in fitting out the ships; nor do we conceive that any other agent is necessary than those already employed, as the business is by no means so extensive as it was. You may agree with Mr. Hendricks to visit the stores once a day.

"We again repeat to you that it is essentially necessary for the security of the State that the ships be fitted for service by the spring.

"The Convention wish to know why the cables and anchors ordered to General Clinton have not yet been sent.

"Resolved, That Mr. De Queshe be directed to repair to Poughkeepsie, to assist in preparing the rigging of the Continental ships at that place, and that he be allowed the same wages as Mr. Ivers.

"Yours, &c.

"Captain Samuel Tudor."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be signed by the Chairman and transmitted.

Ordered, That Mr. Robert Harper, Mr. William Harper, Major Lockwood, and Mr. Wisner, be a Committee for the purpose of furnishing General George Clinton with Ammunition, and other necessaries, for the use of his Brigade.

Mr. Wisner moved and was seconded, for the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That such of the Deputies of this State as, by reason of the enemy's progress, cannot have access to the Committees of their respective Counties, be authorized and empowered, and they are hereby authorized and empowered, to draw upon and receive from the Treasurer of this State such sums of money as have been severally allowed to the Representatives of this State, for their attendance in the Convention of the same, and the Treasurer take receipts for, and place such sums to the debits of such Counties whose members shall receive the same.

Ordered, That the subject-matter of the said motion be referred to Mr. Moore, Colonel Williams, Mr. Adgate, and Mr. Ray.

A Certificate, signed by General James Clinton and others, certifying the manner in which the Chain intended to obstruct Hudson's River broke, from which it appears the fault is not in the smith's work, was referred to the Committee formerly appointed to examine and fix the Chain.

Ordered, That the Treasurer of this State advance to Stephen Ward, Esq., the sum of £600, on account of Hides by him purchased for the use of this State.

The Petition of the General Committee of Westchester County, praying for relief; that Rogers, with his Rangers, may be drove off, &c., was read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Petition be referred to Mr. R. R. Livingston, Major Lockwood, General Morris, and Mr. Morris.

The Committee appointed to credit the Pay-Rolls of Tryon County Rangers, delivered in their Report; which was read, amended, and agreed to.

Mr. Yates, the Chairman of the Government Committee, gave notice that the said Committee will report this day eight days.

Mr. Yates requested that Mr. McKesson be directed to attend the Committee to copy said Report.

Mr. Wisner informed the House that it has been represented to him that Colonel Blackwell and Major Jonathan Lawrence, Members of the Convention of this State for the County of Queen's, are willing to give their attendance, if this House will receive them, notwithstanding the said County is in possession of the enemy:

Ordered, That the Secretary write Letters to these gentlemen, requesting their attendance as Members for the said County.

The Committee to whom was referred the Petition of the General Committee of Westchester County, read this day, reported the draft of a Letter to General George Clinton; which was approved of, and is in the words following, viz:

"SIR: The Convention, on the application of the inhabitants of Westchester County, who complain of inroads made upon them by a party of Rangers under the command of Major Rodgers, have come to a resolution to despatch Colonels Malcom and Thomas, with their regiments, who will be joined by some of the Militia of Westchester County, and three companies of Rangers, in order to fall upon the troops of the enemy, and remove the stock and grain from the said County. You will be pleased, therefore, immediately to give the necessary orders.

"I am, sir, &c.

"To Brigadier-General George Clinton."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Resolved, That this Convention will allow unto Samuel Loudon, for printing and publishing in a weekly newspaper such acts and publications as they, or this Convention, or future Legislature of this State, shall direct, and which shall fall within the compass of such newspaper, after the rate of £200 per annum, in quarterly payments; and that the first quarterly payment commence and be advanced to him on his publishing his first newspaper; and that salary be payable by warrants drawn by the President of the Convention, and to be continued for one year, provided the said paper shall so long be regularly published.

The Committee to whom the Certificate of General James Clinton and others, relative to the Chain, which was received and read yesterday, was referred, delivered in their Report; which was read and approved.

Resolved, That the Chairman of this Committee write a Letter to Colonel Henry B. Livingston, requesting him, that if it shall be consistent with his instructions from his Excellency General Washington, he immediately repair with his troops under his command to this State, in order to oppose the ravages of the enemy in the County of Westchester.

A draft of a Letter to Colonel Livingston was read and approved of, and is in the words following, viz:

"[Secret.] Fishkill, 11th December, 1776.

"SIR: It is apprehended that a successful attack may be made against such of the enemy principally, if not solely, consisting of Rogers's Rangers, as are now ravaging without restraint or remorse the suffering inhabitants of the County of Westchester. I am therefore directed to request you, if it is in any way consistent with your instructions from his Excellency General Washington, immediately to repair to this State with the troops under your command, in order to coöperate with the forces which are imbodying for this expedition. I need not add, that no time is to be lost, as the operations of the enemy in New-Jersey give a favourable opening for a sudden and vigorous enterprise, which we have no reason to expect will be of long continuance.

"I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant.

"By order, &c."

Ordered, That a copy thereof be signed by the Chairman, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Mr. Moore and Mr. Little be added to the Committee appointed on the 12th ultimo for taking care of the Poor in this State.

Friday morning, December 13th, 1776.

The Committee met pursuant to adjournment.

Present: Matthew Cantine, Esq., Chairman.

Mr. Duane, Mr. Dunscomb, Mr. Rutgers, Mr. Roosevelt, General Scott, Mr. Rob't Harper—For New-York.

Mr. Adgate, Mr. Abraham Yates—Albany.

Mr. Smith, Mr. Miller—Suffolk.

Colonel De Witt, Mr. Cantine, Mr. Tappen, Mr. Ray, General George Clinton—Ulster.

Mr. Landon, Mr. R. R. Livingston, Mr. G. Livingston—Dutchess.

Mr. Little, Mr. Wisner—Orange.

Colonel Drake, Major Lockwood, Mr. Morris, General Morris—Westchester.

Mr. Moore, Mr. Newkirk, Mr. Harper—Tryon.

Colonel Williams, Mr. Webster, Mr. Duer—Charlotte.

Mr. Sessions—Cumberland.

Mr. Duer, one of the Committee appointed on the instant, to go to New-Windsor and concert measures with General George Clinton relative to calling out the Militia of Orange and Ulster Counties to join General Gates or General Lee, reported a Letter which he had wrote to General Gates. The said Letter is dated at Dolson's Tavern, December 9th, and is as follows, viz:

"Sir: Since the resolutions which are referred to and enclosed in the above letter were agreed to, General Clinton and myself were requested by the Committee to proceed to Goshen, where we understood you were expected this , in order to know the routes which the troops under your command propose taking, and confer with you on other matters which are the object of these resolutions. I am sorry we are not fortunate enough to meet with you, but from the intelligence we have received from your Aid-de-Camp, Major Pierce, and from the route General Lee has taken through , we find that the intention of both your armies is to join General Washington, and not to form a separate army, in order to fall on the enemy's rear. In compliance therefore with his orders, General Clinton will be under the necessity of conforming himself to the object specified in the resolution marked No. 7, unless he should learn from General Lee or yourself that your intentions are to form another army on the rear of the enemy.

"For this purpose he desires me to inform you that he will immediately order his troops to rendezvous at the place called the City, near , in Orange County, at the parting of the roads which lead to Tappan and Pyramus, when he will be ready to obey your orders as far as they are consistent with the object of the enclosed resolutions. The force he will have with him will consist of about fifteen hundred men.

"By the latest account we hear that General Washington is daily receiving strong reinforcements from the Militia of Jersey and Pennsylvania; in consequence of which he may probably be induced to form an army for the purpose of hanging on the enemy in rear. he made acquainted with the measures pursued by the Convention of the State of New-York.

"I have therefore to request the favour of you to have copies of the Committee's letter to you, of the enclosed resolutions, transmitted immediately by express to his Excellency General Washington and to Major-General Lee, in order that they may pursue such measures as they shall judge best calculated for the general good.

"I am, sir, with great respect, your obedient humble servant,

"Wm. Duer.

"Major-General Gates.

"Dolson's Tavern, December 9th, 1776—ten o'clock at night."

The Resolutions of yesterday, relative to the Westchester expedition, after some time spent thereon, were recommitted to the same Committee, and to General Scott and Colonel Drake.

General George Clinton informed the Committee that General Schuyler has, by letter, informed him that he had directed the Committee of Albany to forward Timber, Boards, and Tar, for the obstruction of Hudson River. The Committee are further well informed, that Logs sufficient for that purpose are easily obtained near the place of obstruction, and, from experiments already made, at a much cheaper rate than they can be procured from Albany, and perhaps cheaper than even the transportation from thence.

Ordered, That a Letter be written to Major-General Schuyler, requesting him to countermand procuring the Logs he has ordered, but to direct the Boards and Tar to be forwarded.

Whereas Arms are necessary to be lent to the ordered into present service—

[The remainder of the Proceedings are wanting.]

PETITIONS, RESOLVES, AND ORDERS IN COUNCIL, OF MASSACHUSETTS.

PETITION OF THE SELECTMEN OF THE TOWN OF CONCORD.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay, New-England:

The Petition of the Selectmen of the Town of Concord, in behalf of said Town, humbly showeth:

That whereas, in the month of December, 1775, the honourable House of Representatives resolved to recommend to the town of Concord to send daily to the camp at Cambridge three cords of wood for the use of the Continental Army, and appointed a Committee to see the execution thereof; said Committee writing to us as Selectmen of said town, in the most pressing terms possible, setting forth the distresses that must and would ensue on our not exerting ourselves in that business, we thereupon endeavoured to the utmost of our power to comply with the said resolve, but could not, by reason that we in the town of Concord living at such a distance from the place the wood was destined to, the greater part of our wood in said town being eighteen or twenty miles from the camp, and at that time extreme bad travelling, that our people thought it very hard they must be obliged to cart their wood so far in such extreme weather and travelling, and have (as was the price the publick then gave) but twelve shillings half cord, being then reputed a sufficient load for a team of three or four good cattle. We therefore immediately called the town together, to see what further method the town would take to provide the Army with wood, as requested by said Committee. The town, when assembled, not considering their own particular profits, but the safety and welfare of the country, granted to all those who would exert themselves in conveying wood to the camp at Cambridge or Winter-Hill for the use of the Army, twelve shillings per cord over and above that was given by the Continent for wood, for six weeks then next to come from the first of January last, each man to produce a certificate from the Commissary of the number of feet in each load he should so carry; which was complied with.

The number of cords thus conveyed to Cambridge and Winter-Hill by the inhabitants of said town of Concord within said space of time, as appeared by said certificates, was two hundred and nine cords two feet and a half, which amounts, at twelve shillings per cord, to one hundred and twenty-five pounds eleven shillings and nine pence, for which the town of Concord has been assessed.

We therefore, your petitioners, in behalf of said town of Concord, humbly pray your Honours to take the above just relation into your wise and impartial consideration; and, if it can be judged reasonable and equitable, to refund to the town of Concord the above-mentioned sums of money they thus expended for the publick good, or any part thereof, as you in your great wisdom shall see meet.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

By order of the Selectmen:

EPH'M WOOD, Jun., Town-Clerk.

Concord, October the 8th, 1776.

Please to pay to Captain Joseph Hosmer the sum allowed, and you will oblige your humble servants.

By order of the Selectmen:

EPH'M WOOD, Jun., Town-Clerk.

Concord, October the 9th, 1776.

To the Selectmen of CONCORD:

GENTLEMEN: The House of Representatives have resolved that it be recommended to your town to send daily to the camp at Cambridge three cords of wood, and have appointed a Committee to see that this resolve be fully executed. We therefore earnestly request that you will use your utmost endeavours that this resolve be complied with by your town, and if there be any deficiency, that you give immediate notice thereof to Mr. Devens, Chairman of the Committee of this Court for supplying wood, &c., at Watertown.

Your own safety and the welfare of your country depend on your exertions in this business. The distresses that would ensue to this country from a failure we will not attempt to delineate; they are beyond description; in short, we are undone!

SAMUEL PHILLIPS,
Per order of the Committee.

PETITION OF JOHN CLARK.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled, OCTOBER, 1776:

The Petition of JOHN CLARK, of Hadley, in said State, humbly showeth:

That your petitioner, being in the service of the United States, and having risked his all in their defence against their cruel and unnatural enemies, marched under the command of (now) Brigadier-General Arnold, amidst great fatigues and many hardships, through the wilderness to Quebeck, where, on the 31st day of December last past, he was (with others) taken prisoner in an attempt to storm the city, under the command of the late brave General Montgomery, by which means he had the misfortune to lose a gun (called "King's Arms") with a bayonet, valued at twelve dollars, and a new scarlet coat, valued at eight dollars, and a beaver hat, about half worn, valued at two and half dollars, besides many other articles not here mentioned. Your petitioner, therefore, prays allowance may be made him for the above articles, and that such measures may be taken for his relief as by your Honours shall be judged best.

And as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOHN CLARK.

PETITION OF WILLIAM FOSTER AND CHARLES SIGOURNEY.

State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

To the honourable the Council of said State, the Petition of WILLIAM FOSTER and CHARLES SIGOURNEY, in behalf of themselves and the Owners of the armed Sloop OLIVER CROMWELL, humbly shows:

That they have, at a great expense and trouble, been preparing said sloop for a cruise against the enemies of the States of America in general, but more particularly against a large fleet of transports expected daily upon the American coast from Cork; but for want of a few small carriage-guns, which they are not able at present to purchase, their attempts will be much retarded, if not altogether frustrated.

Encouraged by that indulgence which this honourable Council has ever shown to the smallest efforts of individuals against the common enemy, your petitioners humbly pray that your Honours would grant them the loan of, or sell them, for the purposes aforesaid, four three-pound cannon, taken in the armed schooner Diligent, and now lying on the Long Wharf in Boston, on such terms and conditions as to your Honours may seem fit.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

CHARLES SIGOURNEY,
WILLIAM FOSTER.

IN COUNCIL, October 9, 1776: Read and sent down.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

The Committee on the within Petition beg leave to report, as their opinion, that the guns petitioned for are not the property of this State, and that the petitioners have liberty to withdraw their Petition.

SAMUEL WHITTEMORE, per order.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: The bearer, Captain George Evans, in the brigantine Necessity, was sent into this port the 27th ultimo by the privateer Hancock, Captain Wingate Newman, of Philadelphia. His vessel, by the register, appears to have been condemned in an Admiralty Court at Bermuda last March, and is here reported to belong to Mr. Beveridge, of Philadelphia. Now we beg your Honours' direction whether said Captain Evans shall here unload and sell his cargo, and whether he shall be permitted afterwards to load with any thing that may be shipped from hence to foreign parts; also, whether your Honours think it proper Mr. Beveridge should be informed of the vessel's being here brought in, and whether you will order your Secretary to give this information, or leave it to this Committee to do. Your answer by the return of Captain Evans will be punctually attended to, by your Honours' very obedient servant.

The Memorial of TIMOTHY MCDANIEL, of SCARBOROUGH, humbly showeth:

That in the year of our Lord 1755 your memorialist went on board his Britannick Majesty's ship Mermaid, Washington Shirley, Esq., commander, in the station of a Midshipman; in the year 1756 went to England in her, with his Excellency Governour Shirley; from the Mermaid, went on board the Monmouth, of sixty-four guns, with Captain Shirley, who being soon after superseded, your memorialist was discharged on board the Duke, of ninety guns, Thomas Hanway, Esquire, commander; and from her, on board the Naman, of ninety guns, Peter Denis, Esquire, commander; from her on board the Royal George, Richard Dorril, Esq., commander; and from thence on board the Dorsetshire, Peter Denis, Esq., commander; from thence on board the Bellona, Peter Denis, Esq., commander. In April, 1760, your memorialist passed an examination for a Lieutenant of the Royal Navy, and in September, 1762, was appointed by Peter Denis, Esquire, who was Commodore and Commander-in-Chief of all his Majesty's ships and vessels of war employed and to be employed in and about Basque-Road, on the coast of France, commander of the Fanny, armed tender, of six guns and forty-five hands, with Lieutenant's pay of a first rate; and in November to the Duke-of-York, armed cutter, of six carriage guns and fourteen swivels, which he commanded till February, 1763, when, it being peace, was paid off. Since the peace your memorialist has commanded several vessels in the merchant service.

Your memorialist has been in several smart engagements, particularly in that between Sir Edward Hawke and Conflans, and now begs leave to offer himself, if agreeable, to command some vessel in the American Navy. Should you, honourable gentlemen, be pleased to appoint him to such a trust, he hopes he shall be enabled so to act as not to be altogether unworthy your confidence. Your memorialist begs leave further to acquaint you, that ever since the commencement of the unhappy contest between Great Britain and America, his country has been pleased to repose some trust in him, as he has been one of the Corresponding Committee of Scarborough ever since its first institution, and was one of the Representatives of said town in County Congress, and was appointed by the honourable the Provincial Congress, in April, 1775, one of the County Committee for Cumberland, and in February last was appointed first Major in the Third Regiment of Militia in said County. If your Honours will condescend to consider that your memorialist, out of true affectionate zeal for this his dear native country, has (and that with pleasure) relinquished all his title to pay or preferment in the British Navy, it will, he hopes, induce you, when convenient, to comply with his humble memorial; and begs leave to subscribe himself, as in duty bound, honourable gentlemen, your dutiful and obedient servant,

TIMO. McDANIELL.

Given under my hand on board his Majesty's ship Duke, in Hamoza, July 31, 1757.

Resolved, That the Petitioner be and he hereby is directed to attend this Board on Tuesday next, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any he have, why the prayer of his Petition for a release should be granted; and that the said Lawrence R. Campbell cause that Captain

George Kimbal, Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence of the town of Lunenburg, or some one of that Committee, be served with a copy of this Resolve, that he may attend at the same time.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

IN COUNCIL, October 10, 1776.—Ordered, That the Keeper of the Jail in Concord be and he hereby is directed and required to cause Law. R. Campbell, now a prisoner of war in Concord Jail, to appear at the Council Chamber in Watertown on Tuesday next, at eleven o'clock beforenoon, agreeable to a resolution of Council of this day, in answer to the petition of said *Lawrence R. JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, &c., &c., &c.:

SIR: Induced by the great character of benevolence, humanity, and politeness, which you are so generally allowed to possess, and emboldened by my unhappy and cruel situation, confined to a common jail like the vilest criminal, have I ventured to take this liberty.

I shall not trouble you with a detail of the transactions between the Committee of Lunenburg (to which place I was ordered on signing my parole) and me: the enclosed petition, which I sent about a month ago, on my arrival here, to the General Council at Watertown, will inform you of the nature of my crime. Allow me to mention one circumstance: after the inadvertent speech I made, the Committee at Lunenburg ordered me before them, and was of opinion I had broke my parole by my speech, and sentenced me not to exceed half a mile from my lodgings; but reconsidering the matter some days after, liberated me to the full parole. I had enjoyed that liberty ten days, when the order from the Council came to confine me to Concord Jail.

I should be guilty of an act of injustice and ingratitude, did I not inform you that this order was entirely unknown to the Committee till it arrived, and have since the pleasure to understand they have interested themselves to get me liberated, but to no effect. As the Council has not been pleased to pay the least attention to my case, I have been ever since kept in a most cruel uncertainty. If on perusal of my letter and petition, you think I merit any alleviation to my distressed situation, I hope you will recommend it to be done as soon as the state of affairs will permit.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

LAW. R. CAMPBELL, Captain 71st Regiment.

Concord Jail, 19th September, 1776.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: In obedience to your orders to the Committee of Lunenburg I have left that place, and am now confined to Concord Jail; and as I am by this measure made very unhappy, I must entreat your Honours' attention to my case. I flatter myself that upon examination thereof, you will not conceive such unfavourable sentiments of me, as I am sure you must have done when you passed the order for my imprisonment.

I beg leave to observe to you, that a short time after my arrival in Lunenburg, in a familiar conversation with the man of the house where I lived, upon his saying he did not propose going into the Army, as near as I can recollect, I told him I believed he had better not, as it was my opinion Britain would beat the Colonies; or words to that effect. But to no other person have I said any thing on this subject; neither have I had the least inclination or desire so to do; and at the time of this conversation I did not advert to its being against my parole, or had I the least intention of biasing the judgment of the person I spoke with, or of injuring the cause of the United Colonies, but it rather proceeded from inattention than from any other cause; and as it is the intention that constitutes the crime, I flatter myself that with a representation of my fault, had there been mentioned the innocence of my intentions, which I declared to the Committee of Lunenburg, that humanity which this country so eminently possesses would have plead strongly in my favour, and if it had not entirely released me, would at least have pointed out a less rigorous punishment.

I have such an opinion of the justice of the Committee at Lunenburg, that I can't doubt but they will lay a state of this case, with all its circumstances, before you; when, I make no doubt, you will view it in a more favourable light than you do now. And as I am conscious to myself that I have during my abode at Lunenburg never intentionally departed from the engagement entered into by my parole, but, on the contrary, have at all times endeavoured to conduct in a manner the most unexceptionable, and have used my influence with the other officers to observe the same conduct, I am very desirous you would summons some of the intelligent and disinterested inhabitants of that town before you, that they may be inquired of touching these matters.

As cruelty is not the characteristick of your Honours, and I am confident you can have no disposition to increase my misfortune, I must entreat you to order my release from this place, or grant me the favour of a hearing at your honourable Board, where I shall be willing, on condition of enlargement, to make any concession becoming the gentleman,—other, I am sure you will not require,—and enter into any further engagement you may think proper.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

LAW. R. CAMPBELL.

Concord Jail, 28th August, 1776.

IN COUNCIL, August 30th, 1776.—Read, and committed to Jabez Fisher and John Taylor, Esq., to confer on the subject-matter of the above Petition with Mr. George Kimbal, Representative from Lunenburg.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Whereas, by the Report of the Committee appointed to hear Captain Campbell's Petition, it appears to this Board that which breach of his parole occasioned an order of this Board for his commitment to the Jail at Concord, in the County of Middlesex: And whereas by the Report of the Committee appointed to hear the said Campbell on his Petition, it appears to this Board that what he said to the above-mentioned Thomas Dodge was through inadvertence, and with no design to injure the cause of the United States, and that his conduct in other respects had been unexceptionable:

Therefore, Ordered, That he, the said Campbell, be liberated from the Jail at Concord, and proceed to Reading, there to reside, and not go beyond the limits prescribed by his parole; he paying all charges that have arisen in consequence of the said commitment. And the Keeper of the said Jail is hereby ordered to liberate him accordingly.

PETITION OF JOSIAH BATCHELDER, JUN.

To the honourable Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of JOSIAH BATCHELDER, Jun., in behalf of JAMES BROWN and NATHAN BROWN, of NOVA-SCOTIA, but late of IPSWICH in this State, humbly showeth:

That the above-named James and Nathan Brown have resided at Yarmouth, in Nova-Scotia, for several years, and are now desirous of returning, with their effects, to this State, where they formerly belonged. Therefore your petitioner humbly prays your Honours to grant a protection to James and Nathan Brown to return, with their effects, unmolested, from Yarmouth, in Nova-Scotia, to Ipswich, in this State. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOSI. BATCHELDER, Jun.

Watertown, October 10th, 1776.

IN COUNCIL, October 10th, 1776.—Read, and Ordered, That a similar Order to that given to Ebenezer Porter, Richard Valpey, and others, October 4th last, be granted to the above-named James and Nathan Brown.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Yarmouth, Nova-Scotia, September the 28th, 1776.

Captain JOSIAH BATCHELDER:

SIR: We take leave now, at this difficult time, to write these few lines to you, hoping they will find you and yours in good health, as we are at this time; blessed be God for it.

Sir, we are informed you are one of the members of the House of General Assembly of that Province; therefore we think best, with advice, to beg the favour of you which we are in need of; which is, a permit or protection from being made a prize of by the American vessels of war in our coming up there with our families and what little we can fetch with us. We don't suppose that a permit from any authority below, that we used to call the General Court, will be any protection. Mr. Robert Harskell advised us to write a petition and send up to you, to lay before the Congress. But we thought we could not form one in any formal manner; so we didn't; and we darsen't ask any one here to do it, lest we should be informed against at Halifax, and they should get authority to stop what little we can fetch away and us too. But if you think it best, and that it is likely we can obtain one by a petition, and not without, we pray that you will draw one for us in our names and behalf, and we will pay you for it, and for all other trouble you may be at in procuring it for us. Mr. Haskell says he will use best endeavours to convey it to us, if you can get it for us. So no more at present; but we remain your most humble servants and ever well-wishers.

JAMES BROWN,
NATHAN BROWN.

To Captain Josiah Batchelder, Jun., of Beverly.

PETITION OF DANIEL KNIGHT.

To the Great and General Court now sitting in WATERTOWN:

The Petition of DANIEL KNIGHT humbly showeth:

That some time last spring said Knight sent up an account of the loss he sustained on Damarris Cove, being attested by him, in hopes that your Honours would have considered his case. And as there had been orders from the Congress requiring all those that had suffered damage by the common enemy to bring an account of any loss they sustained, therefore he expected that his loss would have been made up to him, in whole or in part, as you in your wisdom shall think best; yet he never received any part of said loss as yet. I heard some person threw in a remonstrance, saying I charged too high for my house, and creatures they took away; but I think I know the value of my house, sheep, and hogs, better than any other person. Now, gentlemen, if it be your pleasure to grant the whole, or any part you please of the value of the loss I sustained, you will greatly oblige your humble servant. And I, as in duty bound, shall ever pray. DANIEL KNIGHT.

Boothbay, 29th August, 1776.

Whereas it hath pleased the honourable Continental Congress to require an authenticated account of the damages done to the inhabitants of the United Colonies by our unnatural enemies, and the honourable the Great and General Court have appointed a Committee to receive such accounts as respects this Colony, and they have desired the inhabitants thereof to send them in as soon as may be:

Therefore, the subscribers, Selectmen of Boothbay, would hereby certify, that on the 12th of October ultimo a part of the British fleet, said to be under the command of Captain Mowatt, anchored in Townsend or Boothbay harbour, and, on the 14th of said month they sent a party ashore on Damaris Cove, an island belonging to the town, where they burnt the dwelling-house occupied by John Wheeler, the property of Daniel Knights, of this town, and carried off a number of live stock, of which the owners have this day given us the following account, with their estimation of the contents, which is humbly submitted to the honourable Committee appointed for this purpose, by their humble servants,

Lincoln, ss.: Boothbay, January 18, 1776:

Daniel Knights, above-named, personally appeared and made solemn oath that the above is a just and true account of the damage sustained by him and John Wheeler, by the means and at the time above-mentioned; that the said stock was carried off without his connivance, and that he hath neither directly nor indirectly received any thing by way of compensation for the same.

Before me: John Beath, Town-Clerk.

Joseph Wheeler, of lawful age, son of said John Wheeler, having been on board of said Mowat's ship at the time when said damages were sustained, it had been reported that he had received pay for the above-mentioned stock; that said Joseph was this day solemnly examined, and made oath that he received no pay, either directly or indirectly, only ten dollars.

PETITION OF JAMES McCOBB AND JORDAN PARKER.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay:

May it please your Honours, humbly showeth, the petition of James McCobb and Jordan Parker, inhabitants of Georgetown, on Kennebeck River, in the County of Lincoln:

That no sooner had we received intelligence at this place of the memorable battle of Lexington, than the people judged it necessary, that they might not be surprised by the unexpected approach of an enemy, to have a guard stationed at the entrance of this river, especially as the river for a considerable distance from the sea is extremely accessible to the enemy's armed vessels, whereby they thought that not only their property and persons, but also a large quantity of the King's masts then lying in the river were much exposed to the depredations of the Navy; and as no regular authority was then established for that purpose, many of the inhabitants applied to your petitioners to provide and station a guard as aforesaid; and being convinced of the necessity of the measure, and urged by motives of publick utility, we not long after engaged and stationed as guards at the entrance of the river two persons in whose fidelity and vigilance we could confide where they continued in the faithful discharge of their duty eleven weeks, when they were relieved by the arrival of Captain Lemont's company.

As Lexington fight happened at a busy season of the year, when the people were necessarily employed in planting and sowing their lands, and every one engaged in making the best preparation in his power for the reception of the foe, your petitioners were put to great inconvenience and trouble in getting suitable persons for said purpose, and found themselves obliged to promise said guards forty-eight shillings per month each, allowing twenty-eight days to the month, exclusive of six shillings and eight pence per week each which your petitioners were obligated to pay for their billeting, the whole amounting to twenty pounds ten shillings and eight pence; which sum your petitioners have since advanced to said guards, out of our own pockets, and as we are conscious your Honours wish at all times to encourage and reward the exertions of individuals in favour of the common cause of America, we therefore humbly pray your Honours that the said sum of twenty pounds ten shillings and eight pence may be repaid to us out of the Colony Treasury.

And your petitioners will ever pray, &c.

James McCobb,
Jordan Parker.

Georgetown, 8th June, 1776.

The Committee appointed to consider of the Petition of James McCobb et al., relative to the payment of the Guards at the mouth of Kennebeck River, as within mentioned, have attended that service, and report, that it lay on your Honours' table until better evidence be produced.

Cha's Cushing, per order, &c.

July 1, 1776.

The Committee appointed to consider of the Petition of James McCobb and Jordan Parker, and the papers accompanying the same, relative to the payment of the Guards at the mouth of Kennebeck River, as within mentioned, have attended that service, and beg leave to report by way of a Resolve, viz:

In the House of Representatives, October 16, 1776.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this State to James McCobb and Jordan Parker twenty pounds, in full for the payment of the Guards and billeting of the same at the mouth of Kennebeck River.

August 20th, 1775.—Then received of James McCobb, Esq., and Esquire Jordan Parker, six pounds sixteen shillings for boarding of two men who was a watch at the entrances of Kennebeck River, eleven weeks, at six shillings and eight pence per week each.

Received by me: Thomas Pircey.

This may certify that we, the subscribers to James McCobb, Esq., and Captain Jordan Parker, hiring two men to keep a watch at the entrance of Keneybeck River, and we never heard any fault found, but that they attended their duty in said service for eleven weeks, the spring before last, until Captain Lemont's company was stationed there by the General Court, and was knowing to their wages being eight dollars per month and their victuals.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the Massachusetts-Bay, and to the honourable the General Assembly for the same State:

The Petition of Josiah Morton, of Plymouth, in the County of Plymouth, keeper of the Jail in said County, humbly showeth:

That a number of men called Refugees have been committed to his custody ever since the 24th of April last. consideration, and order him such relief for their maintenance (before a discharge be granted) as your Honours in your wisdom shall see fit; and your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOSIAH MORTON.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, October 14, 1776. Read, and committed to the Committee on the Petition of Dr. Stockbridge and others, the refugees within-mentioned.

J. WARREN, Speaker.

IN COUNCIL, October 16.—Read, and concurred.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Plymouth, 7th September, A. D. 1776.

To the Committees of Correspondence of SCITUATE, MARSHFIELD, DUXBURROUGH, PEMBROKE, and HANOVER:

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 3d instant, relative to the refugee Tories now holden in the County Jail, is come to hand. We, upon mature deliberation, think it can be no disadvantage to the American cause if these men be permitted to return to their respective homes, under proper limitations, as their continuance in jail can answer no valuable purpose. We think that it will be best that a watchful eye be kept over them, as they have been so ready in times past to sacrifice their country through timidity. We make no doubt but that your Committees will do every thing in your power for the publick security. We cannot accuse either of these men with any malevolent conduct respecting the publick cause since they have been with us.

We are, gentlemen, most respectfully, your brethren and sincere friends, the Committee of Plymouth.

MASSACHUSETTS-BAY State:

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of said State, now sitting at WATERTOWN, September the 9th, A. D. 1776:

The Committees of Correspondence of five towns, viz: Scituate, Marshfield, Duxborough, Pembrock, and Hanover, who had the care and direction of twelve refugee Tories, viz: Benjamin Stockbridge, John Tilden, Cornelius White, John Baker, Ephraim Little, Elisha Fourd, Sylvanus White, Stephen Tilden, Joseph Tilden, Warren White, Joseph Young, and Nathaniel Garnett, who arrived at Marshfield in April last, from Boston, and were then sent to Jail in the County of Plymouth, by order of said Committee, there to remain till otherwise ordered by your Honours, humbly beg leave to represent that said refugees have continued there to this time, their conduct and behaviour unexceptionable. They appeared to be duly humbled for their past conduct, and well disposed to join their countrymen in defending the United States of America, by arms according to their several capacities and abilities, as may appear by the papers accompanying this.

We would further represent to your Honours, that the moneys, goods, and effects, that they had with them when they arrived, about two months past, was confiscated; their real estate mostly leased; that they now depend on their families, relations, and friends, for their daily subsistence. We would humbly submit the matter to your Honours, whether the common cause would not be best served by your Honours' ordering them to their several homes, under the care and watchful eye of the Committees of the towns to which they respectively belong, that they may have opportunity to prove the sincerity of their professions by their future conduct and behaviour. And, as in duty, &c.

Dated at Pembrook, this 9th day of September, A. D. 1776.

JOSEPH TOLMAN, Chairman of Committee.

To the Committees of Correspondence of five Towns, viz: SCITUATE, MARSHFIELD, DUXBOROUGH, PEMBROKE, and HANOVER, in Joint Committee, to be assembled at Colonel JEREMIAH HALL'S, in PEMBROKE, on MONDAY, the 9th day of SEPTEMBER, A. D. 1776:

The Memorial of BENJAMIN STOCKBRIDGE, JOHN TILDEN, CORNELIUS WHITE, JOHN BAKER, ELISHA FOORD, SYLVANUS WHITE, STEPHEN TILDEN, JOSEPH TILDEN, NATHANIEL GARNETT, WARREN WHITE, JOSEPH YOUNG, and EPHRAIM LITTLE, humbly shows:

Your memorialists that we have been absent from our several homes and families for the term of about sixteen months, twelve months of which time we ascribe to our own timidity, inconsiderateness, and folly; the remainder of said term, after we returned from our prison at Boston, we have wore away at the common Jail in the County of Plymouth, by your order and direction. We severally acknowledge, gentlemen, you have done us justice in thus ordering us, more than we did ourselves in our flight. We are able to let you know many things that affected our minds at the time we unhappily went off, but are unwilling to trouble you at present, and therefore proceed to matters that are deeply grievous to us. We sincerely lament our having lost the confidence of our native country, which in justice we ought to prefer to all others, and acknowledge we have given just grounds therefor, and have unhappily injured, if not ruined, our families; and though we returned with a full and settled purpose to join our country, and with our brethren to oppose and resist by arms every enemy, and every attack made against it, and are still firmly determined so to do, yet the loss of confidence and our confined situation have at present prevented us from proving our professions to be sincere and genuine by our works in our future behaviour. We now lay as a dead weight on our families, relations, friends, and countrymen. Our case, gentlemen, is most unhappy. We therefore humbly move that you would take our pitiable case into your serious consideration; and though we have erred and conducted utterly inconsistent with the duty we owe our country, yet, gentlemen, as all human nature are liable to errours, we are led to hope, from our own experience of the humanity of our countrymen, that you, in your well-known candour and humanity, will interpose in our behalf for our liberation, in such way and manner and under such restrictions as you think best, that we may have opportunity of witnessing the sincerity of our professions by our future conduct and behaviour toward our much-injured and oppressed country, according to our several capacities and abilities. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Read, and thereupon Resolved, That William Seaver and Benjamin Greenleaf, Esqrs., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to take this Petition, with the papers accompanying the same, under consideration and report.

To the honourable the Council and the honourable the House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of BENJAMIN STOCKBRIDGE, JOHN TILDEN, CORNELIUS WHITE, JOHN BAKER, ELISHA FOORD, SYLVANUS WHITE, STEPHEN TILDEN, JOSEPH TILDEN, NATHANIEL GARNETT, WARREN WHITE, JOS. YOUNG, and EPHRAIM LITTLE, humbly shows:

That your petitioners, from the formidable warlike preparations made against this State in the year 1775, and from the high fame of the invincible power of the British arms, were exceedingly apprehensive that a resistance to these arms would, without the least prospect of success, spread desolation and carnage through the whole State, and involve their neighbours and countrymen in greater calamities than those from which they sought a deliverance. Impressed with these sentiments, when hostilities were actually commenced, with every circumstance of cruelty that could operate on timid minds, your petitioners, in the first transports of their fears, imprudently fled to the town of Boston for refuge. Your petitioners frankly confess the unreasonableness of their flight, and that no principle of fear ought to have prevailed upon them to desert the sacred cause of their country in the very moment she wanted their aid, and can only urge in their justification the frailties of humanity. Your petitioners beg leave to inform your Honours, that on finding their apprehensions to be groundless, they voluntarily returned to Marshfield, and threw themselves on the mercy of their countrymen; which conduct, your petitioners humbly conceive, is an evidence that timidity, and not any inimical designs against their country, at first influenced them to quit their habitations. Your petitioners, on their return, were committed to the common Jail at Plymouth, in the County of Plymouth, by order of the Committees of Correspondence of the towns of Scituate, Marshfield, Duxborough, Pembroke, and Hanover, where they have remained four months, entirely dependent on their relations and friends for their daily subsistence, their estates being, in consequence of a resolve of the honourable General Assembly, at the disposal of others. They are, however, so far from complaining of any injustice done them in this procedure, that they gratefully acknowledge the lenity and indulgence which they have experienced in many instances, and which are ever characteristick of the brave.

Your petitioners deem it the highest infelicity to have forfeited the confidence and affections of their countrymen by pusillanimously repairing for protection to an unnatual foe, as they have thereby in some measure incapacitated themselves from rendering those services to the publick which they came home with a full and determined purpose of performing, and which might make some atonement for their past misconduct and pusillanimity. It also gives them the most painful sensations to reflect, that by their own folly and indiscretion they have brought distress and misery on their guiltless families.

As this is the genuine state of your petitioners' minds, (which will appear from the testimony of the papers that accompany this petition,) as keeping them in their present confinement is really a punishment on their innocent connections and friends, as mistakes and errours are incident to human nature, and as free governments are distinguished by their moderation in punishing offenders, they humbly pray your Honours (if it can answer any salutary purposes to the community to continue them in imprisonment) to order that the places of their confinement may be the towns to which they respectively belong, under such further restrictions as are necessary for the publick safety, they giving such securities and bonds for their future good behaviour as your Honours in your wisdom shall direct. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETITION OF NEHEMIAH SOMES.

To the honourable the Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay:

The Petition of Nehemiah Somes humbly shows:

That by permission of your Honours he has lately made an exchange with Colonel Crafts of three six and one four-pound cannon, for some three-pounders, four of which came out of the Diligent armed schooner, William Lambert late master; but your petitioner omitted in his request for the exchange of the cannon to include therein an exchange of shot suitable for the cannon; and as the shot suitable for said cannon still remain on board said schooner, and the cannon he obtained will be of no service unless he can likewise obtain the shot, and the vessel in which said cannon and shot are to be placed is now fitted and ready to proceed on her cruise, and is detained only for the said shot, your petitioner humbly prays that your Honours would be pleased to order said exchange to be made. And, as in duty bound, he will pray, &c.

Nehemiah Somes.

In Council, October 17, 1776.—Read, and Ordered, That the prayer of the above Petitioner be granted, and that Colonel Crafts be, and he hereby is directed to make such exchange as he shall judge equitable.

John Avery, Deputy Secretary.

Hon. Moses Gill, Esq.:

Sir: Captain Soames is about making application to the honourable Board for an exchange of shot, for the four pieces of cannon they received from on board the Diligent, (which, by the way, are only two-pounders,) for some six-pounders they have by them; and as the State has no six-pound shot, I should think the exchange would be of real service to the State.

Your most obedient, humble servant,

T. Crafts, Jun.

ORDER ON THE PETITION OF ROBERT CRAGG.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, in Council, October 17th, 1776.

On the Petition of Robert Cragg, praying he, the said Cragg, may have liberty to depart this State to the West-Indies, in any vessel that may hereafter be bound there,

John Avery, Deputy Secretary.

These may certify, that the bearer, Robert Gragg, late Chief Mate on board the ship Anna Maria, from Barbadoes for London, William Pringle commander, and taken by the privateer sloop Revenge, of Salem, Joseph White commander; that said Gragg, ever since he was set on shore here in Salem, has behaved in a very orderly and peaceable manner; is, we believe, a man of sound morals, of sobriety and temperance, in nowise given to bad company; a sincere friend to the cause of America: but being now well advanced in life, (upwards of sixty,) of a very infirm constitution, unable to endure the severities of this or the English climates, he humbly prays the favour of the honourable the Council of this State, that, of their goodness, they will grant him the liberty to go to the West-Indies in any vessel that may hereafter be bound there, a climate he, number of years past, has been accustomed to, that he may pass the small remainder of his life there in peace. He frankly and with gratitude acknowledges and declares, that on all occasions will acknowledge that he has been always treated with the greatest civility and kindness since his being made a captive. May please your Honours, as we are of opinion that he, said Gragg, is truly sincere in his above declaration, and a worthy, honest man, pray your Honours' indulgence in their case, and that his prayer may be granted.

PETITION OF NATHANIEL WHITAKER.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts-Bay:

The Petition of Nathaniel Whitaker, of Salem:

Whereas the honourable Continental Congress have recommended making common Salt, and this Court also have published a pamphlet, giving a description of the process, and recommending this manufacture to the inhabitants of the seaport towns; which was printed last April, but hath hitherto produced no effect known to your petitioner, owing probably to the great charge of erecting said works, together with the uncertainty of a continuance of a price for the Salt, as a free importation would render the works of little value; but being persuaded that such an undertaking is necessary to the well-being and safety of this State, and being unwilling to risk so much as such a manufacture will require to erect it, therefore your petitioner prays this honourable Court to grant him an order to draw on the Treasury of this State, from time to time, for such sum or sums of money as he shall find necessary to procure a convenient place, and erect or prepare works for manufacturing common Salt, agreeable to a plan now before the Court, with addition of boiling pans, not exceeding ; and your petitioner will mortgage said works, and give bond to this State for replacing the moneys so drawn as fast as the sale of the Salt of said works shall produce it over and above the charge of carrying them on; and will submit his accounts to be audited by a Committee appointed by this Court; or that the said grant be made in any way which to this honourable Court shall seem most proper to expedite so great and necessary work. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Nathaniel Whitaker.

Salem, October 21, 1776.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the within Petition, met, and beg leave to report by way of a resolve:

In the House of Representatives, 1776.

Resolved, That the Petitioner be allowed to draw out of the publick Treasury of this State the sum of £200, for the purpose therein mentioned; he, the said petitioner, giving proper security for the same, payable in three years, with interest; but shall be exempted from paying interest for such sum for the first year after receiving it out of said Treasury; provided said works shall be erected for the purpose of manufacturing common Salt, within the space of one year after receiving said moneys.

PETITION OF A NUMBER OF THE MILITIA OF FALMOUTH, SCARBOROUGH, GORHAM, AND WINDHAM.

The Petition of a number of the Militia of the Towns of Falmouth, Scarborough, Gorham, and Windham, in the County of Cumberland, in the State of the Massachusetts-Bay, in North America, by their Committee chosen to draw up and exhibit a Petition for the purpose following, viz:

To the Great and General Court or Assembly for said State:

May it please your Honours: Whereas we, the said Militia, being joined by a number of the Militia from the eastward, under the command of Colonel Samuel Thompson, did, on the 7th day of May, 1775, enter on the beach at Falmouth, in the County aforesaid, and took from thence, under the muzzles of the man-of-war's guns, two boats belonging to one John Colson, an absconding Tory, and an enemy to this country: we also took possession of the said Colson's house, and took thence a number of barrels of pitch and sundry articles of dry goods, all which we conveyed by teams into the country, and there hired a store for them: we also took possession of the house of William Tyng, late Sheriff of said County, another absconding Tory, who was then on board the man-of-war, aiding and assisting the said Colson, who was rigging and loading a ship under the protection of the man-of-war, and bound to Great Britain, contrary to the resolve of the Continental Congress: we took from the said Tyng, who is now in the service of the British King, one large silver cup and one silver tankard.

And your Honours' petitioners are sensible that the said goods have been and still are exposed to loss and spoil; and as we humbly conceive we are liable to render an account of said goods to the Legislative power of this State, we, your petitioners, therefore humbly pray your Honours that in your great wisdom you would give directions that the said goods may be disposed of, to pay the cost of taking, transporting, and storing, and to what use the overplus money shall be appropriated.

PETITION OF ABRAHAM WALKER AND ISAIAH WALKER.

To the honourable the Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, humbly shows:

That Abraham Walker and Isaiah Walker were, some time in the month of July, 1775, since the present contest between Great Britain and these Colonies, taken prisoners at the Light-House, near Boston, and brought before his Excellency General Washington, who, after examining of us, saw fit to send us prisoners to the town of Springfield, in the County of Hampshire, where as such we have remained ever since. We therefore beg leave to lay before your Honours our circumstances, who we are, and from whence we came, doubting not but that afterwards you will be willing to take our case into consideration: Be it known, then, that we both belong to the town of Marshfield, in the County of Plymouth; are one of us a mechanick, the other a husbandman; both by profession Quakers and friends to the rights of mankind; have each of us families that are needy and distressed by our unhappy confinement; by our profession mean not to take arms on neither side during the present struggle. Our estates, what we have, have been taxed to support the common cause, which we shall make no objection to, so long as the struggle continues between Great Britain and the Colonies. Our present confinement, we humbly conceive, cannot operate in favour nor against the present conflict, as our circumstances in life are such as require all our aid and assistance to supply the wants of our several families who, by our misfortune, are reduced to great straits and difficulties. We hope your Honours will take our case into your wise consideration, and grant us a release from our present very disagreeable confinement, upon our engaging not to intermeddle in the present quarrel; which we are ready and willing to do, and to give such an assurance thereof as shall be satisfactory to your Honours; and we, as in duty bound, shall pray.

ABRAHAM WALKER,
ISAIAH WALKER.

IN COUNCIL, October 22d, 1776.—Read, and committed to Caleb Cushing and Samuel Holton, Esquires, to take the same under consideration and report.

tect the sea-coast and trade of the United States. And you are also directed to exert yourself in making captures of all ships and other vessels, goods, wares, and merchandise, belonging to the King of Great Britain, or any of his subjects wherever residing, excepting only the ships and goods of the inhabitants of Bermuda and the Bahama Islands. And whereas you have received a commission authorizing you to make captures as aforesaid, and a set of instructions have been delivered you for regulating your conduct in that matter, these instructions you are hereby directed diligently to attend to; and if you are so fortunate as to make any captures, you are to order them to make the first safe harbour within the United States of America. And you are further ordered not to expend your ammunition unnecessarily, and only in time of action or firing alarm or signal guns.

PETITION OF LEMUEL PERKINS.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The subscriber humbly prays your Honours to take notice of his unhappy situation. Confined, by the just determination of your Honours, to the town of Salem, he is desirous of the opportunity of supporting himself in his accustomed business. He might work on shore, but there his service is less needed and less advantageous to himself and the country. Seamen are greatly wanted, and within these few days he has been applied to to go in two different vessels to the eastward for wood, but being limited to Salem he was obliged to refuse the offered employment. One of these vessels is since gone, the other waits till your Honours' pleasure shall be known. Your petitioner acknowledges the justice of your Honours' sentence against him, but, praying remission of further punishment by a longer confinement, begs leave to assure your Honours that he will no more offend, and humbly hopes your Honours will grant him enlargement.

And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

PETITION OF SAMUEL ALLYNE OTIS.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of SAMUEL ALLYNE OTIS, of BOSTON, humbly showeth:

That soon after the battle of Lexington your petitioner's apprentice, John Gray, took passage for Ireland, where, hearing an accommodation was probable between Great Britain and the Colonies, he again embarked for his native land, and through the hardships and sufferings of a long winter voyage, he arrived off Newbury-Port, when he was made prisoner, and confined to the common prison there. But being only a passenger, and having nothing on board but some stores for his own subsistence, (which, by the way, were all taken from him,) and upon the representation of your petitioner, the Council were pleased to permit his imprisonment should be changed from Newbury Jail to Barnstable town, (sad alternative!) laying the prisoner, as well as your petitioner, under the heavy bonds of one thousand pounds. In this imprisonment he has remained, with the strictest obedience to the order of Council, near seven months, to the great damage and expense of your petitioner, as he wants his said apprentice's service, and is moreover obliged to support him at board, said Gray being stripped of all his property when taken. Wherefore your Honours' petitioner prays that said Gray may be enlarged, your petitioner discharged of his bonds, and enabled to avail himself of the services of his apprentice. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

Your Honours' most humble servant, SAM. A. OTIS.

PETITION OF OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS OF COLONEL MARSHALL'S REGIMENT.

To the honourable Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of the Officers and Soldiers belonging to the Regiment whereof THOMAS MARSHALL, Esq., is Colonel, humbly showeth:

That your petitioners did cheerfully engage in the service of this State, in expectation that according to establishment they should be served with good provision; but for some time past your petitioners have been served with pork (which is one principal part of our provision) that is very bad and unfit for use, being pork that was taken in an Irish prize and was designed for the British troops, but by reason of bad weather was on ship's board for many months in the West-Indies; and although it passed the inspection of gentlemen of undoubted judgment, yet your Honours' petitioners imagine they must either have seen the best part of the pork, or have seen it before it got so far damaged as it is at present, and therefore your petitioners humbly pray that your Honours would direct, that instead of said pork, they may be served with provisions that is suitable for men in the service of this State. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

PETITION OF ISAAC HARPER.

To the honourable Members of the Council and House of Representatives for the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The most humble Petition of ISAAC HARPER humbly showeth:

That your petitioner on the evacuation of the town of Boston did remain with his family; and as he was determined to demean himself in an orderly manner, according to such regulations as might be established, so he firmly hoped to receive that protection and security for his self and property as his conduct naturally and justly demand. That however guiltless your petitioner was of any species of offence, yet he was, at the instance of some malicious person or persons, procured to be committed to close confinement; but for what reason or under what pretext, he is utterly at a loss to determine. That your petitioner is languishing in a close confinement, in want of many necessaries of life; that your petitioner's wife, daughter, and in short the whole of his family, are at this time very sickly, and having no other dependence but himself for their support, must soon become objects of great distress.

Your petitioner therefore most humbly pray, that this true account of the condition of his suffering family may melt your Honours into speedy determination for their relief of them. That benevolence which so strongly mark your Honours' characters, makes your petitioner not doubtful of immediate relief, which will bind your petitioner to pray for such tender-hearted and compassionate gentlemen, and you may depend on his being very orderly and duly obedient to your regulations of government.

ISAAC HARPER.

IN COUNCIL, October 24, 1776.—Read, and thereupon Resolved, That Benjamin Austin, Esq., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to take under consideration the within Petition, and report what is necessary to be done thereon.

Sent down for concurrence.

RESOLVE ENCOURAGING SOLDIERS TO REMAIN IN SERVICE.

Passed October 24, 1776.

Whereas this Court did by their Resolve of the 23d instant order that the several Committees appointed to repair to the Army at or near New-York and Ticonderoga, should be instructed, if it should be thought necessary and advisable by the Commanders-in-Chief in each Army respectively, to endeavour to engage the men belonging to this State who are now engaged in service till the 17th of November and first of December next, to remain in said service till the 1st of February next, and to offer and engage to each Non-Commissioned Officer and Private Soldier who shall engage to serve till the last-mentioned time, in addition of twenty Shillings per month to the wages now established for them, to commence from the 17th November and 1st of December next respectively: And it is now apprehended that the intentions of said Resolve will be more fully answered by altering the times of the commencement of such additional pay:

It is therefore Resolved, That the additional pay offered by that resolve to said Non-Commissioned Officers and Private Soldiers, shall commence from the time each such officer or soldier respectively shall engage to remain in said service, and to be continued to them for the time they shall so engage for and serve, in case they shall not be sooner discharged, any thing in the afore-mentioned resolve to the contrary notwithstanding.

PETITION OF STEPHEN RICE AND JAMES WOODS.

To the honourable Council and the honourable House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND, humbly show:

Stephen Rice and James Woods, in behalf of themselves and partners, owners of a furnace at Hardwick, in the County of Worcester, that your petitioners have agreed to furnish the Commissary-General of this State with a large quantity of cannon-ball and other warlike stores, a part of which we have already supplied, which are allowed to be of the very best kind. We have with great difficulty, by reason of the scarcity of labour, procured stock for making another blast, which has been attended with considerable additional expense by reason of the large draughts of men which have been made from among us. We are at this present time just entering on said blast; and understanding that this honourable Court have ordered one half of the Militia of the said County of Worcester to march to Ticonderoga on an alarm, it will be impossible to proceed in carrying on our blast should one half of the Militia of Hardwick and New-Braintree be ordered to march.

Wherefore your petitioners pray that thirty persons, which is the number employed in carrying on the business of said furnace, may excuse from the present or a future requisition of men, during our present blast, from said towns of Hardwick and New-Braintree. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

STEPHEN RICE,
JAMES WOODS.

RESOLVE FOR SUPPLYING THE MILITIA, IN THE COUNTY OF BERKSHIRE, WITH ARMS AND AMMUNITION.

Passed October 26, 1776.

Whereas it is highly probable there may soon be occasion for a number of the Militia from this State to march in support of the Continental Army acting in the Northern Department; and as there is reason to apprehend that the Militia in some of the western counties are not so amply provided with Arms and Military Supplies as to march speedily to the assistance of their brethren in the Army, if called upon for that purpose:

RESOLVE FOR APPOINTING A BOARD OF WAR.

Passed October 26, 1776.

Whereas the present exigencies of our affairs, and the war we are by the injurious and cruel conduct of Britain forced into, for the defence of every thing dear to us, make it necessary that we should adopt the best measures for conducting the war with the greatest secrecy, despatch, and economy:

And it is further Resolved, That the Secretary and Commissary of this State make such returns to said Committee without delay as they shall from time to time require: and all officers in the service and pay of this State, by sea or land, are hereby required to be obedient and subject to such orders as they shall from time to time receive from the said Committee or Board of War, with the limitations aforesaid, which Committee shall keep in books for that purpose provided, fair and clear entries of all orders issued, and returns made, and also of all their proceedings, and of all the military and warlike stores and provisions belonging to this State, and the places where deposited. And it is also further Resolved, That a Secretary, and, if need be, one or more Clerks, to said Board of War shall be appointed by the said Board, and shall have such allowances for their services as the General Assembly of this State shall order; and such Secretary and Clerks shall, before they enter on their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation, before any one of the Council of this State or the Chairman of the said Board of War, who are hereby empowered to administer the same, a certificate whereof shall be filed in said office, viz:

And it is further Resolved, That the several Corps of Officers to whom Beating Orders may be given by virtue of the foregoing Resolves, be and they are hereby empowered to inlist men from the several Regiments and Companies in this State in the land service, except the Regiment of Artillery under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Crafts, either in the pay of this or the United American States; and the men serving in either of said Regiments or Companies, except as above excepted, are hereby allowed and permitted to inlist, if they see fit, immediately into the service in the aforegoing Resolves referred to, any previous engagements to form in either of said Regiments or Companies to the contrary notwithstanding.

PETITION OF THE SELECTMEN OF BEVERLY.

To the honourable Great and General Court of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of the Selectmen of the Town of BEVERLY, in the name and behalf of said Town, most humbly sheweth:

That whereas the Fourteenth Regiment in the service of the United States of America, commanded by Colonel Glover, was some time in July last ordered to march from this town, where we had for some time been stationed for the safety and protection thereof, to the State of New-York, to join the grand Army there, by which means this town was left destitute of any forces to guard on their sea-coast, which is very extensive and greatly exposed, the town petitioned to the honourable Council of this State (the Great and General Court not then setting) for some relief and assistance, who, with their usual benevolence, on the 20th of July last ordered Colonel Henry Herrick, Colonel of the Eighth Regiment in this County, to march a number of the Militia in said regiment into the lines within this town, not exceeding sixty, to guard within the same, &c., till further order of the Council; which was accordingly done; and they have guarded and performed their duty to the date hereof, when, by order of the honourable Council, they were discharged; by which means we are left destitute of men, and in a most unhappy situation, extending six miles on the sea-coast very convenient for landing of troops, &c. The settlers alongshore the most of that distance built breastworks and forts, procured cannon and warlike stores, and placed them in the same, and by far the greater part of the able-bodied men belonging to the town in the publick service or gone to sea, by which means we are reduced to a most defenceless state.

We therefore do most humbly pray that the honourable Court would be pleased to grant us a company of sea-coast men, or such a number of men as they shall think necessary, or order in the Militia to our assistance, or devise such ways and means for the safety and protection of this town as they in their great wisdom shall think best, as we in duty bound shall ever pray.

EDM'D GILES,
JOSEPH WOOD,

RESOLVE EMPOWERING THE COMMISSARY-GENERAL TO SUPPLY THE SEVERAL TOWNS WITH POWDER.

Passed October 28, 1776.

Whereas, by a resolve of this Court of the 24th day of June last, the keeper of either of the Powder-Mills in this State was empowered and directed to sell to the Selectmen of each town in this State, at the rate of five shillings per pound, as much Gunpowder as shall be wanted in their respective town stocks, to furnish each man on the alarm and train-band lists, with half a pound weight: And whereas it is much easier and more convenient for divers towns to send to the Commissary-General's store in Watertown, for such supplies of powder there, than to either of the Powder-Mills:

MEMORIAL OF COLONEL WHITNEY.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives, convened at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Your Memorialist humbly shows:

That he was appointed the 10th of April last to take the command of a battalion of men raised by this State; and though the pay of the State was small, yet my zeal for the liberties of my country was so great that I cheerfully undertook. The men were obtained, and we early in the spring took the field, while the enemy were in the harbour, and a reinforcement daily expected. But since that, other officers have been appointed; the men ready raised to their hands without their being at any expense to look them up, placed in the most secure and least laborious quarters, and yet put on Continental pay; while we, who were at vast expense to inlist our men, are stationed in the key of the State, the most hazardous and fatiguing post, where every thing is difficult to be obtained, and of extravagant price, and only the small establishment of this State to support us, which does not much more than clear our expenses.

This as to myself is not so grievous, for I am ready to spend, not only my fortune in the cause, but my life also, if need requires; but my under officers are very much troubled, and think your bounty toward them is not so great as towards some of the other regiments; and though they do not pretend to claim Continental pay as absolutely due, yet when they consider the impartiality that ought to govern every legislative body, and which they are persuaded reigns in this House, they flatter themselves that you will not degrade them below their brethren, but raise them to Continental pay. And this, I humbly conceive, would put a stop to the great uneasiness in the camps, and that coldness and indifference that appears between the several regiments would cease, and all would go on in love and unity in the glorious cause of liberty.

Therefore your petitioner humbly prays that you would take the premises under consideration, and order as you in your wisdom shall think best, and if possible put us on Continental pay. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOSIAH WHITNEY, Coll.

Camp at Hull, October the 29th, 1776.

To the honourable Council of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of GEORGE CHILD humbly showeth:

That your petitioner, being bound from Jamaica to Bristol, in the ship St. Lucea, loaded with sugar and rum, was taken by Captain Eleazer Giles, of Beverly, commander of the brigantine Retaliation, and was sent with his said ship into said Beverly, where it is probable his said ship and cargo will soon be condemned, the captors having generously given him his adventure, which is sufficient to purchase a small schooner, with which he is desirous of returning to his family: Therefore your petitioner humbly prays your Honours to permit him to proceed from Beverly to Bristol in a schooner about fifty tons, with ballast and stores sufficient for such a voyage, with ten men besides himself, said schooner to be fitted out, &c., under the inspection of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, of said Beverly; or otherwise relieve your petitioner as you in your great wisdom shall see fit. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETITION OF JOSIAH ELLIS AND OTHERS.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives, convened at WATERTOWN, in the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

We the subscribers humbly show: That in obedience to a resolve of the House of Representatives, June the 8th, 1776, we were ordered to go on board the sloop Betsey, bound to Falmouth, (Casco Bay,) as a guard to six cannon and other warlike stores; and we drew rations at Boston for eight days; but through the badness of weather going down, and being obliged to return to Boston by land, and there some time detained before we could get a passage to Hull, where the regiment was removed, we were absent from said regiment fifteen days, seven of which we were obliged to victual ourselves, at two shillings and four pence per day for each man—the whole sum, eight pounds nineteen shillings and eight pence.

We therefore beg this honourable Court would take the premises into consideration, and order for our relief, so that we may not be sufferers by our going on the said command. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETITION OF JOSIAH GODFREY.

To the honourable the Council and honourable House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY: The Petition of JOSIAH GODFREY, Chief Pilot of the Sloop-of-War REPUBLIC, commanded by Captain WILLIAMS, fitted out by this State, humbly showeth:

That your petitioner engaged in the service of this State expecting as much wages as is given to pilots in the Continental service; but thinking himself in danger of being deprived of that reward for his service that he can obtain from others, and which others in his capacity enjoy, begs leave to state facts to your Honours, not doubting but he shall have all that justice done him that the justice of his cause deserves. Your petitioner engaged with Captain Williams, upon his encouragement to give him as much as those of his station in the Continental service. This was strengthened by Colonel Bowers engaging to lay a petition before your Honours in behalf of your petitioner, that Captain Williams's engagement might be fulfilled to him; but this by accident was not done, and your petitioner having had several offers more advantageous, has kept this upon the above encouragement. Now your petitioner is left to the sad alternative, either to go much under what others freely offer him, or quit the service of this State dishonourably, and the worthy officers with whom he is now happily connected: your humble petitioner makes choice of the former, and leaves the event to your Honours, praying your Honours to make good his encouragements from Captain Williams, which induced him to engage in the service, and to allow him as much as those in the Continental service, which is six pounds per month.

And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

JOSIAH GODFREY.

PETITION OF THE COMMITTEE OF SALEM.

To the honourable the Council of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety of the Town of SALEM, humbly show:

That divers of the subjects of the King of Great Britain, taken in vessels in his immediate service, and on board merchant vessels, are now resident in this town, and in other maritime towns; that their numbers are daily increasing, as prizes are brought in; that the resolves of Congress respecting prisoners of war were passed before the Declaration of Independence, and determined such only to be prisoners as are taken in arms; that the crews of merchant vessels do now frequently oppose in arms their captors; that hence arise doubts on the question, Who are prisoners of war? That this town has not been assigned for the residence of such prisoners, and so this Committee have no authority to control them; that in the maritime towns they have the earliest intelligence of the transactions of the Americans, have opportunities of mixing in all companies, and in some such towns of daily communicating with many persons who, though observant of the laws and the resolves of Congress, are yet justly liable to suspicion as being not well-wishers to America. For these reasons we pray your Honours that some steps may be immediately taken relative to the captives afore-mentioned, that shall ensure the publick safety and the safety and property of the maritime towns: for we beg leave to add, that we do not think it expedient that captives not disposed to enter on board our vessels of war or merchant vessels should be permitted to reside in such towns, since being compact they are exposed to destruction by fire, and their vessels and boats may easily be cut out of their harbours and run away with. Some such instances have already happened; we wonder no more have occurred.

We find by an order of the honourable Board that Captain Lecke, of the Light Dragoons, and the Chaplain, Mr. Lewes, were to have been sent to Boxford, after the Sheriff had taken their parole, and the common dragoons were to have been delivered to the Committees in this County, to be let to work; but that order remains unexecuted in every part, and for that reason many persons here are uneasy. They are also uneasy because John Cousett Peers, Lieutenant of the tender taken by Captain Fisk, still remains in this town, although it is some time since he recovered of his wounds. There is the greater reason for this uneasiness with regard to Leche, Lewes, and Peers, because neither of them has given the parole ordered by Congress. We therefore pray your Honours to give immediate orders relative to these prisoners, as well as the former.

In behalf and by order of the Committee,

TIM. PICKERING, Jr., Chairman.

Salem, October 30, 1776.

IN COUNCIL, November 1, 1776.—Read, and thereupon Ordered, That Daniel Hopkins, Esq., be a Committee to take the above Letter under consideration, and report what is necessary to be done thereon.

PETITION OF JOHN HARVEY.

To the honourable the Council for the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now setting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of JOHN HARVEY humbly shows:

That your petitioner was late master of the ship called the Easter, bound from Jamaica to London, and was, on the second day of October last, taken by the Continental brigantine of war called the Cabbot, and sent into the port of Dartmouth; and that your petitioner had on board his ship at the time he was captured, his wife and family, which consists of four orphan children, under the care of your petitioner, the eldest of which is between six and seven years of age, and five servants—four whites and one black—all which are now at said Dartmouth. This being the situation of your petitioner and his family, he prays the indulgence of the honourable Court that they, in their great goodness and humanity, would grant leave to their unfortunate petitioner to purchase some small vessel, such as he may be able, and also to grant him a permit to depart with his said family, in said vessel, from Dartmouth, back again to Jamaica. And if this petitioner should be so happy as to obtain leave to purchase a vessel for the purpose aforesaid, he will want persons to man said vessel; therefore would further pray the indulgence of the honourable Court that they would grant permits to four of the men who belonged to your petitioner's ship before she was captured, for the purpose aforesaid, viz., Anthony Dickerson, John Taylor, Edward Harvey, William Dodge, and John Murro. The situation of your petitioner's family being so peculiarly unhappy, by reason of his having his wife with him, who is now pregnant and very near her time, and so many small children and servants, induces him to believe the honourable Court will indulge him in his requests, or otherwise grant him relief such as they, in their great wisdom, shall think proper and best. And their petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

JNO. HARVEY.

November 1st, 1776.

BRISTOL, ss: November 1st, 1776:

Then personally appeared Thomas Wever, who is now prize-master of the ship mentioned in the aforegoing Petition, and made oath that the facts set forth therein are true and just in every part.

Sworn to before me, ED'D POPE, Just. Pacis.

IN COUNCIL, November 15, 1776.—On reading the Petition of Captain John Harvey, late Commander of the ship Easter,

And in order to enable him to navigate his vessel, he is also hereby permitted to take with him Anthony Dickerson, John Taylor, Edward Harvey, William Dodge, and John Munroe, as Mariners to enable him to navigate his vessel. And 'tis hereby recommended to all American cruisers to suffer the said Captain Harvey to pass with his vessel, company, and passengers, unmolested.

ADDRESS TO THE OFFICERS AND PRIVATE SOLDIERS WHO ARE GONE FROM THIS STATE TO THE ARMY.

Passed November 2, 1776.

Resolved, That the following Address from the General Court of this State to the Officers and Private Soldiers who are gone from thence, and are serving in the American Army, be printed in two thousand handbills, and immediately forwarded to the Committees from this State in the Southern and Northern Armies, to be by them dispersed among the soldiery there:

"Friends and fellow sufferers:

"The beneficent Creator of the universe bestowed on mankind the noble faculty of reason, and created the human race with such an equality of power that no one had the right of domination over another, but each had the privilege of drawing his abilities into exertion for his own happiness, which consisted greatly in social life. However, such vices and corruptions soon thrust themselves into the human mind, that reason became dim, and government necessary to the preservation of society; but the form of just government depended upon, and the powers of it must at all times have been derived from, the people over whom it was exercised. And under such government men might be free and happy.

"But when the tyrants of the earth began to transgress the sacred line of property, and claim their fellow men as slaves, and to exercise lawless power over them, the intentions of government were subverted; war in defence of the dignity of human nature was introduced, and men began to take the field of battle on behalf of freedom.

"No people or nation since that time could exist in a state of ease and affluence, without becoming the envy of some rapacious despot. Hence it is, that all have been at some time or other called forth to the field of battle in defence of their indubitable rights; and when they have defended those inestimable blessings (bestowed by their all-merciful Creator) with a courage, magnanimity, and firmness becoming freemen, they have effectually secured them; but from those amongst whom timidity, indolence, and discord have taken place, the genius Liberty has taken her flight, and dwelt with minds more suitable for her abode.

"For the free exercise of liberty, more especially in the worship of that almighty Being who supported them in the greatest distress, our venerable ancestors came to this land when it was a savage and dangerous wilderness, terrible to the civilized eye. Here they toiled and bled, with the pleasing hope of their posterity enjoying that freedom for which they encountered every difficulty and braved every danger; and could their virtue have been inherited with the fruit of their toil, and their simplicity of manners and integrity of heart been transmitted to all their posterity, America would now have been the seat of peace and plenty. But such has been the avarice of some and the ambition of others amongst us, that the King and Parliament of Great Britain have been fatally persuaded to claim this whole Continent, with its three millions of inhabitants, as their own property, and to be at their disposal. In opposition to this unjustifiable claim, most obviously founded in tyranny, after loyally petitioning and dutifully remonstrating, without effect, you have gallantly taken the field, and the salvation of your country, the happiness of future generations, as well as your own, depends upon your noble exertions.

"This Assembly, feeling for the sufferings and hardships you have endured, has taken proper steps to have supplies of covering, clothing, vegetables, and all other necessaries for your comfort, speedily in the camp, with proper commissaries to deliver them, at the prime cost and charges of transportation, as they may be wanted, thereby to prevent the imposition of sutlers, which you have too long laboured under; and, being fully sensible how much depends upon your courage and patriotism, will at all times make it their particular business to render your lives as comfortable as the nature of the service will admit of; and do entreat and urge you, by the sacred ties of blood and friendship, to exert every nerve in this glorious struggle; for should you, for any reason, quit your posts, and disgracefully turn your backs on your enemies, wild carnage, barbarous and bloody desolation must spread like a hideous torrent over your ruined country; your fair possessions, the fruit of honest industry, must own new masters; while yourselves, your friends, your wives and innocent infants, must be destitute of a place of rest, insulted and abused by exasperated, unfeeling task-masters, scourged by mercenary slaves of foreign despots, denied even the happiness of hope, and borne down with poverty and despair.

"When the people of all ranks in this country consider the zeal with which you engaged in their defence, and how cheerfully you have endured the fatigues and hardships of the camp, they must be filled with the highest gratitude and confidence, and enroll your names where they will be honourably preserved to the end of time; while each generation, as it rises, shall learn to speak the fame of those worthies who nobly dared to face that death and despise that danger which stood between them and their country's happiness.

"This Assembly can by no means conceive that men who have always dwelt beneath the sacred boughs of liberty, and have been educated in the most liberal sentiments, and hitherto greatly distinguished for patriotism and publick virtue, can need much persuasion to induce them to tarry after their term of inlistment is expired, as proposed to you in a resolve of this Court, when, if they return, war must follow them to their own door, and the din of arms will forbid that ease and rest which in times of peace may be enjoyed in domestick life.

"Let, therefore, your love to your country, we beseech you, be shown in your perseverance at a time when you are not under those obligations which are designed more for mercenaries and slaves than those who are bravely fighting to save from impending ruin that land which gave them birth. And while you are thus gallantly employed in the most important and noble cause that any part of the human race has fought for, this Assembly again assures you that it shall be their particular concern to give you comfortable supplies and necessary reinforcements; and we trust, that under the smiles of that almighty and merciful Being who rules in the armies of Heaven, and who is the disposer of all events, you will be crowned with a glorious victory, and return honourably from the field, bringing deliverance to distressed America."

Ordered, That the above Address be signed by the President of the Council, and that Mr. John Pitts be appointed and directed to have the same printed in handbills, and sent to the Committees, as is above provided.

RESOLVE ON THE PETITION OF ROBERT BASDEN.

Passed November 2, 1776.

On the Memorial of Robert Basden,

MEMORIAL OF RICHARD DERBY.

To the honourable the Council and the honourable the House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Memorial of RICHARD DERBY, of SALEM, humbly showeth:

That on or about the 4th July last, Captain Christopher Bassett, in the schooner Polly, sailed from Halifax to Guadaloup, and arrived there on or about the 28th of the same month, where he sold his cargo of fish, and loaded the same schooner with molasses and sugar, and sailed from thence on the 18th September last, bound for Liverpool, about ten leagues west of Halifax. But on or about the 18th October, Mr. Ephraim Little, the Mate, aided by others, mariners on board said schooner, in a very rude manner, demanded the master's and vessel's papers, took command of said schooner, and forcibly carried her into Dartmouth, in this State, where the said Mr. Little has libelled the said schooner and cargo in the Maritime Court, with an intent to have her and her cargo condemned as prize to him and the mariners who were aiding and assisting in bringing her in. That at the time of said schooner sailing from Halifax she was, and is now, the property of Mr. William Boden, late of Marblehead, and was freighted one-third by the said Mr. Boden and the other two-thirds by Mr. John Prince, late of Salem. Your memorialist is far, very far from justifying the conduct of the said Mr. Prince; though at the same time he would observe to your Honours, that he knows not of his having any way acted against the United States of America; and the only crime, as he apprehends, he can be charged with, is his leaving the country when he should have joined and been aiding and assisting in defending the just rights of America. Your memorialist would further observe, that Mr. Prince has, in many instances, relieved the inhabitants of these States when carried to Halifax by the British cruisers, and to some he has generously given considerable sums of money; and amongst the present captors there are some whom the said Mr. Prince has kept and supported in his own house, and screened and protected them when in danger of being impressed on board the British ships of war; and one of them he furnished with an adventure when he had not a farthing to pay him for it, or even to help himself; and even this very same Mr. Little he relieved when in difficult and distressed circumstances, by paying his board and the like, supplied him with fourteen quintals of fish for his adventure, and took him into his service, when it was totally out of his power to help himself.

Your memorialist apprehends that such proceedings as the above related, (which are what facts he can collect from Captain Bassett and from Captain Lee, of this town, the latter of whom was a passenger on board,) are and will be productive of many and great evils, and if not now deemed piracy, yet, in his apprehension, they have a direct tendency to it; and, in the present case, your memorialist apprehends that the said Mr. Little and his company are guilty of the highest act of perfidy and the greatest breach of trust, and for which they ought, in justice, to be punished. Your memorialist therefore humbly prays that your Honours would be pleased to take this matter into your wise consideration, and not suffer the said vessel and cargo to be sold and distributed amongst the captors, but retain the same in the hands of Government, for the use and benefit of those whom your Honours may hereafter find to be the proper owners, or for the creditors of the said Mr. Prince.

IN COUNCIL, November 6, 1776.—Read, and thereupon Resolved, That Samuel Holton, Esq., with such as the honourable House may join, be a Committee to make inquiry relative to the facts set forth in the above Petition, and report what is necessary to be done thereon.

RESOLVE RESPECTING THE ESTATES OF REFUGEES.

In the House of Representatives, November 4th, 1776.

Whereas it appears the good designs of a Resolve of the General Assembly, passed the 19th of April last, respecting the Estates, Real and Personal, of such persons as joined our unnatural enemies, or had in a hostile manner been endeavouring to enslave the United Colonies of America, is in some considerable degree defeated by the conduct of several persons in this State unfriendly to the American cause, and the Committees of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety thereby prevented carrying said Resolve fully into execution:

It is, therefore, Resolved, That the Committees of Correspondence, Safety and Inspection in the several towns and plantations in this State be, and they hereby are, empowered, whenever they shall have just cause to suspect any person or persons in the respective towns where such Committees are appointed, of having taken, or holding in his or their possession, any part of the Personal Estate of such person or persons as described by said resolve of the 19th of April, and shall refuse to deliver the same to the said Committee, to cause the said person or persons so suspected to be sworn before one of the Justices within the County where such suspected person resides, respecting the premises; and whatever Personal Estate may be found the property of the persons before described by said resolve, the said Committee are hereby directed to dispose of agreeable to said resolve of the 19th of April. And if any person justly suspected as aforesaid shall refuse to give said Committee satisfaction upon oath, or that may appear, after examination upon oath, to have in his possession, or in any manner concealed, any of the personal effects of any such inimical persons, and shall refuse to deliver up the same to said Committee, every such person shall be deemed unfriendly to this State; and the Committees of the several towns and plantations within this State are hereby directed to exhibit a list of the names of all such persons to the General Assembly as soon as may be. And any person in possession of any such Real Estate, and not holding the same by lease or other written instrument, as mentioned in said resolve of the 19th of April, refusing to deliver the possession thereof to the Committee of said town where the same lies, any two Justices of the said County, upon application from the Committee aforesaid, shall make out their warrant to the Sheriff of the County, either of his Deputies, or to the Constable of the town, commanding him to dispossess such occupant, and to deliver possession thereof to the Committee of said town.

PETITION OF EDWARD BROWN.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives in General Court assembled, and now sitting at WATERTOWN:

The Petition of EDWARD BROWN, of the Town of CONCORD, humbly showeth:

That your petitioner has for years past made lime, much to the advantage of the publick; and in making the same am obliged to use considerable gunpowder to break the stone. There being, at this day, no powder to be purchased for money, as it were in time past, and have now a part of a kiln already to burn, but cannot procure powder to break the rest of the stone, thereby the publick much disappointed; desire therefore I may, for purchasing, have one quarter of a hundred of powder out of the publick stock. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

PETITION OF THE COMMITTEE OF DEER-ISLAND.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives for the State of Massachusetts-Bay, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of the Committee of Deer-Island, humbly showeth:

That we received the Council's directions with regard to Nathan Jones; have endeavoured to follow them; applied, as directed, to Thomas Stinson, Esq., for his assistance; have retaken the sloop Sally by a warrant; brought her back to the place from whence by force and arms she was taken. Also the Justice sent a warrant for said Jones and his abettors, but have not been able to take any except four, and those only of the lower sort, whom we have reason to think were deluded by the false representations of their heads or leaders. Jones is gone, it is said, after his mother, who plundered Mr. Hunt's house in Boston, to bring her back again into the Province; whether to Halifax or not we presume not to say; it is undoubtedly true in our minds, he is gone into the Province of Nova-Scotia. These four that are taken, upon their examination say, that Jones told them that he had an order to do in the manner he did from Mr. James Sullivan, a member of the General Court; and that that was the reason why they took arms against the authority of this State. That one Philip Hotchkins was appointed, in their expedition to Deer-Island, as Sailing Master; one Lebbe as Captain of their Marines; that when they came to the vessel they were ordered to load their guns; had a guard placed while they were rigging the vessel; that said Jones told them he would employ the vessel in going to St. Peter's after provisions, and that those would not assist him should not have any. He also has said, we find upon inquiry, that he would rather all North America should sink with an earthquake than that the Ministry should lose the day; that he would be damned, if he knew any one to be a rebel, before he would supply him with one toothful of corn; that he wished to God that he himself was in England; has advised the poor people in distress and inquiring of him, after the Lexington battle, what they should do for the necessaries of life, to sign a petition to Governour Gage, and then promised that if they did he would supply them. He has corresponded with his brother, who broke from Concord Jail, now with the enemy, as appear by an intercepted letter; and, to complete his innumerable other crimes, has taken up arms against the authority of this State, as was before hinted, in carrying off the aforesaid vessel. He has not only sent his own, but has also chartered another vessel to supply Nova-Scotia. These things, gentlemen, are but only a few of the many facts which have been made to appear to us, and we trust will also appear to any gentlemen who may be appointed to inquire into his character; and had we not viewed as an indispensable duty, would not have done it; but, as a whole country weighs much heavier in our minds than interest of any individual person, we therefore make them known. Beg your Honours direct us what we ought further to do. Knowing the affair to be of importance to our infant country, have taken the most early opportunity to make this report. Not doubting your ready compliance, your petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c. Joseph Colebe,

Chairman of the Committee of Safety, Inspection, &c.

Deer-Island, September 20, 1776.

New-Bristol, in Frenchman's Bay, 3d October, 1776:

I, John Bane, of said New-Bristol, of lawful age, do testify and say, that on the 30th day of August, A. D. 1775, a number of men from Deer-Island and Naskeig took a sloop belonging to Nathan Jones, Esq., which was bound to the Island of Mount Desart, in said bay, to load with staves for Ireland, as I verily believe, (having inquired and been informed by several persons who had made staves for said Jones, on said Island,) and brought said sloop into the harbour of New-Bristol, in said bay. Said Jones came to my house soon after the vessel was taken, and demanded of Thomas Stinton, Esq., William Reed, Joseph Patrick, and some others, who appeared to be the chiefs of the party who took the vessel, for what reason they took his vessel. They answered, because it was contrary to the orders of the grand Congress for any vessel to go with staves to Ireland. Said Jones told them that he knew after the 10th of September all vessels were prohibited by the Congress from going there, but not before, or words to that effect. They replied, his vessel was their prize, and they would keep her. Said Jones desired that the vessel might be left under the care of the Committee of Frenchman's Bay, and he would give bonds to answer for his conduct before the honourable House of Assembly of this State, or go himself with them; but they refused, and left said Jones at my house, and went on board the vessel. Afterwards, to wit, on the evening of the same day, they sent a paper to my house, containing the following words, viz:

"This may certify, this body of men now have the sloop Sally and the schooner Nightingale now in custody, empower the Rev. Joseph Patrick to inform the owners and concerned that they are determined to carry said vessels to Naskeig or Deer-Island, and appoint a committee to sit upon them, where those concerned may appear, and show reason, if any they have, why they should not be condemned."

The next morning they brought the sloop to sail, and carried her out of the harbour of Frenchman's Bay. And I do further declare, that on the 4th day of September following, at a meeting of the Committees of several districts lying eastward and westward of said Frenchman's Bay, John Springer, Ezra Young, and myself, were chosen by them to examine by what authority the people of Deer-Island and Naskeig had taken said sloop and two other vessels out of Frenchman's Bay. Accordingly, I went to Deer-Island, and applied there to the Committee to know by what authority they acted; and received for answer, that Mr. Patrick had brought down orders from the Congress to seize all vessels, or words to that effect. I then asked to see the orders; but said Committee told me that Mr. Patrick came away in a hurry, and did not bring the papers with him, but that there certainly was such orders out.

John Bane.

I, John Shaw, of Gouldsborough, of lawful age, do testify and say, that on the 29th day of August, A. D. 1775, being employed by Nathan Jones, Esq., of said Gouldsboro', to collect a quantity of barrel staves, which said Jones had agreed to purchase of sundry persons living on the Island of Mount Desart, to load his sloop Sally for Ireland, I proceeded in said sloop from said Jones's wharf, in said Gouldsboro', about one o'clock in the afternoon, for said island, being about ten or twelve miles distance, having on board said sloop one bull between two and three years old, and about two or three thousand of barrel staves, with a gundelo in tow. About seven o'clock the next morning, being still on board said sloop, in Frenchman's Bay, within one mile distance of said Island of Mount Desart, I saw several boats full of men armed with muskets, who came up within gun-shot of said sloop, and hailed and order us to heave to. Simon Gross, who acted as master on board said sloop, answered, The helm is hard down; upon which they came along side, and jumped on board, with their muskets in their hands. Some went on the quarter-deck; others went forward; others into the cabin. I staid on deck a few minutes, and observing that they had got a case-bottle of rum out of the cabin, went down into the cabin, and there saw another of the people carrying another case-bottle of rum out. I followed him upon deck, and said, What do you mean by this? Who is commander on board now? One William Reed, of Naskeig, said he was commander. I asked what he intended to do with the sloop and us. He replied that they were agoing to carry the sloop to Naskeig or Deer-Island, and us too. I desired to know for reason they took the sloop, telling them I was only a passenger going to Mount Desart to collect a cargo for the sloop; said Reed answered, that it was against the orders of the Congress to send any vessel to Ireland, and that the sloop was their prize. I told him that any vessel might go to Ireland till the 10th of September. He said that Mr. Patrick, the minister of Deer-Island, had just came from Court, and brought orders to take all vessels that were loading for Ireland, or words to that effect. Six or eight men then got into the boats, and began to tow the sloop, it being calm. I went below again; and a sentry being placed at the companion door, refused to let me, or any of the men who belonged to the sloop, go on deck. After staying in the cabin about half an hour, said Reed came down. I asked if were to be kept confined to the cabin, and said it was ill usage, or words to that effect. Reed answered it was a mistake in the sentry, and that we were at liberty to go on deck or stay below, or words to that effect. They then proceeded with the sloop to New-Bristol Point, and came to anchor. I applied for liberty to go on shore, and was permitted to go, after promising to return again on board. I went on shore, and tarried two or three hours, and then returned on board, and desired they would permit me to go home. Reed said I should go to Deer-Island with them. I said I did not care; I dare go where they dare carry me; but they had business with me, and had better let me alone, as I did not belong to the vessel, or words to that effect. Some of the said Reed's party told me to go along; they would not be plagued with me on board; upon which I left the sloop, and returned home. And further saith not.

JOHN SHAW.

State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, LINCOLN County, GOULDSBORO', 5th October, 1776:

Then the said John personally appeared; and after being carefully examined, and duly cautioned to testify the whole truth relating to the action in which is to be used, made oath to the truth of the same.

The Deposition of John Robison, of lawful age, testifies and saith: That on 23d day of July, he was boarded by Colonel Nathan Jones, in a large canoe, with four men, who were going to take a sloop detained by the Court; they guarded my house, and commanded me to go with them. I was forced to do the same. I went, and declare that there were with me, viz: Philip Hochchis, Shem Hotchkis, Joseph Barker, Robert Yong, ——— Salasbury 3, ——— Yong, ——— Stinson, ——— Lobbe, Benjamin Ash, ——— Clark, ——— Googens. He also declared to me that the gentlemen of the Court told him that he, i. e., the said Jones, should go and take away from Deer-Island. And furthermore the deponent saith not.

JOHN ROBEISON.

July the 31st, 1776.

The above-named John Robeson personally appeared before me and made oath to the truth of the above Deposition.

Said Jones not notified, being above twenty miles distance.

Council Chamber, Watertown, August 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The General Court is to meet the next week, when your petition presented by Mr. Patrick shall be laid before the whole Court, and doubt not but the subject-matter therein contained will be duly considered. In the mean time, in regard to Nathan Jones taking the sloop Sally from you, committed to your care by the General Court, in the manner you have represented, the Council highly disapprove of his and his abettors' conduct, and recommend to you to recover said sloop into your custody again in any legal method you shall think proper, and that you apply to Thomas Stinson, Esquire, Justice of the Peace for the County of Lincoln, for his assistance in inquiring into the conduct of said Jones and his abettors' conduct towards you on that occasion, and he to deal with them according as the law directs.

By order of the major part of the Council:

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Mr. Joseph Colby, Chairman to the Committee of Correspondence, &c.

The Committee upon the Petition of the Committee of Correspondence of Deer-Island, have attended that service, and finding the subject-matter of said Petition is proper to be considered by the whole General Court, in the mean time are of opinion that the within draft of a Letter be sent to the said Committee of Deer-Island.

BENJ. CHADBOURN, per order.

Frenchman's Bay, New-Bristol, August 31, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: Yesterday a number of men from Deer-Island and Naskeig, commanded by Captain Read, of said Naskeig, and Mr. Patrick, of Deer-Island, took a sloop belonging to Nathan Jones, Esq., which was bound to Mount Desert harbour, in this bay, to load with staves for Ireland, and brought her into this harbour. As soon as Mr. Jones was informed of it, he waited on Captain Read, Mr. Patrick, and several of the principal men who had the vessel in possession, and desired to know for what reason they took the vessel? when they informed him, that it was contrary to the resolves of the Grand Congress for any vessel to carry staves to Ireland. Mr. Jones told them that he was sensible that after the 10th September all vessels were prohibited going there; but till then he thought he had a right to send his vessel there. They then told him his vessel was their prize, and they would keep her. He then desired that the vessel might be left with the Committee of Frenchman's Bay, and he would give bonds to answer for his conduct before the honourable House of Assembly, or go himself with them; but they refused, and this day have carried her out of this bay.

We the subscribers certify, that we have diligently observed the conduct of Mr. Jones, and can find nothing to object against him; and we believe he has not broke through any of the acts of the Congress by sending his vessel contrary to their resolves. The vessel that was taken returned from the West-Indies in May last; since which, she has been to Annapolis Royal twice with boards, and brought back hay and live stock into this bay, and here landed them; and we believe that the vessel has never been any where besides since her return from the West-Indies.

At a meeting of the Delegates from the several settlements between Penobscot and Machias, said Jones declared himself to be a friend to his country, and that he would conform to the rules and orders of Congress or House of Assembly of this Province, which was accepted by them, and he was then recommended by them to the friendship and esteem of his fellow-countrymen, and he has at all times since behaved as a friend to his country, and we think he ought to be treated as such by his countrymen. Therefore we humbly pray your Honours would take the matter into your wise consideration; and if your Honours find that Mr. Jones has not transgressed, we pray that he may have his vessel returned to him again.

The Deposition of Daniel Sullivan, of lawful age, being called on by and before the Committee of Deer-Island and Naskeag, testifieth and says: That about two or three month ago Captain Agreen Crabtree, of Frenchman's Bay, came from the West-Indies, master of the sloop Sally, Nathan Jones owner; that he, the said Crabtree, brought a quantity of tea, likewise his mate, Mr. Groos, and one of his hands, Mr. Cartten; said Groos told me that he sold his to Mrs. Jones, and Mrs. Jones told me that she had bought it; as to Captain Crabtree, he sold his about in said bay. I told our Committee of it, desired that it ought to take it in hand; but nothing was done. Said Captain Crabtree then proceeded to Nova-Scotia Government with lumber, two trips; and one of his hands told me that he, the said Crabtree, had brought tea from Nova-Scotia in said voyage, and then said Jones then chartered said sloop to one Savage, to carry staves to Ireland. All this time, when said Committee and others from Naskeag, I heard Eleazer Crabtree threaten to take said sloop away by force of arms, and said that the Congress and Court allowed any to be Tory that had a mind to behave so, the same as they allow the Quakers liberty of conscience.

DAN'L SULLIVAN.

Frenchman's Bay, August the 31, 1775.

N. B. The said Sullivan testifies and says, that he did hear said Jones and his clerk, John Shaw, say, that the above sloop could go where she had a mind to, for she had got a Halifax bottom.

DAN'L SULLIVAN.

The Committee of both Houses appointed to take into consideration the Petition of Joseph Colby, Chairman of the Committee of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection, of Deer-Island, in the County of Lincoln, have attended that service, and beg leave to report, as their opinion, that the honourable Council have given such directions to Joseph Colby, in his said capacity as Chairman, &c., as will be sufficient for recovering the sloop Sally, and also for examining into the conduct of Nathan Jones and his abettors, and dealing with them as the law directs.

And as to the ten guns represented to be lost by the oversetting of a boat, your Committee are of opinion that the fact is not sufficiently supported. All which is humbly submitted.

IN COUNCIL, September 5, 1776.—Read, and concurred.

SAM'L ADAMS, Secretary.

PETITION OF NATHAN JONES.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of NATHAN JONES, of Gouldsboro', in the County of LINCOLN, humbly showeth:

That whereas your petitioner has this day been informed a complaint has been exhibited against him by the Committee of a place called Deer-Island, or by some person in their behalf, setting forth that your petitioner was inimical to the free and independent States of America; had by force and arms taken a sloop from said Committee of Deer-Island; and to complete their diabolical purpose, that your petitioner was fled to Halifax for protection: Wherefore your petitioner humbly prays your Honours that he may have a hearing respecting the subject-matter of said complaint, before any determination is made thereon.

And your petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

NATHAN JONES.

Watertown, October 16, 1776.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, October 16th, 1776.—Read, and committed to the Committee on the Petition from Deer-Island.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Humbly shows, Nathan Jones, of Gouldsboro', that in August, 1775, the Committee of Deer-Island, as they styled themselves, took from him (your petitioner) his sloop called Sally, under pretence of her being about to supply the British Army; that afterwards, in November last, the Great and General Court of this State made an act for condemning all vessels that were thus employed, and a time was therein limited for libeling such vessels as were then taken. Whereupon your petitioner then had expectation of having a trial by jury, as said act directed; but said Committee then knowing that their accusation against your petitioner and his said vessel was false, and apprehending that he could make appear and establish that he had done nothing against the laws of this State, did not libel said vessel, but kept her in their own employ for the space of eleven months. Your petitioner then, by advice of friends, took said vessel into possession, as he thought he might lawfully do; whereupon the honourable Council recommended it to said Committee to recover said vessel; whereupon she has since been taken from him, and an order passed the General Court on the 28th September, 1775, that the said Committee should detain said sloop till the further order of said Court; and a resolution passed the honourable House and Council lately, whereby the said Committee are directed to libel said sloop; but the major part of the Council do not consent to the same; by means of all which your petitioner is debarred the benefit of the act of Government, and also of a trial by a jury, to whose decision he is willing at all times to submit his conduct. And this is all done at the solicitation of one Mr. Patrick, whose deportment and character your petitioner conceives is sufficient to render him below the notice of the honourable Assembly.

Your petitioner prays that he may not have his property taken from him, or himself condemned, without an impartial trial according to the laws of the Government, in which trial he is so much assured of the rectitude of his dealings that he has no doubt of an acquittal.

And, as in duty bound, will ever pray.

NATHAN JONES.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the Colony of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY in General Court assembled:

The Petition of the Committee of DEER-ISLAND humbly showeth:

That whereas a number of the inhabitants of said Island and No. 4 Nasgeeg did, on the 30th of August, 1775, take into custody a sloop named the Sally, which had been transgressing the resolves of the Continental Association, and delivered the said sloop to us the said Committee, the subject-matter of which we immediately reported to the honourable Court, that we might receive their order thereon, which was the detention of the said sloop under the care of this Committee until the further order of this honourable Court.

This trust the Committee have endeavoured faithfully to execute, and have patiently waited the further order of Court, until Wednesday, the 24th of July, Nathan Jones, Esq., and with him a large number of others, armed with guns, pistols, &c., in five or six boats, appeared in sight, who, in the utmost hurry, went on board said sloop, bent her sails, which were stowed away; and when asked by one of the Committee, who only with two men more were permitted to go on board, who asked who commanded the mob, was answered by said Jones, he commanded the party; being again demanded by what authority, he answered he took her as his own property; he was then forbid to carry off said vessel, but to no effect, for he immediately had her under way, and in open defiance to all authority went off once more equipt to feed the unnatural enemies of America, who, from day to day, are plundering our sea-coast, taking all our fishing vessels they can lay hands on, of which we have some melancholy instances of late, hereby reducing the friends of the country to utmost distress, in particular manner this Island, where we have reason to suspect they are aided and directed to by some in this country; this is justly suspected from their being so well acquainted with creeks and places, so that our people have been stopped from getting their vessels into the harbours, and also from the many threats which have been given out by said Jones, and others of his adherents, as also from his known character of being inimical to all those who are friends to liberty, as has been and still might be made to appear evident to this honourable Court. We would, were it possible, avoid casting any reflections on any one; and when we say any against Mr. Jones, it is not that we love him less than did his banditti which come with him to rob his country; but this we confess, that we love our country more than we do him or any one man singly considered; it was from this motive we presume the captors of this vessel acted; from this motive the aforesaid Island acted in sending up to the Court the first time to give information of the shipping being at Long-Island; from this principle also they went to keep them from trading when three Committees, our neighbours, had agreed to trade with them. From this principle, also, our people, when near upon starving, under the command of Captain Seth Webb, kept them from landing; and when they had the necessaries of life offered, refused trading with them; fired with the same spirit, they went again to defeat the second fleet from taking wood, &c. These things we would not mention were they not known, so that he must be a stranger here that does not know these things. We therefore, your petitioners, humbly pray that your Honours would take these things into your wise consideration, and immediately give us orders what you would have us do, or that which we would rather have a Committee from your honourable House, or if it can be of the Board, to search into these and many other things which by writing, without being tedious, cannot be made known to your Honours. We are willing that our actions should be scanned, and cannot but hope that the closer the search is the brighter we shall appear, although, knowing we are but men, we would not be too confident, yet we fear not the trial, therefore beg that our petition may be granted.

And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray for the prosperity of the publick cause, in which we rest ourselves equally concerned, &c.

JOSEPH COLBY,
Chairman to the Committee of Safety, Correspondence, and Inspection.

N. B. On an alarm since writing the above, by a ship's coming into the harbour ten of the inhabitants of this Island lost their guns by a boat's oversetting; we pray your Honours would order some method whereby the deficiency may be supplied, as arms cannot be obtained here.

JOSEPH COLBY,
By order of Committee.

In the House of Representatives, November 4, 1776.

The Committee appointed to consider the Petition of Nathan Jones, beg leave to report, that they have attended that service, and find that some time in the summer of the year 1775, the Committee of Deer-Island, in the County of Lincoln, on suspicion that the said Jones was loading his sloop called the Sally with supplies for the enemies of the American States, and that he had before supplied them with certain cargoes of the same sloop, took her into possession. That afterwards, in November last, there was an act passed by the General Court of this State, empowering all persons who had taken vessels which had been employed in supplying the enemy, to libel them, within a time by said act limited, in the Courts by said act created for the trying of the same, and to have them condemned as the prizes of the libellants, and that the said Committee of Deer-Island did not libel said vessel according to the said act, and the said Jones afterwards took her into his custody again; whereupon the honourable Council, on application made to them during the last recess of the General Court, ordered the said Committee of Deer-Island to recover the said sloop Sally again; and afterwards there was a resolve of the whole Court, directing the said Committee to detain the said sloop until the further order of Court; and since that time the House has passed a resolve that said Committee might libel said vessel, but the honourable Council have not consented thereunto. And as the matter in controversy is of a private nature between said Committee and said Jones, and the proceeds of said vessel, if she should be condemned, will go to the use of those persons who shall libel her, and not to this State, your Committee are of opinion that this Court are by no means held to involve themselves in the dispute, and therefore beg leave to report the following resolve, to wit:

RESOLVE ON NATHAN JONES'S PETITION.

Passed November 5, 1776.

Whereas the Committee of Deer-Island have taken into custody a Vessel owned by Nathan Jones, and said to have been employed (in breach of the laws of this State) in supplying the enemy; and the time by law limited for the libeling said Vessel is expired:

It is, therefore, Resolved, That the said Committee may, at any time within fifteen days next after their being served with a copy of this resolve, libel said Vessel before the Judge of the Maritime Court, in the eastern district of this State, erected to try the justice of the captures of Vessels. And such Court is empowered to take cognizance of and try the same, in the same manner as if the time by law allowed for the libeling such Vessels was not expired.

And it is also Resolved, That all orders of the Council, and Resolves and Orders of this Court heretofore particularly respecting the same Vessel be, and they hereby are repealed, and rendered null and void. And in case the said Committee, or their agent or agents, shall not see cause to libel the said vessel within fifteen days after they or any two of them shall be served with a copy of this resolution, the said Jones, or his agent or attorney, shall have full power and authority to take into his own care and custody the said Vessel and appurtenances.

PETITION OF WILLIAM BLAIR TOWNSEND.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of WILLIAM BLAIR TOWNSEND, now resident in HOPKINTON, in the County of MIDDLESEX, and said State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in behalf of his children, humbly showeth:

That whereas the said William Blair, as an executor to the last will, &c., of the Honourable Thomas Hubbard, Esquire, deceased, is possessed of a note of Harrison Gray's, as Treasurer of the late Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, for the sum of five hundred Pounds, borrowed of Madam Mary Hubbard, the 9th day of August, 1773, for the use and service of and in behalf of said Province, promising and obliging himself and successors in the office of Treasurer to repay the said Mary Hubbard, or her order, the 20th day of June, 1775, the aforesaid sum of five hundred Pounds, in

Spanish milled dollars, at six shillings each, with interest annually at five per cent.; which note, in the division of the said deceased's estate, is set off to your petitioner's children, in part of their dividend in their said grandfather Hubbard's estate:

And whereas but one year's interest, to the 9th day of August, 1774, has been paid by said Treasurer Gray on said note, and no part of the principal sum, and your petitioner prevented from making application to said Treasurer Gray for the payment either of the interest or principal sum due on said note, according to the terms therein expressed for the payment thereof, by reason of the great and unavoidable difficulties and embarrassments said Province has laboured under from that time to this, to the great detriment of your petitioner and his children in this and other respects, but who have and are still willing to pay their proportion of all legal demands, though it should be the whole they are possessed of, and sacrifice their lives also, in supporting this State, struggling in the glorious cause of liberty, which may God go on mercifully to prosper and succeed:

Therefore your petitioner prays that this honourable Court would direct or order the present Treasurer of this State to repay your petitioner, in behalf of his children, the principal sum of said note, being five hundred Pounds, with the annual interest, at five per cent., due thereon, from the said 9th day of August, 1774, or relieve the children of your petitioner by paying the interest due on said note, or in any other way that to them shall appear best.

And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

WILLIAM BLAIR TOWNSEND.

Watertown, September 7th, 1776.

RESOLVE ON THE PETITION OF WILLIAM BLAIR TOWNSEND.

Passed November 5, 1776.

On the Petition of William Blair Townsend, Esquire, in behalf of his children:

As it appears from said Petition and Note that the sum of five hundred Pounds was, in the year 1773, on the 9th of August, borrowed of Harrison Gray, then Treasurer, of Madam Mary Hubbard, since deceased, for the use of this Colony, which sum said Gray obligated himself and successors in the office of Treasurer to repay, with annual interest, to the said Mary, or her heirs: And as said sum, with the interest (save one year) remains unpaid, and the heirs have solicited the honourable House to pay the principal and interest, or the interest:

Therefore, Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury to said heirs, or their guardian, the interest due on the afore-mentioned sum.

PETITION OF JOSEPH PATRICK.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives for the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled:

The Petition of JOSEPH PATRICK, humbly showeth:

That he did, some time during the General Court's recess the time before their last session, come upon his own expense and charge above three hundred miles, and gave information to the Council of Nathan Jones taking away a vessel by force and arms, which was detained by a special order of this Court; that he received the Council's orders, endeavoured to see that they were executed; has since returned and made report what has been done; waited by desire of Council till the honourable Court should meet, so that thereby the affair has been laid before the whole House.

These things your petitioner would willingly do gratis, were he able; but as he is not, and as the Council gave him encouragement by saying that they made no doubt but that the House would allow him pay, to your petitioner, his expenses and trouble, prays therefore that your Honours would grant his account, which is as follows, viz:

|---|---|
| To traveling, and waiting at Watertown, from the 9th of August, 1776, to the 4th September, twenty-five days, at 5*s.* per day, - - - - - - - - - - - - | £6 5 0 |
| To the hire of an horse from Newburyport, £1 15*s.* - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - - | 1 15 0 |
| To passage from and to Deer-Island, £1 4*s.* - | 1 4 0 |
| To feeding his horse seven nights and days, 7*s.* - | 0 7 0 |
| To passage the second time from Deer-Island to Boston, 14*s.* - - - - - - - - - - - - | £0 14 0 |
| To the hire of an horse from Boston to Watertown, 3*s.* - - - - - - - - - - - - - - | 0 3 0 |
| To waiting at Court by desire of the Council for the honourable Court meeting, and afterwards for their orders, from September the 21st to October 27th, thirty-five days, at 5*s.* per day, - | 9 5 0 |
| The total, - - - - - - - - - - | £19 13 0 |

Your petitioner hopes your Honours will not think his account extravagant, when they consider the time he has expended, the travel and fatigue which of consequence he must have undergone in travelling not less than twelve hundred miles, which he never has nor never can get any thing unless your Honours please to allow it to him. This he is the rather encouraged to ask for, as he is most absolutely assured that it was only a disinterested love to his country which moved him to take so arduous a task of discovering and bringing to light an enemy, an high trespasser, against this State, as his own acknowledgment allows; therefore your petitioner prays that his account may be granted.

And, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

JOSEPH PATRICK.

PETITION OF ROBERT FARRAH.

To the honourable the Council and the honourable House of Representatives of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in General Court assembled, NOVEMBER, A. D. 1776:

Humbly shows ROBERT FARRAH:

That he was late Master of the brigantine Henry and Ann, which was taken by Captain Sawter, an armed vessel in the service of this State; and as this brigantine was chartered by the British Government as a transport vessel, he is not entitled by law to receive his wages, as the masters of other merchant vessels which are taken do. He would further represent, that he had on board this brigantine when taken, a private adventure, the sterling cost of which was upwards of two hundred pounds sterling. This he is also denied, so that he is without a shilling to support him while a prisoner. He would beg leave to suggest to your Honours that it is the unvaried custom for the masters of transport vessels taken by the armed vessels in the service of the United States, to have given them their private adventures, which generous custom is almost universally followed by the captors in and owners of private vessels of war. Your petitioner humbly, and with a decent confidence, hopes your Honours will consider his unfortunate case, and in your goodness grant him relief; and, as in duty bound, shall pray.

R'T FARRAH.

ORDER RESPECTING THE TRIAL OF THE BRIG BETSEY.

In Council, November 8th, 1776.

Whereas there appears no prospect that the Brig Betsey, with her cargo or her appurtenances, lately taken by a vessel belonging to this State, claimed by Mr. Creed and others, and has been acquitted on a trial in the Maritime Court at Salem, will be condemned on the trial on the appeal to the Supreme Court:

Therefore Ordered, That the Agent for the Middle District for this State be, and he hereby is, directed not to enter or prosecute the said appeal so far as respects the interest of this State; and he signify to the captors, or such as represent them, that if they are determined and will prosecute the said appeal so far as the captors are interested, they must do it entirely at their own expense.

Read and accepted.

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

To the Honourable Mr. DANA, Watertown:

SIR: I find Mr. Creed is about to make application to Council for the delivery of the Brig Betsey, and therefore pray leave to inform you, that after the trial in the Maritime Court at Salem, I had determined not to trouble myself any further about her, as there did not appear to me on trial there was the least probability of her being condemned; but as the Captain was clamorous and noisy, I entered my appeal with an intention to prosecute it further at the Superiour Court, but I assure you I have not the most distant apprehension of succeeding. It will be an expense of about forty pounds. The Board will act their pleasure.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

RICHARD DERBY, Jun.

Honourable Mr. Dana.

ORDER RESPECTING AN EXCHANGE OF PRISONERS.

State of the Massachusetts-Bay, Council-Chamber, November the 8, 1776.

Whereas two vessels have lately arrived from Halifax, by order of Sir George Collier, Commander Rain-Bow man-of-war, under the care of Captain Thomas Stone, as flag of truce, with one hundred and seventy-four of our men that have been taken by the enemy, in order to exchange for a like number of their men, and under like circumstances that have been taken by vessels belonging to the United States of America, with directions to negotiate the affair with Mr. Nathaniel Tracey, of Newbury-Port, whose right to negotiate with Lieutenant Stone for the exchange of prisoners was confined by this Board to the persons captivated on board the Brigantine Yankee Hero, a private armed vessel of this State: And whereas but five persons so captivated have been sent into this State in the said flags of truce, and it was therefore altogether irregular that the negotiation for the exchange of any other prisoners than those belonging to the said Yankee Hero should be managed or conducted by the said Tracey; yet as it is apprehended that Sir George Collier may have mistaken the extent of the powers committed to said Tracey, and most of the prisoners brought into this State by said flags have dispersed and gone to their several homes, and considering the great hardships and distresses our men have undergone during their late captivity, it is thought proper, for this time, to deliver up to the said Stone an equal number of persons who are now captives in this State (having respect to the rank and condition of the persons sent up for exchange) as have been returned in the said flags. And that for the future no exchange should or ought to be made for any prisoners unless the officer by whose direction our subjects shall be sent hither shall give order to negotiate for the same directly with the Government of this State:

Therefore, Resolved, That Benjamin Greenleaf, Richard Derby, and Benjamin Austin, Esqrs., be a Committee to collect one hundred and sixty-nine persons that have been taken by our vessels, under the like situation and circumstances, as near as may be, with those brought by Captain Thomas Stone, and negotiate the affair of the exchange with said Stone; and that Mr. Nath. Tracey, of Newbury-Port, be empowered and directed to convey four officers and one private from any of the prisoners at or near Northampton, (John Knight and Robert Arnold excepted,) and negotiate the exchange for the four officers and one private lately of the privateer Yankee Hero, now in his (said Stone's) possession.

Also,

Resolved, That the said Commissaries be empowered to hire one or more Storehouses, as occasion may require, and, if necessary, to call to their aid one or more persons to assist them in the proper distribution of the stores that may be committed to their care, and that they lay an account of the same before the General Court for allowance.

PETITION OF BENJAMIN FOSTER.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the MASSACHUSETTS-STATE:

The Petition of BENJAMIN FOSTER, in behalf of the Sixth Regiment in the County of LINCOLN, under my command:

That upon examination we have little or no ammunition by us in the Regiment above-mentioned: by which means we are much exposed in the present day to the unnatural enemies of the United States, the strong attachment to which induces me to take this step of application for supplies; therefore beg that your Honours will take it into your wise consideration, and furnish us with a stock sufficient for such a number of men consisting of seven hundred as a town stock. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

BENJAMIN FOSTER.

PETITION OF THE COMMITTEE OF MACHIAS.

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives for the Colony of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Whereas your Honours were pleased to issue an order in April last, empowering the Committees of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection, in the several towns and plantations in this Colony, to lease out the real estate of all persons that have been aiding and assisting the enemies of the United Colonies of America: And whereas Ichabod Jones, late of this place, did aid and assist the Ministerial Fleet and Army, by supplying them with lumber, &c.; and as the said Ichabod left a considerable property in this place, both real and personal: In obedience, therefore, to your Honours' commands, we, the Committee of Correspondence, Safety, and Inspection, for Machias, have taken a true inventory of all the estate of Ichabod Jones in this place that has come to our knowledge, some of which real estate we have leased out, as mentioned in said inventory, a copy of which we herewith lay before your Honours.

About the 1st instant one Stephen Jones appeared and exhibited to us an instrument of joint copartnership between Ichabod Jones, Stephen Jones, and John Coffin Jones, demanding two-thirds of all said estate in this place, both real and personal, (although he could not bring any thing to prove the fee of said real estate to be in any person besides said Ichabod,) for the use of himself and said John Coffin Jones; but as the said Stephen Jones did, some time in November last, kill about fourteen oxen, all which he sold and converted to his own use, together with four horses, being part of said estate; and it appearing to this Committee that the said Stephen Jones was using every means in his power to get all said personal estate into his own hands, we therefore passed a resolve, of which the following is a copy, viz: "Whereas a great part of the personal estate of Ichabod Jones, late of this place, has been secreted, wasted, or otherwise embezzled the year past; and whereas this Committee have offered all said personal estate to Stephen Jones, provided he will give this Committee a true inventory of all the personal estate which belonged to Ichabod Jones in June last, with sufficient security to see the same forthcoming when required by the General Court of this Colony, or this Committee, which said Stephen Jones has utterly refused to comply with:

"Therefore, Resolved, That this Committee will forthwith take charge of all the real and personal estate in this place belonging to Ichabod Jones, and will pursue the directions of the Court in said matter."

Having thus given a true state of facts, we humbly pray your Honours will be pleased to order how we shall conduct in this affair.

By order of the Committee:

BENJA. FOSTER, Chairman.

Machias, June 19th, 1776.

---

To the honourable the Council and House of Representatives of the State of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

The Petition of BENJAMIN FOSTER, of MACHIAS, on behalf of the Committee and inhabitants of said place, humbly showeth:

That whereas in consequence of bringing a number of prisoners from Machias to Watertown, in August, 1775, a considerable expense arose thereby, which was but in part discharged by your Honours, viz: one hundred pounds received of the Honourable Henry Gardner, Esq., by your petitioner and Jeremiah Obrian, for which they gave their bond that they would settle the whole account of said expense; in order to do which, your petitioner herewith lays before your Honours an account of the whole expense attending the bringing up said prisoners, &c., which he prays may be allowed, as he has sufficient vouchers, which he is ready to lay before any Committee which your Honours may appoint to examine the same.

Your petitioner also begs leave to acquaint your Honours that we supplied the Indians the last winter with sundry articles necessary for their support, and without which they could not have subsisted, as well as to keep friends with them, before there was any Truckmaster appointed at said place; and said Indians are so poor they are unable to pay any part of said account; therefore we pray your Honours would order Captain Stephen Smith, Truckmaster at Machias, to pay said account of articles supplied said Indians

Your petitioner further prays your Honours would give the Committee of Machias some special directions respecting the estate of Ichabod Jones, as Stephen Jones, a partner in trade with said Ichabod, utterly refuseth to deliver to said Committee any part of said estate that he has in his hands, but has forcibly entered upon some part of said Ichabod's estate, and still detains the same. And whereas many have deserted from the enemy at Nova-Scotia, and come to Machias, and we have reason to think more would come could they obtain sufficient provisions at said place to subsist them to those parts, we therefore pray your Honours would order Captain Smith, Truckmaster at Machias, to supply any deserters that may come, as aforesaid, with sufficient for their relief.

Your petitioner further begs leave to suggest to your Honours the distressed condition of the people of Machias, by reason of their not being able to export their lumber, which is their chief article of support. Therefore pray your Honours would take their case into consideration, and supply them with articles that they stand in need of, and take our lumber in pay. We should not have troubled the Court again, but we have no vessels to export our lumber, our only remaining one being taken by the enemy. As in duty bound, shall ever pray.

CONNECTICUT ASSEMBLY.

Acts and Resolutions passed at a General Assembly of the Governour and Company of the State of CONNECTICUT, holden at NEW-HAVEN, on the second THURSDAY of October, 1776.

RESOLUTION APPROVING THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

Whereas George the Third, King of Great Britain, hath unjustly levied war against this and the other United States of America, declared them out of his protection, and abdicated the government of this State, whereby the good people of this State are absolved from their allegiance and subjection to the Crown of Great Britain: And whereas the Representatives of the said United States, in General Congress assembled, have published and declared that these United States are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, and that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown:

Resolved by this Assembly, That they approve of the Declaration of Independence, published by said Congress, and that this Colony is, and of right ought to be, a free and independent State; and the inhabitants thereof are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown; and all political connection between them and the King of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved.

And be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the form of civil government in this State shall continue to be as established by charter received from Charles the Second, King of England, so far as an adherence to the same shall be consistent with an absolute independence of this State on the Crown of Great Britain, and that all officers, civil and military, heretofore appointed by this State, continue in the execution of their several offices, and the laws of this State shall continue in force until otherwise ordered; and that for the future all writs and processes in law or equity shall issue in the name of the Governour and Company of the State of Connecticut, and that in all summonses, attachments, and other processes, before any Assistant, or Justice of the Peace, the words "one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace," be omitted, and that instead thereof be inserted, "Justice of the Peace;" and that no writ of process shall have or bear any date save the year of our Lord Christ only, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding. And that the act in alteration of an act prescribing forms of writs, processes, &c., be repealed, and the same is hereby repealed.

AN ACT FOR THE PUNISHMENT OF HIGH TREASON AND OTHER ATROCIOUS CRIMES AGAINST THE STATE.

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any person or persons belonging to, or residing within this State, and under protection of its laws, shall levy war against the State or Government thereof, or knowingly and willingly shall aid or assist any enemies at open war against this State, or the United States of America, by joining their Armies, or by inlisting, or procuring or persuading others to inlist for that purpose; or by furnishing such enemies with arms or ammunition, provision, or any other articles for their aid or comfort, or by carrying on a treacherous correspondence with them, or shall form, or be any way concerned in forming any combination, plot, or conspiracy for betraying this State, or the United States, into the hands or power of any foreign enemy, or shall give, or attempt to give or send any intelligence to the enemies of this State for that purpose, every person so offending, and being thereof convicted, shall suffer death.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall endeavour to join the enemies of this State, or of the United States, or use their influence to persuade or induce any person or persons to join, aid, comfort, or assist them in any way or manner whatsoever, or shall have knowledge of any person or persons endeavouring or using their influence aforesaid, and shall conceal the same, shall be punished by fine according to the nature of his offence, and shall be imprisoned at the judgment of the Superiour Court, in any of the jails in this State, not exceeding ten years.

AN ACT FOR PRESCRIBING AND ENJOINING AN OATH OF FIDELITY TO THE STATE.

Whereas the King of Great Britain hath abdicated the government of this and the other United States of America, by putting them out of his protection, and unjustly levying war against them; and the said United States by their Representatives in General Congress assembled, by a Declaration bearing date the fourth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, for the reasons therein mentioned, solemnly declared that the United Colonies of North America are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; which Declaration is approved by this Assembly: Wherefore it is expedient for the security of this State, that an oath of fidelity be taken by the freemen and officers thereof:

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all the Members of the General Assembly and other officers, civil and military, and freemen, within this State of Connecticut, shall take the following oath, viz: "You, A. B., do swear by the ever-living God, that you will well, truly, and faithfully adhere to and maintain the Government established in this State under the authority of the people, agreeable to the laws in force within the same; and that you believe in your conscience that the King of Great Britain hath not, nor of right ought to have, any authority or dominion in or over this State; and that you do not hold yourself bound to yield any allegiance or obedience to him within the same; and that you will to the utmost of your power maintain and defend the freedom, independence, and privileges of this State, against all open enemies or traitorous conspiracies whatsoever. So help you God."

And no person shall have authority to execute any of the offices aforesaid, after the first day of January next, until he hath taken said oath. And all persons who hereafter shall be appointed to any of said offices shall take said oath before they enter on the execution of their offices. And no freeman within this State shall be allowed to vote in the election of any of the officers of Government until he hath taken the aforesaid oath, in the open freemen's meeting in the town where he dwells; and the names of all freemen who take said oath shall be enrolled by the Town Clerk in the records of the town, which oath shall be administered by a Magistrate or Justice of Peace.

RESOLUTION DIRECTING THE PUBLICATION OF CERTAIN ACTS.

And whereas some evil-minded persons, inimical to the liberties of the United States of America, have endeavoured to depreciate the Bills of Credit of this and the said United States: Which to prevent:

or silver and bullion at the value in proportion to dollars at which they pass in this State, or at which they are or may be fixed by the Assembly of the United States in Congress; or by offering, demanding, or receiving, directly or indirectly, a greater sum in any of said bills for any houses, lands, goods, or commodities whatsoever, than the same could be purchased at of the same person or persons in gold or silver money; or whoever shall sell or offer to sell, house, land, or any kind of commodity for hard money, and shall refuse to sell and dispose of the same for any of said bills, every person so offending shall forfeit the full value of the money so exchanged, or the houses, lands, goods, or commodities so sold or offered to sale, one-half to the publick Treasury of this State, if the conviction be before the Superiour Court, or to the County Treasurer if before the County Court, or to the Treasurer of the town where the offence is committed, if the conviction be before an Assistant or Justice of the Peace, and the other half to any person who shall sue for and prosecute the same to effect. And all informing officers are hereby directed to take notice and make presentment of all breaches of this act.

RESOLUTION ORDERING THE PUBLICATION OF THE ACT FOR SUPPORTING THE BILLS OF CREDIT.

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Act passed this session for supporting the credit and currency of the Bills of Credit, &c., be forthwith published in all the newspapers in this State, and the several printers are desired to insert the same accordingly.

RESOLUTION DIRECTING THE ARREST AND EXAMINATION OF SUSPECTED PERSONS.

Whereas it is reported to this Assembly that there are a number of persons in the Western Towns of this State, inimical to the liberties of this and the other United States of America, who are forming dangerous insurrections, and taking every method in their power to communicate intelligence to comfort, aid, and assist the enemies of these United States, and to distress the inhabitants of said towns, and to bring on a general anarchy and confusion among them:

Resolved by this Assembly, That Abraham Davenport, Daniel Sherman, Thomas Fitch, Andrew Adams, and Jonah Bissell, Esqrs., be appointed a Committee forthwith to repair to said Western Towns, and to convene before them all such persons as shall be suspected to be inimical and dangerous to the rights and liberties of America in this critical and convulsed state of affairs, when the ordinary mode of prosecution will not be adequate to the mischiefs apprehended, and all such persons as the Committee shall, upon inquiry, judge to be dangerous or too suspicious, consistent with the publick safety, to be suffered to remain in their present situation, said Committee are hereby authorized and empowered to send such person or persons so deemed and adjudged dangerous as aforesaid, under a proper guard, to such place or places in this Colony as shall be thought best, there to remain and to be safe kept under the direction of his Honour the Governour and his Council of Safety, for such time as the publick security may require.

And it is further Resolved, That his Honour the Governour be desired to direct Major-General Wooster to give the aid and assistance with his troops in his power to said Committee for carrying into execution the aforesaid resolve.

AN ACT IN ADDITION TO AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT FOR THE MORE EFFECTUAL CARRYING INTO EXECUTION THE SEVERAL ACTS RELATIVE TO THE MAKING OF SALTPETRE AND GUNPOWDER WITHIN THIS COLONY."

Whereas the Selectmen in each town are in and by said act appointed Inspectors of Saltpetre, notwithstanding which sundry quantities of that article, either through the unskillfulness or inadvertency of the Inspectors, have been found upon trial when brought to the Powder-Mills to be impure and unfit for the manufacturing of good Gunpowder, and thereby the publick are much injured: Which mischief to prevent for the future:

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That there be appointed for each Powder-Mill in this Colony a good and skillful Inspector of Saltpetre, who shall be under oath, and shall carefully reinspect all the Saltpetre brought to said Mills, before any premium is paid thereon, or price therefor; and whatever Saltpetre shall be found bad and impure shall be refined by said Inspector, and the Selectmen of the town from whence it came be notified thereof, and of the expense attending the same, which shall be deducted, together with the wastage thereon arising, from the premium and price thereof, and the remainder paid over to the owners thereof.

AN ACT TO PREVENT ENGROSSERS, AND FOR THE BETTER SUPPLY OF OUR TROOPS IN THE ARMY WITH SUCH NECESSARIES AS MAY BE WANTED.

Whereas many are so abandoned, and lost to all the feelings of humanity, as to prey upon the bowels of their country, in this day of publick distress and struggle, by endeavouring to engross many of the necessary articles of life; especially of such as are more immediately wanted for the comfort and support of our Armies, whereby much extortion and oppression arises upon the poor and the soldiery: Which to prevent:

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That his Honour the Governour, with the advice of his Council of Safety, be, and they are hereby enabled, empowered, and directed, that whenever, and whatever article or articles of necessary support for the Army may be wanted, to impress and seize the same out of the hands of any engrosser, for the use aforesaid; and to have the same apprised by two indifferent, judicious men, under oath, appointed for that purpose, which price so affixed, shall be paid to the owner or owners thereof; and that suitable persons shall be appointed by his Honour the Governour and his Council aforesaid, to furnish and supply the Army with necessaries as aforesaid, upon the most reasonable terms, agreeable to the encouragement given by this Assembly.

RESOLUTION FOR ENCOURAGING THE MAKING OF SALT.

Whereas the article of Salt is much wanted in this State, and notwithstanding the bounty ordered by this Assembly in May last, to all those who should make five hundred bushels or more, yet is found inadequate properly to encourage the setting up said branch of business and making smaller quantities:

RESOLUTION APPOINTING A COMMISSIONER TO SUPERINTEND THE LOAN OFFICE.

Whereas it is resolved and recommended by the honourable Continental Congress that a Loan Office be established in each of the United States of America, and that a Commissioner to superintend such office be appointed by the said States respectively: And the Assembly judging that such Loan Offices may be beneficial, &c.:

It is therefore Resolved, That John Lawrence, Esq., of Hartford, be, and he is hereby appointed a Commissioner to superintend such Loan Office as shall be established by said Congress within this State, agreeable to and for the purposes mentioned in their resolution of the 3d of October instant.

CORRESPONDENCE, PROCEEDINGS, &c.

THE SECRETARY OF THE ADMIRALTY TO MR. NEAVE.

Admiralty Office, (London,) November 1, 1776.

Lord George Germaine having informed my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that the Richmond and Nottingham ordnance store-ships will sail down the river this day, and may be expected to arrive at Portsmouth on Sunday evening; but as the loading of the Lord Amherst ordnance store-ship cannot be put on board until she fall down below Woolwich, the time of her sailing cannot therefore be ascertained; and that being unwilling that the trade of his Majesty's subjects should suffer any interruption for which there is not the most absolute necessity, he has no objection to the convoy of the West-India ships proceeding to sea as soon as the Nottingham and Richmond store-ships shall have joined them, without waiting for the Lord Amherst, if she do not arrive before they put to sea. I am commanded by their Lordships to acquaint you, for the information of the West-India merchants, that they have given orders for the convoy to sail on the arrival of the Nottingham and Richmond accordingly.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

PH. STEPHENS.

To Mr. Neave, Merchant, in New Broad-Street.

Williamsburg, Va., November 1, 1776.

By virtue of a decree of the honourable Court of Admiralty of this State, will be sold at publick vendue, for ready money, on Monday, the 25th instant, at Jamestown, on James river, about seven miles from the city of Williamsburg, the brigantine Sarah, of Great Britain, lately made a prize of by the Montgomery privateer, Captain Polk, of Maryland, with her sails, rigging, and materials, being one hundred and seventy tons burthen, British built. An inventory of her sails, rigging, and materials, may be seen on board the said ship. At same time and place will be sold her cargo, consisting of a large quantity of exceeding good Jamaica rum, Muscovado sugars, coffee, ginger, cotton, and sundry other articles, shipped on board the ship from Jamaica for the London market.

BEN. POWELL, Marshal.

Williamsburg, Va., November 1, 1776.

I have received instructions from the Congress to contract for supplying the Continental troops with provisions for the ensuing year; the Second and Seventh Regiments to commence the first day of December next, and the troops that are about to be raised as soon as they are collected. Those who are desirous to engage in this business are requested to meet me in the city of Williamsburg, on Friday, the 21st instant, with their proposals.

WILLIAM AYLETT, D. C. G.

Williamsburg, November 1, 1776.

Lord North openly avowed in the House of Commons the 22d of June last, that "the real intention of the Commission now sent out was not so much to agree upon any specifick terms as to sound the real disposition of America, in order to learn what the people of that country were ultimately desirous to obtain;" and his immortal cousin, Lord Germaine, said: "The Commissioners had no power to enter into any treaty whatever with our rebellious subjects in America, further than to receive submissions of such as were disposed to return to their duty and acknowledge the authority of the British Parliament." And so we are now fully acquainted with the powers of the King's Commissioners, Lord and General Howe, viz: (to use Mr. C. Fox's words) to carry fire, sword, and devastation, wherever they go.

Another salt vessel is arrived, with two thousand bushels of that useful article.

Last Saturday evening died suddenly, at Mr. Tazewell's, in this city, Colonel Richard Bland, one of the Delegates for Prince George, in his sixty-eighth year, near one half of which term he devoted to the publick service. He was a gentleman well acquainted with the constitution of his country, as well as with many valuable branches of learning.

The humble Petition of JOHN GAMES, Sen., in behalf and respect of his son JOHN GAMES, humbly sheweth:

That your poor petitioner hath three sons in the honourable Continental's service, and I myself being deprived of the use of one of my hands, is not in the least able to afford my poor distressed family any support, which is composed of a house full of small children, and none of them being of ability to render their poor helpless father any support. Therefore your poor petitioner shall ever be obliged to your Honours, provided you should, most honourable gentlemen, grant a free and honourable discharge of your poor petitioner's petition, in behalf and respect of his son, John Games, who has been sick almost ever since his time in the honourable Continental's service. Was he in health, most honourable gentlemen, I should not be in the least for his continuance in the present cause, but being, most honourable gentlemen, in a poor way and state of health, and upon application to Captain Fulford, he has given his approbation in respect to his discharge, provided your Honours will give your consent thereto, he knowing him at the same time, most honourable gentlemen, to be a sick and weakly man, and rendered incapable of doing any duty, almost ever since his inlistment.

Therefore, most honourable gentlemen, hopes your Honours will take your poor petitioner's petition into your Honours' most serious consideration, and consult deliberately thereon, and grant him, your petitioner, an answer in favour of his son's discharge; for which your poor petitioner shall ever be in duty bound to pray.

JOHN GAMES.

To the honourable the Convention, now sitting in the City of Annapolis, these, by submission, present.

STEPHEN STEWARD TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

November, 1776.

In your Province store I've some durame or tumen, that would do to make colours for the Province vessels. Please to let Mr. Wasteneys, my clerk, have it. He now waits on you for it, if you can spare it. If you have no thin canvas, please to send me two bolts of your thickest osnabrigs. I should have waited on you myself, but am obliged to go to the lower part of Prince George's County, where I hear there is a quantity of beef to sell on Wednesday morning.

I intend to set off to Baltimore, by water, to look after the rigging, cables, iron hoops, and boats, for the Province vessels. I understand the Defence, prize sloop, Captain Walker, has some small guns and cohorns. If you have no particular use for them, and will give me an order for them, I can fit out these two schooners with guns.

If you want me to do any thing for you at Baltimore, please to request me, and I will comply with your orders, if I can.

I am your most obedient humble servant,

STEPHEN STEWARD.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN WARNER.

To Captain ELISHA WARNER, of the Sloop FLY:

Philadelphia, November 1, 1776.

SIR: You are to proceed with the Continental sloop Fly, now under your command, for the coast of Shrewsbury, in New-Jersey, and take such stations along the Jersey shore as will enable you to see every vessel that goes in or out of Sandy-Hook. We imagine there must be transports, store-ships, and provision vessels, daily arriving or expected to arrive at that place, for supplying our enemies with provisions and other stores; and the design of your present cruise is to intercept as many of those vessels and supplies as you possibly can. You have got or may get a good coasting pilot, so that you may run close in shore or into Tom's River, or any other river, inlet, or harbour in the Jerseys, whenever you are chased or endangered by vessels of a superiour force; therefore you will keep an especial good lookout for all vessels inward or outward bound, and whenever you discover any give chase; make prize of as many as possible, and as fast as you take 'em send them for this port, unless you hear men-of-war take station at our Capes, and in that case send them into Tom's River, Egg-Harbour, or any other safe place; and fast as your people arrive here, we will send them or others over land to Tom's River or Shrewsbury, from whence you can take them on board again; therefore you must keep this station and pursue this business as long as possible, unless we send you other orders.

You must be careful not to let any British frigate get between you and the land, and then there's no danger, for they cannot pursue you in shore, and they have no boats or tenders that can take you; besides, the country people will assist in driving them off shore if they should attempt to follow you in. The schooner Wasp, commanded by Lieutenant Baldwin, goes round on the same service. You must act in concert; consult the best stations and best method of cruising; and be sure to pursue your object, the taking of provision vessels, store-ships, and transports, with the utmost vigour and vigilance. And although we recommend your taking good care of your vessel and people, yet we should deem it more praiseworthy in an officer to lose his vessel in a bold enterprise, than to lose a good prize by too timid a conduct. As fast as you make prisoners, you may send them in the Jerseys, and deliver them to the Continental officers, to be sent here or confined in New-Jersey; but if seamen, send them here unless they enter. Use your officers and men well, and do the same by your prisoners. Let us hear from you as often as necessary. Wishing you success, we are, sir, your very humble servants.

Note.—Similar instructions to the foregoing were given to Lieutenant Baldwin, commanding the schooner Wasp.

GARRISON ORDERS, PHILADELPHIA.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, November 1, 1776.

Garrison Orders to be observed by the Troops quartered in the Barracks of the City of PHILADELPHIA.

I. The reveille to be beat every morning at break of day, the troop at eight o'clock, and a long roll at nine o'clock, for the guards to parade.

II. From the first of May to the last of September, the retreat must be beat at eight o'clock in the evening, and at sunset from the first day of October to the last day of April; the tattoo always at nine o'clock.

III. At retreat beating all under the degree of a commissioned officer must repair to the Barracks, when the roll of each company is to be called, and every person absent reported to the officer commanding the company. No person who is not a commissioned officer to be permitted to go out of the Barracks till reveille.

IV. No drum to beat to arms in the Barracks but in case of an alarm, when the whole garrison is to turn out and draw up under arms.

V. No dirt of any kind, or dirty water, must be thrown out of the doors, windows, or galleries, but all dirt must be carried to places appointed by the Barrackmaster for that purpose, which must be such as are least offensive; and all water must be thrown into the gutters. Every person trespassing against this order, if a non-commissioned officer or soldier, he must be confined, tried, and punished; if a woman, she must be turned out of the Barracks, and never permitted to reside therein.

VI. The men must sweep the barrack-yard and gutters at least twice a week, and remove the dirt to the proper dunghills, for which purpose the Barrackmaster must furnish the necessary shovels, brooms, wheelbarrows, &c., which must be delivered into the care of the Quartermaster of each battalion.

VII. The sentries at the gates are not to suffer any swine, horses, or cows, to go into the barrack yard.

VIII. The Barrackmaster must furnish to each room occupied by officers and soldiers, and also for the guards, the usual allowance of wood and candles, which must be distributed once a week, except the guards, which must have their allowance daily. Whenever any wood is piled up in the barrack yard, a sentry must be placed near it, to prevent its being embezzled.

IX. A proper number of sentries must be posted at the gates, and other parts of the Barracks and galleries, who are to be attentive that no damage be done to any part of the Barracks, particularly the rooms not occupied; nor are they to permit any person to ease himself or make water except in the places appointed for those purposes.

X. The Barrackmaster must visit every room at least once a week, and whenever he finds any damage done to the Barracks or its furniture beyond a reasonable allowance for wear, he must get it repaired, and report the expense to the commanding officer, that it may be charged to the person or persons committing such damage.

XI. The Barrackmaster must supply the troops in garrison with the following furniture, and no other, viz: to every officer's room a pine table with a drawer, two chairs, an iron pot, a bucket, a pair of pot hangers, and a crane, a pair of andirons, a fire shovel and tongs, and a box to remove the ashes to the dunghill. To every non-commissioned officer and private man's room, a pine bedstead with a wooden bottom for every two men, a canvas bed and bolster case for the straw, and two Indian or other coarse blankets, a pine table and two benches, an iron pot, with pot-hooks and a crane, a bucket, a pair of andirons, a shovel and tongs, and a box to carry out ashes; besides which, every room must be furnished with a rack with wooden pins, for the men to put up their firelocks.

XII. Whenever the Barrackmaster delivers out any of the foregoing articles he must receive a receipt from the Quartermaster, or some other commissioned officer, who must be answerable for them.

XIII. The Barrackmaster is not to suffer any person, not immediately belonging to the garrison, to reside in the Barracks, without an order in writing from the Council of Safety, or other person or board in whom the Executive power of the State resides; and all officers are required and directed to assist him in the execution of this order.

XIV. Whenever any battalion or part thereof is to march into the Barracks, twelve hours' previous notice must be given to the Barrackmaster, who must prepare a sufficient number of rooms with their furniture.

XV. When a battalion or part thereof is to march out of the Barracks, twelve hours' previous notice must be given to the Barrackmaster, and a commissioned or non-commissioned officer left behind to deliver up the rooms and other furniture, which cannot be properly done till the rooms are completely evacuated.

By order of Council:

THOMAS WHARTON, Jun., President.

DR. SHIPPEN TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Amboy, 1st November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed is a return of the sick in my Hospitals. Besides these, there are in each regiment a number called sick, that are not proper subjects for the Hospital, and under the care of the Regimental Surgeons, though there are no Regimental Hospitals; this will account for the difference between the number of sick in Colonel Griffin's return and mine. Please to mention this to the Board.

Your Excellency's humble, obedient servant,

W. SHIPPEN, D. H., &c.

To Richard Peters.

At Amboy, two Hospitals: Sick, 90; wounded, 7—total, 97.

At Elizabeth-Town: Sick, 54; wounded, 3; sick from Canada, 25—total, 82.

At Fort Lee: Sick of our own, 75; wounded, do., 9; distressed New-England troops, 19—total 93.

Brunswick: Sick, 10—total, 10.

Trenton: Sick, 56—total, 56.

Amount of the whole, 338.

GENTLEMEN: The number of sick and wounded in my department is three hundred and thirty-eight; four-fifths of them are in a fair way of recovery, and will soon join their respective companies. I have not yet taken charge of near two thousand that are scattered up and down the country in cold barns, and who suffer exceedingly for want of comfortable apartments; because Doctor Morgan does not understand the meaning of the honourable Congress in their late resolve, and believes yet they are to be under his direction, although they are on this side Hudson's River. He is now gone over to take General Washington's opinion; as soon as I receive the General's orders on the subject, I shall exert my best abilities to make the miserable soldiery comfortable and happy.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

W. SHIPPEN, S. G. and D. H., &c.

CLEMENT BIDDLE TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Camp at Fort Lee, November 1st, 1776.

SIRS: I wrote to the honourable Board some time since, informing them, by order of General Mercer, I had purchased the blankets of the Militia returning home, and some other necessaries furnished the Flying-Camp, who would otherwise have been destitute and could not have continued. I also supplied them with many knapsacks, haversacks, canteens, camp-kettles, &c., as I had in store. The time of their service expiring with the year, I beg leave to request that you will instruct me whether they are to pay for their blankets and for any other of the articles issued, that I may be in time for stoppages being made by the Colonels for that purpose. Their arms chiefly belong to the State of Pennsylvania, or were purchased by order of General Mercer from the Militia from that State, on their return, taking none but such as were fit for service.

Your instructions, or those of Congress, on this or any other occasion, shall be strictly attended to.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

CLEMENT BIDDLE, D. Q. M. G.

To the Honourable the Board of War, at Philadelphia.

R. H. HARRISON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

White-Plains, November 1st, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by his Excellency to acknowledge his receipt of your favour of the 23d ultimo, which came to hand yesterday evening, and to transmit you a copy of the letter I had the honour of writing you by the Boston express by his command. Had the express been charged with no other letter, the loss would not have been attended with any material injury to us or advantage to the enemy, provided it should come to their hands; but there were others from his Excellency, of a very interesting nature, the miscarriage of which gives him much concern. As the bundle was taken away in so sudden and secret a manner, I fear there is but little hope of recovering it; being done, most probably, for the express purpose of furnishing the enemy with intelligence and a state of our Army. Besides his Excellency's letters, the most material of which was to Mr. Rutledge, there were five or six more from the gentlemen of his family.

My letters of the 29th and of yesterday, which I had the honour of addressing you, will give a pretty full account of our situation, and of every matter respecting this Army, antecedent to this date. I only omitted to mention that we have taken thirteen of the Waldeckers, and that for several days past our scouting parties have brought in one, two, or three prisoners, in addition to these. We have every day a deserter or two.

About six o'clock this morning a messenger arrived from Lord Stirling, (who is with his brigade between two and three miles from White-Plains, on our right and rather nearer the North River,) with intelligence that the enemy were advancing towards him in two columns. This information has carried his Excellency and Aids out. The result of their movement I have not heard, but most likely they are pursuing their original design of getting by our flanks and seizing the heights above us. Every precaution is taking to prevent them, and to hurry away our stores to a more interiour part of the country.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

ROB. H. HARRISON.

P. S. His Excellency has just returned, and says the alarm was premature. It arose from some of Lord Stirling's advanced guards seeing a body of our men, who had been ordered to reinforce him, who were supposed to be the enemy. His Excellency is very apprehensive that the Army will be greatly distressed for want of provision, particularly in the article of flour, owing to the water conveyance, both in the North and East River, being in the enemy's possession. He has wrote the Convention of this State, and directed Mr. Trumbull that their utmost exertions in this instance may be used. There is a good deal of flour on the Jersey side; but there is no other way to get it but by carting and ferrying it over to Peekskill. This I have wrote to General Greene to have done, by his Excellency's direction.

R. H. HARRISON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

White-Plains, November 1st, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to acknowledge, by his Excellency's command, his receipt of your favours of the 23d and 26th ultimo, and to return you his thanks for 'em. His Excellency is glad to find that you are under but little or no apprehension about proper supplies of provisions for the Northern Army; and from the copy of General Gates's letter, which you were pleased to enclose him, that our troops are in such high spirits. He hopes their most sanguine wishes will be more than fully crowned, in the repulse, if not the total defeat, of Mr. Carleton's Army. Either of those events are much to be wished for, as our affairs will then have a much more pleasing aspect than they now have; the latter most probably would ensure success to the general cause.

The Quartermaster-General has been spoken to about spades and nails; he says he could furnish some nail rods, provided they could be got up. He will use his endeavours to relieve General Gates's wants, as far as it shall be in his power; but the situation of things will not allow him to afford but very little assistance, if any.

You will herewith receive the proceedings of the Court-Martial upon the cases of Lieutenant-Colonel White and Captains Patterson and Ross, transmitted his Excellency by Major Livingston, agreeable to your directions. His Excellency approves of them, and requests that, in future, you will consider yourself authorized to reject or confirm the sentence of every Court-Martial, in cases which respect the Army in the Northern Department, without referring them to him. Indeed he thinks it will be much more proper that you should, than for him to interfere.

The enemy seem to be pursuing their original plan of out-flanking us and getting in our rear. They are extending their wings by our right and left, for that purpose, and we, on our part, are adopting every probable measure to prevent them. On Monday they appeared in several large columns before us, and, from their first movements, seemed as if they meant an attack upon our front; but in a little time filed off by our right, attacking, in their march, some of our troops who had just taken post on an eminence. After a very smart engagement for fifteen or twenty minutes, they obliged our men to give way, being greatly outnumbered, and moreover exceedingly galled by twelve or fourteen pieces of artillery, which were constantly playing on them. Our loss, however, was not very considerable; not greater in the number killed, probably, than what theirs was.

I have the honour to be, in haste, with great respect, sir, yours, &c.,

R. H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

---

R. H. HARRISON TO COLONEL TRUMBULL.

White-Plains, November 1st, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am directed by his Excellency to inform you that ere this he hoped for your arrival here. His apprehensions are exceedingly great lest the Army should suffer much for want of necessary supplies of provisions, especially in the article of flour. From the best intelligence he is able to obtain, there is not more in camp, and at the several places where it has been deposited, than will serve the Army longer than four or five days, provided the utmost care and economy were used in issuing it out; but from the waste and embezzlement, for want of proper attention to it, as is reported to him, it is not probable that it will last so long. He has wrote to the Convention of this State upon the subject, but has little hope of any great relief from them, as almost the whole that can be collected above is wanted for the Northern Army. He wishes, he entreats, your utmost exertions that a sufficient quantity may be immediately forwarded to North-Castle and Pine's bridge, on Croton river, or he fears that every disorder and evil that can be imagined, will ensue, and that the Army must of necessity be disbanded. Your return directly he esteems indispensably necessary for the due ordering and regulation of matters in your important department.

I am, dear Colonel, &c., R. H. HARRISON.

To Colonel Joseph Trumbull, Commissary-General of Provisions.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED WHITE-PLAINS, NOVEMBER 1, 1776.

On the 31st ultimo it was thought that the enemy had near finished four or five batteries, which they had erected against us; and as our ground near the centre of the town at White-Plains was not good, being overlooked by neighbouring hills, the Generals last night drew off most of the troops from the lines there, and this morning the guards and sentries burned the town and forage all around it, and came off about nine o'clock. We had carried off all our stores and planted our artillery on the hills about a mile and an half off the centre of the town. The enemy advanced in the forenoon on to the ground we left, and as soon as they came over the hill, we saluted them with our cannon and field-pieces; and they advanced no farther. Our sick and wounded are sent out eight or ten miles. Our men are in good spirits, and, with much patience, endure great hardships and fatigue. I believe the main body of the enemy lie off against us, and that they have formed no lines across the country as yet, below us. Their Light-Horse may possibly scour across as far as the river, but how that is I cannot determine. All things seem to be quiet at Fort Washington.

COLONEL RENSSELAER'S ORDERS TO CAPTAIN FONDA, RESPECTING THE TORIES SENT TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE FROM NEW-YORK.

Head-Quarters, November 1, 1776.

SIR: You are hereby ordered to march with the prisoners whose names are in the enclosed annexed list, with all despatch, to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire; you are to have a particular eye upon those marked with an asterism, and to confine those in irons who appear to be dangerous.

I am, sir, yours, &c., ROB'T V. RENSSELAER.

To Captain Fonda.

COMMITTEE OF CONVENTION OF NEW-YORK FOR DETECTING AND DEFEATING CONSPIRACIES.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New-York, September 21, 1776:

Whereas divers of the inhabitants of this State have, by the wicked arts and insidious and corrupt practices of William Tryon, Esquire, late Governour of the Colony of New-York, and his adherents, been seduced to take part with our enemies, and aid and abet their measures for subjugating the United States of America: And whereas, although sundry of the said parricides have been discovered and secured, yet there is the highest reason to believe that the measures hitherto pursued, fully to detect and suppress such iniquitous practices and conspiracies, have not been effectual: And whereas this State is at present invaded by a powerful Army at the capital, and threatened with the incursions of another Army, attended by a host of savages, on its northern and western frontiers: This Convention find themselves reduced by the great laws of self-preservation and the duties which they owe to their constituents, to provide that no means in their power be left unessayed to defeat the barbarous machinations of their domestick as well as external enemies; and

Do therefore Resolve, That a Committee be appointed for the express purpose of inquiring into, detecting, and defeating all conspiracies which may be formed in this State against the liberties of America; that they be empowered to send for persons and papers; to call out such detachments of the Militia or Troops, in the different Counties, as they from time to time deem necessary for suppressing insurrections; to apprehend, secure, or remove such persons who they shall judge dangerous to the safety of the State; to make drafts on the Treasury for sums not exceeding five hundred pounds; that they be empowered to enjoin secrecy on their own members, and the persons employed by the Committee, whenever they shall judge the same necessary, and in general to do every act and thing whatsoever, which may be necessary to enable them to execute the trust hereby reposed in them; that the said Committee keep regular minutes of all their proceedings and expenditures, together with the examinations which they may from time to time take, and the correspondence they carry on for executing these resolutions, in order that the whole, or any part thereof, may be submitted to the consideration of this Convention, or future Legislature of this State, whenever and as often as they may think proper to call for the same; that they be empowered, if they shall think it necessary, to raise, officer, and put into pay, any number of men, not exceeding two hundred and twenty, officers included, to be upon the same establishment with those under the command of Captain Melancthon Smith, and to station them in such places, and to employ on such services as they shall judge expedient for the publick safety.

Resolved, That the Company of thirty men, ordered this day by this Convention to be raised by Captain Delavergne, be under the direction of said Committee.

Ordered, That the several Committees in this State do from time to time transmit to the above-mentioned Committee all such information as they shall receive, relating to any machinations and conspiracies against this State; and that copies of these Resolutions be immediately sent by express to the County Committees, and to all the Brigadier-Generals, or Commanding-Officers, of the Militia of this State, that they may govern themselves accordingly.

Extract from the Minutes:

ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

The following are the Members of the Committee appointed by the Resolutions above-mentioned: William Duer, Esq., Chairman, Zephaniah Platt, Pierre Van Cortlandt, Nathaniel Sackett, John Jay, Charles Dewitt, Leonard Gansevoort, Esquires.

By a resolve of November 9, 1776, John Jay, Esq., chosen Chairman, in the stead of William Duer, Esq.

A. W. D. PEYSTER, Secretary.

In Committee appointed by the Convention of the State of New-York, for Inquiring into, Detecting, and Defeating all Conspiracies which may be formed in the said State against the liberties of America, Fishkill, October 17, 1776:

Whereas divers treasonable conspiracies against this State and the liberties of America, have lately been discovered in several parts of the County of Dutchess, for seducing many of the inhabitants thereof from their allegiance to this State, and inlisting them in the service of the King of Great Britain: And whereas this Committee, after diligent inquiry in the progress and cause of the said conspiracies, have the highest reason to believe that they were formed and promoted by certain notoriously disaffected persons of influence in the said County, at the instigation of William Tryon, Esquire, late Governour of the Colony of New-York: And whereas this Committee judge it absolutely necessary and expedient for the suppression of such conspiracies, and the prevention of them in future, as well as the restoration of good government and order in the said County, that such notoriously disaffected persons of influence in the said County should be immediately removed therefrom to one of the neighbouring States, till such times as proper courts shall be instituted in this State for the due trial and punishment of such treasonable practices: And whereas this Committee, in order to gain information respecting the most disaffected persons of influence in the said County, have applied to persons of known probity and attachment to the American cause, who reside in and are well acquainted with the characters and conduct of the inhabitants thereof, the names of which persons the Committee forbear to mention, lest by the publication thereof they should be exposed to their malice and resentment: And whereas this Committee, from the intelligence and information in the manner aforesaid acquired, are fully convinced that the persons hereinafter named are notoriously disaffected to the American cause, and are very instrumental in seducing the inhabitants of the said County from the allegiance which they owe to this State: And whereas this State is now actually invaded by a powerful Army, now in possession of its capital, and who have effected a landing and are endeavouring to penetrate into the County of Westchester, and is also threatened with a formidable invasion on its northern frontier: And whereas the American cause greatly depends on the preservation of this State:

Therefore Resolved, That it hath become more particularly necessary and expedient to provide for the internal peace and security of this State, by removing from it all persons who are notoriously disaffected and inimical to the measures pursuing for the safety and defence of the United States of America.

Resolved, That the persons hereinafter named be forthwith removed to the several places affixed to their respective names, there to remain at their own expense, under such restrictions as shall be enjoined them respectively by the Legislative authority, or by the Committees of the several States to which they may be so removed.

Resolved, That letters be written to the respective Legislatures or Committees aforesaid, enclosing them copies of the resolutions of the Convention of this State appointing this Committee, together with the lists of the persons sent to the respective places, distinguishing such persons as this Committee deem most dangerous to the liberties of America by an asterism.

Ordered, That copies of the foregoing Resolutions be sent to the respective Legislatures or Committees of the several States to which the prisoners hereinafter named shall be removed.

to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, there to remain under such restrictions as to the General Court, or Council, or Committee of Safety, shall seem most advisable.

Resolved, That those of the above-mentioned persons whose names are marked with an asterisk, be closely confined in jail.

Whereas it would be inconsistent with the publick safety to suffer any persons who have been concerned in treasonable practices, or who are notoriously disaffected to the American cause, to remain confined in the jails of this State, during its present situation:

Resolved, That all the prisoners at present confined in the jails in the Counties of Dutchess and Westchester, be forthwith removed to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, there to remain in jail till further orders from this Committee or the Legislature of this State, unless sooner discharged by due course of law.

Resolved, That this Committee pledge the publick faith of the State of New-York, for the subsistence of such prisoners as shall be confined in jail, and for all such others, who, either through illness or any other cause, shall be incapable of subsisting themselves by labour.

The following is a list of prisoners from White-Plains jail, in the County of Westchester, now sent to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire: James Boundage, Joseph Purdy, Levy Devoe, James Budd, Billy Sanders, Samuel Purdy, Azariah Whittemore, Captain Jagger.

The following is a list of the prisoners' names who were confined in Poughkeepsie jail, in the County of Dutchess, now sent to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire: Frederick Ham, Junr., James Lunimery, (sick,) Edward Talbot, Lewis Hogg, Obediah Griffin, John Laurence, John McDonald, Thomas Barker, Samuel Glass. These persons were all more or less concerned in a late insurrection in Dutchess County, and the greatest part actually in arms.

George Browning, endeavouring to inlist men in the service of the enemy.

Adam Barrack, Christian Barrack, for notorious disaffection to the American cause, and for escaping from the jail at New-York, where they were confined by order of the Provincial Congress, being taken in supplying the enemy's ships with provisions.

Whereas it appears to this Committee from the examinations transmitted by the Committee of Albany, in their letter to this Committee of the 25th instant, that the following persons have either been aiding, assisting, or abetting the enemy, in subverting the liberties of America, or are notoriously disaffected to the measures pursued for the establishment of American liberty, viz: Isaac Mann, John Hitchcock, Laughlin McGaffin, Nathaniel Douglas alias Ruggles, James Waddell, Abraham North, to be in irons, Peter Brown, to be in irons, Joseph Tunnecliff, William Burns, Alexander Anderson, John Feathers, Thomas Pearson:

In Committee appointed by the Convention of the State of New-York, for Inquiring into, &c., Fishkill, November, 1776:

Whereas it appears to this Committee that Thomas Bullis was one of the persons concerned in an attempt, last summer, to disarm the friends to the American cause, and that there is reason to imagine that the said Bullis and a certain Johannis Van Tilen had intentions of joining the enemy:

Resolved, That they be forthwith moved to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, there to be closely confined in jail until further orders from this Committee or the Legislative authority of this State, unless sooner discharged by due course of law. Thomas Bullis, Johannis Van Tilen.

Resolved, That they be forthwith marched to the town of Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, and that they be closely confined in jail, in such parts of the said State as by the General Court, or Council, or Committee of Safety of said State, shall be thought advisable.

Whereas Thomas Gounck has been represented to this Committee, by the Committee of Dutchess County, as a person highly disaffected to the American cause, and whose residence in this State, at this juncture, is inconsistent with the safety thereof:

In Committee appointed by the Convention of the State of New-York, for Inquiring into, Detecting, and Defeating, all Conspiracies which may be formed in the said State, against the liberties of America, Fishkill, November 8, 1776:

Whereas it appears clearly to this Committee that Jacob Deane, Solomon Haight, and Solomon Eltinger, are notoriously disaffected to the American cause, which they have evinced by refusing to receive in payment the Continental currency, and endeavouring to depreciate the same:

Resolved, That they be forthwith removed to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, there to remain, at their own expense, under such restrictions as to the General Court, or the Council, or Committee of Safety of the said State, shall appear most advisable.

Whereas it appears to this Committee that Dr. Weeks has been engaged in a treasonable conspiracy against the liberties of America:

Resolved, That he be forthwith removed to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, there to be closely confined in jail until further orders from this Committee or the Legislative authority of this State, unless sooner discharged by due course of law.

Whereas Richard Rodgers has been aiding, assisting, and abetting the enemy, in their attempts to subvert the liberties of America:

Resolved, That he forthwith be removed to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, there to remain in jail until further orders from this Committee or the Legislative authority of this State, unless sooner discharged by due course of law.

Whereas John Carpenter, of Huntingdon, in the County of Suffolk, on Long-Island, has been lately taken in arms against the United States of America:

Resolved, That he be forthwith removed to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, there to remain in jail until further order from this Committee, the Legislative authority of this State, or of the Commander-in-Chief of the American Army, unless sooner discharged by due course of law.

Whereas this Committee are clearly convinced that Jacob Russell, Daniel McGuinand, and Israel Tuttle, of Ulster County, have been traitorously concerned in inlisting men for the service of the enemy, and that Patrick McDonald, of Orange County, has harboured the said persons, knowing them to be traitors to this State:

Resolved, That they be forthwith removed to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire, and there to remain in jail, until further orders from this Committee, or the Legislature of the State, unless sooner discharged by due course of law.

Resolved, That the order of the 26th of October last, as far as it respects the confinement in jail of John Hallock and Lewis Hogg, be disannulled, and that the said persons remain at their own expense, at such place, and under such restrictions as to the General Court, or Council, or Committee of Safety, of the State of New-Hampshire, shall seem advisable.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN THE ARMY, DATED CAMP NEAR THE MILLS, ABOUT THREE MILES NORTH OF WHITE-PLAINS, NOVEMBER 1, 1776.

About the 15th of October the great movements of the enemy up the Sound, their landing in large bodies at Frog's Point, and the intelligence which the Generals obtained, that the enemy with their whole force were off against East-Chester and New-Rochel, and that both Lord and General Howe were there in person, gave the Generals full satisfaction that General Howe's plan was to make a bold stroke, and hem in and cut off our Army at once. General Lee, I have understood, thought that the situation of the Army of the States of America was much too confined and cramped, and that it could not be good policy to lie still in such a situation, or to hazard the great cause in which we were embarked in one general action, in which, if we should not succeed, the Army might be lost, as a retreat would be extremely difficult, if not impossible. It was determined by the Generals therefore to counteract the enemy by a general movement. General McDougall's brigade from the lines at Harlem, several regiments of Militia at Fort Washington, and five or six regiments from the Jersey side were ordered over King's Bridge, and marched on towards the enemy, to counteract them in their operations. Generals Heath, Parsons, &c., with more than half the Army, were there before; General Lee also now took his post on that side, not far from the enemy. On the 16th the Generals were all in council, and I suppose determined to leave Harlem, Fort Washington, and King's Bridge, only with a garrison, and march into the country to prevent the enemy from ravaging the coast and surrounding us, and by our movements to lead them into the country. In the mean time the stores, baggage, &c., were moved to places of safety with the greatest expedition. General Lincoln had orders to post himself on Voluntine Hill near Mile Square, and to cast up some works for defence; and redoubts were cast up on the hills and on all difficult passes on the road from King's Bridge to Mile Square, to secure our march. On the 17th General Spencer's whole division had orders to march to Mile Square, which we reached next day. Two brigades of that division encamped at Mile Square, on the left of General Lincoln, and Lord Stirling marched on further and formed still on the left of them towards the White-Plains, making a front towards the enemy from East-Chester almost to White-Plains, on the east side of the highway, so as to secure the march of the troops behind us on our right, and to defend the teams and wagons that brought on our sick, cannon, stores, &c. In this manner one division of the Army passed another, till we extended from the Sound up to White-Plains, and over to King's Street, not far from Connecticut line, where General Parsons took his post, and until the last division on the right wing, which was General Lee's, reached the Plains, and marched out westward between the main body of the Army and the river. This was on the 25th and 26th of October. This left all the road from East-Chester to King's Bridge open to the enemy, excepting a few guards, and a regiment at or near Fort Independence. This I have understood was Colonel Wyllys's, and that his orders were, that if the enemy came on too powerfully to retreat to Fort Washington.

General Greene, I have understood, is at Fort Washington, with about sixteen hundred or two thousand men, and that the garrison is well supplied with provisions and warlike stores, so as to stand a long siege. They have a communication with the forts on the high rocks on the opposite shore. All the barracks and preparations for winter we have been obliged to leave for the present. Our stores of every kind, as far as I can learn, have been brought off, and sent to places of safety. Our field artillery, with two double-fortified twelve pounders and one brass twenty-four pounder, we have brought on with us.

While we were making this grand movement into the country, the enemy were not idle; having collected their troops from all quarters at Frog's Point, and on board their ships, which were ranged along shore, off against the Point and opposite to East-Chester. On the 18th they began a cannonade from their shipping early in the day, and landed some men on a point or neck of land near East-Chester meeting-house, and their main body advanced from Pell's Neck out towards the great post road from Connecticut to New-York. General Lee, who had been watching their motions, had posted a regiment or two of men, with one of the Rifle battalions, in a very advantageous manner, to annoy them and bring them into an ambush; which partly succeeded. A large advanced guard came forward, with two parties on the right and left of them, to flank and get round our people wherever small parties should appear to oppose them. A small party of our troops were sent forward to fire on the large advanced body of the enemy, and to divert and lead them on to a wall behind which the regiments mentioned were principally secreted. The enemy came very near the wall, and received a general fire from our troops, which broke their advanced party entirely, so that they ran back to the main body, formed, and came on again in large numbers, keeping up a heavy fire with field-pieces on the walls and men. They advanced now very near, and received a second fire, which entirely routed them again, and they retreated in a narrow lane by a wall, in a confused, huddled manner, near which were posted a large body of Riflemen and some companies of Musketmen, who at this favourite moment poured in upon them a most heavy fire once or twice before they could get out of the way; and they were seen to fall in great numbers. The whole body of the enemy then advanced in solid columns, and large flanking parties advanced different ways to surround our men; they however kept the wall till the enemy advanced a third time, and after giving them several fires they retreated by order from their officers. General Lee greatly commended the conduct of the men. The enemy were thought at the lowest computation to have lost five hundred men; some think not less than a thousand. We had but very few killed, and as far as I can learn, not more than fifty or sixty wounded. The enemy advanced on to a high point or neck of land not far from East-Chester meeting-house, from whence they were able to command the road with their field-pieces, but they kept very much in a body, so that our people on Saturday and Sunday nights, the 19th and 20th of October, brought off more than one hundred barrels of pork that had been left in the store at East-Chester, without any molestation. About the same time the enemy sent light parties along on the shore, as far as New-Rochel and Moroneck, but their main body did not move but very little.

On the evening of the 22d thirty-six of the enemy were taken, and next morning brought to Head-Quarters. They were Tory Rangers, who had listed under the infamous Major Rogers. One of them had been an officer in the New-York service, and deserted from us not long since. Two or three of them I have been told were from Newtown, in Connecticut.

On the 23d, there was much cannonading, and a smart engagement between a party of our men and the enemy. The enemy were beaten, left thirteen Hessians dead on the field, which our people buried; one wounded Lieutenant, who was taken. Our people also took a Major's commission in the field, but whether it belonged to any of the slain or to some officer which might be wounded and carried off, they could not determine. In this action we had not one man killed on the ground, and but six or eight wounded; but one, it is thought, mortally.

Friday, 25th. There was much firing from the ships in honour to George III., who came to the throne on the 25th of October, and the enemy advanced a little into the country, but with great caution, having an advanced guard of two thousand men or more, with a number of excellent field-pieces. At night they would halt on advantageous ground, with their cannon well mounted round them; and thus they have come on only a mile or two in a day, in the most cautious manner, with great art and generalship.

Sabbath day, 27th. The enemy sent up two ships to cut off the communication between Fort Washington and the Jersey shore, but lay so much below Fort Washington that they could not fire on them to good advantage. At the same time a general attack was made by the enemy on our lines at Harlem; but they were repulsed three times successively, and the last time went off in great confusion, and our troops pursued them some miles. It is said they lost eight or nine hundred men; that our men were not able to bury them the next day. The ships were soon so much mauled off and damaged by our cannon, that they were obliged to slip their cables and fall down the river. They were, it is said, greatly damaged, but neither of them sunk.

Monday, 28th. We had intelligence that the enemy, with their whole body, were advancing towards us. The Army were immediately alarmed, and part of General Wadsworth's brigade, with some other regiments under the command of General Spencer, consisting in the whole of five or six hundred men, were sent out as an advanced party to skirmish with the enemy and harass them in their march. We marched on to a hill about one mile and a half from our lines, with an Artillery company and two field-pieces, and placed ourselves behind walls and fences in the best manner we could to give the enemy trouble. About half after nine o'clock our advanced parties all came retreating in before the enemy; and the light parties of the enemy, with their advanced guard, consisting of two or three thousand, came in sight and marched on briskly towards us, keeping the high grounds; and the Light-Horse pranced on a little in the rear, making a very martial appearance. As our light parties came on to the hills, and discovered where we were, the enemy began to cannonade us, and to fling shells from their howitz and small mortars. Their light parties soon came on, and we fired upon them from the walls and fences, broke and scattered them at once; but they would run from our front and get round upon our wings to flank us; and as soon as our fire discovered where we were, the enemy's artillery would at once begin to play upon us in a most furious manner. We kept the walls till the enemy were just ready to surround us, and then we would retreat from one wall and hill to another, and maintain our ground there in the same manner till numbers were just ready to surround us. Once the Hessian Grenadiers came up in the front of Colonel Douglas's regiment, and we fired a general volley upon them, at about twenty rods distance, and scattered them like leaves in a whirlwind; and they ran off so far, that some of the regiments ran out to the ground where they were when we fired upon them, and brought off their arms and accoutrements, and rum, that the men who fell had with them, which we had time to drink round with before they came on again. They formed at a distance, and waited till their artillery and main body came on, when they advanced in solid columns upon us, and were gathering all round us ten to our one. Colonel Douglas's and Silliman's regiments fired four or five times on them as they were advancing, and then retreated; but not till the enemy began to fire on their flanks. Colonels Silliman, Douglas and Arnold behaved nobly, and the men gained much applause. Colonel Webb's, Silliman's and Douglas's regiments had the principal share in the action. Colonel Webb had four killed, and eight or ten wounded; Colonel Silliman lost six, and had ten or twelve wounded; Colonel Douglas had three killed and six wounded. Colonel Brook's, Smallwood's and Ritzema's regiments, who where drawn up on the hill next the lines, suffered considerably. Our loss in the whole may be seventy or eighty, killed and wounded. It is said by all the deserters and captives, who agreed in their stories, that the enemy had about three hundred killed and wounded. The scene was grand and solemn; all the adjacent hills smoked as though on fire, and bellowed and trembled with a perpetual cannonade, and fire of field-pieces, howitz, and mortars. The air groaned with streams of cannon and musket shot; the air and hills smoked and echoed terribly with the bursting of shells; the fences and walls were knocked down, and torn to pieces, and men's legs, arms, and bodies, mingled with cannon and grape-shot all round us. I was in the action, and under as good advantages as any one man, perhaps, to observe all that passed, and write these particulars of the action from my own observation. No general action was designed on our part, and I believe one thousand men were never engaged at any time with the enemy. They came on to the hills opposite our lines and halted; and after cannonading some time part of the lines, in a short time they became very still and quiet.

On the 31st, it was observed, that they had near finished four or five batteries which they had erected against us; and as our ground near the centre of the town at White-Plains was not good, being overlooked by neighbouring hills, the Generals last night drew off most of the troops from the lines there, and this morning the guards and sentries burned the town, and forage all round it, and came off about nine o'clock. We had carried off all our stores, and planted our artillery on the hills, about a mile and an half back of the centre of the town. The enemy advanced in the forenoon on to the ground we left; and as soon as they came over the hill, we saluted them with our cannon and field-pieces, and they advanced no farther. Our sick and wounded are sent out eight or ten miles. Our men are in good spirits, and with much patience endure great hardships and fatigue. I believe the main body of the enemy lie off against us, and that they have formed no lines across the country as yet below us. Their Light-Horse may possibly scour across as far as the river; but how that is, I cannot determine. All things seem to be quiet at Fort Washington.

H. GLEN TO ELISHA AVERY.

Schenectady, November 1, 1776.

SIR: Yours of 29th instant I have received. As to the quantity of flour I forwarded from this, is about one hundred and fifty barrels, and have about the same number of barrels engaged. Only wait for the return of the wagons which is gone up with Colonel Dayton's regiment, and believe I shall be able to procure about four hundred barrels more. But, on account of casks being hard to be had, it will be some time yet before it will be ready. There is no occasion to send any flour from this to Albany. As there must be a good quantity of flour at Half Moon, it is impossible for the wagons to carry it so fast as the boats will bring it from Albany, and the wagons that's gone off to Fort George with the regiment, I expect in by Sunday; and when they come, and fifteen more I have wrote for to Tryon County, will take all at once which is at present ready, so there cannot be the least occasion for sending it by the way of Albany. As the season is pretty far advanced, I would be extremely glad to know what you intend ordering up to Fort Schuyler. I have part of a company of battoe-men kept on purpose; the rest I ordered to Albany. The candles I shall send, as many as you please to order from Fonda's. I shall expect to hear from you by the negro boy, who is an express to Captain Varick.

I am, sir, your obedient humble servant,

H. GLEN.

To Elisha Avery, Esq.

COLONEL GANSEVOORT TO GENERAL GATES.

Fort George, November 1, 1776.

SIR: I this moment received a letter from Cornelius Wendell, Assistant Deputy Quartermaster-General, who is now at Fort Edward, and informs me that General Schuyler has requested him to send to me for spades, axes, and pickaxes, to repair the road from Fort Edward to Cheshire's, in order to transport provisions that way. As I have no tools whatever in my possession to furnish him with, I am under the necessity of applying to your Honour for them. The provisions, until the road is repaired, must necessarily be sent this way, and as this garrison is much weakened by my having been obliged to send out several scouts, I must request your Honour to send for them. Part of the Militia from the County of Albany are now at this post, but they have all an utter aversion to carry any provision or stores across the lake.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

P. GANSEVOORT.

The Honourable Major-General Gates.

ELIPHALET DYER TO THE CONNECTICUT ASSEMBLY.

Hartford, November, 1776.

Conscious as I am of my utmost exertions for to promote the interest of the United States, as well as of this State in particular, in every department in which this Assembly has been pleased to entrust me with, yet the approbation with which my conduct in the General Congress of the United States has met with, in their reappointing me a member of that respectable body, gives me the greatest satisfaction. Yet, considering my ill state of health, as well as of some others of my family, the present particular situation of my affairs, occasioned principally by my long and almost constant absence for years past from my family, on publick service, obliges me, though with great reluctance, to decline a service to which I was appointed in your sessions in October last—attending the General Congress at Philadelphia; and which, I flatter myself, will not be disapproved, as it is the first instance of my ever declining any trust, post of danger, or trouble, to which I have been appointed by this State.

ELIPH'T DYER.

To the Honourable General Assembly of the State of Connecticut.

New-London, November 1, 1776.

Last week a French vessel from Cape François arrived here with molasses; the master informs that three Jamaica privateers are out cruising for northward vessels; that he was brought to by one of them; but upon his telling them that he was bound to Miquelon, they acquitted him. He also informs that three privateers are fitting out from Hispaniola, by gentlemen from this continent, who carried over Continental commissions for that purpose.

We further learn by the above vessel, that advice was received from Old France that eighteen men-of-war were fitting out at Toulon, and thirteen at Brest, but that there was no talk of a war between France and England.

SAMUEL ALLYNE OTIS TO JOHN AVERY.

Boston, November 1, 1776.

SIR: I received the intimation of the honour conferred by the two Houses of Assembly, in electing me of the Board of War. In this way I would acquaint the honourable Court I am equally unwilling to obtrude my poor services upon the publick, and to refuse the call of my country. Endeavouring to keep these maxims in view, shall not apologize for entering into so important a department, though I see some better qualified declining the trust. Were my abilities equal to my regard for a much-injured country, I should flatter myself with a prospect of rendering her essential service; as it is, I dare promise nothing but integrity.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

SAM. A. OTIS.

Mr. Avery.

JAMES BOWDOIN TO JOHN AVERY.

November 1, 1776.

SIR: In answer to your letter informing me of my being chosen one of the Committee of War, you will please present my most respectful regards to the honourable the Council and House of Representatives, and acquaint them that the circumstances of my health at present will not permit me to give the close attendance which the business of that Committee will make necessary, and therefore in faithfulness to the State I am obliged to ask the favour of their excusing me from that office.

Sir, your most humble servant,

JAMES BOWDOIN.

Mr. Avery, Deputy Secretary.

WILLIAM CARMICHAEL TO THE COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE.

Amsterdam, November 2, 1776.

Gentlemen: Previous to your attention to what follows, it will be necessary for you to know that I have lived with Mr. Deane since his first arrival at Paris; that I took that city in my way from London to Nantes, to find a passage to my native country, and with despatches, which Mr. Arthur Lee entrusted to my care, for the honourable Congress. Having a relapse of a disorder, which prevented me from travelling, I stopped at Paris, and endeavoured to find out, by means of Count d'Estaing and other persons of eminence, the sentiments of the French Court respecting our affairs; and the moment I knew of Mr. Deane's arrival, offered him all the services in my power, and, of consequence, we have lived together until the 10th of the present month.

At that time the agent of the King of Prussia, who had often, as Mr. Deane has informed you, made proposals of a commercial nature, expressed a desire that some American would go to Berlin, and this he gave us to understand was at the instance of his Sovereign, who wished to have a clear idea of the nature of our commerce, and expressed a curiosity, which he wished to gratify by a minute detail of our affairs. Mr. Deane, thinking this an opportunity not to be neglected to interest a Prince who for several years has been dreaming of making his port of Emden an Amsterdam, proposed it to me. However unequal to the task, I have cheerfully undertaken it; happy to find any opportunity of showing with what a fervent zeal I am devoted to the glorious cause, which, at present, by interesting their humanity as well as policy, gives us so much consequence in the eyes of Europe.

Here I have endeavoured to engage merchants to speculate in a direct commerce to America, to find out the sentiments of the people in general respecting us, to know whether, in case of necessity, the United States would be able to negotiate a loan, whether England would be able to obtain further credit, and, by this barometer of the ability of princes, to discover their present situation. On these heads I have written Mr. Deane, but having an opportunity by the way of St. Eustatia, and thinking none should be neglected of giving information, though mine, perhaps, may not be of importance enough to merit that title, I have taken the liberty of addressing the honourable Committee. Arriving but two days after the accounts had reached this city of our misfortune on Long-Island, I found many even of the sanguine friends of America dejected, and those of England almost in a frenzy of joy. In this disposition, it is easy to judge, no hopes could be entertained of engaging merchants in a direct trade. I find they have the greatest inclination to serve us, and at the same time themselves, for no people see their interests clearer; but their fears that we shall be subdued, the confident assertions of the friends of England confirming these apprehensions, the prodigious sums they have in the English funds, with this unlucky business at New-York, all conspire to prevent direct speculation.

As my letters from Paris introduced me to the first houses here, I have had the best opportunity of knowing their sentiments, and I can venture to say, that with many who are apparently adverse to us, it is interest combatting with principle; for, insulted, searched, and plundered as the Dutch were the last war, and are at present, there are individuals who by no means want sensibility to feel, though the publick wants spirit to resent, the injury. The States have, however, in answer to a fresh remonstrance of General Yorke, declared that their ports are open to vessels of all nations, and that their trade to and from their own Colonies shall be unmolested, their subjects complying with the ordinances issued by their High Mightinesses. In fact, their prohibition of exporting warlike stores, extends to all British subjects. I hope it will not be long before all Europe will own us in another character. It is very certain, that without a very material and apparent success of the British arms in America, a loan would be very slowly negotiated for England here. There is nothing hinders them now from selling out of the English funds, but their not knowing what to do with their money; for this country may be called the treasury of Europe, and its stock of specie is more or less, according to the necessity of the different Princes in Europe. It being a time of peace, the call has not been very great of late.

Having mentioned the credit of England, that of France is next to be considered, and I am very sorry to say that has been very low here of late. The dreadful mismanagement of the finances in the late King's reign, and the character of the late Comptroller-General, M. d'Olugny, had reduced it so low, that it was impossible to borrow any thing considerable on perpetual funds; by life rents something might be done. Perhaps a Minister of Finance, in whose probity the world have a confidence, may restore their credit. At this moment that is in some measure the case, for the French stocks rise on the appointment of M. Taboreau. That it is possible for France to borrow, may be demonstrated; for at the time M. Turgot was removed, he was negotiating a loan here, and was likely to succeed, for sixty millions of guilders. The credit of Spain is extremely good, and that kingdom may have what money it will, and on the best terms. The Emperor's credit is also good; not as Emperor, but from his hereditary dominion. Sweden and Denmark both have good credit; the former the best; they have money at four per cent; and it is not long since the King of Sweden borrowed three millions of guilders at this interest, to pay off old debts at five per cent. His interest is paid punctually. Prussia has no credit here, but the King's treasury is full, by squeezing the last farthing from the people, and now and then he draws a little money from this Republick, by reviving obsolete claims. The credit of the Empress of Russia is very good; for she has punctually paid the interest of twelve millions of guilders, which she borrowed in her war with the Turks, and has lately paid off one million and a half of the principal. These are the strongest circumstances she could have in her favour with a mercantile people. I have this statement of credit from persons employed in negotiating the several loans, and, therefore, can depend upon the truth of the information.

To come next to America, should time and necessity oblige her to look abroad for money, in the present state of affairs, it is not probable that a loan is practicable. But should success so attend our arms, that it should appear evident that we are likely to support our independence, or should either France or Spain acknowledge our independence, in either of these cases I believe we might have money, and when it was seen that we were punctual in our first payments of the interest, we should have as much as we pleased. The nature of the security, or the fund for the payment of interest, I have not been able to imagine. But, observing in a letter to Mr. Deane, that it was the writer's opinion the honourable Congress did not wish to circulate too much paper, for fear of depreciating its value, I thought that bills issued similar to those in circulation in the Provinces, and lodged in a publick bank in Europe, might be accepted as a pledge or deposite for money borrowed by the United States. I beg pardon for the crudity of the idea, and would not have mentioned it here, but that having hinted at it in general conversation, people thought it might, on a future occasion, be adopted.

You will please to observe, that every thing here mentioned came from an individual, who, only as such, avowed himself interested for his country's fate, and for its benefit sought information. Notwithstanding the rise of stocks occasioned by our misfortune on Long-Island, the Dutch are selling out, and my strongest representations have not been wanting to contribute a mite to this circumstance. The price of our product is great. Rice sells for twenty-five shillings sterling per cwt., and tobacco for eight stivers and one-fourth per pound. You have been threatened that the Ukraine would supply Europe with tobacco. It must be long before that time can arrive. I have seen some of the tobacco here, and the best of it is worse than the worst of our ground leaf. Four hundred thousand pounds have been sent here this year. The Russian Ambassador said at the Baron le Guerre's, Ambassador from Sweden, where I had the honour to dine, that Russia soon would be able to supply the market with that article. In this he spoke more like an Ambassador than as a merchant. I took occasion in reply to observe, that if that was the case, and on many other accounts, it was the interest of his mistress that all intercourse between Great Britain and America should be broken off, for that then the former would be dependent on Russia for all those articles which hitherto the latter had supplied her with.

Having expressed a desire of knowing these reasons at large, with the assistance of Mr. D——s and the approbation of Mr. Deane, I purpose giving in a little memoir on the subject, which the Ambassador assures me shall be sent to St. Petersburgh; not being so sanguine as to think that it will prevent Russia from supplying England with troops, should the other demand them, but it may give a secret dilatoriness to their assistance, which may finally operate in our favour.

If it should be determined to send any cargoes of tobacco here, on the publick account, it will perhaps be thought proper to convoy them. The frigates destined to that service might retaliate the injuries we have received by the destruction of Falmouth and Norfolk, by destroying the towns and shipping of Greenock and the port of Glasgow, or Ayre and Cambleton. I have been particularly informed of the situation of those places until the present moment. They have no batteries to protect, or soldiers to defend them, or quartered near enough in any numbers to be assembled for that purpose, and not a vessel of war on the whole coast larger than a tender, to receive men for the sea service. Their rendezvous might be the entrance of the Northern Channel, where, while they waited a junction, in case they should be separated, they might take the outward bound ships, and, by the information obtained from them, ensure their success. In returning, a party landed on the Isle of Bute might destroy the house of that favourite. Little objects strike most forcibly little minds. This affair completed, which would alarm Britain and astonish Europe, the ships trading to the Baltick, with cargoes, not only that suit, but are necessary for our Provinces, might be their next object. This ought all to be done in the months of March, April, and May. The destruction of the Greenland fishery might be the last object of the expedition. I am confident that, not having a distrust of such attempts, the success would be more certain. Should there be a necessity of seeking shelter or refreshments, I have it from the Swedish Ambassador here that we shall find both in their ports. I only hinted to him, that it was possible some of our adventurers might explore those seas in search of plunder.

This is the rough outline of a plan which the honourable Congress may, should it in any shape be approved, digest into form. I would stake my life on the success of the greatest part of it, if inviolable secrecy is preserved, and the execution is trusted to persons who have not only wealth but glory in view. If prompted by a heated and indignant imagination, this plan should appear dangerous or impracticable, I hope it will be imputed to the desire of retorting our injuries on that country which has in some measure been the cause, and is at present endeavouring with the rancor of private animosity, to accumulate our distress. I entreated Mr. Deane to propose some part of it to the consideration of Congress some time ago, and I have the pleasure to find his opinion corresponds with my own on the subject.

The resentment which it is said the honourable Congress have shown on the conduct of the King of Portugal towards us, has been attended with a very good effect, and should a manifesto be published by that honourable body, hinting only the necessity of taking similar measures with all those who denied them the common rights of mankind, I am persuaded it would be to our advantage. It was the dread of such a blow to their trade, that was one of the strongest arguments made use of by the merchants of this country in their petition to the States. I need not mention to you any thing respecting what is like to take place in Europe another year, for of that ere this you, I hope, have information. I will only say, that the greater part contemplates with pleasure the gloomy prospect for England; there is not an envoy of the most petty State in Italy but exults at it. The want of intelligence from America hurts the cause prodigiously in Europe, and the anxiety of those who have its interest at heart is, from that circumstance, inconceivable. I hope I need not offer assurances to convince the honourable Congress of the zeal with which I wish to serve them. To be directed by that honourable body in what manner to do it most effectually, will be the happiest circumstance of my life.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

WILLIAM CARMICHAEL.

P. S. I cannot seal this letter without recommending Colonel Prevet, should the fortune of war put him into our hands, to all the indulgence, to himself and family, his situation will possibly admit of. Mr. Grand, his wife's father, an eminent merchant here, animated with that love of liberty which distinguishes his country, (Switzerland,) offers all the services in his power to the publick, and a thousand civilities to its individuals. If by the same fortune Mr. Dowdswell, of the First Regiment of Guards, should fall into our hands, his father's merits and his own reluctance will give him the same indulgence.

Since I wrote the above, Mr. Grand has assured me that should the honourable Congress determine to negotiate loans in Europe, and would draw bills accepted by the principal merchants in America, payable at two, three, and five years' sight, and send them to their house, they should be discounted by them at five per cent. interest. This was the manner in which money was raised for the city of Leipsic during the last war. The gentlemen of the committee will please to observe that this is to be kept very secret, for no loan can be publickly negotiated here as yet. The firm of this house is Messrs. Horneca, Fizeaux & Co., and is one of the most capital in this city. Should any cargoes be consigned here on publick account, perhaps it may be thought proper to address them to these gentlemen. I can assure you, gentlemen, and that from my own knowledge, that many bills remitted from America, and supposed to be drawn on account of Congress, have been refused payment by the English Ministry knowing beforehand when they would be presented for payment, and by that means having an opportunity of bribing, threatening, or flattering the parties on whom they were drawn either to refuse payment absolutely, or at least noting them for protest, in order to hurt the credit of our merchants in Europe. I do think that the less connection, for this and other reasons, we have in future with houses whose principal business depends on Great Britain, the better. I beg pardon for giving my opinion thus freely, but it is the effect of my zeal.

W. C.

SILAS DEANE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, November 2, 1776.

It is presumed that the thirteen frigates are now at sea, and it deserves the earliest attention so to use them as may most essentially wound the commerce of Great Britain.

The British ships will, except a few stationed at New-York and Halifax, winter in the West-Indies, consequently a blow there cannot be so successfully struck; besides, from the last winter's adventure, they will be on their guard.

The inquiry is, where can they be taken most unguarded? Two schemes have rose in my mind: The enemy have no man-of-war wintering at Newfoundland, and the station ships go out there in May. Two or three of the frigates might sail as on a common cruise, and stand for the banks after being at sea; destroy, in a few days, all the fishing stages, boats, &c., &c., and bring away the workmen who winter there, which must ruin their fishery for one year at least; after which let them sail for the Baltic, and cruise for the ships bound to Russia. The other is, as large remittances are wanted in Europe, let the tobacco, rice, wheat, &c., be loaded, part in these frigates, and part in vessels under their convoy; let them have one destination, for example, Bordeaux. After unloading their cargoes and refreshing their crews, (during which the most exact intelligence may be had of the situation of the British coast,) they may strike a blow which will alarm and weaken Great Britain most effectually. The city of Glasgow might at any hour be destroyed by a single frigate capable of landing two hundred men; and Great Britain being obliged to send all her fleet, except her heavy guard ships, into America and the West-Indies, this town, as well as many others, will the ensuing spring remain in much the same situation, and there being no militia in Scotland, the scheme might be fully executed, and the ships retire before any force could be collected. I would propose, after effecting this, to go northward instead of returning, and intercept the Baltic ships, or make a harbour in Bordeaux or Havre-de-Grace, and wait a second opportunity. Certain it is, a few of our cruisers, permitted to enter the harbours of this Kingdom, and of Spain—which, if proper application is made, they most certainly will be—may distress the trade of Great Britain and enrich ourselves. You may have any number of recruits in Europe for such ships, and, by sending out commissions, have individuals join you in the adventure under your flag, with stout frigates, several of which are now building absolutely with the design, viz: the hopes of getting into the service of the United States of North America.

VAN BIBBER AND HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Eustatia, November 2, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The preceding is a copy of our last respects, since when no material change has taken place.

Enclosed you will be pleased to find an invoice and bill of lading for the goods we now ship you by the Molly, Captain Conway, amounting to £3944 19*s*. 10*d*., this currency, which you'll please pass to our credit, together with the vessel's disbursements, being £ ——.

We have put as much salt on board as the Captain judged it prudent to take, and all the woollens we were able to procure of any kind. We should esteem ourselves very happy to supply you with a sufficiency of these useful articles, but as vessels and seamen are both scarce, apprehend we cannot with near the quantity required by the first, and the latter is really not to be had at any rate just now, though we expect there will be some out soon.

The most convenient way of getting dry goods would be, we think, to give Captain Conway leave to cruise a week or two to windward of the island, when he comes out again. By the time he gets back, if despatched quickly, there will be fine pickings among the outward-bound West-Indiamen.

We expect in our next to hand you accounts sale of Handy's, Martin's, Beck's, and Conway's cargoes, and are with unfeigned respect, sirs, your most obedient humble servants,

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON.

P. S. We hope to prevail on many private persons to speculate in salt your way, though the resolve restricting the price of that useful article will be no advantage to you.

LANDON CARTER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Sabin Hall, November 2, 1776.

Lieutenant Beale being, in his illness, obliged to leave his baggage where he was quartered, finds them so pillaged now as to make his stay necessary for some days, to get refitted; which, I assure you, is a hard matter to do now in this Commonwealth. This, then, comes through some conveyance of Colonel F. Lee.

Since writing the enclosed one Mr. Armistead, returned from an excursion to Philadelphia, has written to his father-in-law, Colonel Peachey, that just before he left Philadelphia, news came that General Lee had, with a body of men, marched to meet the five thousand enemy, who seemed intending to cut off the communication with the back country; had met with them, and drove them twice within their own lines, and with great loss. It is pleasing, and with no great inconsistency, that in his way from Philadelphia, he (Armistead) met or overtook an express informing every body that General Mercer, having a certain intelligence of the evacuation of Staten-Island to about fifteen hundred men, had passed a body of men to attack them, and had been engaged about four hours when the express left him, and had every certainty of taking or destroying them all. For want of some plat to give me an idea of situations, I cannot say as to the probability of this report. I wish you had such a thing to spare, or any gentleman in your camp; it would give my geographical genius great pleasure, and no return shall be wanting. My compliments to General Lee in particular, with a God speed you all.

Some rascally Tory has reported that Lee had recommended to all America to make peace with Lord Howe on any terms. I saw nobody that could believe it. But every body engaged to do his character great justice.

Morgan, the Rifle Captain taken prisoner at Quebeck, it seems, was not returned on his parole of not taking up arms against King George, and was going to know of our House of Delegates, if a prisoner returned in his room could not absolve his engagement? If it could not, he was resolved to go out against the Indians. I have doubts, because he must have known the Congress could only solve the difficulty. I mention these things to you only as the news of the day. My grandson is active and punctual in the Militia, ready to step forth on any occasion. I could not maintain him as he ought to be, as a supernumerary under General Lee; therefore, with great thankfulness, that kind offer in the General was declined.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 20th: Referred to the Board of War.]

In Council of Safety of Maryland, November 2d, 1776.

The bearer hereof is a French gentleman, just arrived at this place from Martinico; he is anxious to enter into the service, having, as he says, been bred to a military life and served for some time in the French Army. We have thought it prudent to refer his cause and circumstances to the consideration of the Congress, and have supplied him with cash to defray the charge of his journey to Philadelphia, as it may be politick to give every reasonable encouragement to such foreigners as may incline to assist us during the present war. We submit the propriety of forwarding this gentleman to the camp, with a recommendation to the General to place him in such station as his knowledge and ability entitle him to fill.

On behalf of the Council of Safety:

DAN. OF ST. THO'S JENIFER, President.

THOMAS JONES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 2d, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We understand that you have collected a quantity of high Bristol shot. We have got a quantity of good lead we will exchange with you for the shot, pound for pound. If you accept our proposals, we will send you the lead and take away the shot from Annapolis.

The frigates destined to that service might retaliate the injuries we have received by the destruction of Falmouth and Norfolk, by destroying the towns and shipping of Greenock and the port of Glasgow, or Ayre and Cambleton. I have been particularly informed of the situation of those places until the present moment. They have no batteries to protect, or soldiers to defend them, or quartered near enough in any numbers to be assembled for that purpose, and not a vessel of war on the whole coast larger than a tender, to receive men for the sea service. Their rendezvous might be the entrance of the Northern Channel, where, while they waited a junction, in case they should be separated, they might take the outward bound ships, and, by the information obtained from them, ensure their success. In returning, a party landed on the Isle of Bute might destroy the house of that favourite. Little objects strike most forcibly little minds. This affair completed, which would alarm Britain and astonish Europe, the ships trading to the Baltick, with cargoes, not only that suit, but are necessary for our Provinces, might be their next object. This ought all to be done in the months of March, April, and May. The destruction of the Greenland fishery might be the last object of the expedition. I am confident that, not having a distrust of such attempts, the success would be more certain. Should there be a necessity of seeking shelter or refreshments, I have it from the Swedish Ambassador here that we shall find both in their ports. I only hinted to him, that it was possible some of our adventurers might explore those seas in search of plunder.

This is the rough outline of a plan which the honourable Congress may, should it in any shape be approved, digest into form. I would stake my life on the success of the greatest part of it, if inviolable secrecy is preserved, and the execution is trusted to persons who have not only wealth but glory in view. If prompted by a heated and indignant imagination, this plan should appear dangerous or impracticable, I hope it will be imputed to the desire of retorting our injuries on that country which has in some measure been the cause, and is at present endeavouring with the rancor of private animosity, to accumulate our distress. I entreated Mr. Deane to propose some part of it to the consideration of Congress some time ago, and I have the pleasure to find his opinion corresponds with my own on the subject.

The resentment which it is said the honourable Congress have shown on the conduct of the King of Portugal towards us, has been attended with a very good effect, and should a manifesto be published by that honourable body, hinting only the necessity of taking similar measures with all those who denied them the common rights of mankind, I am persuaded it would be to our advantage. It was the dread of such a blow to their trade, that was one of the strongest arguments made use of by the merchants of this country in their petition to the States. I need not mention to you any thing respecting what is like to take place in Europe another year, for of that ere this you, I hope, have information. I will only say, that the greater part contemplates with pleasure the gloomy prospect for England; there is not an envoy of the most petty State in Italy but exults at it. The want of intelligence from America hurts the cause prodigiously in Europe, and the anxiety of those who have its interest at heart is, from that circumstance, inconceivable. I hope I need not offer assurances to convince the honourable Congress of the zeal with which I wish to serve them. To be directed by that honourable body in what manner to do it most effectually, will be the happiest circumstance of my life.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

WILLIAM CARMICHAEL.

P. S. I cannot seal this letter without recommending Colonel Prevet, should the fortune of war put him into our hands, to all the indulgence, to himself and family, his situation will possibly admit of. Mr. Grand, his wife's father, an eminent merchant here, animated with that love of liberty which distinguishes his country, (Switzerland,) offers all the services in his power to the publick, and a thousand civilities to its individuals. If by the same fortune Mr. Dowdswell, of the First Regiment of Guards, should fall into our hands, his father's merits and his own reluctance will give him the same indulgence.

Since I wrote the above, Mr. Grand has assured me that should the honourable Congress determine to negotiate loans in Europe, and would draw bills accepted by the principal merchants in America, payable at two, three, and five years' sight, and send them to their house, they should be discounted by them at five per cent. interest. This was the manner in which money was raised for the city of Leipsic during the last war. The gentlemen of the committee will please to observe that this is to be kept very secret, for no loan can be publickly negotiated here as yet. The firm of this house is Messrs. Horneca, Fizeaux & Co., and is one of the most capital in this city. Should any cargoes be consigned here on publick account, perhaps it may be thought proper to address them to these gentlemen. I can assure you, gentlemen, and that from my own knowledge, that many bills remitted from America, and supposed to be drawn on account of Congress, have been refused payment by the English Ministry knowing beforehand when they would be presented for payment, and by that means having an opportunity of bribing, threatening, or flattering the parties on whom they were drawn either to refuse payment absolutely, or at least noting them for protest, in order to hurt the credit of our merchants in Europe. I do think that the less connection, for this and other reasons, we have in future with houses whose principal business depends on Great Britain, the better. I beg pardon for giving my opinion thus freely, but it is the effect of my zeal.

SILAS DEANE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, November 2, 1776.

It is presumed that the thirteen frigates are now at sea, and it deserves the earliest attention so to use them as may most essentially wound the commerce of Great Britain.

The British ships will, except a few stationed at New-York and Halifax, winter in the West-Indies, consequently a blow there cannot be so successfully struck; besides, from the last winter's adventure, they will be on their guard.

The inquiry is, where can they be taken most unguarded? Two schemes have rose in my mind: The enemy have no man-of-war wintering at Newfoundland, and the station ships go out there in May. Two or three of the frigates might sail as on a common cruise, and stand for the banks after being at sea; destroy, in a few days, all the fishing stages, boats, &c., &c., and bring away the workmen who winter there, which must ruin their fishery for one year at least; after which let them sail for the Baltic, and cruise for the ships bound to Russia. The other is, as large remittances are wanted in Europe, let the tobacco, rice, wheat, &c., be loaded, part in these frigates, and part in vessels under their convoy; let them have one destination, for example, Bordeaux. After unloading their cargoes and refreshing their crews, (during which the most exact intelligence may be had of the situation of the British coast,) they may strike a blow which will alarm and weaken Great Britain most effectually. The city of Glasgow might at any hour be destroyed by a single frigate capable of landing two hundred men; and Great Britain being obliged to send all her fleet, except her heavy guard ships, into America and the West-Indies, this town, as well as many others, will the ensuing spring remain in much the same situation, and there being no militia in Scotland, the scheme might be fully executed, and the ships retire before any force could be collected. I would propose, after effecting this, to go northward instead of returning, and intercept the Baltic ships, or make a harbour in Bordeaux or Havre-de-Grace, and wait a second opportunity. Certain it is, a few of our cruisers, permitted to enter the harbours of this Kingdom, and of Spain—which, if proper application is made, they most certainly will be—may distress the trade of Great Britain and enrich ourselves. You may have any number of recruits in Europe for such ships, and, by sending out commissions, have individuals join you in the adventure under your flag, with stout frigates, several of which are now building absolutely with the design, viz: the hopes of getting into the service of the United States of North America.

VAN BIBBER AND HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Eustatia, November 2, 1776.

Gentlemen: The preceding is a copy of our last respects, since when no material change has taken place.

Enclosed you will be pleased to find an invoice and bill of lading for the goods we now ship you by the Molly, Captain Conway, amounting to £3944 19*s*. 10*d*., this currency, which you'll please pass to our credit, together with the vessel's disbursements, being £ ——.

We have put as much salt on board as the Captain judged it prudent to take, and all the woollens we were able to procure of any kind. We should esteem ourselves very happy to supply you with a sufficiency of these useful articles, but as vessels and seamen are both scarce, apprehend we cannot with near the quantity required by the first, and the latter is really not to be had at any rate just now, though we expect there will be some out soon.

The most convenient way of getting dry goods would be, we think, to give Captain Conway leave to cruise a week or two to windward of the island, when he comes out again. By the time he gets back, if despatched quickly, there will be fine pickings among the outward-bound West-Indiamen.

We expect in our next to hand you accounts sale of Handy's, Martin's, Beck's, and Conway's cargoes, and are with unfeigned respect, sirs, your most obedient humble servants,

Van Bibber & Harrison.

P. S. We hope to prevail on many private persons to speculate in salt your way, though the resolve restricting the price of that useful article will be no advantage to you.

LANDON CARTER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Sabin Hall, November 2, 1776.

Lieutenant Beale being, in his illness, obliged to leave his baggage where he was quartered, finds them so pillaged now as to make his stay necessary for some days, to get refitted; which, I assure you, is a hard matter to do now in this Commonwealth. This, then, comes through some conveyance of Colonel F. Lee.

Since writing the enclosed one Mr. Armistead, returned from an excursion to Philadelphia, has written to his father-in-law, Colonel Peachey, that just before he left Philadelphia, news came that General Lee had, with a body of men, marched to meet the five thousand enemy, who seemed intending to cut off the communication with the back country; had met with them, and drove them twice within their own lines, and with great loss. It is pleasing, and with no great inconsistency, that in his way from Philadelphia, he (Armistead) met or overtook an express informing every body that General Mercer, having a certain intelligence of the evacuation of Staten-Island to about fifteen hundred men, had passed a body of men to attack them, and had been engaged about four hours when the express left him, and had every certainty of taking or destroying them all. For want of some plat to give me an idea of situations, I cannot say as to the probability of this report. I wish you had such a thing to spare, or any gentleman in your camp; it would give my geographical genius great pleasure, and no return shall be wanting. My compliments to General Lee in particular, with a God speed you all.

Some rascally Tory has reported that Lee had recommended to all America to make peace with Lord Howe on any terms. I saw nobody that could believe it. But every body engaged to do his character great justice.

Morgan, the Rifle Captain taken prisoner at Quebeck, it seems, was not returned on his parole of not taking up arms against King George, and was going to know of our House of Delegates, if a prisoner returned in his room could not absolve his engagement? If it could not, he was resolved to go out against the Indians. I have doubts, because he must have known the Congress could only solve the difficulty. I mention these things to you only as the news of the day. My grandson is active and punctual in the Militia, ready to step forth on any occasion. I could not maintain him as he ought to be, as a supernumerary under General Lee; therefore, with great thankfulness, that kind offer in the General was declined.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 20th: Referred to the Board of War.]

In Council of Safety of Maryland, November 2d, 1776.

The bearer hereof is a French gentleman, just arrived at this place from Martinico; he is anxious to enter into the service, having, as he says, been bred to a military life and served for some time in the French Army. We have thought it prudent to refer his cause and circumstances to the consideration of the Congress, and have supplied him with cash to defray the charge of his journey to Philadelphia, as it may be politick to give every reasonable encouragement to such foreigners as may incline to assist us during the present war. We submit the propriety of forwarding this gentleman to the camp, with a recommendation to the General to place him in such station as his knowledge and ability entitle him to fill.

On behalf of the Council of Safety:

Dan. of St. Tho's Jenifer, President.

THOMAS JONES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 2d, 1776.

Gentlemen: We understand that you have collected a quantity of high Bristol shot. We have got a quantity of good lead we will exchange with you for the shot, pound for pound. If you accept our proposals, we will send you the lead and take away the shot from Annapolis.

Are, gentlemen, your obedient servants,

Jon. Hudson,
Thos. Jones.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

MEETING OF CITIZENS OF PHILADELPHIA.

At a meeting of a number of the citizens of Philadelphia, at the Philosophical Society's Hall, November the 2d, Samuel Howell, Chairman, Jonathan B. Smith, Secretary.

It was unanimously resolved to publish the following Address to the Inhabitants of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia:

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-CITIZENS: As a considerable uneasiness has arisen in the minds of some of the inhabitants of Philadelphia, from a fear that it was the desire of those citizens who agreed to the resolutions passed at the town meetings the 21st and 22d of October last, that the Representatives to be chosen on the 5th of this instant, for this city, should possess, not only the power to make the necessary alterations in the frame of government formed by the late Convention, but likewise to execute the same, we take this opportunity of declaring that, after the said Representatives have finished the alterations and amendments in the government, (agreeable to the method proposed in the 29th resolution passed at the town meeting of the 22d of October,) it is our desire that they should issue writs for the election of an Assembly, and immediately afterwards dissolve themselves; and for this purpose we intend to instruct them, previous to their taking their seats in the House of Assembly.

We think it our duty further to declare to you, that we wish for no alterations to be made in the Constitution, which shall affect the great and fundamental principles of a free government; such as liberty of conscience, trial by juries, freedom of the press, annual elections, and the division and rotation of offices. But, while we acknowledge these parts of the Constitution to be perfectly just, and highly agreeable to us, we think ourselves bound to declare that it contains flaws which in a little while will render those inestimable blessings of no efficacy.

You have been told that we are connected with the Tories, and that we are aiming to bring back the late royal and proprietary power of this State. We deny the charge. We appeal to Heaven for the purity of our intentions, and we call upon those men who have propagated this calumny to prove that we have ever aimed at any thing else than at the establishment of a free and consistent government upon the sole authority of the people. We have publickly declared our attachment to the independence of this and the other United States. We have embarked our all in the present glorious contest for their independence, and many of us have exposed our lives in its defence.

You have been told that we aim to establish a power in the State, which has been branded with the justly odious and unpopular name of a House of Lords. We deny this charge with the same solemnity that we do the last. We disclaim all legislative power that is not derived from the yearly choice of the people; and it is because we esteem the sacred power of the people to be above all other power, that we have appealed to them from the tribunal of the Convention. By our preference of a mixed and tempered legislature to that established by the Convention, we declare that we wish for a Government that shall not suffer the poor and the rich alternately to be the prey of each other.

In order to induce you to submit to the new form of Government, you have been told that you can know nothing of its defects till you have experienced them. Did we reason in this manner when the King of Great Britain offered us slavery through a number of arbitrary acts of Parliament? Did we wait till the chains were fixed upon us before we resisted? We did not. Even the people of Canada opposed the arbitrary frame of Government contrived for them in the Quebeck bill before they experienced its destructive effects upon the remains of their liberty. A seven years' familiarity with slavery may render us ever afterwards unfit to assert and maintain the privileges of freemen.

We are now on the brink of a precipice. There are more evils in our new frame of Government than have been pointed out by the pen or tongue of any man. The prejudices and passions of a whole community are let loose by it upon every man's property, liberty, and life, through the medium of the legislature, the courts of law, and the political inquisition, called the Council of Censors. We conjure you, therefore, by the remembrance of past difficulties, through which we have struggled together—by the prospects of the common dangers which are before us—by the honour of Pennsylvania—and by the blessings of free and equal government, to consider seriously what you are doing, before you take another step in support of the new constitution. Let not the rash action of a single day add the inhabitants of Pennsylvania to the number of those unhappy people in several European countries, who have undone themselves by a hasty and ill-judged exercise of their own power.

Signed by order and in behalf of the meeting:

SAMUEL HOWELL, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED FORT LEE, NOVEMBER 2, 1776.

Six gentlemen who escaped from the fleet inform us that there are now seventy sail of transports lying at Red-Hook, to take in three thousand troops, who are to go for Rhode-Island.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

White-Plains, November 2, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by his Excellency to acknowledge the honour of your letter of the 31st ultimo, which came to hand yesterday evening, and to return you his thanks for the reinforcement you have ordered him under the command of General Wooster. It will arrive very seasonably, and in part make up for the deficiency occasioned by daily desertions of our men, who are returning to their homes in the most scandalous and infamous manner. The roads are crowded with them.

I am also directed by his Excellency to acquaint you, that before the receipt of your favour he had given directions to the General Officers to discharge such of the sick Militia from your State as were unfit for service, and who choosed to return, rather than remain, for their recovery. As to pointing out a mode for clothing the Militia who were injured in the several retreats, it is a matter of great difficulty in this time of scarcity of goods, and such as he does not know how to remedy; nor will it be possible, consistently with the good of the service, when our numbers are decreasing, and those of the enemy augmenting by reinforcements from home, and the disaffected in this Province, for him to send persons upon furlough to collect blankets. He would submit it to you, whether your requisition going to the towns from whence the Militia came, will not induce the friends of those who are here to make provision for them in this instance.

In respect to the Light-Horse under Major Backus, he issued an order for their discharge, on yesterday morning, on the arrival of the others under Major Sheldon. And I am charged in a particular manner, to notify you that their conduct has been extremely good, and the services they have rendered of great advantage to their country. Sensible of this, as a tribute due their merit, his Excellency was pleased to make them a return of his thanks, in the General Orders of yesterday.

The approaching dissolution of the present Army, with the uncertain prospect of raising a new one in time, provided the utmost industry is not used, gives his Excellency much concern; and this is greatly aggravated by the several States delaying to send Commissioners to appoint officers for recruiting. As yet none have come but from the Massachusetts State. This he desired me to mention to you, and also to request your kind exertions and influence to have every possible supply of provision, particularly of flour, forwarded to North-Castle and King's Bridge, on Croton river, for the use of this Army. Our situation in this instance is by no means so agreeable as could be wished, and demands extremely great; nor have we a prospect of but small relief, except what comes from your State. This Convention is doing something for us, but the supplies for the Northern Army will not allow them to furnish any great quantities for this.

The enemy having discovered their intentions, in pursuance of their original plan, of penetrating into the country and forming a line in our rear, it became necessary the last week to remove the whole of our Army, except the garrisons left at Mount Washington and King's Bridge, from the heights we had encamped on above the latter to this place, to prevent their outflanking us, and the execution of their design. On Monday morning, about ten o'clock, they appeared in several large columns, in our front, and from their movements seemed as if they meant an attack there. In a little time their main body (at least of those in sight) filed off to our right, and began a most severe and incessant cannonade at a part of our troops who had just taken post on a hill with a view of throwing up some lines. Covering themselves with their cannon, they advanced in two divisions, and after a smart engagement for about a quarter of an hour, obliged our men to give way. Our loss, at present I cannot ascertain; nor is theirs known. I dare say it was not much inferior to ours; and, had it not been for their immense artillery, which galled our people greatly, it is probable it would have been much greater.* They now lay extended from our right to our left, and it is generally conjectured they have in view the seizing on King's Bridge, on Croton river, to cut off our communication with the upper country. To prevent this, and secure the pass, General Beall, with his brigade of Maryland troops, was ordered to march yesterday. Since Monday they have attempted nothing, unless it was to advance a small detachment or two yesterday evening, towards some of the heights where our men were posted. On receiving a shot or two from our cannon, they ran off with great precipitation. We are now all quiet. Every day one, two, or three prisoners are brought in by our scouting parties; added to them, one or two deserters every day come over. We have taken thirteen or fourteen of the Waldeckers.

Having run over, in a summary way, a state of our affairs, and much writing on hand, I have only to add that I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

ROB'T H. HARRISON.

P. S. His Excellency is busily employed in reconnoitring the country hereabouts.

* November 1, 1776.—In the morning, the British advanced, with a number of field-pieces, to the north of the road near late Head-Quarters, (a heavy column appearing behind on the hill, ready to move forward,) and commenced a furious cannonade on General Heath's division, which was nobly returned by Captain-Lieutenant Bryant and Lieutenant Jackson, of the Artillery. General Heath's first anxiety was for Colonel Malcolm's regiment on the hill, to the east of the hollow on the left, lest the enemy should push a column into the hollow and cut the regiment off from the division. He therefore ordered Major Keith, one of his aids, to gallop over and order Colonel Malcolm to come off immediately, with Lieutenant Fenno's artillery. But, upon a more critical view of the ground in the hollow, (at the head of which there was a heavy stone wall, well situated to cover a body of troops to throw a fire directly down it, while an oblique fire could be thrown in on both sides,) he ordered Major Pollard, his other aid, to gallop after Keith, and countermand the first order, and direct the Colonel to remain at his post, and he should be supported. A strong regiment was ordered to the head of the hollow, to occupy the wall. The cannonade was brisk on both sides, through which the two aids-de-camp passed in going and returning. At this instant, General Washington rode up to the hill. His first question to General Heath was, "How is your division?" He was answered, "They are all in order." "Have you any," said the Commander-in-chief, "any troops on the hill, over the hollow?" He was answered, "Malcolm's regiment is there." "If you do not call them off immediately," says the General, "you may lose them, if the enemy push a column up the hollow." He was answered that, even in that case, their retreat should be made safe: that a strong regiment was posted at the head of the hollow, behind the wall; that this regiment, with the oblique fire of the division, would check the enemy as to allow Malcolm to make a safe retreat. The Commander-in-chief concluded by saying, "Take care that you do not lose them." The artillery of the division was so well directed as to throw the British artillerymen several times into confusion; and, finding that they could not here make any impression, drew back their pieces, the column not advancing. The British artillery now made a circuitous movement, and came down toward the American right. Here, unknown to them, were some twelve-pounders, upon the discharge of which they made off with their field-pieces as fast as their horses could draw them. A shot from the American cannon, at this place, took off the head of a Hessian artilleryman. They also left one of the artillery horses dead on the field. What other loss they sustained was not known. Of General Heath's division, one man only, belonging to Colonel Pauding's regiment of New-York troops, was killed. The British made no other attempt on the Americans while they remained at White-Plains. The two armies lay looking at each other, and within long cannon-shot. In the night time the British lighted up a vast number of fires, the weather growing pretty cold. These fires, some on the level ground, some at the foot of the hills, and at all distances to their brows, some of which were lofty, seemed to the eye to mix with the stars, and to be of different magnitudes. The American side, doubtless, exhibited to them a similar appearance. On this day, General Heath ordered three redoubts, with a line in front, to be thrown up on the summit of his post, so constructed that the whole of them could make a defence, and support each other at the same time, if attacked. These, to the enemy, in whose view they fully were, must have appeared very formidable, although they were designed principally for defence against small-arms; and, perhaps, works were never raised quicker. There were the stalks of a large corn field at the spot; the pulling these up in hills took up a large lump of earth with each; the roots of the stalks and earth on them, placed in the face of the works, answered the purpose of sods or fascines. The tops being placed inwards, as the loose earth was thrown upon them, became as so many ties to the work, which was carried up with a despatch scarcely conceivable.

The British, as they say, had meditated an attack on the Americans, which was only prevented by the weather of the night. Be this as it may, General Heath had ordered his division, at evening roll-call, to be at their alarm posts (which they every morning manned whilst at this place) half an hour sooner than usual. He had then no other reason for doing this, than the near position of the enemy, and the probability that they would soon make an attack. But the Commander-in-chief must have made some other discovery; for, after General Heath was in bed, Colonel Carey, who was one of the aids-de-camp of General Washington, came to the door of his marquë, and, calling to him, informed him that the whole Army were to be at their alarm posts the next morning half an hour sooner than usual, and that he was to govern himself accordingly. General Heath replied, that he had fortunately given such orders to his division at evening roll-call. He therefore neither got up himself, nor disturbed any other of his division.—Heath.

GENERAL MIFFLIN TO WILLIAM DUER.

White-Plains, November 2, 1776.

DEAR MR. DUER: Pray let me have one hundred good ox or horse teams, immediately. We cannot move without them. Such stores as are necessary at Peek's and Fish Kills for detachments, we may send to those places. Surely your State is able to furnish that number in a very short time. We want no stores nearer to us than the Highlands, at present, so that the teams may be hurried on without delay.

If two hundred teams could be procured, I would most cheerfully employ them at least one month; but I suppose from the delay, which has appeared unavoidable, in procuring the first number ordered, you will not be able to send them in any reasonable time. I make no doubt you will do your best for us.

Mr. Livingston has again applied to me in favour of Mr. Jansen. I have referred him to you. Yours affectionately,

T. MIFFLIN.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO WILLIAM DUER.

Head-Quarters, near White-Plains, November 2, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have yours of 31st ultimo. The loss of the hill has not been of the least disadvantage to us. It has occasioned us to leave our lines on the Plain, which were only temporary, but not to make any retreat. We have got all the heights, and the Army of the enemy have scarcely gained an inch of ground. I do not know the hill you mention by the name of the Bald Hill, but every advantageous piece of ground has been well reconnoitered.

Colonel Dubois was not very successful in the impressment of teams; our wants are still considerable in that way, and therefore all that you can send down will be most acceptable.

As fast as your flour is manufactured, please to have it sent down as far as Pine's Bridge, on Croton's river, where General Beall now is, with three Regiments. The teams that bring it down may proceed on to the Army, if they can be got so to do.

Our Commissaries and Quartermasters had lodged a parcel of stores at the town at White-Plains, and therefore it was necessary to throw up some lines down the town till the stores could be removed. This we did effectually, and then gave them possession of a piece of ground which they dare not occupy, because it is secured by our cannon from the heights. All matters are as quiet as if the enemy were one hundred miles distant from us; and his Excellency is just going to ride. I must therefore to horse, and bid you adieu. I am, dear sir, yours, &c.,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

COLONEL GIST TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Camp before the White-Plains, 2d November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Colonel Smallwood being wounded in the action of 28th ultimo, the command since has devolved upon myself. The duty I owe your respectable body calls upon me to give you an account of the killed and wounded, not doubting but what Colonel Smallwood has before this forwarded you a circumstantial account, as he is only slightly wounded, and has more time at present than I can possibly spare.

Since the skirmish the enemy has been exceedingly busy in erecting a breastwork on the eminence they took from us. Yesterday morning, having got prepared to open it upon us, the General ordered us to abandon our back lines, which, in our present situation, was rendered useless to us. The enemy immediately took possession of them; and judging that we were making a precipitate retreat, formed the line, and advanced upon us with a large column to bring on the attack, the artillery on each side keeping up a smart fire; and they soon found their situation disagreeable, and as if ashamed of the attempt, they sneakingly skulked behind a wood, and retired unseen to the lines.

In much haste, I am, gentlemen, respectfully, your very obedient servant,

M. Gist.

To the Honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

Colonel Smallwood, Lieutenants Waters and Goldsmith, wounded—3.

Privates killed and wounded—38.

---

GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON TO JOHN M'KESSON.

Camp at the old place, near White-Plains, 2d November, 1776.

My dear Sir: Your favours of the 30th and 31st ultimo were left at my tents a few moments since. Since my last to you, dated the day before yesterday, the centre and right wing of our Army, having possessed themselves of the heights in their rear, northeast of the road leading to Young's, yesterday morning evacuated that part of our lines which passed through the town and so east of it, and of all back on those heights, firing all the barns, hay, and cow-stacks in front. This induced the enemy to believe we had again retreated; and, determined to take the advantage of our supposed flight, their Army instantly moved forward into the part of our lines which were evacuated. This brought on a pretty brisk cannonade, though at too great a distance to do much execution. I lost one man, and had two wounded. I have heard of no other injury done us.

We are by the late movement now far advanced in front; of course most exposed. The enemy retired to their former encampment in the evening, leaving strong advanced pickets and working parties, who are busily employed in erecting works on the heights and near town. Deserters, especially from the Queen's Light Dragoons, come daily over to us, and now and then our Rangers send in a straggling prisoner.

Captain Van Wyck, of my brigade, who, at his earnest desire, was appointed to a company of Rangers, was day before yesterday unfortunately killed. He went out in the morning, with about thirty men, fell in with about one hundred of the enemy, and at once, not far distant from their lines, charged them with spirit, gave them a brisk fire, but unfortunately when loading his piece the second time, was shot in the head and fell dead. His Lieutenant shot down the man who killed his Captain. The enemy fled. Our party brought off their Captain, and yesterday evening I had him interred with the honours of war. He was a good man and valiant officer. Pray communicate this sad news to his widow, to whom I should write had I leisure, in a manner that will least affect her. I know of no other news worth communicating you. Though in the camp, I am not acquainted with the disposition of our Army. Some brigades to the northeast of us, in my humble opinion, are where they can do us no good. Perhaps I am mistaken. I am not well acquainted with the country.

I must beg an answer to my letter wherein I desired you to ask a favour to the Convention; and am, with the utmost esteem, yours affectionately,

Geo. Clinton.

I need not ask you to forward the enclosed: I know you will do it. Though determined never to meddle much with the disposition of officers, I can't help recommending Colonel Du Bois and his officers, who served in our Army to the northward last year, to the Convention. Should they quit the Army by any neglect, it will be a publick loss. They are brave men and good officers; at least such of them as have joined our brigade.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL.

At a General Court-Martial, held by order of his Excellency General Washington, near White-Plains, for the trial of such prisoners as shall be brought before them, November 2d, 1776:

Brigadier-General McDougall, President.

Members: Colonel Baldwin, Lieutenant-Colonel Weisenfells, Major Sherman, Captain Coggswell, Captain Bolster, Captain Crooker, Captain Knap, Captain Coal, Captain Warner, Captain Lee, Captain Hull, Captain Pelton.

Captain Andrew Peters, Judge-Advocate pro tem.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Colonel Morris Graham, who was on the 28th of October last posted, with his regiment, more than once behind stone fences, but retreated from each without firing a gun. The same was done by the other parties; and when called on (by the Adjutant-General) they alleged Colonel Firmen's orders, when the said Adjutant-General saw him endeavouring to keep the different parties up to their posts.

The said Colonel Graham, being arraigned before the Court, and the question put to him, whether he was guilty or not guilty of the charge alleged against him, he plead Not guilty.

Colonel Read, being sworn, says that he posted Colonel Graham, with his regiment, on the said 28th of October, behind a stone fence, to good advantage, and that he retreated without firing on the enemy, as they advanced towards him.

Colonel Firmen, being sworn, says Colonel Graham was retreating, and he asked him the reason of it. Colonel Graham alleged Colonel Read's orders for it. He further says that Colonel Graham retreated from one post where he was placed, without any orders from him; but, after he saw great confusion among the men, he thinks he told Colonel Graham he might retreat.

The Court adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

November 3d.—The Court met according to adjournment.

Captain Teller, being sworn, says, when they retreated from the stone fence, where they were first properly posted, he took it for granted they had Colonel Firmen's orders, but did not hear it, and that he saw no signs of fear in Colonel Graham; and while some of his officers were urging him to retreat, he begged of them to keep their places, and he would go and get Colonel Firmen's orders.

Adjutant Hopkins, being sworn, says he did not know of the said Colonel Graham's being posted in order at but two fences, and he did not know of any orders for retreating from the first, but from the last he heard Colonel Graham order him to retreat.

Lieutenant Betts, being sworn, says he heard Colonel Firman order Colonel Graham to retreat from the first stone fence they were posted at, and in other matters agrees with Adjutant Hopkins.

Sergeant McNeal, being sworn, says he did not hear Colonel Firmen's orders for retreating from the first stone fence where they were posted, and says he saw no signs of fear in Colonel Graham.

George Stover, being sworn, says he heard Colonel Firmen order Colonel Graham to retreat from the first fence they were posted at.

Elias Wickham, being sworn, says he heard orders for retreating from the first fence they were posted at, and supposed it to be Colonel Firmen that gave the orders.

The Court, not being able to obtain a vote, determined to reëxamine the witnesses; and then adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

November 4th. The Court met according to adjournment, and proceeded to reëxamine such witnesses as they found necessary.

Colonel Read, being reëxamined, says that he posted Colonel Graham's regiment at two different places, and the last place was on or near the ridge of a hill, and he thinks nearly in a line with a stone house.

Colonel Firmen, being reëxamined, says that Colonel

Graham was posted at three different places, after they were taken from an open field.

Ebenezer Woodard, being sworn, says that Colonel Read ordered Colonel Graham's regiment from an open field to a fence by a cornfield, and when they came there, that Colonel Read said he thought that fence not sufficient, and said they had better retreat to the next fence, across the cornfield, which they did; and that he heard Colonel Firmen order Colonel Graham to retreat from the last-named fence; and that he did not know of their being posted more than twice; and who gave orders for retreating from the last post, he could not tell; and being asked whether he saw any signs of fear in Colonel Graham, answered in the negative; and further said that he repeatedly heard Colonel Graham urge his officers and men to keep in order and stand their ground.

William Stevens, being sworn, agrees exactly with Ebenezer Woodward.

Joel Washburn, being sworn, says he heard Colonel Firmen order Colonel Graham to retreat from the last post they were placed at, which was by a hay barrack, and that he repeatedly heard Colonel Graham call on his men to keep their ground and remember what they were fighting for.

The Court find from the general stream of the evidence that, while some of Colonel Graham's officers were urging him to retreat, he was active in stimulating his officers and men to do their duty, and did not retreat without orders. The Court determine that he is not guilty of the charge alleged against him.

ALEX'R McDOUGALL, Brigadier-General, President.

JOHANNES SLEGHT TO PRESIDENT NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Rochester, 2d November, 1776.

SIR: Pursuant to a resolve of your honourable Convention, to me directed, I have engaged to about the value of one hundred pounds, chiefly in shoes, to be delivered in five weeks from the date hereof. You will please to order the above sum to me by Mr. Drummond, the Kingston post, as soon as possible.

Remain, with due esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

JNO. SLEGHT.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO EGBERT BENSON.

Fishkill, November 2d, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed petition and order thereon, I am directed by the Committee of Safety for this State to refer to the General Committee for the County of Dutchess, to be by them, as soon as convenient, taken under consideration.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

By order:

PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT, Vice President.

To Egbert Benson, Esq., Chairman of the General Committee of the County of Dutchess.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, November 2d, 1776—three o'clock, P. M.

DEAR SIR: I am this moment favoured with yours of the 31st ultimo. By General Carleton's late manœuvre, it would seem as if he wanted ocular proof of your situation and strength, that he might inform his superiours of it, and secure himself against any fault that might be found with him for not attempting to dislodge us from Ticonderoga.

Although it is improbable that Sir John Johnson set out so early as the deserters mention, yet there is great reason to believe, from the circumstances which I mentioned in my letter to you from Saratoga, that an attempt will be made, either on the Mohawk river, or to cut off the communication between this and Ticonderoga. Either event should be carefully guarded against; and to do this effectually, I am of opinion that a good regiment should be immediately sent to Fort George, and two others to the Mohawk river; and as you are now reinforced by some Militia, who may do tolerably well when covered by lines and other works, I beg you will hasten the regiment to Fort George, and two into Tryon County: those for the latter place should by no means wait for their baggage; as they will be quartered in good farm-houses, they can dispense with it for a few days.

Flour is now on its way to you in great quantities, partly by Skeensborough and partly by Fort George; so that I hope you will not suffer in that article.

Report says that we have had a general engagement with the enemy, near the White-Plains, in which they have suffered very considerably. I hope to send you a confirmation of this account.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

Honourable General Gates.

Please to advise me of the day on which the regiments move.

---

H. GLEN TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Schenectady, 2d November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Captain Varick's letter to your order this moment came to hand. Captain Woollcott's company and the battoes are wanted at Albany. Shall be on their way this evening. I am put to it to the highest degree for wagons. Colonel Dayton's regiment took such a number, and the number I have sent with flour from this, puts it almost out of my power to get six wagons for the battoes, though I shall leave no stone unturned till I have them. I had intended to have sent Woollcott's company up to Fort Schuyler, with such articles as soap, candles, Indian meal, and for the last, as the season is far advanced, I had wrote yesterday on the subject to Mr. Avery, Deputy Commissary-General. This company going to Albany, puts it out of my power. The barracks at last got in a fair way. Nails I want much; the work will stand still for want of them.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient humble servant,

H. GLEN.

To Major-General Schuyler.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Providence, November 2d, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I left Newport the 26th October last. The Alfred and Hamden were then ready under sail, going out, but on the 28th I received a letter from Captain Jones, a copy of which you have enclosed. I set off directly to Newport, and found the Hamden so much damaged that she must be hove out. I put Captain Hacker, with all his hands, on board the sloop Providence, and they both sailed yesterday, with their former orders. I went from there to King's County, to the General Assembly, and applied for an embargo until the Continental fleet was manned; but failed in getting it by two votes, owing to a number of the members being deeply concerned in privateering.

I am at a loss how we shall get the ship manned, as I think near one third of the men which have been shipped, and received their month's pay, have been one way or another carried away in the privateers. I wish I had your orders giving me leave, whenever I found any man on board the privateers, not only to take him out, but all the rest of the men. That might make them more cautious of taking the men out of the service of the States. I thought I had some influence in the State I have so long lived in, but find now that private interest bears more sway than I wish it did. Shall go down to Newport in a day or two, and do all in my power to get the new ships, the Columbus and Hamden, every way ready for the sea; though I think it may not be best to let any single one go, for fear you might have some particular service for a number together.

A three-deck ship, prize of the Cabot's, arrived yesterday in the river. I could wish your commissions would come for the officers of the new ships, or that you would give me orders to commission them, as they seem to be uneasy at not having them.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

E. HOPKINS.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the honourable Marine Committee, at Philadelphia.

CAPTAIN J. PAUL JONES TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Alfred, Tarpawlin Cove, 2d November, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: As the wind fell very light yesterday afternoon, and had a southerly appearance, Captain Hacker and I thought it most advisable to go through the shoals. It was dark when we got in here. I found at anchor the privateer schooner Eagle, Captain Field; and having examined her and found John Dobie and James Minhew, belonging to the fleet, and Joseph Ryder and James King, belonging to the Rhode-Island brigade, concealed away below, I took them out, with about twenty others, agreeable to your orders. I shall now proceed with all possible despatch. I hear that Mr. Burroughs is at anchor off Nantucket, and has got a pilot. I congratulate Captain Whipple on this information; and am, with much esteem, honoured sir, your much obliged and very obedient humble servant,

J. P. JONES.

To Commodore Hopkins.

CAPTAIN KILTY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 3, 1776.

HONOURED SIRS: On Friday last we finished heaving down the schooner Ninety-Two, and yesterday I called a survey of masters of ships on her standing rigging. They gave their opinion that the rigging was sufficient for a voyage. Her foremast is bad. I intend to get it out to-morrow, and check it or get a new one. I intend to begin to load on Tuesday next. The scarcity of men to work is incredible; as to sailors, there is not one to be got. Mr. Smith cannot supply me with linen cordage, but I believe Mr. Lux can furnish us with what we want.

The Resolution has twenty hogsheads tobacco and two hundred and twenty barrels flour in. She will be loaded this next week.

I am, honoured sirs, your most obliged, humble servant,

JOHN KILTY.

To the honourable the Council of Safety, Annapolis.

---

HENRY HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

3rd November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On Wednesday last, and not before, I received your favour of the 10th of October. I observe the contents. As to the eighty-four bayonets mentioned, I had no expectation that they would all do, but supposed some of them would. I have not yet been able to find out but one smith that can forge a bayonet properly; but on receiving your letter of the 12th of July, in which you request very pressingly that four hundred bayonets be made of different sizes for the Flying-Camp Militia, I set several workmen to work at forging bayonets, who at first made them very deficient, some of the worst of which I kept here, as not fit for use at any rate, and sent many on, which were of the best, with the Flying-Camp Militia, receipts for which I have now with me; the remainder, such as they are, I sent to Mr. Winters, desiring him at the same time to send those that were not fit for use back; as also all barrels that proved not good, or unfit for use, to be sent back, with his objection to them in writing, by which I hoped in a short time to be complete in our business; but to my disappointment have never received one, though frequent opportunities.

Had the large barrels mentioned been sent back, they might have been long since made small, as they were sent to Mr. Winters the 10th September, and were made as near as I could to his directions, as he wrote me some I had sent before had not stood proof for want of substance. And your Honours will please recollect that I never had a pattern sent me; but I am of opinion that Mr. Winters's hands did not long stand for want of work, for I find by my books, that on the 30th of the same month, he had fifty barrels more, which I hear of no fault to; and had the others been sent back, they could have been made small in three days.

'Tis said the bayonets are too soft, which I doubt not, as they are all steeled with American steel, (or at least the smiths had steel of me for them,) some of which I found after to be raw iron, not at all converted into steel, which at that time I was a stranger to it, as it was sold me for good steel—an imposition I hope to prevent in future, as I had (now) when last in Philadelphia contracted with Messrs. Shoemaker & Humphreys to take two ton a year, and to have it in the flat burr, blistered, in which order 'tis easily known whether 'tis steel or not.

As Mr. Joseph Gilpin was good enough to acquaint me that you had censured me, and I had received nothing from your Honours, I wrote him last week, partly to the same effect of this scrawl, which, together, I flatter myself may serve to satisfy your Honours that I am not altogether so culpable as at first might appear.

I have through the course of this week been busied in sending on three companies to Flying-Camp, and am waiting now for the Carolinians, which I expect every hour, which, when I have forwarded, shall immediately wait on your Honours, when I doubt not of rendering full satisfaction.

The large and small barrels and bayonets are going on as usual. Shall bring a parcel of each sort with me, or send them by first opportunity; and am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

H. HOLLINGSWORTH.

To the honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

P. S. If your Honours take the trouble to consult the Delegates from this County, I flatter myself they will inform you that I have not been an idle servant to the publick, or your Honours.

CÆSAR RODNEY TO CAPTAIN JOHN PAPLEY.

Dover, November 3, 1776.

SIR: The several articles you sent on board the vessel for me are come safe to hand. I confess myself under obligation to you for your care and attention to that as well as many other little matters which I have heretofore requested of you, and shall be happy, whenever it shall be your pleasure to ask, to find it in my power to do you a service.

I am in a better state of health than when I left Philadelphia, and though very much engaged in business, have many not only pleasing but laughable reflections; among others the happiness my good landlady must feel in my being so far removed from the backgammon tables, which so often interrupted her evening's repose. Yet I think she bore it with as much patience as most new-married ladies possibly could. Pray make my compliments to her and Miss Sukey, and let not Sally be forgot. It is thought by many that Sally is apt to discover too much warmth of temper; it may be so, but I have always found her candid, honest, sensible, and obliging, and therefore a favourite. She will (I have no doubt) with the addition of a few years, under so good a manager as she has, make a very fine woman.

If it should be my misfortune to be obliged to leave home and attend Congress, I shall be with you. You will be pleased to make my compliments to Mr. Etting, and believe me, sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

CÆSAR RODNEY.

Captain John Papley, Philadelphia.

MATHEW IRWIN TO GENERAL GATES.

Philadelphia, 3d November, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Lukens informs me that he was sent here by you to get clothing for the Army under your command; that Messrs. Mease & Caldwell have not, and from the multiplicity of their business cannot, do the needful for the Northern Army; therefore I take the liberty of acquainting you that I have a considerable quantity of clothes on hand, and much spare time, if you choose to employ me to provide clothing and necessaries for your men. I shall do it for a reasonable commission, and you may be assured I shall use my utmost exertions in giving you satisfaction.

Various are the reports from your quarter. One of your Colonels, in a letter dated soon after the affair on the Lakes, give us to know you were in a dismal situation. I don't know the ground, but notwithstanding have great hopes and confidence in your success.

Colonel Irwin, whom you would find a worthy, honest fellow, wants much to be released, in order to command his regiment. Mrs. Gates and Mr. Robert arrived here a few days since in good health. They write per this conveyance. I wish you health and happiness, and believe me to be, sir, your most assured servant,

MATHEW IRWIN.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO DR. SHIPPEN.

Head-Quarters, 3d November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am favoured with yours of the 29th last month. Although by the resolutions of Congress you are appointed to the Director Generalship of the Flying-Camp in New-Jersey, and Doctor Morgan to that of the Continental Army which has lain on this side the North River, yet I never imagined it meant to exclude either of you from the power of establishing hospitals on which ever side of the river you thought most convenient for your respective sick. Under the circumstances in which we left New-York, we found it impossible to remove our sick up the country on this side the river; Doctor Morgan was therefore directed to provide and prepare hospitals for them in Jersey, to be under the control of him and his assistants.

He informs me he has left Doctor Foster with proper assistants to take care of those sick who were removed from this Army; and it is my desire that they may remain under his direction. He will undoubtedly take proper measures to provide comfortably for them. As fast as they recover they are to be sent over to this Army again; and though they may have put you to some inconvenience for a time, yet consider the necessity of the times must plead the excuse. We have now established hospitals in this neighbourhood, and therefore shall have occasion to send no more to Jersey. As fast as Doctor Foster's sick are removed the houses will be left for your use and convenience.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Dr. William Shippen.

---

R. H. HARRISON TO GENERAL GREENE.

White-Plains, November 3d, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I am directed by his Excellency to acknowledge his receipt of your favour of the 29th ultimo with its enclosures. He has examined the estimate of provisions and provender, and approves not only of the quantities, but of the places you have fixed upon for 'em to be deposited at. He concurs entirely in your observation, that no loss can arise, though the estimate should prove rather large; but of that there will be little doubt, as our consumption and demands will be extremely great.

Since my letter of yesterday, no event of an interesting nature has turned up; but we have just received intelligence from General Parsons, who is stationed with his brigade at the Saw-Pits, that a large body of the enemy have advanced within a mile of him. He is on his march to meet 'em, and requested some troops to be sent to maintain the lines he has thrown up.

I am, &c., R. H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Greene.

---

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read the 6th: Referred to Board of War.]

White-Plains, November 3, 1776.

SIR: By command of his Excellency I have the honour to inform you that our situation is nearly the same as when I had the pleasure of writing you last. It is altered in no instance, unless in the number of our troops, which is every day decreasing, by their most scandalous desertion and return home.

The enclosed letter from General Parsons, who is stationed near the Saw-Pits, and which his Excellency directed me to transmit, will inform you of the prevalency of this disagreeable practice.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

ROB'T H. HARRISON.

---

DR. CURTIS TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Camp White-Plains, November 3d, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: The affairs of my paternal estate remaining as yet unsettled, and many other reasons rendering my quitting the Army for the present indispensably necessary, I should be much obliged to the honourable the Congress if they would be pleased to appoint some other person to supply my place in the new arrangement of officers for this regiment.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

BENJ. CURTIS,
Surg'n of the First New-York Reg't.

To the honourable the Convention of the State of New-York.

---

COMMITTEE OF MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[November 9: Referred to J. Wilson, E. Rutledge, G. Wythe.]

Head-Quarters, near White-Plains, November 3d, 1776.

SIR: We are a Committee of the General Assembly of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, appointed to officer and inlist seven battalions for the Continental service, during the continuance of the present war with Great Britain, out of the officers and soldiers now in the Continental Army at or near White-Plains, from said State. The General Assembly of Massachusetts-Bay were fully sensible their quota of the new Army would not be made but by some addition to the encouragement given by the honourable Congress. Satisfied of the absolute necessity of raising their proportion, the season being far spent proper for that purpose, have passed the enclosed resolves, inlistments, and beating orders, as the only possible method for them to comply with the requisition of the honourable Congress.

We are now on the spot with blank commissions and beating orders to complete seven battalions. Have laid them before his Excellency General Washington, who disapproves of our proceeding to inlist men by any additional encouragement previous to our laying the matter before the honourable Congress.

Having a disposition to do every thing in our power for the defence of the United States of America, have despatched George Partridge, Esq., one of the Committee, to lay this important matter before the honourable Congress, and to wait their deliberations thereon.

We are your Honour's most obedient, very humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

TIM. DANIELSON, Chairman.

In the House of Representatives, October 19, 1776.

Whereas the importance of raising the proportion of men assigned this State by the honourable Congress with the greatest despatch, is such as demands our immediate attention, and requires our utmost exertions:

Therefore, it is Resolved, That Timothy Danielson, Esq., George Partridge, Esq., Colonel Josiah Sartell, Jonathan Gardner, Jun., Esq., and Captain Seth Washburn, be a Committee to repair without delay to the camp at or near New-York, and there, after gaining the best intelligence they can get, and after advising with his Excellency General Washington, or the Commander-in-Chief in that department, respecting the characters of the officers belonging to this State now in the Army, proceed to appoint from the officers now in the Army, or others, the Field and Staff Officers for seven Battalions; and also the Captains and Subalterns for the Companies of seven Battalions, on the conditions hereafter mentioned; and to give the said Captains and Subalterns beating orders and inlistments for raising their respective Companies from men belonging to this State, upon the terms and for the time proposed by the honourable Congress, by their resolves of the 16th, 18th, and 19th September last; each of said Captains and Subalterns who shall inlist men as aforesaid, and shall return the original inlistments to the Committee appointed by this State, and shall not be commissioned, shall be entitled to and receive from this State six shillings for each man he shall so inlist, and that shall pass muster: And each corps of officers for a Company, consisting of one Captain, one First Lieutenant, one Second Lieutenant, and one Ensign raising a Company equal to the number established by Congress for a Company, on or before the first day of December next, to be entitled to receive their respective commissions agreeable to their appointment by said Committee; the said officers once every fortnight, or oftener, as the said Committee shall direct, making return of the men so inlisted to said Committee, and lodging with them the original inlistments, and not to be entitled to said commissions unless they inlist a sufficient number of men to complete a Company as aforesaid.

And also Resolved, That Abraham Watson, Esquire, Colonel Nathaniel Leonard, Major Jacob Davis, Captain Elisha Cranston, and Mr. William Page, be a Committee to repair, without delay, to the camp at or near Ticonderoga, and there, after gaining the best intelligence they can get, and after advising with General Gates, or the Commander-in-Chief in that department, respecting the characters of the officers belonging to this State now in the Army, there proceed to appoint from the officers in said Army, or others, the Field and Staff Officers for five Battalions; and also the Captains and Subalterns for the Companies of five Battalions, and to give to the Captains and Subalterns for each Company beating orders and inlistments for raising their respective Companies from men belonging to this State, upon the terms and for the time proposed by the honourable Congress, by their resolves of the 16th, 18th, and 19th September last; each Captain and Subaltern who shall inlist men as aforesaid, and shall return the original inlistments to the Committees appointed by this State, and shall not be commissioned, shall be entitled to and receive from this State six shillings for each man he shall so inlist, and that shall pass muster: And each corps of officers for a Company, consisting of one Captain, one First Lieutenant, one Second Lieutenant, and one Ensign, raising a Company equal to the number established by Congress for a Company, on or before the first day of December next, to be entitled to receive their respective commissions, agreeable to the appointment made by said Committee; the said officers once every fortnight, or oftener, as the said Committee shall direct, making return of the men they shall so inlist to said Committee, and lodging with them the original inlistments, and not to be entitled to said commissions, unless they inlist a sufficient number of men to complete a Company as aforesaid.

And it is further Resolved, That the said Committees in their respective departments be, and hereby are empowered, at the expiration of the term above-mentioned for completing the inlistments by the several corps of officers for that purpose, appointed to deliver commissions to such as shall have completed inlistments for a full Company; and in all cases where Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns, designed for a Company, have inlisted a number of men less than a number a Company is to consist of, the said Committees are hereby empowered to form them into Companies, and to distribute the commissions to the officers in such manner as to them shall seem most conducive to the service, giving preference to such corps of officers as shall have raised the most men.

And it is further Resolved, That each of said Committees be, and they are hereby directed to transmit from time to time to Congress and the General Assembly of this State, the success attending their undertakings; that they give account of any embarrassments or difficulties attending the completing the aforesaid levies, and the reasons of such difficulties or embarrassments, that measures may be immediately taken to remove the same, if any there be.

And it is further Resolved, That the Commission Officers of each Company who shall receive commissions from the Committees aforesaid, shall appoint the Non-Commissioned Officers in their Companies respectively.

It is further Resolved, That each Non-Commissioned Officer and Private Soldier who shall inlist in the Continental service as aforesaid, shall be entitled to, and receive from this State, one Blanket annually, or eighteen Shillings in case he shall procure one for himself, and produce a certificate thereof from the Captain of the Company to which he belongs to the Paymaster of the Regiment; provided Congress shall not make provision for the same.

TIMOTHY DANIELSON TO JAMES WARREN.

Head-Quarters, near White-Plains, November 3d, 1776.

Sir: The Committee appointed to repair to the Army near New-York arrived at Head-Quarters on Friday last, but had no opportunity to confer with his Excellency the General till the next day noon. We then laid the resolves of the Assembly before him relative to recruiting our proportion of the Army; but found the augmentation of the pay of the soldiers was very disagreeable to him. We informed him of what we took to be the sense of the Assembly relative to the disposition of our people, and the means necessary to induce them to engage in the service, and that nothing would have influenced our Assembly to have made any addition to the establishment as settled by Congress, but its being absolutely necessary in order to our recruiting our quota of men. But it was clear in his Excellency's mind, that, though it might promote the raising of our quota, yet it would effectually prevent the inlisting of the remainder of the Army, if the other Colonies should adopt similar measures, which, he thought, never would do, as it was not without repeated applications that he could induce Congress to give them a suit of clothes yearly; and further, he was of opinion that in case the other Colonies should be able to raise their quota on a lower establishment, they never could be brought to duty in the camp without murmuring, if not mutinying, and that he had seen convincing experiments of this kind in the year past in some southern regiments raised at five dollars per month, and brought to do duty with the other part of the Army. But he advised the Committee to make immediate application to Congress on this matter, and suspend the inlistments till we receive an answer. And as his advice comported with our instructions, we have appointed Mr. George Partridge to repair to Congress for instructions or advice; and should be glad of further instructions from the honourable Court how we shall conduct in case your resolves for raising our proportion of the new Army should be reprobated by Congress, which we do much expect. In the mean time we shall be employed in examining the characters of the officers recommended by the General for the new Army, and their minds relative to engaging.

We have the honour to be, sir, with great respect, your most obedient and very humble servants,

By order of the Committee:

Timo. Danielson, Chairman.

To the Hon. James Warren, Esq., Speaker of the House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL.

White-Plains, November 4, 1776.

A General Court-Martial set this day by adjournment: Brigadier-General McDougall, President.

Members: Colonel Baldwin, Lieutenant-Colonel Weisenfells, Major Sherman, Captain Coggswell, Captain Bolster, Captain Crooker, Captain Knap, Captain Coal, Captain Warner, Captain Lee, Captain Hull, Captain Pelton, Captain Fenner.

Captain Andrew Peters, Judge Advocate pro temp.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Captain Gerrish, of Colonel Little's regiment, who was arrested by Colonel Hand for leaving his post on the approach of a part of the enemy's Light-Horse.

Captain Gerrish being asked whether he was guilty or not guilty of the charge alleged against him, plead Not guilty.

Enoch Young, being sworn, says, that on the 1st instant Captain Gerrish paraded his guard and marched them a little distance from where they first took post to a corner of the wood, where they halted; that Captain Gerrish went out from thence and said when he returned that he saw about twenty of the enemy's Light-Horse; upon which he marched his men a little farther, to a wall, and said he could easily cut off the party of Light-Horse, if they should approach near him.

George Richardson, being sworn, says, that he heard Colonel Nixon order Captain Gerrish to march his guard to the corner of the wood referred to by the last witness; and further agrees with the last witness.

Samuel Lord, being sworn, says, that after Captain Gerrish had marched his guard to the wall above-named, he sent out about five men with a Sergeant to make discoveries, and upon seeing some of Colonel Hand's officers, thought them to be the enemy, and ran back towards the wall; and being asked why they ran, they said because their officer ran, (meaning the Sergeant.)

Lieutenant Abraham Skinner, being sworn, says that he, with a party of Colonel Hand's regiment, came to the place where he supposed Captain Gerrish was posted the first instant, (to which Samuel Lord agrees,) where they found provision partly cooked, which was nearer the enemy than the place they had retired to, (as he thought,) and that Captain Gerrish being asked why he had moved his party, he replied that it was a scouting party, and he had a right to move them where he pleased.

Mr. Patten being sworn, says that he, with a party of Colonel Hand's regiment, came up to the place where Captain Gerrish had been posted, (as he supposed,) and that after he had been there a short space, Captain Gerrish and some of his party came up to them, and one of Captain Gerrish's men says to him, 'tis a pity we moved so soon; but Captain Gerrish did allege General Nixon's or Colonel Nixon's orders for it.

Colonel Nixon, being sworn, says that he ordered Captain Gerrish to move his guard from where he had first taken post, in order the better to divide the ground between Captain Gerrish and the other guards, and that he had General Nixon's directions for giving said order.

The Court determine that Captain Gerrish is not guilty of the charge alleged against him, and that it is entirely groundless.

ALX'R McDOUGALL, Brigadier-General, President.

FISHKILL, State of NEW-YORK, ss:

Isaac I. Sebring, late of King's County, on Nassau-Island, but now of Fishkill, and State above-mentioned, being sworn, deposeth and saith: That on the thirty-first of October last he was at the house of Domini Vanderlinder, when Mrs. Vanderlinder showed him a printed handbill, dated at New-York, October 4th, with the signature "A. Emmerich," highly reflecting on the Continental Congress, and very prejudicial to the interest of America. That this deponent requested the loan of the said paper from Mrs. Vanderlinder, who said she had borrowed it from a soldier who had found three of them under a chestnut-tree near her house, and could not spare it, but that there were more of them in the neighbourhood. In consequence of which, when he, the said Sebring, came to the house of a Mr. Hopper, Inn-keeper at Piramus, in the County of Bergen, and State of New-Jersey, he inquired for some of the said papers, and one of them was given to him, either by Mrs. Hopper, the wife of the said Hopper, or his daughter, this deponent is not certain which. And further this deponent saith not.

LETTER TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Fishkill, November 3d, 1776.

DEAR SIR: When the Committee asked me if I would take the oath of allegiance to the United States, for several reasons I refused. Soon after I came to you and acquainted you with it, and that the principal reason was, that should I take the oath, and at any time a draft of men was necessary, that if it should be my lot to go and I procure a man in my stead, it might be refused, and then should I neglect to go, I should forfeit my oath, which is a most sacred thing. I have talked with several of my acquaintance on the subject, and should be glad to see the copy of the oath; and if it does not put me on a worse footing than my neighbour, and I can have liberty to go home on the same footing as friends to my country, I shall have no objection in taking it; and shall be much obliged to you for your trouble if you would get the copy of the oath, and just step to see me, for I should be glad to see you.

I am, sir, your humble servant.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, November 3d, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I do myself the honour to enclose you copy of a letter which I received yesterday from General Gates, with copy of a paper enclosed.

If Sir John Johnson did actually begin his march at the time mentioned by the deserters, he must have met with such difficulties as has obliged him to return, for he could not have subsisted so long a time in the woods; but lest he should have delayed his departure, and marched some time since, I have ordered two regiments from Tyonderoga to Tryon County, and one to Fort George. About a thousand of the Militia are also in Tryon County, which, with their own, and what troops are there now, will something exceed two thousand.

I do not apprehend that General Carleton will attempt our lines. It is to be wished that he did; as it is almost certain, if he does, that he will experience a repulse.

A report prevails here that your Excellency has had a capital engagement with the enemy, in which they greatly suffered, and that they also made an unsuccessful attack on Fort Washington. I hope for the pleasure of a confirmation of this agreeable intelligence.

Be pleased to forward copy of General Gates's letter, and of the other paper to Congress, as I have not wrote them on the occasion.

If General Carleton does not mean to attack, he must soon return, as the inclemency of the season will not suffer him to remain long encamped? Should that event take place, I shall immediately thereafter draw the troops from Tyonderoga, leaving about two thousand five hundred men as a garrison.

I am, dear sir, with great esteem and respect, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Albany, November 3d, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the honour to enclose you an extract of a letter from General Gates, of the 31st ultimo, with copy of one from Major Hoisington to him. If Sir John Johnson left Canada at the time the deserters mention, he has probably met with such difficulties as have obliged him to return, as I think he could not subsist from that time to this in the woods. We have no less than eleven different scouts traversing the country between Ticonderoga and Fort Stanwix, so that I am in hopes, should the enemy attempt to penetrate to the Mohawk river, we shall have such early information as to enable us to meet him with a sufficient force. I have already ordered two regiments from Ticonderoga to Tryon County, and about one thousand of the Militia, so that our force there, exclusive of the Militia of that County, will amount to two thousand men, besides the garrison of Fort Schuyler.

I wish the Convention would order the depth and breadth of Hudson's river to be carefully taken, at such places as they conceive would be most proper effectually to obstruct the navigation. Verplanck's Point or Jan Kanten Hook may be proper places; perhaps the latter the most eligible of any. I propose taking the earliest opportunity that is afforded me to prepare every thing for it. At present I cannot, as I have neither troops or carpenters, the latter being all employed in constructing barracks.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Peter R. Livingston, Esq., President, &c.

Ticonderoga, 31st October, 1776.

SIR: Monday morning, between eight and nine o'clock, our advance guard-boat, down the lake, made the signal for the approach of the enemy's fleet. In about one hour five of their largest boats or gondolas, appeared in sight, and a number of troops—Indians and Canadians—were seen landing upon Three-Mile Point. Soon after two of the armed boats stood over to the east side of the lake, inclining upwards, as if sent to reconnoitre; when they came considerably within shot, they were fired upon from two redoubts, very near the shore, and by a row-galley, which is stationed to cover the boom. They thereupon retired. In the mean time the enemy's troops were distinctly seen to land upon the back of the point, and presently after thirteen small batteaus and birch canoes crossed from the west to the east side of the lake into a bay about four miles below our redoubts. Upon these threatenings of an attack, our lines, redoubts, and posts were all manned, and as the motions of the enemy seemed to indicate they were gathering their main force upon the west side of the lake as if intending to make their push there, I ordered three regiments (Poor's, Reed's and Greaton's) from Mount Independence, to reënforce this side. The orders were instantly obeyed, and nothing could exceed the spirit and alertness which was shown by all officers and soldiers in executing every order that was given. About four in the evening the boats and canoes that had passed to the west side of the lake returned, and the enemy were seen plainly to reëmbark at the Three-Mile Point. I immediately ordered the guard-boat to resume her station, and by sunset it was observed the body of the enemy had retired.

By the information I receive daily I find that General Carleton continues in his post, and that three large vessels are anchored near Putnam's Point, a little below, where all the Light Infantry, Grenadiers, and a large body of Indians and Canadians, are encamped. Chimney-Point and Crown-Point are also occupied by the enemy.

Yesterday I received the enclosed intelligence from Newbury, Coos. If Sir John Johnson did actually march at the time he is said to have done it, he must be upon the Mohawk river now; or if he aims at Fort George, Dayton's regiment cannot be better stationed than there. Surely your Oneidas will give you all the necessary information upon this head: but how could Sir John get back should he meet with a check? I have seen the Mohawk river fast frozen the 10th of November.

Colonel Lewis set off yesterday morning by Skeen. He has memorandums of our wants, and will be with you as soon as this letter.

Colonel Gansevoort writes me for spades. You must answer his demands, for I cannot.

We received the good news you sent us from New-York, with joyful hearts. It was immediately made publick to the Army in the manner you advised.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To General Schuyler.

Enclosed is the Commissary's return.

---

Newbury, October 12th, 1776.

Intelligence given by four deserters from Canada, who inlisted out of prison at Quebeck, into the Royal Emigrant Regiment, commanded by Colonel McLean, is, that on the 25th of September they left the above place. Sir John Johnson, with the Indians and Canadians and Eighth Regiment, had marched to attack the inhabitants on Mohawk river, and meet General Burgoyne at Albany, who has ordered all the force from Chamblee and Sorrel to St. John's, with the marine and train of artillery and sailors to but three men in each vessel. Likewise, as they passed on the east side of the lake on Sunday, the 6th instant, heard a very heavy cannonade on the lake, supposed to be with the fleet.

The above deserters were found by one of my scouts about forty miles out, destitute of provisions and very weak. They being desirous to go to Head-Quarters, near New-York, I have passed the above deserters for that place.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JOAB HOISINGTON.

To His Excellency Major-General Gates.

JOHN TAYLOR TO PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT.

Albany, 3d November, 1776.

SIR: In compliance with an order and resolve of Convention, I repaired to Cumberland County, to unite with Mr. Sessions and Colonel Marsh, to carry into execution a resolve of the 4th ultimo. I met those gentlemen, though without the resolution referred to, owing to Mr. Stephens's delay, who was to convey the report, &c.

The attack on our fleet on Lake Champlain occasioned the Militia's being called out, which rendered it impossible to collect the sense of the people until affairs were more settled. 'Twas thought advisable that the report of Convention should be dispersed through the Counties, and a proper time fixed by Colonel Marsh and Mr. Sessions (who would be the best judges) for taking the matter up, that I should be advised of the same, and attend accordingly.

'Tis reported Colonel Warner has said he was advised to petition Congress to have the Hampshire Grants set off in a new State, by Mr. Adams, one of the Delegates. The people are much divided—some for a new State, some for joining Hampshire, others Massachusetts, many for remaining under New-York. I endeavoured to dissuade them from persisting in such idle and delusive schemes, which would meet with the approbation of such only as were fond of changes, and rather chose to live under no government, as the conduct of the most industrious in this affair has too plainly evinced heretofore.

The Chairman of the Committee of Cumberland disapproves of the letter sent by their Delegates. It was carried by a majority in their House, though few out of doors knew or heard of it. It was penned by a certain Mr. Phelps, the oracle of them parts, who, I understand, is very busy in this affair. From what I have heard among those people, I am led to believe they will remain no longer under the State of New-York than they can help.

Mr. Sessions advanced five hundred pounds to Major Hoisington, of the Rangers; the remainder, I am of opinion, he will keep in his hands until he hears from Convention.

The enclosed I took down at a tavern in New-Marlborough. The inhabitants on my return accused me of being guilty of a desperate mean act. They could not proceed to business for want of the notification, as the Town Clerk had not other Minutes.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN TAYLOR.

To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq.

H. GLEN TO ELISHA AVERY.

Schenectady, 3d November, 1776.

SIR: Whereas I am obliged to issue so much fresh meat to the different regiments of Militia which march through here, the complaint is so great for salt, that I am under the necessity of sending the bearer on purpose for salt. I must beg of you in sending by this opportunity three barrels, and let me know the quantity that is allowed, as that is an article I have not made use of since I have been in the service. I seem to be in pain if I think what I shall do when six hundred men come in winter-quarters here, for meat cattle almost not to be had, at least round here; and such a number of Militia going up the Mohawk river, I am afraid will put it almost out of the power of Major Fonda to perform his contract of the barrels of beef, and am afraid there will be a demand for flour from this, should the Militia make any stay up the Mohawk river. Your answer on this subject, should the demand come to me, I shall expect by the bearer, so that I can be on my guard. It's entirely out of my power to send any of the articles you mentioned in your last to Fort Schuyler, as soap, candles, Indian meal, at present, on account of an express from General Schuyler yesterday, ordering all my batteau-men, and even the batteaus, down to Albany.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

H. GLEN.

To Elisha Avery, Esq.

WHITE-PLAINS, November 2, 1776.

ISAAC NICOLL, Colonel.

CAPTAIN O'HARA TO GENERAL GATES.

Skeensborough, November 3, 1776.

RESPECTED SIR: As I make no doubt but that you will soon come to an engagement at Ticonderoga, (every little is a help, as the proverb says,) I would take it as a favour if your Honour would order me and my company over. I have as yet able to do duty in about fifty good fellows, with excellent good arms. As the Militia are daily coming this way, Colonel Wynkoop may well spare my company, as we have now not much to do here. I therefore flatter myself that your Honour will grant my request, which will oblige your most obedient, humble servant,

HENRY O'HARA.

General Gates.

DR. STRINGER TO GENERAL GATES.

Fort George, 3d November, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I am just now favoured with a line from Dr. Potts, handing me your order against discharging any more of the sick sent from Ticonderoga, &c.; which shall be attended to strictly. But I am greatly distressed to know how I must provide for the numbers who are daily coming over to us, being obliged, besides those whom we have discharged the service, to send, for want of room in the Hospital, upwards of one hundred and thirty to be taken care of at Albany, where I am afraid they will suffer much for want of attendance, though they will be provided with house-room, which cannot possibly be had here.

Those whom we have discharged have been such as I have understood you have given a former order for to Dr. Potts, in my absence. We have only three Surgeons and two Mates here, fit to do duty.

I am, with respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

SAML. STRINGER.

To Major-General Gates.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Providence, November 3d, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received yours of the 10th October, this day. Am extremely unhappy in not receiving it in time, as Captain Jones, in the Alfred, and Hacker, in the Providence, sailed two days ago, well manned; and the ships now here are the two new ships, the Columbus and Hamden. The Hamden must be repaired before she can sail; and the ships are not more than half manned. However, I am glad to receive your orders for an expedition to the southward, that I may have it in my power to convince the gentlemen in every State that I have nothing at heart but the common cause, without any partiality to any particular State. This you may rely on, that I will attempt to put your orders in execution, if I am obliged to do it with a single ship, although I shall do all in my power to get all the force here with me that possibly can be manned.

If I can't get the whole manned next week, shall take the men out of some to man the others, and leave them with a few officers to take care of them until they receive your further orders.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant, ESEK HOPKINS.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the honourable Marine Committee at Philadelphia.

BERNARD GALLAGHER TO CAPTAIN JONES.

Boston, November 3, 1776.

SIR: Being so unfortunate as to miss you the day you sailed, by supposing you to have stood out to sea, or gone into Canso harbour the night before, have occasioned us all a numerous deal of misfortunes. We see a sail going into Canso as we got under way. We stood out towards Canso harbour, and supposing it to be some of the fleet, stood off and on that night and the next day, when a small privateer called the General Gates, Captain William Kilton, came athwart us, and finding we had no paper, took us for impostors, carried us into Canso, took our arms from us, and would not promise to let more than two have a passage in her. But the next day, about ten o'clock, Captain Dawson and another brig hove in sight. We all being aboard, the privateer was obliged to run in to St. Peter's Bay, thinking to escape them there. However, they pursued us through the woods, with all the exasperated inhabitants, and took thirty of us, out of fifty-five, prisoners, nine of them belonging to us, dividing us between both vessels, I being put on board Captain Dawson, where he paid me the compliment to put me in irons for fourteen days, being so much the more aggressor represented to him by Captain Dory. We were all fetched to Halifax, where we were oft obliged to live daily on two-thirds of a pound of bread and about two ounces of pork, one hundred of us being confined in a vessel's hold, about one hundred tons burthen, with a guard of twelve soldiers to watch us. There we were obliged to stay for two weeks more, when we had the pleasure to be put on board the cartel. We arrived at Marblehead yesterday, and got to this town last night; the only persons that are got so far belonging to us being James Rogers, George Nicholson, and myself; we being obliged to leave sick on board the cartel Ben. Allen, John Fears, and Munroe. As I intend to make the best of my way to Philadelphia, I hope in case you should fit out for another cruise before my arrival you will be so good as to order my chest and clothes to be given to James Gallagher, shopkeeper in Front street, near the drawbridge, or else order them into some person's care you can confide in. I hope you will excuse this trouble.

I am, with respect, sir, your most obedient humble servant, BERNARD GALLAGHER.

Captain John Jones, Esq., Sloop Providence, Philadelphia.

N. B. There was on board the sloop belonging to me, one chest, one trunk, one case, one bed, two quilts, two blankets, one sheet, with some sea-clothes, one quadrant, one spy-glass, one ten-gallon keg of spirit, one barrel of sugar, one hat.

GENERAL WARD TO JAMES WARREN.

Boston, 3d November, 1776.

SIR: At the request of Colonel David Brewer, I beg leave to mention his desire to engage in the service in the new Army, if the General Court should think fit to employ him.

Colonel Joshua Davis also inclines to engage in the service. He has been Barrackmaster for this division of the Army for several months past.

Major Daniel Wood, of Berwick, also inclines to serve. All the above desired me to mention their names.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

Honourable Speaker of the House of Representatives.

---

DANIEL HOPKINS TO JAMES WARREN.

HONOURED SIR: You will recollect I am one of the Committee appointed by the General Court to collect hard money for the Canada expedition. By a warrant from the honourable Board I drew out of the Colony treasury three thousand and fifty-five dollars, in bills, and have deposited the same number of dollars in the treasury, of hard money, for which I have the Treasurer's receipt. My request is that a Committee be appointed by the honourable House to inspect my accounts, and give me a discharge.

N. B. I have also delivered the Treasurer, in hard money, two hundred and fifty dollars, not included in the said warrant.

Your most humble servant, D. HOPKINS.

Honourable James Warren.

VERNON HEBB AND TIMOTHY BOWES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Leonard-Town, November 4th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to the requisition of your honourable Board, we examined into the state and condition of the vessels drifted on shore, or made captures of from Lord Dunmore's fleet, and are of opinion, that of the following vessels lying at Kitt's Point, to wit: one very large pilot-boat, one schooner of about fourteen hundred bushels burthen, one sloop of about two thousand bushels, delivered with some rigging—the sloop only in a condition to be removed; and in order to do that, it will be necessary to send hands down with an anchor and cable. No hands to be hired here.

At Cherry Fields, one sloop about fourteen hundred bushels burthen, one schooner of about twelve hundred bushels burthen—much repairs necessary before either can be removed.

If, gentlemen, it should be the opinion of your Board to have the vessels which, in our judgment, cannot be removed without repairing—which we should not have relied on could we have procured any skillful person to have examined them—disposed of, we should be glad to receive your instructions relative thereto, as soon as convenient.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants,

VERNON HEBB.
TIMOTHY BOWES.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE MARYLAND CONVENTION.

Philadelphia, November 4th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am particularly instructed by Congress to inform you that the resolutions of your House, to pay ten dollars in lieu of the hundred acres of land determined by Congress to be given to such non-commissioned officers and soldiers as shall inlist to serve during the war, will, in the opinion of Congress, prove extremely detrimental to these States, if carried into execution; as it will, in all probability, induce such soldiers as are to compose the remainder of the levies, to require an equal sum from the United States, and by refusing until their demands shall be complied with, compel the Congress to the immediate payment of an additional bounty, far beyond what is reasonable. The Congress are so entirely satisfied with the propriety of offering land to the soldiery as an inducement to inlist in the service, that they cannot rescind the resolve they passed for that purpose; and are moreover of opinion, that the faith of Congress, which they have plighted, (by virtue of the power with which they were vested,) must be obligatory upon their constituents; that no one State can by its own act be released therefrom, and that the interest of the United States would be deeply and injuriously affected should the Congress at this time consent to a compromise between any State and the forces to be raised by such State. From the resolves of your House it should seem that you apprehended your State would be obliged in their individual capacity to make good the bounty of land hereafter to be given to the soldiery; whereas it was the intention of Congress to provide such land at the expense of the United States. I have it therefore in charge from Congress, to request you will reconsider your resolve on this subject, and give such instructions to your Commissioners appointed to repair to the camp as will enable them to carry into execution the views of Congress; and also to inform you, that the Paymaster-General has been furnished with a sum of money for the purpose of paying the bounty of twenty dollars ordered by Congress to such soldiers as shall inlist to serve the United States during the war.

I have the honour to be, with much esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, Pres't.

Honourable Convention of Maryland.

Colonel William Smallwood was appointed Brigadier-General by Congress, October 23d.

---

GENERAL MERCER TO DR. SHIPPEN.

Perth-Amboy, 4th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The bearer, Dr. Wallace, has been here in quest of you and necessaries for the sick of the Maryland troops. If you have as yet received no instructions from Head-Quarters, or from General Greene, relative to the Hospital, it is my opinion that the charge of all the sick on this side of the North River devolves on you, and that all the stores, assistants, &c., belonging to that department, on this side, are entirely at your disposal; but to prevent disputes it may be proper to inventory whatever has been brought from New-York, or is in Dr. Morgan's care. If the speediest measures are not pursued for the comfortable accommodation of the sick, now winter is set in, many lives must be lost in a way shocking to humanity. I am well satisfied that nothing of this kind will happen where you take the lead.

Yours, with great esteem, H. MERCER.

To Dr. William Shippen, Jr., Director-General of the Hospitals.

---

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

White-Plains, November 4, 1776.

SIR: By command of his Excellency, I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your favours of the 24th ultimo, and to inform you that he esteems the plan you propose to lay before Congress for preventing more rations being drawn than may be due, well calculated to answer the end. That respecting the sick seems to him not entirely perfect. The Captains or commanders of companies are prohibited from drawing pay for such sick as may be discharged from the Hospitals as unfit for service. If during their stay, and before it can be known whether their case will or will not admit of their return, it should become necessary to make up a regimental pay abstract, in what manner are the officers to make up their rolls? Are they to include the sick or not? As this is a case that may and must of necessity frequently happen, it appears to his Excellency that the intended regulation should be more general, and restrain the officers from including in their pay-abstracts or rolls all the sick they send to the Hospitals, and the pay due 'em previous to their going. In such case those who are discharged as unfit for service, may receive their pay as intended, and those who return to duty can obtain what was due them, when the regiment was paid, by applying to the Paymaster with the officers' and surgeon's certificates, or be included in a subsequent abstract. The inconveniences and abuses which are designed to be remedied by those regulations, his Excellency does not apprehend to arise so much from necessity as incident to the nature of armies, as from the imperfect institution of the present, and the great mixture and diversity of troops composing it, and also from the inattention of the officers, in whose appointments but too little regard has been had in choosing men of merit and honour.

The defenceless state of Pennsylvania, as communicated by the Committee of Safety to your honourable body, is a matter of much concern to his Excellency; which is not a little aggravated by the part too many seem ready to take in favour of the enemy. He trusts, however, the defection will be too inconsiderable to threaten any alarming consequences.

Before the receipt of your letter his Excellency had wrote to the commanding officer of the Virginia regiments at Trenton, directing him to march them forward toward General Greene's post, and there remain under his command till further orders, unless special instructions had been or should be given to the contrary by Congress or for their particular destination.

Agreeable to your request his Excellency has consulted with General Lee upon the best mode for employing the French gentlemen, and of making them serviceable. The result is, that they should be appointed to regiments by Congress, according to the ranks they have been pleased to give them, and with the same pay as is allowed other officers in such cases. Their want of our language is rather an objection, but it is hoped they will obtain a sufficient knowledge of it ere it be long to be of great service, and that in the interim their advice and assistance in directing of works may be of use where they may be stationed.

With great respect, I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

ROB. H. HARRISÓN.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read November 14: Referred to the Board of War.]

White-Plains, November 4, 1776.

SIR: This will be handed you by Messrs. Robillard L'Anfin and Bordes, two French gentlemen who, with others, lately arrived at the eastward from Cape François. They were introduced to his Excellency by the enclosed letter from James Bowdoin, Esq., which contains all the information his Excellency has of them, and which, by his direction, I transmit you. They have come, it seems, to offer their services to the States, and will make known their views and expectations to Congress.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

ROB. H. HARRISON.

H. GLEN TO ELISHA AVERY.

Schenectady, 4th November, 1776.

SIR: Last night about twelve o'clock I got an express from Johnstown, that there was no flour for the troops, and unless I sent flour immediately, the troops ordered up that way would come back. This I expected, as I mentioned to you yesterday. I immediately sent off an express to Nestickayouna, and luckily got nine wagons there, and some few in town, and Major Fonda sent me five, who have rid all night. I got off by two o'clock eighty barrels of flour, which makes me feel very happy by what I did, when I heard the troops were to come back for want of flour. There must be some mistake, and a grand one, of Major Fonda. He told me he had engaged to supply all the Militia as he knew of, this route, and no flour when only part of the Militia was to go up. Making of contracts is of dangerous nature: the making of them is the least, but the performing is the principal matter.

By the sudden alarms and demands for flour, makes the merchants rise with their flour. As the quantity I had engaged is within a trifle forwarded to Forts George and Edward, and the quantity sent this day for Johnstown, and as there is some considerable to be made yet in town, and some ready, the merchants don't choose to let me have it. Their general cry is, "I will have as much for my flour as the merchants get in Albany;" and indeed, they tell me for certain, you have given twenty-four shillings. You will be pleased to let me know this day, or to-morrow, what you give at Albany, and if I must give that, you will all along give what you give at Albany.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

H. GLEN.

To Elisha Avery, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM TICONDEROGA, DATED NOVEMBER 4, 1776.

Last Monday we were alarmed early in the morning by the appearance of a few of the enemy's boats crowded with soldiers. Every man kept his alarm post almost through the day, expecting action every moment. In the course of the day a number of boats landed troops at Three-Mile Point, half an hour's march from our alarm post; at the same time some of their boats came up the lake so near our batteries, that one boat received half a dozen shot from one of them. We since hear they lost one man by the shot. The next day there were some small manœuvres of the same sort. After a few hours they reëmbarked for Putnam's Creek and Crown-Point, but, from intelligence, we have expected them ever since. The troops here have been constantly supplied with three or four days' provision, which they kept cooked. And the night before last and yesterday, about eighteen hundred men, with cooked provisions, marched on a secret expedition, it appears since, to attack the enemy's advanced post at Putnam's Point; however, when they came there they found the place clear, all their tents struck, and no one to oppose them. They marched on to Crown-Point, found that likewise abandoned, one vessel only lying in sight, with live-stock on board. Wheth er they have hid themselves a little farther down the lake, and intend to come unexpected—whether this is their policy or not, time will determine. I rather think, as they had last week a fair view of our camp and strength, they wisely conclude the season is too far advanced to do any great things

CONNECTICUT COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, November 4th, 1776:

And Colonel Joshua Porter is hereby directed to deliver the same to said Elliott, and take the pay therefor and render his account.

Voted, To supply Messrs. Samuel Bird, Arthur Jarvis, John Lathrop, and Pierpont Edwards, with ten Cannon, four-pounders, and twelve Swivels.

Hartford, November 4, 1776.

A number of respectable gentlemen in Sharon, who are out of the Militia roll, viewing it of importance to be constantly prepared, and under the best advantages to withstand the present cruel and unrighteous designs of the British Parliament against America, have formed themselves into a body, chosen proper officers to command them, equipped themselves, and stand ready to go forth at a minute's warning, either against the foreign enemy, or to crush any internal machination, as occasion may require. It is wished the laudable example may be generally followed.

JOHN BARTLETT TO COMMODORE HOPKINS.

Newport, November 4, 1776.

SIR: The General Assembly of this State have ordered that the house at present made use of as an Hospital, be immediately cleared. I have at present under my care upwards of twenty sick men belonging to the fleet. I know not what to do with them without some further order. I should think it would be best to take up some suitable building to lodge them in, and furnish it with such utensils as should be thought necessary, and take care of them altogether. The present expense would be less than to lodge them at private houses, and many inconveniences be avoided. Whatever furniture is provided now, will be ready for any that may have the like occasion hereafter. However, I submit the whole affair to your superiour judgment, but beg your order in the present case. I should be proud to be employed by you in taking care of any of your fleet that may at any time or place be so unhappy as to require the assistance of a Surgeon or Physician.

I am, with due respect, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN BARTLETT.

To Admiral Hopkins.

Newport, November 4, 1776.

Last Monday Captain Shearman Clarke arrived at an eastern port, in fifteen days from the West-Indies, and informs that he saw a letter from France a day or two before he sailed, advising that it might be depended on that France would declare war against Great Britain very soon; that the Pomona, and two other British ships-of-war, were supposed to have been lost in the late hurricane in the West-Indies, they not being heard of since.

A few days past, arrived safe at an eastern port, a Continental ship from France, having on board three thousand stand of arms, three hundred barrels of powder, one hundred chests of tin, dry-goods, &c.; the Captain of which, says there were great preparations in France for war, and a declaration may be expected very soon. She had seven weeks passage. Some very agreeable intelligence by this vessel it is thought not advisable to make publick at present.

Last Thursday arrived in East Passage, a large Jamaica ship, loaded with about six hundred hogsheads of sugar, ninety puncheons of rum, some cotton, &c., taken by the Continental brig Cabot, Captain Hinman. She mounts sixteen guns, but we do not learn that she made any resistance. About the same time, Captain Job Pearce, in a private sloop-of-war, went up the West Passage with a fine large brig, loaded with fish, being his third prize safely arrived.

HENRY BROWNFIELD TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Boston, 4th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By a letter from Mr. Deputy Secretary Avery, I am acquainted with your Honours' appointment of me for one of the Committee or Board of War. I beg leave to express to your Honours the high sense I have of this mark of your confidence and regard, as also to assure you of my attachment to my country and earnest wishes to promote its interests by every means of which I am capable notwithstanding I find myself necessitated, on many accounts to decline the honour intended me by this appointment. The offices I hold in this town, together with my own private concerns, engross so great a portion of my time and attention as to be incompatible with the duties of that station. Therefore pray your Honours will dispense with my acceptance of an office which it is not in my power to execute.

I am, very respectfully, your Honours' most obedient, humble servant,

HENRY BROWNFIELD.

To the honourable Council and House for the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

VAN BIBBER AND HARRISON TO ROBERT TOWNSHEND, HOOE, & CO.

St. Eustatia, 5th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have invoice and bill of loading for one hundred and sixty half-barrels gunpowder—quantity fifty-three hundred pounds—on the proper account and risk of the State of Maryland.

Our Mr. Harrison is despatching Captain Conway from Martinique, with a very valuable cargo. I hope she has sailed, or about sailing, at this time.

We have just made a large purchase here of some woollens, muskets, and gun-flints, which we shall ship in the first of the Council's vessels that may arrive here.

We cautioned you and the Council some time past against sending your vessels to this island, thinking it the most dangerous and difficult to get into; which we are since sorry for, as it has proved less here than to any other island; and for the future advise you to send all your vessels here, for sundry reasons, viz: this is always the best market for our produce, particularly tobacco, which is now rising fast. All our purchases are made here, and freight paid to Martinico, for all the goods shipped from there, and most of the cargoes is sent from Martinique here to be sold, and very high freight paid on them; that on the whole this is the best place by far, and grows less difficult to transact here, as the Dutch have discovered that their laws when put in force must ruin their merchants. I am on the best terms with his Excellency the Governour, and have his word and promise relative to some particulars that give me great satisfaction, and puts much in our powers. I was not so happy some time ago, and very bad consequences to apprehend, on our new Governour's taking the command, but we are as well fixed with him now as we were with the former.

We are very largely indebted here on account of the State. Many sums now due, and many lately contracted, that will of course be due shortly. We are doing all in our power to serve our country, and hope they will not let our credit suffer.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient, and very humble servants,

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON.

To Messrs. Robert Townshend, Hooe, & Co.

B. JOHNSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Frederick-Town, November 5th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain James Mackall requested of me to inform you, the gentleman who was commissioned as First Lieutenant in his company is dead, that his Second Lieutenant has resigned, being a non-associator, and the men disapproving him. We therefore pray you will issue a commission to William Macke, as First Lieutenant, Joseph Hill, Second Lieutenant, and John Thomas, Ensign, and transmit them to me by some safe hand.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

B. JOHNSON.

To the honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

---

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 5th, 1776.

SIRS: The bearer, John Gibbons, has been in Baltimore this two years, and has behaved himself sober and well as far as I have heard, and is an industrious young man; is willing to take charge of the schooner Friendship, and I believe him fit for the task. He waits on you to know if it is agreeable, and for your further orders.

Please let me know by his return, how many barrels of beef I must have salted for you, and the particulars of the cargo you would have put on board the Friendship.

The Resolution has her flour on board, and her bread is ready. I shall put twenty hogsheads of tobacco, three hundred and fifty barrels of flour, and fill up with bread, on board the Resolution; and twenty hogsheads tobacco, and one-third bread, and two-thirds flour, for the Friendship, as by your former orders. If I receive no other, shall obey orders with Captain Martin.

From your humble servant,

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

P. S. The carpenters are not done with any of the vessels yet. I put the twenty hogsheads of tobacco on board the Ninety-Two this morning.

---

BENJAMIN NICHOLSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

November 5, 1776.

SIR: Mrs. Chamier has requested me to inquire from your Board whether 'tis practicable for her to get to her husband in New-York, and what steps she can take to accomplish her desire, and give satisfaction and security to her native country. All her relations are on our side, and many of them in the Army.

I am yours, &c.,

BENJ. NICHOLSON.

To Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., President of the Council of Safety, Annapolis.

---

GEORGE WELLS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 5th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Martin has been speaking to me about lengthening the brig Friendship, which I think I can do. Captain Martin will acquaint you with the time, &c. If you'll agree to have the brig done, I'd be obliged to you to send me per Captain Martin, £400.

Please to let me know by the return of the Captain, how the row-galley is to be masted, as I can't provide the spars until I have your orders.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your most humble servant,

GEORGE WELLS.

To the honourable the Council of Safety for the Province of Maryland, Annapolis.

---

CAPTAIN DEAMS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, 5th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: It is impossible for me to inlist a company of men, without you would first let me have the bounty money; therefore, I should be much obliged unto you if you would send me word at what time it would be suitable for me to come and receive it, so that I may not be disappointed.

My men that I have discharged, that I owe the ration money unto, think that I have cheated them out of it; therefore I should take it as a great favour if you would send me a line from under your own hands, to let them know to the contrary of it.

I should be glad you would send me word what I am to do with the men that I have inlisted since the others were discharged; whether I am to get them inspected directly, and put them into barracks, or how they are to be victualled. I likewise should be glad you would send me word what the non-commissioned officers and private soldiers are allowed per month. And in so doing, you will much oblige, yours to serve,

FREDERICK DEAMS.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, November 5th, 1776.

SIR: The Congress, apprehensive that Commissioners from some of the States for the purpose of appointing officers in the Army under the new establishment, may not have arrived at the camp, and at the same time fully and deeply impressed with the necessity of recruiting the Army to its full complement, have passed the enclosed resolves, authorizing you to grant warrants to such officers as you shall think proper, provided there are no Commissioners from the State to which such officers belong.

As it is of the greatest consequence that the Militia now in service should not leave the camp at this crisis, it is the desire of Congress that you will take such steps as you shall judge best for attaining this end; and that in particular you should for that purpose write to such of the States as have any Militia in the government of New-York, requesting their assistance in the business.

The commissions for such officers as you shall please to appoint by warrant, in consequence of the enclosed resolves, shall be forwarded as soon as possible.

The resolves herewith transmitted, I am to inform you, do not extend to the Maryland troops, as the Commissioners from that State are on their way to Head-Quarters to appoint officers, agreeably to the former resolves of Congress. You will, therefore, be pleased to suspend any appointment of officers for that State until you shall hear further from Congress, or until the arrival of those gentlemen shall make it unnecessary.

The enclosed commission of Brigadier-General you will please to have delivered to General Smallwood.

With every sentiment of esteem and respect, I am, sir, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, Pres't.

General Washington.

I send some commissions, and shall send others immediately. Mr. Harrison's letters to 3d instant are come to hand.

NEIL McLEAN TO ROBERT MORRIS.

New Jail, Philadelphia, November 5th, 1776.

SIR: I have for these several years past been in a bad state of health. I was last spring a twelvemonth seized with a dangerous pain in my breast, and, with a view to remove it, was advised to a change of air and climate. I went from Dutchess County, in New-York, where I had resided chiefly since 1769, to Rhode-Island, from thence by water to Boston, and from Boston to Nova-Scotia. I had directions from General Gage to assist in recruiting his Majesty's forces there, but found so many officers on that service in the Province, that I had nothing to do but attend on my health, which, by the latter end of the summer, was pretty well established. I then went to Boston, intending to return to Newport, but was refused a pass by General Howe, and obliged to go back again to Nova-Scotia. I found the air and climate of that country so agreeable to my constitution, that I determined to establish a settlement there. I had several years since made a purchase of a small seigniory in Canada, and having nothing to do last winter, went across the country to visit it, and to settle other affairs that I have been concerned in, in that Province, since the years 1764 or 1765. I just arrived there when I was made prisoner by a party of the American Army, and carried before their General, who disgorged at me the vilest expressions of scurrility and abuse, and because I had not patience to bear such treatment with becoming submission, ordered me to be put in irons and to be carried in that manner to Albany. I was sent from Albany to York, and from thence to this place. Have been confined here since the middle of last June; most of the time in a close room, without bed or bed-clothes, but what the charity of a fellow-prisoner furnished me with, and have not hitherto been admitted to inquire why I undergo such ignominious treatment, or to offer a single syllable in my own defence. I gave a representation of my case last summer, directed to the Congress, to Doctor Rush, at his own desire, but found no favourable effect from his application, though I offered to affirm upon oath or honour the truth of every word I had declared.

It has been reported here that I am an officer in his Majesty's Royal Emigrants. This I cannot avow or deny, as I never had any certain notification of any such appointment. But if you will promise me leave to return to Canada on my parole of honour, and that I shall find it convenient to accept of such a commission, I shall engage to get an officer of equal rank in change for me; but if I am still on half-pay and incapable of service, the least regard to honour or justice will be a sufficient motive to discharge me.

I have the honour to be, sir, very respectfully, your most obedient humble servant,

NEIL McLEAN.

To Robert Morris, Esq.

ON THE PRESENT STATE OF AFFAIRS IN AMERICA.

It is the misfortune of America in her great and virtuous struggle, to have too many internal enemies; which has provoked her real friends to advance many extravagant measures, as well as that of running into many acts of outrage, dangerous to individuals as well as subversive of the true happiness and prosperity of these United States. And now that we have the most important business to do that ever came before any nation, we seem most unfit to do it. The true friends of America have to defend their country by arms against the hostile force of the most powerful State in Europe, and at the same time to oppose the political machinations of its internal enemies, who are endeavouring at this important crisis to throw every thing into confusion, by impeding and distracting our civil polity. Such heats and animosities have thus arisen, that the attention of too many is taken off from the general cause, and aiming only (or chiefly) at the political destruction of each other. 'Tis time that this disposition should cease, and both Whigs and Tories unite in adopting the best measures for the security, peace, and happiness of America. These United States, notwithstanding all that can be said of, or done by, the power of Great Britain, must and will support their independence. What expectations, then, have either Whigs or Tories but from the happiest formation of the government, and governments, of these States? Is it not the interest of all, then, that this should be completed in the best manner to promote their common happiness? In this case all Americans should be governed by the same motive. But, for a moment, suppose we should fail in our opposition to Great Britain; should we not then share one common lot? Yes, I say, with a very few exceptions, both Whigs and Tories would lay at the feet of a most merciless and unrelenting tyrant, who has already rejected more humble and supplicating petitions than any other ever received from the most loyal subjects. What, then, can America expect after being subdued, but to be ruled with a rod of iron, which will fall equally on all?

From what has been said, it appears the political divisions that now exist between Whigs and Tories are equally dangerous to both, and can have no other effect than to prolong the war, or perhaps, if strained too far, may unsheath the sword of civil discord, which may complete what the common enemy has begun, by laying waste this country, and leave it not worth even the tyrant's acceptance. This or independence must certainly take place, as the spirit of liberty now reigning in America can never bow down at the feet of tyranny, but will sooner sacrifice the blood of all her sons. Let all consider these consequences, and avoid the evil.

But to return. The important business that I mean the Americans are now unfitted for by their political divisions, is that of legislation or the framing and establishing new governments. This is a work that requires the utmost wisdom of human nature, and those who perform it ought to be divested of every kind of prejudice, and governed solely by the wisdom and feelings of humanity. Every person concerned ought to view the whole subjects of the State (without respect to Whig or Tory) as his own children, and then conduct himself as a humane father would do in such case to make his posterity happy. But alas, a contrary spirit has greatly injured these States. Where the Whigs have prevailed, they have run into extravagant refinements, on republican principles; and where the Tories have prevailed, the spirit of monarchy has made large and dangerous strides; neither fitted to the genius and authority of the people. It should be constantly in mind that the government of these States are founded on the authority of the people only; and therefore, that there should be sufficient power left in their hands always to prevent the delegated power from becoming dangerous to their liberty. At the same time particular attention ought to be paid to the genius, manners, and customs of the people, as it is well known that innovations upon these things have often been fatal. If I may be permitted, then, to deliver my opinion of the genius of the Americans, I shall say it is of a monarchical spirit; this is natural from the government they have ever lived under. It is therefore impossible to found a simple Republick in America. Another reason that operates very strongly against such a government is the great distinction of persons, and difference in their estates or property, which cooperates strongly with the genius of the people in favour of monarchy. For these reasons I am induced to think that a mixed government is the best that can be adopted in the respective Colonies; and most of them have adopted such; but in some of them too much power is delegated from the people. One only has attempted to establish a simple Republick on the strictest principles, and this has met with the disapprobation of all parties, which is a further proof of the disposition of the people in favour of a mixed government.

And of mixed governments, the people will naturally be inclined to that which is most like what they have always been used to, viz: a supreme executive magistrate (with a necessary check) and two orders in the body of legislation. But these orders now are to derive their authority from the people only, and in a different manner from what has been usual; it therefore requires the utmost wisdom of the legislature which is to constitute them, so to balance their powers as effectually to secure the liberty and happiness of the people forever, the sole end and purpose of their appointment.

Several of the Colonies have adopted this order, by the name of Governour, Legislative Council, and House of Assembly. I would propose, then, (and only propose, as this is hallowed ground on which I tread,) that the House of Assembly should always consist of at least twice the number of members that is in the Legislative Council; that the House of Assembly should be elected annually by the people; and that after the first choice one third of the Council shall go out annually, and as many be elected annually by the people to serve in their stead; that the Governour or Chief Magistrate in every Colony should be appointed by the Continental Congress, to continue three years, behaving well; that he should have a Privy Council; that such Privy Council should consist of that one third of the Legislative Council which is to go out as aforesaid, for the year immediately preceding the time they are to go out of office: this will make a new Privy Council every year; that the Governour should be President of the Legislative Council, with only a casting voice; that the Legislative Council and House of Assembly should have the sole powers of legislation; that the Governour and Legislative Council should be the last Court of Appeals in law and equity; that all judicial officers* in the civil department, and general officers in the Army and Navy, should be appointed by joint ballot of both Houses, subject to the Governour's negative, and to continue during good behaviour; that all ministerial officers† in the civil department, and all inferiour officers in the military, should be appointed by the Governour and Privy Council, to continue seven years, if they behave well. These grand outlines being observed, it appears to me a happy government might be formed in each State; and Congress having the appointment of a Governour or Chief Magistrate in each, would greatly promote the bond of union so ardently wished for by many who now think a contrary spirit too much prevails in many of the Colonies.

These few observations are submitted, with the greatest diffidence, to the judgment of the publick, by a warm friend to the American cause, though but a FARMER.

Philadelphia, November 5, 1776.

JAMES LOVELL TO CAPTAIN PROCTER.

Jerseys, November 5th, 1776.

SIR: I left Captain Francis Procter, your brother, on board the prison-ship Glascow, in New-York harbour, the 3d of this month. He is in good health, has some encouragement of being speedily exchanged, but hopes his friends will exert themselves to bring about that desirable event, as much as if he had not received any hints about it, for he fears those hints are only to amuse him. He has once wrote, and he now earnestly wishes that proof may be sent to General Washington of his having had a regular discharge from the Irish Artillery, and consequently that he is not a deserter, as is sometimes thrown in his teeth. I have been his fellow-prisoner for months at Halifax, where he has fared hardly, but greatly better than when under the control of Captain Montague, who seemed to aim at his life.

I will be more particular by another opportunity, if I catch one in my hurry. Please to inform the friends of his Corporal, Jerry Low, of Fredericksburg, that Lows is with Captain Procter, in health. He served to a saddler in Philadelphia, and inlisted there.

I am your friend, though unknown,

JAMES LOVELL.

To Captain Thomas Procter or Mr. John Handerson.

GENERAL MERCER TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Perth-Amboy, 5th November, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of 31st October, was delivered by an officer of the German battalion. As to the expediency of recruiting on the new establishment, the men now on duty are left in a great measure by the honourable Board of War to be determined by me. I am glad there are none of the Germans belonging to the Flying-Camp under my command at present. All the Pennsylvanians who are to serve until the 1st of January next, are at Fort Lee, under General Greene; to him I shall refer the consideration of this affair; but am of opinion that until he is reinforced by the Virginia troops, said to be on the way from Philadelphia, the circumstances of his post will not admit of his dismissing from duty there any soldiers of the Flying-Camp.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To Richard Peters, Esq., Secretary to the Board of War, Philadelphia.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GENERAL GREENE.

White-Plains, November 5th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 30th ultimo, has been received by his Excellency, and I have it in charge to inform you that the holding or not holding the grounds between King's Bridge and the lower lines depends upon so many circumstances that it is impossible for him to determine the point. He submits it entirely to your discretion and such judgment as you will be enabled to form from the enemy's movements and the whole complexion of things. He says you know the original design was to garrison the works and preserve the lower lines as long as they could be kept, that the communication across the river might be open to us, at the same time that the enemy should be prevented from having a passage up and down the river for their ships. The other parts of your letter have been answered on former occasions.

I am, &c.

R. H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Greene.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILLIPS'S MANOR, DATED NOVEMBER 5, 1776.

Yesterday deserted to our camp two of Major Robert Rodgers's Rangers; several Grenadiers were taken the same evening; have had one Hessian deserter. It is reported his Excellency has just received particulars of the White-Plain battle; in which, it seems, the enemy had killed four hundred and eighty, including two Colonels, three Captains, and several subalterns; while our missing are only eighty.

GENERAL COURT MARTIAL.

At a General Court-Martial held at Philipsborough, November 5, 1776:

Lieutenant-Colonel Nathan Tyler, President.

Members: Major Clap, Captain Cragin, Captain Farrar, Captain White, Captain Newell, Captain Lamb, Major Rand, Captain Black, Captain Rice, Captain Page, Captain Goss, Captain Edgell:

For the trial of George Coombs, Assistant Commissary, in a charge of embezzling the Continental stores.

The prisoner being called, and the charge against him read, plead Not guilty, and offered himself for trial.

The Court then adjourned to next day morning, nine o'clock.

Wednesday morning, nine o'clock.—The Court being met according to adjournment, proceeded to the further trial of the prisoner.

The witnesses being sworn, made oath as follows, viz:

Reuben Taft testifies and says, that on the 2d of November instant, he saw nine barrels, which he took to be flour, hid under some buckwheat straw; that it was on fire, with a quantity of buckwheat, before it came to his knowledge, and that it was then impossible to secure it from the flames; and that the said Combs informed him that it belonged to the publick stores; that he hid it there in order to secure it from the enemy.

Levi Rawson testifies and says, that on the 2d of November instant, he saw nine barrels, which he took to be flour, under a quantity of buckwheat straw; that he heard Reuben Taft inquire of said Combs how that flour came there; that Combs answered he put it there, and did it to secure it from the enemy.

George Hopson testifies and says, that the said Combs sent for him in the evening of the 1st day of November instant, and asked him what he should do with the stores in his charge, that he was unwilling the enemy should have them; they concluded it best to convey the stores farther up the hill to have them more secure; and that he assisted said Combs in conveying seven barrels of flour and two barrels of pork under a quantity of buckwheat straw, about seven or eight o'clock in the evening of the said 1st of November instant.

Ezekiel Woodbury testifies and says, that he was on sentry at said Combs's store, in the evening of the said 1st of November, and saw three loads of stores carried off upon an old sleigh from thence by said Combs, at which time he questioned him for what he was carrying away said stores; he first answered it was none of his business; but on being further questioned, said Combs answered he was doing it to secure them; that he expected the enemy would come, and that it was better to secure part than have all lost; and that if stores were found about his house he should fare the worse by the enemy should they come.

The Court then adjourned to Friday morning, nine o'clock.

Friday morning, nine o'clock.—The Court being met according to adjournment, proceeded to the further trial of said Combs; and the further evidence sworn gave in as follows, viz:

William Paulding, Commissary, testifies and says, that on the 1st of November instant, he informed Mr. Combs that he expected the regiments at Tarrytown would retreat soon, and ordered him to take the best care he could of the stores in his charge; and as he saw no probability of procuring teams, ordered him to secrete and secure in the best manner he could the residue of the stores that remained in his hands, and that he approved of his putting the stores in the manner he did.

*Such as Judges, Justices, &c. †Such as Secretary, Clerks, &c.

The question being put, whether George Combs, the prisoner, be guilty of embezzling the publick stores agreeable to the charge against him or not, the Court unanimously determined not guilty.

NATHAN TYLER, President.

A true sentence of procedure of the Court-Martial:

BRIGADIER DANIELSON TO THE COMMITTEE OF THE ASSEMBLY OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Near Head-Quarters, North-Castle, November 5th, 1776.

We received yours dated October 30th, 1776, by Mr. John Fadon, wherein you desire to be informed of the true situation and condition of our Army. We shall do ourselves the pleasure to gratify you as far as possible, and you may be assured that we have not been idle spectators the short time we have been in or near the camp.

The Continental Army are fronted to the west, extending their line from north to south, near Connecticut bounds, about the extent of four miles, Lord Stirling's division on the right and General Heath's on the left. The whole encamped on a ridge of hills, some of them almost inaccessible in front, all finely covered with woods. Soldiers and officers in high spirits, loath to give an inch to their enemies. Not more sick than may be expected in so numerous an Army. The British Army are extended in like manner on another range of hills, near two miles distant, in open view. The apparent reason of our retreat so far and so often, is this: the enemy are labouring to out-flank us, and pass into the country, if by any means they might cut off our supplies. The General, divinely inspired, has been apprised of their design, and to avoid an action at this critical state of our Army, has been playing back to give himself more room between the Sound and the North River. Small skirmishes happen, in which we have the better, and kill three to one.

We are in doubt with respect to our success in continuing our Militia for the time proposed. If they will not be prevailed upon, the General may reasonably expect to have their place supplied. His Excellency was disgusted at our Assembly's augmenting the soldiers' wages, which has occasioned our sending Mr. Partridge to Congress, as we wrote the Assembly the last post, and by the earnest request of the General are endeavouring to put the encouragement of our Assembly for continuing the Militia to first day of February next into another form, that it may not stand as an addition to their monthly pay. We shall soon know our fate on that account, and when known shall immediately inform.

We are fully satisfied with the situation and conduct of the Army. Most certain there is nothing to surprise a reasonable inquirer if he was on the spot. Impossible is it that the enemy should force our front in their present situation, and we fear never will be so infatuated as to attempt it, however you may hear to the contrary, but must tread their surly steps back ere long. High living for soldiers, good flour, beef, and pork in plenty, with grog to wash it down.

Thus far this night, and will wait on the General in the morning, to satisfy your second inquiry.

This morning, the 6th of November, waited on his Excellency, and after continuing long for an answer, (it being General Council,) the General desired us to continue our Militia in service if possible to 1st of March, for that he should expect four thousand of them to be in service to that time. Accordingly have presumed to issue our invitation to each battalion of recruits from our State, in the name of the Assembly of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, to continue their service to the first day of March next. Some will tarry, no doubt, and as soon as possible shall inform the Assembly what number. And if one half the aforesaid number can be prevailed upon to continue, the saving must be considerable.

This morning were informed that the British troops had lately quitted their post, and marched from the White-Plain toward New-York.

We are in good health—great fatigue—a job for time, and, gentlemen, your most obedient very humble servant,

By order of the Committee:

TIM. DANIELSON, Ch'n.

The Committee of the Assembly of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

GEN. SCOTT TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Camp on the Heights, near White-Plains, November 5th, 1776.

SIR: I was honoured this morning with the receipt of yours of the 2d instant. General Clinton and myself conferred on its contents. He thinks that his brigade will not, except in a very few instances, want clothing. Mine certainly will not, as they have but twenty-five days more to serve. I must earnestly recommend it to the Committee of Safety to expedite the commissions before my brigade is discharged, that there may be a chance of recruiting them, or some of them, on the new establishment.

Nothing new to communicate, but that this moment I have received information that there is a great movement and rumbling of carriages in the enemy's Army; that they have withdrawn their advanced guards, and quitted one of their encampments nearest to us. It is conjectured they are moving westward, but nothing certain can be concluded, on account of the fogginess of the weather, until the return of the scouts which General Clinton and myself have sent out. I shall keep this unsealed, with intent that if the rider should not set off before we can make discoveries, I may impart them to you. A few cannon this moment heard from a great distance.

Major Fish would be fond of accepting a majority on the new establishment. I can honestly recommend him as well qualified for that rank. This I am sure of—there is not a better Brigade-Major in the Army. Indeed I have not seen one who can do the duties of the grand parade so well as he, except Major Henley, and I think he does not exceed him. In other departments of his present appointment he gives me great satisfaction.

I am, sir, with great respect, yours and the honourable Committee's most obedient servant,

JNO. MORIN SCOTT.

To the honourable the President or Vice-President, &c., &c.

COLONEL MALCOM TO JOHN MCKESSON.

Camp White-Plains, November 5, 1776, }
On a drumhead in the woods. }

DEAR SIR: As I apprehend the Convention will soon be upon the business of appointments for the new Army, I cannot in justice either to the country or the following worthy men, whose names I mention, omit recommending them in the strongest manner, viz: Captain Edward Meeks, Lieutenants James Blake, Prentice Bowen, Aspinwall Cornwall, and John M. Toght, and Mr. John Sanford, my Adjutant. I have had such repeated proofs of their qualifications as officers, that with the utmost freedom I can solicit companies for each of them. They are brave, active, sober, and well-disciplined, and I am sure General Scott will join very heartily in my solicitation for them. They are willing to serve in the capacity of Captains.

Since writing the above, I find the enemy have left their camp. The fog is fast clearing away, and I have sent out fifty men from my regiment to take possession of the Court-House, and the Rangers to reconnoitre to the eastward, and I shall detain Mr. Mitchell at my post (which is a mile advanced from our Army, and for eight days within musket shot of the enemy's advanced post) until I can send more certain intelligence. Our conjectures are various—a countryman just in says they are gone to York; if so, we shall have a chase.

It is now past three o'clock. The enemy are moved off to our right, i. e. to the heights northwest of the Court-House. I can make no farther discoveries in this quarter, but that I am delivered from troublesome neighbours, and have a prospect of sleep to-night. I therefore despatch Mr. Mitchell to General Scott, who, perhaps, will have some intelligence.

I have only to add that I always am, with esteem, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

W. Malcom.

To John McKesson, Esq., Fishkill.

I would write you oftener, but really have not time, being on an out-post with my regiment and the Rangers, and very critically situated.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

King's Ferry, November 5, 1776.

Dear Sir: Colonel Harrison wrote me you were in great want of flour. 'Tis attended with very great difficulty to bring it up from Fort Lee by land. Wagons can't be got to transport a sufficient supply for your Army. At Dobbs's Ferry there are eight or nine hundred barrels, brought from the other side. I have directed Colonel Tupper to load a number of the pettiaugers and flat-bottom boats and send them up to Peekskill. Our troops are so arranged along shore, I am in hopes to keep a passage open for this mode of conveyance. If it can be done it will save an amazing expense.

I found every thing in this place in the utmost confusion—the wagons and flour detained for want of boats and assistance to transport them over. I shall send Captain Pond hither as soon as I get back, to take charge of the publick stores here, and to transport the things across. Colonel Tupper is to convoy the pettiaugers by the ships, and if the barges are manned the boats are to be run on shore, and Major Clark, who commands a party opposite the ships, is to protect them.

I shall attempt to transport publick stores from Burdett's Ferry, if the enemy make no new disposition. The utmost care shall be taken that nothing falls into the enemy's hands.

I am informed by Colonel Harrison that your Excellency approves of the plan for forming the magazines. I have directed the Commissaries of the department to lay in the provisions as fast as possible; and the Quartermaster-General is exerting himself to lay in provender.

Many of our people have got into huts. The tents are sent forward as fast as the people get their huts complete.

Should this ferry be wanted through the winter, the landing must be altered. I can, by altering the road, shorten the distance two miles—one by land the other by water. Where it now is, it freezes up very soon; where I propose it, it is open all winter.

I am now in the State of New-York, and am informed by Colonel Hawkes Hoy, that the Militia which he commands refuses to do duty. They say that General Howe has promised them peace, liberty, and safety; and that is all they want. What is to be done with them? This spirit and temper should be checked in its infancy. I purpose to send the Colonel about fifty men; and have directed the Colonel to acquaint them if they refuse to do duty agreeable to the orders of the State, that I will send up a regiment here, and march them to Fort Lee, to do duty there. I beg your Excellency's further advice.

I am informed the Virginia regiments are coming on. I wish I could form a party sufficiently strong to make a little diversion in the rear of the enemy, by the way of King's Bridge. The Hessians have relaid the bridges, and been across; but yesterday morning I believe they all went back again. What does your Excellency think of such a manœuvre? Is it practicable—has it the appearance of being successful if attempted and well conducted?

We have a flying report that General Gates has defeated Burgoyne. We also hear that a party of Hessians had deserted over to us. I wish to know the truth of both reports.

All things were quiet at Fort Lee and York Island yesterday, at noon.

The people seem to be much alarmed at Philadelphia from the success of the enemy. The country is greatly alarmed at having their grain and hay burnt, yet I believe it will answer a most valuable purpose. I wish it had been earlier agreed upon.

I am informed Hugh Gaine, the printer, is gone into New-York. I have ordered all the boats' stores from Burdett's Ferry to Hobuck, and from Powley's Hook to Bergen Point, to stop the communication. There is a vile generation here as well as with you. The Committee from Philadelphia for inquiring into the state of the Army, complains that inlisting orders are not given out. Please to let me know your pleasure.

I am, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's obedient servant,

N. Greene.

To his Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters.

GERARD BANCKER TO WILLIAM DUER.

Fishkill, November 5, 1776.

Sir: Pursuant to your order of last Friday, I have been to Peekskill, in company with Mr. Campbell, to view the ground on which he has begun to erect barracks. It is on a level, dry spot, with a considerable rising on the east side of it. Will contain barracks for about seven or eight hundred men. Mr. Campbell informs me there are good springs in its vicinity. Fuel is not very handy to it. We found the frames up and partly boarded, for ten rooms. They are placed in a line facing nearly west, without windows on the east side.

We sought for some more suitable place north of Mr. Robinson's mills, (which are about two miles north of the barracks now building,) and north of the entrance into the Highlands, but could find no place near said entrance where connected barracks can be built sufficient to contain one thousand men. The most suitable place, I think, will be just after ascending the mountain, where there is a considerable quantity of cleared land, on both sides of the road. But the descent towards the road is great from each side. Water and fuel are convenient here; and this cleared land is above the spot where I think it probable works of defence will be thrown up. About a quarter of a mile below this, and southeasterly from the bridge at Robinson's mills, is a stubble-field, that may contain barracks for one thousand men; has a creek west of, and adjoining it; a good spring in the road, which passes the east side of it, and fuel very handy on a mountain across the road, east of it. The objections to this place may be, that it is a quarter of a mile below the pass to be defended, and may, in a rainy season, be too wet; at present it is very dry.

When I returned to the Fishkill, instead of ascending the mountain a little north of Robinson's mills, I came up the valley, and found it a continued cleared meadow, nearly five miles up its mean breadth, about a quarter of a mile; it terminates in a wood and broken hills, through which, for a considerable distance, there is only a foot-path.

I am, with great respect, sir, your very humble servant,

Gerard Bancker.

COMFORT SANDS TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fishkill, 5th November, 1776.

Sir: On the 18th day of January last, the Committee of Safety of this State appointed Mr. Garret Roorback Barrackmaster of New-York, but his commission does not mention what pay or rations he is to receive. I beg your direction respecting this matter.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

Comfort Sands.

To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

WARRANT TO TAKE WILLIAM MURRAY AND CORNELIUS THORP.

Orange County:

You are hereby authorized to take the bodies of William Murry and Cornelius Thorp, so called, and bring them forthwith to the house of Mr. John Brewster, to answer before the Precinct Committee of a charge against them for altering the Continental currency. And if aid or assistance be needful, you are likewise authorized hereby to call in for that purpose such part of the Militia as may be necessary.

Nath'l Satterly,
Arch'ld Little.

To Joshua Miller, to execute this order.

COMFORT SANDS TO PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT.

Fishkill, the 5th November, 1776.

SIR: Captain Belknap, one of the Captains of the Rangers ordered to be raised in Ulster County, has applied for the pay, subsistence, and half-bounty, of his company. The former I have settled; the latter, want your directions about. It appears there has been money sent to the different County Committees for the one-half bounty; but as the company is not more than one half full, there must be money yet remaining in the hands of the Committee which I think it would be best to draw out, and settle their bounty there; for while money is continually advanced to different Committees and persons, it will be impossible for me ever to get the publick accounts settled.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

COMFORT SANDS.

To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., President of the Convention of New-York.

---

JOHANNES SLEGHT TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Kingston, 5th November, 1776.

SIR: The necessitous cries and lamentations of the good people of this and the neighbouring townships, for the want of salt, is the occasion of my troubling the honourable Convention with these few lines. I am credibly informed that Albany and Dutchess have a considerable quantity of this necessary article in some of their stores, to supply the wants of their inhabitants, but I don't know of a single bushel to be had in our end of this County, although there are a great number who have not so much to salt a pound of butter. I am, therefore, desired to acquaint your honourable House of this, and beg the favour of you to grant us some relief if possible.

I am, gentlemen, in behalf of a number of the inhabitants of this and the neighbouring townships, your obedient and most humble servant,

JOHANNES SLEIGHT.

To the President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

---

JAMES YANCEY TO THE COMMITTEE OF BENNINGTON.

Mount Independence, 5th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 24th October, per Mr. Crain, I received, and observed the contents. General Gates, on my request, discharged the number of men agreeable to your desire, for the purpose of forwarding provisions. I shall apply for assistance in mending the roads; doubt not it may be completed.

Your favour of the 28th same month, was handed me yesterday. I have sent men to Skeensborough to receive your flour, give receipts, and forward it to me. You will please to direct all the flour to be delivered to Messrs. Gore and Crain, assistants to me, they being appointed for that purpose.

I have sent you, by Mr. Clark, one thousand dollars, and as soon as can be, will wait on you with more cash. Would have sent you more at this time, but wait for a supply from the Paymaster. My business being in some confusion, owing to hurry, prevented my being with you before this. I hope we may be enabled to establish a further correspondence with your people. The particular attention you pay for the welfare of your country demands its most cordial thanks for the same. General Gates directs to return you his sincere thanks for your good attention to the supply of the Army.

I have communicated your letter to Congress, as two of the members were with me since your first letter. Should be glad to know what quantity of flour you can be able to supply between this and the spring. As I may make provision for establishing a magazine there, your answer upon this head should be glad to receive as soon as possible. It will suit me best to see you; which shall endeavour to do as soon as I can get my hurry of business a little over.

I am, gentlemen, with all the sincerity of a candid heart, your obliged friend and most humble servant,

JAS. YANCEY.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety and Supplies for the town of Bennington.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Tyonderoga, 5 November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Within this hour I received your favour of the 2d instant, from Albany. The bearer will acquaint you with the particulars of the enemy's retreat from Crown Point. Sir John Johnson escaped with them. His Indians absolutely refused General Carleton to stay any longer up the lake, so you may sleep at ease respecting the Mohawk river. Let the Tory inhabitants of Tryon County know that I will send Captain Whitcombe and one hundred men to whip them into obedience the moment they are refractory. I impatiently wait the confirmation of the good news you sent me of the action near the White-Plains. Pray forward the nails, the clothing, the flour, &c., &c., as fast as you can by both communications.

I am, dear General, your affectionate, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To Major-General Schuyler.

---

ISAAC PIERCE TO CAPTAIN GEERS.

Head-Quarters, Ticonderoga, November 5, 1776.

SIR: It is General Gates's orders that you immediately repair with the bearer, Lieutenant Thurber, to Ticonderoga, bringing with you all the money you had in your possession belonging to Colonel Bedel's regiment. Herein fail not at your peril.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

ISAAC PEIRCE, Aid-de-Camp.

To Captain Shubael Geers, at Number Four.

P. S. Such goods in your possession belonging to the regiment must immediately be delivered to the Chairman of the Committee of Safety at Number Four, who will forward them to this camp as soon as the roads will permit. I. P.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, 5th November, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to send your Excellency a copy of my letter by the bearer, Major Stuart, to the President of the Congress.

General Schuyler has this morning informed me of the rumour of an action near the White-Plains. I hope soon to felicitate your Excellency upon having concluded your campaign in the most brilliant and triumphant manner.

I am, sir, your Excellency's most obliged and most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

GENERAL GATES TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 15th.]

Ticonderoga, November 5th, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to congratulate the Congress upon the retreat of Lieutenant-General Sir Guy Carleton, with the fleet and army under his command, from Crown Point. Saturday last, the works being put into the best order, the boom and bridge of communication finished, and every necessary preparative for defence made, I determined to send a detachment down each side of the lake, to beat up the enemy's quarters at their advanced post on Putnam's Point and the opposite shore. About eight at night, the detachment, under the command of Major Delap, proceeded down the east side of the lake, and the other, under Colonel Connor, down the west side. Sunday morning, Major Delap, with his detachment, took possession of Putnam's Point, which the enemy had just abandoned, and immediately detached a subaltern with a small party to reconnoitre Crown Point. The officer having returned, reported that he saw the enemy embark, a number of their vessels under sail, and the whole preparing to get under way. Colonel Connor, on taking possession of the post opposite to Putnam's Point, found that likewise abandoned. Yesterday, an officer and a party whom I sent to Crown Point returned, and reported he had been at Crown Point, with the inhabitants there; that the enemy were all gone from that post, and the inhabitants would come this day to Ticonderoga, to make their submission, and beg the protection of the United States.

I cannot help observing here, that the removal of our Army from Crown Point to Ticonderoga was a most fortunate and salutary measure; for had it continued at Crown Point after the disaster that befell our fleet, the enemy might have cut off all our resources, by stationing their fleet above the point. Desperate must then have been the situation of our Army.

I have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

His Excellency John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. This will be delivered to your Excellency by my first Aid-de-Camp, Major Stuart, a deserving officer.

LIST OF THE WANTS OF THE NORTHERN ARMY.

Twenty-five hundred officers and soldiers for the winter garrison of Tyonderoga and Mount Independence.

Twenty-five hundred officers and soldiers to be cantoned upon the Mohock and Hudson's rivers, Albany therein included.

Two large floating batteries to be prepared to be built, one to cover the boom, the other, the bridge of communication, and to rake the bay on the south side of Tyonderoga.

Twenty good iron eighteen-pounders, to be sent from Solisbury works as soon as the snow will answer to transport them.

Ten brass 6-inch howitzers, with shells and a proper attirail.

A plan of a good fort upon Mount Independence, to be fixed upon and approved.

As there is an excellent bridge built over Otter Creek, at Rutland, and a good road cut from Mount Independence, abundant supplies might, in the winter, be thrown in from the Eastern governments by that road.

The recruiting the new establishment to be pushed with vigour, when the money wanted and voted the 21st October arrives.

The General Hospital for the future to be upon Mount Independence, except in case of contagious diseases; then, that at Fort George to be used.

A quantity of vegetables and anti-scorbutics should be sent to Tyonderoga as soon as possible, as the scurvy is apt to be fatal there in the spring of the year without such remedies.

GENERAL ORDERS—NORTHERN ARMY.

Head-Quarters, October 14, 1776.

(Parole, Waterbury.) (Countersign, Wigglesworth.)

Lieutenant Peter Hughes, of the First Battalion of Pennsylvanians, is appointed Aid-de-Camp to Major-General Gates, during the absence of Major Walter Stewart.

As every regiment and corps are well acquainted with their alarm posts, the General expects the troops will be alert in marching to support the works they are severally intended to defend. He has the utmost dependence upon the bravery and fidelity of the whole Army, and believes when called to action they will show themselves worthy of the noble cause they are engaged to defend. He returns his thanks to General Arnold, and the officers, seamen, and marines of the fleet for the gallant defence they made against the great superiority of the enemy's force. Such magnanimous behaviour will establish the fame of the American arms throughout the globe.

Captain-Lieutenant Gibbs Jones is to take the command of the artillery upon the side of Mount Independence.

Officer of the day for Ticonderoga to-morrow, Colonel Wheelock. Brigade-Major, Ryan.

Officer of the day for Mount Independence, Colonel Wyngate. Brigade-Major, First Brigade.

Head-Quarters, October 15, 1776.

(Parole, Washington.) (Countersign, ——.)

As there are not intrenching tools sufficient to employ the whole of the men off duty, the General expects that the commanding officers of regiments will order one third of their men off duty to be paraded at seven o'clock every morning for fatigue, who are to be kept constantly at work until ten in the forenoon; one third more to relieve the first party at ten, who are to work till one in the afternoon; the other third to relieve the second party at one, and work till five in the evening. This order to be constantly and regularly obeyed until countermanded.

The General is very unhappy to see the want of that spirit, alertness, and industry so necessary for the immediate completion of the forts and redoubts, prevail so shamefully in this Army. The fleet have acted a noble part. Let it not be said hereafter that the cause of all America was injured by the supineness of the Northern Army.

Captain-Lieutenant Jones, of the Artillery, will return to the side of Ticonderoga, and Major Biggalow, being recovered of his indisposition, will resume the command of the Artillery upon Mount Independence.

As the enemy can have no reasonable hope of defeating this Army unless the troops posted in the redoubts and the advanced guards suffer themselves to be surprised, the General strongly recommends it to all officers and soldiers to exert their utmost vigilance whilst upon duty, never omitting the smallest attention to every approach of an enemy, and constantly giving the most vigorous opposition to all their attempts.

(Parole, Glover.) (Countersign, Reed.)

All the troops off duty to be under arms at one o'clock at their respective alarm posts, when, upon a signal given by the firing a cannon from the northeast angle of the covert way of the old fort, the whole will give three cheers for the glorious success with which it has pleased Providence to bless the arms of the United States on the 18th instant, in defeating the Army of the enemy near East-Chester.

As the enemy's attack will most probably be rash and sudden, the General earnestly recommends to every commanding officer of a regiment, party, post, or detachment, to be deliberate and cool in suffering his men to fire, never allowing them to throw away their shot in a random, unsoldierlike manner. One close, well-directed fire, at the distance of eight or ten rods, will do more towards defeating the enemy than all the scattered, random shot, fired in a whole day. The commanding officers of Artillery will give proper directions in this respect to all under his command. The good effects of a due observance of this order will, with the favour of Heaven, secure the victory.

MEETING OF COMMITTEE OF CUMBERLAND COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

The 5th of November, 1776.

At a meeting of the Committee for the County of Cumberland, the Committee appointed by this body to take under consideration the expediency of the letter sent from this body to the Convention for the State of New-York, touching being laid to some other State, &c., &c., reported, That whereas the Committee of the County of Cumberland having received a handbill from the Convention of the State of New-York, desiring this Committee to withdraw a letter sent to them from this body, bearing date 21st June last, we, the Committee as aforesaid, having taken the same under consideration, report, that said letter ought to be withdrawn, and that we, notwithstanding, ought to enjoy all the privileges that any County in this State do enjoy, and that we hold it our right to present the honourable the Provincial Congress of this State a petition and remonstrance, setting forth those grievances that are the cause of uneasiness that subsists among us, for their wise consideration and redress; and if, on proper deliberation, it may be thought proper a separation should be most conducive to the peace and happiness of this country, we do not preclude ourselves the privilege of presenting our petition to the honourable the Continental Congress for their wise determination. We still mean to pay all due deference to the State of New-York, and to pay our proportion of the necessary charge of the State.

Voted, To accept the above Report, and that a copy be sent to the honourable Convention for the State of New-York.

Signed by the Chairman and attested by the Clerk.

JAMES CLAY,
Chairman of the Committee of Safety.

To the Great and General Court of the State of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

We, the Committee of Inspection, Correspondence, and Safety, of the town of Charlton, in the County of Worcester, desire to inform the honourable Court that we, the said Committee, have, by virtue of an act of the Assembly of this State respecting taking care of Tories' estates, so as it may be preserved for the benefit of the Continent, and in obedience to said act, we, the said Committee, have taken into our care a tract of land lying in said Charlton, which belonged to Mr. William Brown, of Salem, a Mandamus Councillor, which has now fled to the King's troops; and as we understand said land layeth in common with the honourable Judge Danford's and others, and as we, the said Committee, have heretofore sent to the honourable Court by our Representative our proceedings, and have not received any proper orders for our further proceedings on the affair, and as there is great strip and waste made on said land, we, the above Committee, pray the honourable Court for further orders for our further proceeding, unless said estate should be lost to the Continent.

On Friday arrived the prize snow Three Friends, Thomas Russel, master, from St. Eustatia to Ireland, laden with two hundred and ten hogsheads of sugar.

Same day arrived the ship Live Oak, lately commanded by Captain Duncan, who died on his passage from Honduras to London, laden with mahogany and logwood. Both the above were taken near the banks of Newfoundland, by the above-mentioned privateer.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MAJOR-GENERAL MASSEY, COMMANDING HIS MAJESTY'S TROOPS IN THE PROVINCE OF NOVA-SCOTIA, TO ALDERMAN BAKER, OF CORK.

Halifax, November 5, 1776.

Dear Alderman: As so many of his Majesty's transports have scandalously given themselves up to the rebel pirates, in justice to Captain Edward Carey, commanding his Majesty's hired transport Newcastle Jane, as well as Captain Murdock McLean, who commanded twenty soldiers on board, I have the satisfaction to tell you, and you will oblige me if you will inform Messrs. Coppingers, of the city of Corke, who are his owners, that about one hundred leagues from this port, he was attacked in the evening by a rebel pirate, and after given them what is due to all rebels, the pirate sheered off, and remained near them to renew the engagement the next morning. They bore down on the Newcastle Jane in the morning, and began the fight within twenty yards of each other. The action continued for upwards of four hours, when Captain Carey observed the pirate was satisfied he had True Britons to encounter, and seeing him sheer off, Captain Carey took his speaking-trumpet and called out, "All hands ready for boarding," and then hoisted stunel sails to give chase; but seeing her get out her oars and run off, Captain Carey pursued his voyage. The Newcastle Jane had but two round shot left; had he had ammunition, he would have made a prize of the rebel.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN TO GENERAL SIR WILLIAM HOWE.

Whitehall, November 6, 1776.

Sir: Being informed that his Majesty's service makes it necessary that a packet should be despatched to-night, I unexpectedly enjoy a very early opportunity of acknowledging the receipt of your several letters of the 21st, 23d, and 24th of September, which you entrusted to the care of Captain Balfour. They were delivered by him in the evening of the 2d instant, and were by me laid before the King.

The city of New-York was an object of so great importance, that the news of the evacuation thereof by the Rebels, was received with general satisfaction. And I have a particular pleasure in being commanded to inform you, that his Majesty has in the strongest terms approved of your conduct, and highly applauds the behaviour of the officers and men employed upon that occasion.

The service of the Commander-in-Chief of the troops is a topick upon which I could here enlarge with much justice, and with no small degree of satisfaction, if the early sailing of the packet did not compel me to use an unwilling brevity.

Hurried, however, as I am, I cannot help observing that the commendations which you so liberally bestow upon the officers of the Navy, and the seamen belonging to the ships-of-war and the transports, is the most honourable testimony that could have been given in their favour; and I make no doubt but they esteemed it a circumstance peculiarly fortunate for them, that they were called upon to cooperate with a General who was known to have discernment enough to distinguish merit, and candour enough to give it its due weight, wherever it was found.

I am happy to learn that your success was attended with so inconsiderable a loss, and that Lieutenant-Colonel Monckton is in so fair a way of recovery.

The attempt which was made to burn the town of New-York might well exasperate the troops. I trust that an apprehension of condign punishment will deter the infatuated wretches from persevering in their resolutions, and have good hope that the inquiry which you have set on foot will serve to discover the original promoters and abettors of the villainous design.

Your short letter of September 24th requires no further answer, than that I should express my joy on account of the troops having met with no opposition, either to their lodgings upon Paulus Hook, or to their taking possession of the batteries and redoubts at that post. The advantages which you have hitherto gained over the Rebels have been rapid, and are extremely important; and I am confident you will, in reflecting upon them, derive a sincere satisfaction from the consideration, that the troops under your command have been able to give such signal proofs of their bravery, and render such essential services to their King and country, without suffering any material injury from the enemy.

I am, &c., Geo. Germain.

LORD GEORGE GERMAIN TO SIR WILLIAM HOWE.

Whitehall, 6th November, 1776.

Sir: I communicated to the Lords of the Treasury your letter to me of the 16th of August, notifying your appointment of Captain Mackenzie to be Paymaster of the new levies, and containing your reasons for it; and I have the pleasure to send you enclosed, a copy of Mr. Robinson's letter to Mr. Knox, signifying their Lordships' approbation of that appointment.

The great importance of engaging the Southern Indians in our interest, has not escaped his Majesty's attention; and you will see by the enclosed copies of my letters to Mr. Stuart, what care has been taken to supply that officer with the means of securing the fidelity of those people, and the instructions which have been given him for his conduct respecting them. He will, of course, receive your orders for employing them in seconding any operations you may think fit to direct against those Colonies; and it must give you satisfaction to find he is in so good a condition to carry into execution whatever orders you may think proper to give him.

SILAS DEANE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, 6th November, 1776.

Gentlemen: The only letters I have received from you were dated 5th and 6th of June last, five months since, during which time vessels have arrived from almost every part of America to every part of France and Spain; and I am informed letters from Mr. Morris to his correspondents, dated late in July. If the Congress do not mean to apply for foreign alliances, let me entreat you to say so, and rescind your resolutions published on that head, which will be but justice to the Powers of Europe, to whom you gave reason to expect such an application. If I am not the proper person to announce your independency, and solicit in your behalf, let me entreat you to tell me so, and relieve me from an anxiety which is become so intolerable that my life is a burthen.

Two hundred pieces of brass cannon, and arms, tents and accoutrements, for thirty thousand men, with ammunition in proportion, and between twenty and thirty brass mortars, have been granted to my request; but the unaccountable silence on your part has delayed the embarkation some weeks already. I yesterday got them again in motion, and a part are already at Havre de Grace and Nantes, and the rest on their way there, but am hourly trembling for fear of counter-orders. Had I received proper powers in season, this supply would before this have been in America, and that under the convoy of a strong fleet. The disappointment is distracting, and I will dismiss the subject after taking the liberty to which a freeman and an American is entitled, of declaring that by this neglect the cause of the United States of North America has suffered in this and the neighbouring Courts, and the blood that will be spilt through the want of these supplies, and the devastations, if any, must be laid at this door.

Captain Cochran being arrived at Nantes, I sent to him to come to me. He is now with me, and by him I send this, with a packet of letters. He can inform you of the price of American produce in Europe, the very advance on which will pay you for fitting out a Navy.

Rice is from thirty to fifty livres per cwt.; tobacco, eight pence and nine pence per pound. Flour and wheat are growing scarce, and rising. Masts, spars, and other naval stores, are in demand, and the more so, as a war with Great Britain is considered as at the door.

Monsieur Du Coudray, who has the character of being one of the best officers of Artillery in Europe, has been indefatigable in our service, and I hope the terms I have made with him will not be thought exorbitant, as he was the principal means of engaging the stores.

The rage, as I may say, for entering the American service increases, and the consequence is, I am crowded with offers and proposals, many of them from persons of the first rank and eminence in the sea as well as land service. Count Broglio, who commanded the army of France the last war, did me the honour to call on me twice yesterday with an officer who served as his quartermaster-general the last war, and has now a regiment in this service, but being a German, and having traveled through America a few years since, he is desirous of engaging in the service of the United States of North America. I can by no means let slip an opportunity of engaging a person of so much experience, and who is by every one recommended as one of the bravest and most skillful officers in the kingdom; yet I am distressed on every such occasion, for want of your particular instructions. This gentleman has an independent fortune, and a certain prospect of advancement here, but being a zealous friend of liberty, civil and religious, he is actuated by the most independent and generous principles in the offer he makes of his services to the United States of America.

Enclosed you also have the plan of a French naval officer for burning ships, which he gave me, and at the same time showed me his drafts of ships, and rules for constructing and regulating a Navy, of which I have the highest opinion. He has seen much service, is a person of study and letters, as well as fortune, and is ambitious of planning a Navy for America, which shall at once be much cheaper and more effectual than any thing of the kind which can be produced on the European system. He has the command of a ship-of-the-line in this service, but is rather disgusted at not having his proposed regulations for the Navy of France attended to. His proposal generally is to build vessels something on the model of those designed by the Marine Committee, to carry from twenty-four to thirty-six guns on one deck, which will be as formidable a battery as any ship-of-the-line can avail itself of, and by fighting them on the upper deck, a much surer one. Had I power to treat with this gentleman, I believe his character and friends are such that he could have two or three such frigates immediately constructed here on credit, and manned and sent to America; but the want of instructions or intelligence, or remittances, with the late check on Long-Island, has sunk our credit to nothing with individuals, and the goods for the Indian contract cannot be shipped unless remittances are made to a much greater amount than at present. Not ten thousand pounds have been received, of forty thousand delivered in America, as early as last February; and I am ignorant what has become of the effects shipped. Under these circumstances I have no courage to urge a credit which I have no prospect of living up to the engagements for supporting it; but I will take Mr. Morris's hint, and write a letter solely on business, but politicks and my business are almost inseparably connected.

I have filled this sheet, and will therefore bid you adieu until I begin another.

I am, with the warmest esteem, &c., SILAS DEANE.

STEPHEN WEST TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Woodyard, November 6th, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: After thanking you for your civility while I was at Annapolis, I am to inform you that I have looked into my soldiers' stockings that I purchased, with a view of clothing my regiment. There are only one hundred and twenty-eight pair remaining unsold, and some of them (eighteen pair) are damaged, having been left open to the air and moth. The one hundred and ten pair are good, and are at your service, at seven shillings and six pence a pair. The eighteen pair may be mended, and you may have them at half price—three shillings and nine pence, or I can use them myself; indeed, I can sell them all, with thanks, among my neighbours. I send you three pair for samples.

If you choose to accept of my stockings, they shall be delivered to your order; and I hope your messenger will either bring the money or be authorized to give me an order at once on the Treasurer. For however honourable sentiments I entertain of your Board, and respect I have for the persons of the Board of Accounts, yet I will never, if I can help it, subject myself to their arbitrary determinations. I attended a whole week about an account that, if justice had been done me, I should have had publick thanks for; instead of which, I was delayed and injured against the most palpable evidence, and compelled to take in November, when our currency is not of half value, a great deal less than I had offered me in hand by Major Marshall in June. Such is the reward I have had for my publick spirit and love of country. Yet, although I thus smart, I do entirely confide in the integrity and candour of the Council of Safety.

I have about fifty good firelocks, and some other matters. We are manufacturing a species of linen cloth, that I think if pursued, would be of great publick utility. We take the tow of flax and hemp, card it into rolls, open it on the great wheel, then double and twist it, and weave it. It will make good tents, bagging, wagon-cloths, coarse sheets, sails, &c. 'Tis soft and pliable, and the doubling and twisting makes it exceeding strong. Our women spin in three days two and a half pounds each. It is carded for them. The doubling and twisting is new to me, and perhaps it may be so to others; and if it prove useful, my intention will be gratified. If the tow thread is warped and filled in with ordinary wove, it will make good fearnaught and bedding.

I am, your affectionate servant,

STEPHEN WEST.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis, with a paper parcel of stockings.

I do hereby certify, that the bearer, William Douglass, has lost his arm in the service of this State, having been a matross in my company of Artillery, thereto belonging; and he is accordingly recommended to the Convention thereof, as entitled to the provision made by a late resolve of the Continental Congress, for those disabled in defence of American liberty.

GENERAL LEE TO DR. FRANKLIN.

Camp at Philipsburg, November 6th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The gentleman who will deliver you this, was, as I understand, sent by Congress to General Washington. He was to have given specimens of his abilities as engineer, and been recommended accordingly. Whether he is a great engineer or no, I cannot pretend to say, as he has had no fair opportunity of displaying his talents. The few small works he has thrown up have been in haste, at the same time labouring under the disadvantage of not being able to explain himself to the workmen. From the little I can judge of him, he is a man of capacity and knowledge, and I am told by his countrymen, that his fort lies in surveying geographically and military a country. I know not any kind of officer more wanted in America than a military surveyor of those parts which are likely to be the scene of action. General Washington and myself have therefore concurred in opinion that he should begin with the Jerseys; and if he gives satisfactory proofs of his talents in this line, to recommend him to Congress for this important office. I must beg leave to recommend him to your protection and patronage, and request that you will furnish him with the necessary instruments. And as I am so well acquainted with your liberal way of thinking, and manners, it will be unnecessary to desire you to show him all possible personal civilities.

So far for Monsieur Imbert. You will naturally expect something from me on our present situation. We have by proper positions brought Mr. Howe to his ne plus ultra. He has therefore apparently given all hopes of taking us prisoners, as I believe he lately sanguinely promised himself. Monsieur Imbert, as you know French, will be able to explain the circumstances of both armies. The spirit of our present troops is upon the whole good, and if America is lost, it is not in my opinion owing to want of courage in your soldiers, but, pardon me, to want of prudence in your high mightinesses. Adieu! God bless you, my dear sir. Live long and make your country and friends as happy as you have rendered yourself admirable in the eyes of all good and sensible men.

Yours, most sincerely, CHARLES LEE.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin, member of the Continental Congress.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 11th: Referred to Board of War.]

White-Plains, November 6th, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to inform you, that on yesterday morning the enemy made a sudden and unexpected movement from the several posts they had taken in our front. They broke up their whole encampments the preceding night, and have advanced towards King's Bridge and the North River. The design of this manœuvre is a matter of much conjecture and speculation, and cannot be accounted for with any degree of certainty. The grounds we had taken possession of were strong and advantageous, and such as they could not have gained without much loss of blood in case an attempt had been made. I had taken every possible precaution to prevent their out-flanking us; which may have led to the present measure. They may still have in view their original plan, and by a sudden wheel, try to accomplish it. Detachments are constantly out to observe their motions, and to harass them as much as possible.

In consequence of this movement I called a council of General Officers to-day, to consult of such measures as should be adopted in case they pursued their retreat to New-York; the result of which is herewith transmitted. In respect to myself, I cannot indulge an idea that General Howe, supposing he is going to New-York, means to close the campaign, and to sit down without attempting something more. I think it highly probable, and almost certain, that he will make a descent with a part of his troops into Jersey; and as soon as I am satisfied that the present manœuvre is real, and not a feint, I shall use every means in my power to forward a part of our force to counteract his designs; nor shall I be disappointed if he sends a detachment to the southward for the purpose of making a winter campaign. From the information I have received, there is now a number of transports at Red-Hook, with about three thousand troops on board. Their destination, as given out, is to Rhode-Island; but this seems altogether improbable for various reasons: among others, the season is much against it. In the Southern States they will find it milder, and much more favourable for their purposes. I shall take the liberty of mentioning that it may not be improper to suggest the probability of such a measure to the Assemblies and Conventions in those States, that they may be on their guard, and of the propriety of their establishing and laying up magazines of provisions and other necessaries in suitable places. This is a matter of exceeding importance, and what cannot be too much attended to.

From the approaching dissolution of the Army, and the departure of the new levies, which is on the eve of taking place, and the little prospect of levying a new one in time, I have wrote to the Eastern States, by the unanimous advice of the General Officers, to forward supplies of Militia in the room of those that are now here, and who, it is feared, will not be prevailed on to stay any longer than the time they are engaged for. The propriety of this application, I trust, will appear, when it is known that not a single officer is yet commissioned to recruit, and when it is considered how essential it is to keep up some show of force and shadow of an Army.

I expect the enemy will bend their force against Fort Washington, and invest it immediately. From some advices, it is an object that will attract their earliest attention.

I am happy to inform you, that in the engagement on Monday sevennight, I have reason to believe our loss was by no means so considerable as was conjectured at first. By some deserters and prisoners we are told, that of the enemy was tolerably great; some accounts make it about four hundred in killed and wounded; all agree that among the former there was a Colonel Carr, of the Thirty-Fifth Regiment. The force that will be sent to Jersey, after I am satisfied of Mr. Howe's retreat, in addition to those now there, according to my present opinion, will make it necessary for me to go with them, to put things in a proper channel, and such a way of defence as shall seem most probable to check the progress of the enemy in case they should attempt a descent there, or a move towards Philadelphia.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

MINUTES OF THE COUNCIL OF WAR.

At a Council of War held at Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 6th, 1776:

Present: His Excellency General Washington.

Major-Generals: Lee, Putnam, Spencer, Heath, Sullivan, Lincoln.

Brigadier-Generals: Lord Stirling, Mifflin, Nixon, McDougall, Parsons, Scott, Clinton.

The late movements of the enemy having made it necessary to consider what may be now proper for this Army to do, the General proposed the following questions, viz:

Supposing the enemy to be retreating towards New-York, will it not be proper to throw a body of troops into the Jerseys immediately?

Unanimously agreed in the affirmative.

It was then proposed whether it would not be proper to detach immediately all those troops which have been raised on the western side of Hudson's River?

Agreed; but that in such case, those regiments belonging to the eastern side of Hudson's River should remove to the eastern side, if the movements of the enemy and circumstances of this Army will admit.

Upon the question, What number of men would be necessary to take post at Peekskill and the passes in the Highlands, for the defence of those posts, erecting fortifications, &c.?

Agreed upon three thousand.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 1st, 1776.

(Parole, Belford.) (Countersign, Spain.)

Peter Buise, under sentence of death, and to be executed this day, is reprieved unti Monday, eleven o'clock.

The General Court-Martial whereof General McDougall is President, to sit to-morrow at the house above General Lee's quarters, for the trial of Colonel Graham. Colonel Foreman, of General Heard's brigade, and other witnesses, to attend.

The moving state of the Army will occasion some irregularity, but the General hopes that officers of all ranks will exert themselves to correct all abuses, particularly the following:

Straggling from camp, or plundering parties.

Taking up and keeping horses.

Loading the teams with heavy lumber and unnecessary baggage.

Firing in and about the camp.

To prevent the first, the rolls are to be frequently called, at least three times a day, and the absent punished. To prevent the second, all horses not belonging to the artillery, or ammunition, or Field Officers, to be collected and sent to the Quartermaster-General, near Head-Quarters. To prevent the third, the Field Officers should have a general examination of the baggage of their regiments, and all heavy chests, tables, chairs, and other lumber, be left; or after this, they will be thrown off the wagons, wherever met with. To prevent firing in camp, the order of yesterday to be executed, by giving the offender ten lashes on the spot, let him belong to what regiment he may.

A relief having come for the Light-Horse under Major Backus, that corps is now dismissed, with the General's hearty thanks for their faithful services, and the cheerfulness and alacrity they have shown upon all occasions.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 2d, 1776.

(Parole, Westchester.) (Countersign, Sussex.)

The General expressly forbids any person or soldier belonging to the Army, to set fire to any house or barn, on any pretence, without a special order from some General Officer.

---

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 3d, 1776.

(Parole, ——.) (Countersign, ——.)

The General is sorry to find that there are some soldiers, so lost to all sense of honour and honesty, as to leave the Army when there is the greatest necessity for their services. He calls upon the officers of every rank to exert themselves in putting a stop to it, and absolutely forbids any officer, under the rank of a Brigadier-General, discharging any officer or soldier, or giving any permission to leave the camp on any pretence whatever.

The sick of the Militia may be discharged by their General Officer, after he has seen them, and is satisfied of their incapacity to do duty, but not otherwise.

The situation of the Army, and the season, requiring that the soldiery should be as well accommodated as possible, especially at night, the taking of straw, or even grain in the sheaf, is not to be considered as included in the orders against plundering.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 4th, 1776.

(Parole, ——.) (Countersign, ——.)

The General desires, in express and positive terms, that the Brigadiers and Colonels commanding brigades, see every regiment, respectively belonging to them, paraded to-morrow, (but not at the same instant,) the rolls called over, and every officer and soldier satisfactorily accounted for, or sent after; their arms also to be examined, and a report thereof to be made. Where the Brigadiers are absent, or incapable of acting, the Major-General is to attend to the execution of this order.

Peter Buise, under sentence of death for desertion, is further reprieved till Wednesday.

All deserters and prisoners to be reported to the Brigadier of the troops to whom they come, or by whom they are taken, who is to send them to Head-Quarters as soon as possible.

The Colonels and commanding officers of regiments will remember that they stand accountable for the arms received by their respective regiments; that all their spare arms are to be carefully collected, and sent to the Commissary of Stores, or reported immediately to Head-Quarters.

Colonel Baily's regiment, now in General Nixon's brigade, to join the brigade of which Colonel Glover is commandant, and Colonel Reed's, now in Colonel Glover's, to join General Nixon.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 5, 1776.

(Parole, Maroneck.) (Countersign, Goshen.)

Some barracks having been already built at Peekskill, and others erecting for the reception of the troops at that place, the General directs that the Major-Generals do select from their several divisions all their convalescents, and others not entirely fit for duty, and have them sent up there under proper officers. Those men who have been sent into the country to recruit are to be included if they are not well enough to return to their duty in camp. This order is not to extend to such sick as are fit subjects for the hospital, nor is it intended to countermand the orders of the 3d instant for discharging such of the sick Militia as choose to go home, after the inspection of the General Officer commanding them. The arms and baggage of such men as move to Peekskill, to be taken along, as they are intended for the security of that post. Spare arms properly put up, may also be removed there.

The General is very sensible that the time of service of many of the Militia will soon expire: but as this is the most interesting and critical part of the campaign, and their departure would greatly discourage the other troops and injure the service, he doubts not their love to their country will induce them to prolong their stay until the close of the campaign, which must soon happen.

The several Brigadiers and Colonels commanding brigades, are immediately to make report of the tools in their respective brigades, to the Quartermaster-General.

The General gives it strictly in charge to the commanding officer of every regiment, to see that the bottom of the tents are not covered with earth; and that upon the removal of the Army at any time, and upon all occasions, tents are the first things that are put into the wagons allowed each regiment. The Brigadier must pay attention to this also.

The order of yesterday with respect to Colonel Bailey joining Colonel Glover's brigade, was founded on a mistake: that regiment is to continue as at present. Colonel Webb's is to join Colonel Glover's brigade, and Colonel Reed is to join General McDougall's brigade.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 6th, 1776.

(Parole, ———.) (Countersign, ———.)

As the late movements of the enemy will require some change of our present disposition, the General most earnestly requests that the men who have been at the hospital, and out of camp on any other account, may be immediately collected and join their respective regiments.

It is with the utmost astonishment and abhorrence the General is informed that some base and cowardly wretches have, last night, set fire to the Court-House and other buildings which the enemy left. The Army may rely on it, that they shall be brought to justice and meet with the punishment they deserve.

Mr. John Story is appointed Paymaster to the regiment commanded by Colonel Hitchcock.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PENNSYLVANIA COMMISSIONERS OF ARRANGEMENT.

White-Plains, November 6th, 1776.

Gentlemen: Your favour of the 23d October, expressing your astonishment that recruiting orders had not been issued to Colonel Magaw and Colonel Cadwalader, has been duly received. As it seems founded on assurances given by me, I think it my duty to explain the matter, and call to your recollection some circumstances, which perhaps, in the hurry of business, you may have forgot. At the time you left King's Bridge no one officer, that I recollect, was fixed on, nor was it known whether Colonel Cadwalader would accept the regiment, if in his power. There was not money in the Continental Treasury at that time to advance for the bounty of even Hand's regiment; and all those who were consulted, agreed that it answered no purpose to attempt the business without the money in hand.

Another thing, gentlemen, you will, I doubt not, agree with me in, that it could not be the General's duty, or that of any other General Officer, to attend upon the officers of those two battalions to know whether they would serve, or set about the business of recruiting; and I am very confident that no application was made for money or recruiting orders; nor, indeed, could they, for the enemy landed immediately after at Frog's Point. The Army immediately moved, and has been moving ever since, so that there has not been leisure or opportunity for transacting business of this kind. Our communication with Mount Washington has now been cut off for two weeks; and, in short, the variety of avocations to the immediate safety and interest of the Army, under constant alarms, and the approach of the enemy, has made that very natural to those on the spot which may appear very much otherwise to gentlemen whose short stay at such times in the camp does not enable them to judge of the difficulties which occur upon such occasions.

The necessity of appointing the officers who were to execute the recruiting orders will appear, when it is recollected that at that time it was understood that ten shillings was to be allowed for every man recruited; so that the appointment must, of course, precede the service. This the Congress have since altered.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

Go. Washington.

To the Commissioners of Arrangement from Pennsylvania.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

White-Plains, November 6th, 1776.

Sir: By a letter from Major-General Greene, who is stationed on the Jersey side of the North River, his Excellency is informed that six officers belonging to privateers, who had been taken by the enemy and made their escape, report that twenty sail of transports and ships have fallen down to Red-Hook, having on board about thee thousand troops, and their destination, as given out, is to Rhode-Island. His Excellency, supposing there is such an embarkation, does not apprehend that the expedition will be to the eastward. He inclines to think that it will be to the southward, and that something may be attempted there by way of a winter's campaign. However, he has thought proper to transmit the intelligence to you and Governour Cooke, that you may be on your guard, and have such precautions taken as may appear most likely to counteract their designs, in case they should attempt a descent.

Since I had the honour of writing you on the 2d, the enemy have attempted nothing; such vigilance and care have been had, that they have been unable to pass by either of our wings. From our present advices and their movements, we have reason to believe they are upon the retreat to New-York, being sensible that an attempt to pass our posts must be attended with difficulty, and a great effusion of blood, if our people will do their duty. It is certain that they have broke up their encampments, which were opposite our front, and moved southwesterly towards the North River. Several parties are gone out to watch their motions, and to harass them, if possible, in their march.

From the returns that have come in, I am happy to acquaint you that we have reason to believe our loss in the action of Monday se'nnight is by no means so considerable as was apprehended at first. We are told by some prisoners, that the enemy's, upon that occasion, was tolera le great; some make it near four hundred in killed and wounded—among the former a Colonel Carr, of the Thirty-Fifth Regiment. It is the prevailing opinion, that if General Howe is going to New-York, he has some further object in view, to wit: that of throwing a part of his Army into the Jerseys.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your humble servant,

ROBERT H. HARRISON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

[The same to Governour Cooke, Rhode-Island.]

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

White-Plains, November 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The situation of our affairs is critical and truly alarming. The dissolution of our Army is fast approaching, and but little if any prospect of levying a new one in a reasonable time. A large part of it, under the denomination of new levies, are now on the eve of their departure, and this at a time when the enemy have a very numerous and formidable force, watching an opportunity to execute their plans, and to spread ruin and devastation among us. Impressed with the importance of these matters, I this day laid them before a council of General Officers, with a view of obtaining their opinion upon the same, and of the measures which, in their judgment, should be immediately adopted. The result was, that I should apply to several of the States for supplies of Militia; and that your honourable Assembly should be requested to furnish, as soon as possible, four thousand as their quota, to be properly accoutred and equipped with every necessary, to supply the place of those who are now here under General Lincoln, and who, I fear, will not be prevailed upon to stay longer than the time they engaged for at first. The hope and probability of raising a new army, within a convenient time, are so little, and the consequences so evidently alarming, if a sufficient force is not kept up to counteract the designs of the enemy in the mean time, that the council and myself have unanimously agreed that the Militia should be engaged, if possible, to continue till the 1st of March, unless their return can be sooner dispensed with. We flatter ourselves, by that time, if not long before, such an Army will be levied as to render any further claims upon them, unless in cases of the most pressing emergency, altogether unnecessary.

From the experience I have had of your past exertions in times of difficulty, I know that nothing in your power to effect will be wanting; and with the greatest confidence, I trust that the present requisition will have your most ready approbation and compliance, being in some degree anticipated by the inquiry you have directed to be made into the state of our affairs, and whether any further aid will be necessary.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the General Court of Massachusetts-Bay.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM COLONEL REED TO MRS. REED, DATED CAMP NEAR WHITE-PLAINS, NOVEMBER 6, 1776.

A new cause of alarm has arisen since I wrote you last. The enemy, as we suppose, finding our Army too advantageously posted to venture an attack, the night before last began to move with all their baggage. Their course was towards the North River, which they still continue. Opinions here are various: some think they are falling down upon Mount Washington, and after carrying that post are going into winter quarters; others, that they mean to take shipping up the North River, proceed up, and fall upon our rear; others and a great majority think, that finding this Army too strongly posted, they have changed their whole plan, and are bending southward, intending to penetrate the Jerseys, and so move on to Philadelphia. A few hours must determine it. If the latter is the case, a part of this Army I suppose will pass over into Jersey. My heart melts within me at the thought of having that fine country desolated, for it is of little consequence which Army passes. It is equally destructive to friend and foe; and when I consider your situation—your exposed situation, I feel peculiar anxiety. My own opinion is, that the season is too far advanced for any movements of consequence, but that it is probable some excursions may be made to distress and alarm the inhabitants of New-Jersey, and revive the drooping spirits of their friends, which begin to sink at the prospect of the campaign closing without the entire conquest of the Rebels, as they term us. However, I may be mistaken, as I am almost singular in my opinion.

EBENEZER HAZARD TO PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT.

North-Castle, November 6th, 1776.

SIR: I duly received your letter of the 25th ultimo, and would have answered it sooner, but my frequent removals of late have kept me in so constant a hurry as to prevent it.

There is no way of complying with the resolves of the Committee of Safety respecting the newspapers but subscribing for them; and one year is the shortest time for which a subscriber may enter his name. I have already written to Boston, desiring that the papers printed there may be regularly sent me, directed to the Convention of this State. I intend writing for the others by the earliest opportunity, and will endeavour to procure the Constitutions of the different States, which have already been or may be hereafter published. The plans of Government for Pennsylvania and the Delaware States are in one of the papers sent herewith; the generality of the other papers now sent, contain either remarks upon some form of government, or something else which may perhaps be useful to the Convention.

You will oblige me, sir, by procuring an order of Convention for the payment of postage arising, and which may arise, on letters for the members of that honourable body. Every letter I send from the office without receiving the postage, I send at my own risk; and as I have not received the postage of letters already sent, I am apprehensive the members will not receive their letters in future quite so soon after their arrival at the office as heretofore, unless some such order is passed.

As I necessarily write in haste, I beg you to excuse blots and interlineations. I am, respectfully, sir, your and the Committee's very humble servant,

EBEN. HAZARD.

To the Hon. Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq.

COMFORT SANDS TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fishkill, November 6th, 1776.

SIR: Here enclosed is an account of arms and accoutrements that have been delivered to General Scott's brigade, which account I have framed from the returns of Messrs. Norwood & Curtenius. As these arms were to be returned or paid for, the Convention will probably think fit to send the enclosed account to General Scott before the time is expired for which that brigade is inlisted, that stoppages may be made if the arms, &c., are not returned.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

COMFORT SANDS.

To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, November 6, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Since my last I have been honoured with a letter from General Washington; he is now with the Army at the White-Plains, and the enemy near him. They make every effort to out-flank him, and he as carefully guards against it. Twelve hundred men and six months' provision are thrown into Fort Washington. It has been attacked by some men-of-war, who suffered so much in the attempt that they were obliged to retire very much shattered.

The General has approved the sentence of the court-martial on Lieutenant Colonel White, Captains Patterson and Ross, and Lieutenant Gordon, all of Colonel Dayton's regiment, which you will please to publish in orders.

Colonel Lewis arrived yesterday. I have every thing in proper train, and I hope he will keep it so. He shall not want my advice and best assistance.

I hope General Carleton will in a very few days, by the severity of the weather, be obliged to return with the main body of his Army to Canada. As soon as that event takes place, I dare say you will send down the country as many of the troops as can be spared. Barracks for one thousand men will be complete in a few days at Saratoga. Carpenters are gone to build for four hundred more at Fort Edward, and if materials can be procured, I propose to erect for four hundred more at Stillwater. About five hundred can be lodged here, and I hope to have shelter for six hundred at Schenectady.

I am, dear General, with every friendly wish, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

Hon. General Gates.

---

COLONEL WYNKOOP TO GENERAL GATES.

Skeensborough, November 6, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have few soldiers at this place to forward the business as I ought. I keep four batteaus out constant fetching hay and corn. I would be very glad if the General would please to order me one company of men more, on purpose to batteau between here and Fort Ann. The Militia that has been here won't do the least thing for me, nor can I make them do it.

I shall send you two batteaus load of hay this afternoon. The vessel will be loaded with corn to-morrow. I shall also want more batteaus. The General has ordered me the carpenters at this place to build barracks; they are here, and have the barracks raised and partly boarded up.

I have two hundred head of cattle on the ground, and expect another drove in to-day. I do not know what to do with them all, as the pasture at this place is gone, and am obliged to furnish a party of my men to guard them out in the fields. I shall send the iron down with the vessel. As for the saw-mill crank I can't find it.

I am, dear General, your most obedient,

CORNELIUS WYNKOOP.

---

GENERAL GATES TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 18th: Referred to the Board of War.]

Ticonderoga, November 6th, 1776.

SIR: The Commissioners who arrived last week to this camp, from the Massachusetts-Bay, having informed me on last Monday that their Assembly had granted, over and above the very great bounty allowed by Congress, three dollars and one third per month, to every private raised by them, I then foresaw the fatal consequences this resolve must produce on other soldiers who should not be allowed a similar bounty by the States to which their respective corps may belong. For this reason, having thought it my indispensable duty to risk the entire loss of my popularity with the soldiers of this Army, I did not fail to entreat the Commissioners to urge their Assembly to rescind that vote. But, sir, a few hours after my letter of yesterday's date was sent off, I learnt that the State of Connecticut had granted the additional allowance of two dollars every month to the privates inlisted in the regiments of their own State. I shall not attempt to fix those limits beyond which, in my judgment, our new confederate Commonwealth will no more be able, without the help of inexhaustible mines, to extend the progress of this evil; but it is evident to me, that the cupidity of our soldiery may be stimulated to such a degree as to ruin the noblest cause that any army ever was truly employed to defend. And, though Congress should procure the rescision of every resolve that shall have passed to the same effect, there is just reason to fear that the troops which are now employed in opposing General Howe, will, as well as those in this department, be tempted to desert, or at least retire from the Army, for the sake of inlisting as substitutes in the Militia, and extorting sums, proportionably larger than heretofore, from the men who may be drafted for the service.

I am very willing to believe that the authors of the resolves for such additional pay, did not intend to sacrifice the general interest of our Union, to a local, temporary popularity. On the contrary, I judge that the excessive price now given for every article of clothing, &c., misled their compassion for their fellow-citizens, and that their errour proceeded from the most liberal principles, and from their not being acquainted with the measures of Congress to supply the Army.

Oh! sir, may the Massachusetts delegates in Congress be the first to move that august assembly for recommending that none of the States shall, without the previous approbation of Congress, allow any additional pay to their respective troops in the Continental service. Unless a speedy measure be adopted to check this amazing effusion of benevolence, I foresee that it will corrupt our soldiery, that our enemies will expose our impossibility to continue such profusions, and I fear they may succeed in undermining our credit at home and abroad.

As my zeal alone has dictated this letter, I shall not apologize for it, but assure you, that with the greatest respect, I shall ever remain, sir, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To his Excellency John Hancock, Esq.

---

GENERAL ARNOLD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, November 6, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I beg leave to recommend to your particular notice the following gentlemen, who were taken at Quebeck, and lately returned on their parole, viz: Major Lamb and Captain Lockwood of the Artillery, Lieutenant-Colonel Oswald and Captain Morgan: the two last went with me from Cambridge. They have all distinguished themselves for their bravery and attachment to the publick cause, and will, I make no doubt, be very useful hereafter, and do honour to the commissions they may hold. If it is not inconsistent with your engagements, I beg they may be among the first who are exchanged.

On the 3d instant the enemy began to embark at Crown Point, and several vessels sailed yesterday morning. Two vessels only remain there, on board of which the last troops were embarked. They give out their intention is to return to Canada, and pay us a visit in the spring. I wish it may not be a feint to put us off our guard, and to return the first fair wind. As the season is so far advanced, I am rather inclined to think they are in earnest to return.

I wish to hear the enemy with you have taken up their winter quarters. I hope this winter will effect as much for us as a victory.

I am, with sentiments of perfect esteem and respect, dear General, your affectionate and most obedient humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

His Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the forces of the United States of America, Head-Quarters, King's Bridge.

---

JOHN BARRETT TO GENERAL GATES.

Hubbardton, 6th November, 1776.

SIR: The party at work on the road have accomplished the cutting a road through from the Mount to Otter Creek, and will in a day or two effect the bridging; and I think they may be essentially serviceable to the publick the remainder of their time in cutting and clearing the road between Otter Creek and Number Four, if it be your Honour's pleasure. The parties seem much engaged to proceed, if your Honour's pleasure to permit.

I am your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

JOHN BARRETT,
Superintendent of the work.

The Honourable General Gates.

P. S. Colonel Meeds informs me that the block-house is almost finished at the bridge, and begs your Honour's pleasure whether he must continue to guard there.

Captain John McCleave exhibited an account against the State of £428 9*s*. 5*d*., which is allowed, for wages and billeting, and other expense of the men, &c., on board the row-galley Whiting, lately under his command; and voted to draw on the Pay-Table for the same.—(Order drawn November 7, 1776, and delivered Captain John McCleave.)

Voted, To draw on the Pay-Table for one thousand Pounds, in favour of Mr. Chancey Whittlesey, of Middletown, to enable him to purchase Clothing for this State, for the use of the troops, &c.; to render his account.—(Order drawn 6th November, 1776, delivered Mr. Chauncey Whittlesey.)

New-Haven, November 6, 1776.

A few nights since, between three and four hundred troops, from the State of Rhode-Island, crossed the Sound, and landed on Long-Island, near Setasket, where they engaged a party of the troops newly inlisted into General Howe's Army, commanded by one Smith; five or six of his men were killed in the action, and himself and twenty-three of his company made prisoners, who were brought off, with seventy-five excellent muskets. The prisoners are a motley herd, about one half of them being Negroes and Indians. Of the Rhode-Island troops one was killed and one wounded.

We hear that near two hundred sail of the enemy's fleet are on this side of Hell-Gate, the chief of them lying near Hart Island.

COMMITTEE OF GUILFORD TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

To five trips of the sloop Polly, fifty-five tons burthen, from hence to Long-Island and back to Guilford, bringing horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, people, household goods, &c., at £20, this currency, per trip, £100.

Guilford, November 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On receiving your letter, dated Harlem, August 28th, 1776, directed to the Chairman of the several Committees on the sea-coast, the Committee of this place immediately called a meeting and determined to comply with your request, as per vote enclosed and record of their doings may appear, dated August 31, 1776.

SAMUEL BROWN,
Clerk of the Committee of Inspectors in Guilford.

To the honourable Congress of New-York, now convened at Fishkill in said Province.

Guilford, November 6, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As I was owner of the above sloop Polly, the Committee applied to me for her to be employed in the above business, which was readily complied and with no particular agreement made; and as it is almost impossible to give any particular account of what was bought, concluded on the above sum, which I think is reasonable, provided I take on myself the whole charge and damage, which was very great—as one anchor of three hundred and forty-one weight was lost by the cable being cut off with rocks, the cable much damaged, and almost the whole of the running rigging worn out, used for halters, and gone; the expense for victualling, drink, and more especially hands' wages, running high, as we could hire no otherwise than by the day, and a lighter at three shillings per day for shipping cattle the whole time, she much damaged, &c.

If the within charge is thought reasonable, please to pay the sum to the bearer, Ezra L'Hommedieu, Esq., and his receipt shall be your discharge. We looked on the vessel in this affair at the risk of the Congress, and if it be more agreeable to pay the damage, charter, and whole expense, I shall be satisfied, or settle the matter in any other way that your Honours shall judge just and right.

I am, gentlemen, your friend and humble servant,

SAMUEL BROWN.

To the honourable Congress of New-York, now convened at Fishkill.

N. B. The Chairman of this Committee now absent attending the Assembly, could not write or attest what I have exhibited. S. BROWN.

GOVERNOUR OF RHODE-ISLAND TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, November 6th, 1776.

SIR: The General Assembly of this State have ordered two battalions to be immediately raised, agreeable to the requisition of the honourable Continental Congress, signified to them in a letter from the President of that august body.

Congress recommended that a Committee should be appointed to repair to the Army, and there appoint the officers; but as your Excellency was pleased to enclose in your favour of the 12th ultimo a list of such gentlemen as would be agreeable to you to receive commissions, the General Assembly strictly adhered to your nomination, although Lieutenant Pendleton and Lieutenant Crandall belong to the State of Connecticut, and Ensign Hunniwell to Massachusetts-Bay. Colonel Varnum is complimented with a commission by this State; but as General Greene, in his letter, has signified that Colonel Varnum will decline the appointment, the vacancy can be filled with Colonel Greene, who was upon the Canada expedition.

The General Assembly have not appointed any of those gentlemen who are now upon their parole, but leave that trouble for your Excellency and General Greene to do, as soon as they may consistent with honour receive commissions.

Your Excellency was pleased to mention the advantages that would result to the Army by a judicious choice of men of strict honour and reputation to officer the two battalions. The General Assembly are very sensible of the great benefit that will arise by having such men only appointed; and as the officers in the two old battalions have been immediately under your Excellency's command, and the two battalions heretofore raised by this State have now joined the Army, the General Assembly could devise no better means of effecting that salutary measure than referring the filling up of all vacancies in the two battalions now raising to your Excellency and General Greene, which they have done, and desire that the officers nominated may belong to this State, as they suppose this to be the meaning of Congress; and request your Excellency that those appointed may immediately inlist every man possible belonging to the four Rhode-Island battalions, in order to complete this State's quota, and that you would be pleased to give every necessary indulgence to the inlisting officers that can consistently be done to effect the same.

The Assembly requests that your Excellency would immediately despatch as many recruiting officers to this State as can well be spared from duty in order to effect the completing of the battalion, if they cannot be reinlisted out of the Rhode-Island forces now in the Army. Attention will be paid to the officers sent upon this occasion, that they be such as are most likely to succeed in the business. The General Assembly being extremely anxious that the two battalions should be forthwith raised, have, as a further encouragement for the soldiers to inlist, granted a bounty of twenty dollars, to be paid by this State to each and every non-commissioned officer and private soldier who shall so inlist, over and above the provision made for them by Congress.

Messrs. Hazard and Holden, the bearers, will deliver to your Excellency blank commissions for the officers, which you will please to cause to be immediately filled and delivered to the gentlemen you approbate.

Your Excellency will be pleased to excuse the trouble that the General Assembly have laid on you from the necessity, they not knowing who will accept of commissions.

Messrs. Hazard and Holden are appointed Paymasters to the battalions ordered to be raised by this State, and are furnished with money to pay the extra bounty allowed by this State, and are to assist in inlisting the men.

At the request and in behalf of the General Assembly, I have the honour to subscribe myself, with great esteem and respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

NICH'S COOKE.

General Washington.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO THOMAS CUSHING.

Providence, November 6th, 1776.

Sir: I received yours, and have inquired, and find that there is no light duck on board the ship Captain Manly told you of, but there is a fourteen-inch cable, of about one hundred and twenty or thirty fathoms, which has never been used, though it has been on board a year. The Captain of the ship tells me it was made in London, and he thinks it a very good one. I spoke to Mr. Tillinghast, the agent here, and he says, if it suits you, you may have the cable for the same weight in other rigging, or for what he gives for rigging here, which is the extravagant price of twenty dollars per hundred; but as the greatest part of it belongs to the Continent it is no great matter as to the price. If the cable should suit you, please to write to Mr. Daniel Tillinghast, as I shall go to Newport to-morrow, and perhaps to sea before I return.

I am, with great respect, sir, your humble servant,
Esek Hopkins.

To Thomas Cushing, Esq., at Boston.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GEN. GATES.

State of New-Hampshire,
In Committee of Safety, November 6, 1776.

Sir: The bearer, Mr. James Anderson, employed by this State to ride express to Ticonderoga, waits on you to receive any commands you may have on this State. Hoping success may attend your endeavours for supporting the rights of America, in behalf of the Committee, I subscribe myself your humble servant.

General Gates.

MATTHEW TILGHMAN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Annapolis, November 7th, 1776.

Sir: Mrs. Chamier being desirous of going to Lord Howe's camp on a visit to her husband, I am directed by Convention to request that you, sir, will grant her a passport to the American camp, with a recommendation to General Washington to grant permission to Mrs. Chamier to visit her husband, on giving her parole of honour not to say or do any thing to the injury of the United States, or any of them.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,
Math. Tilghman, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress, at Philadelphia.

GEORGE WOOLSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, of 7th November, 1776.

Gentlemen: Yesterday I received a few lines from Mr. Ridgely, by your orders, requesting my presence at Annapolis, to take charge of a ten-gun schooner. He also says he wrote me a few days ago, which I never received; if I had, I should have answered it. I am much obliged to you, gentlemen, for your good opinion of me in giving me a preference; and I wish my health would have permitted me to accept of it. At present I am under the care of Doctor Weisenthall, and he will not permit me to be out at night or get wet. Such a person I am sure is not fit to serve the publick in the capacity you propose for me. Within this week I think I am something better, and he gives me hopes; if I get able by the spring, be assured I will not draw back my service from the publick. I expect my brother here every day. On his arrival I shall write you about him. I know he has offered his service to the publick, and believe he does not intend to draw back. I wish he would suit you for this vessel, as I make no doubt of his accepting of it. He is now at Colonel Trevers's, on Hooper's Island. Was sick when he went there, but expect him every day.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,
Geo. Woolsey.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

CAPTAIN SMITH'S COMPANY OF MATROSSES TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

November 7th, 1776.

Honoured Sir: Our present situation obliges us to request (having no one in the company that will see us done justice to,) I hope your Honour will please to consider us, and see our cause righted. Your Honour was pleased to order us leggins and draws, which we have never received. Hunting-shirts not one half of the company received. In regard to our provisions that's allowed us by the Convention, we don't receive but bare meat, bread, and beer. Our allowance is as follows: Beef, one pound per day; bread, one pound per day; beer, one quart per day; rum, one gill per day. In short, we are allowed meal, pork, peas, vinegar, molasses, soap, salt, candles, &c., forty shillings per month, which we don't receive but thirty-five shillings, which is too little to keep us in shoes and stockings, every thing is at such an extravagant price—shoes fifteen shillings per pair, linen seven or eight shillings per yard, stockings seventeen or eighteen shillings per pair.

We hope your Honour will please to take our cause in hand, and see us done justice to. If we don't meet with a speedy redress from your Honour, we must be under the necessity of petitioning the Convention, as we can never subsist this winter on the provisions we receive at present.

Your Honour's obedient and humble servants.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

WILLIAM WHIPPLE TO JOHN LANGDON.

Philadelphia, 7th November, 1776.

My dear Sir: My last was by the schooner Betsey, by whom through your favour I shipped twelve barrels flour. I now take the liberty to enclose James Miller's receipt for the same. Have desired Mrs. W. to settle the freight with you, and shall also desire her to apologize for the trouble I give you. I have got an order on the Treasury, and shall honour your drafts whenever they appear.

I mentioned by Colonel Bartlett how matters stood respecting the guns, and cannot help flattering myself you'll have them from Connecticut. The furnaces here have been very unfortunate. The guns that were brought down before I left this place last August, have been tried a second time, and many of them would not stand the proof, so that there is not guns in this city for one ship.

The President tells me he has forwarded the commissions for the officers. It happened unlucky for the officers of the Raleigh, that the rank was established before my arrival; had not that have been the case, I am inclined to think they would have been higher on the list; however, their merit, I am in no doubt, will recommend them to promotion.

The Marine Committee have received a letter from the Committee of Providence, in answer to one sent them, in consequence of what you wrote Colonel Bartlett, a copy of which, also a copy of one from Governour Hopkins, (who is now at Providence,) I shall procure and transmit, and leave you to comment on them; in the mean time I'll undertake to defend you against calumny.

I have just received your favour of the 21st ultimo. Your giving up to Captain Plance his small adventure is, in my opinion, very right; but by some hints that have been dropped, am inclined to think that some gentlemen suppose you have exceeded your power. Captain Bowden, I find, has preferred a petition, which is referred to a committee. I have a letter from Colonel Wentworth on the subject, which I shall answer in a day or two. I heartily wish there may be some method adopted whereby that gentleman may be relieved, but must confess am doubtful of the success of his petition—for a publick body to break their own general rules may be attended with evil consequences; however, I shall do all in my power to have this matter determined as speedily as possible, and shall use my endeavours to serve Captain Bowden, so far as (in my opinion) is consistent with the publick good.

I have no news to tell you. Accounts from abroad are very favourable; hope to have it in my power to transmit you some pleasing intelligence shortly; in the mean time I wish effectual measures may be taken to procure clothing for the Army. Congress pass resolves and send them abroad, but gentlemen, even those who compose publick bodies, suffer their attention to be so much engrossed by their private interest, that the publick concerns of the utmost importance are neglected, notwithstanding their own and their country's salvation is at stake. Our Army are in good spirits; but can it be expected that that will be the case long, when they are almost naked? Congress have been disappointed in some goods that was expected some time ago; perhaps they will still arrive; no doubt some will. In the mean time it has been recommended to the several States to make all the provision they can, but I don't see that such recommendation has any effect. I have wrote very freely, but hope you'll make a prudent use of it. I by no means would discourage; my desire is to animate every one to exert himself in the glorious cause in which America is engaged; for my own part I have not a doubt of success in the end, but my wish is to put a speedy end to slaughter and devastation, which already is great, but must be still greater, if the war continues, which nothing will prevent but the utmost exertions of the friends to liberty and humanity: such exertions, under the smiles of Heaven, will restore peace to, and establish happiness in this western world.

Our last accounts from the Army is favourable; General Lee, in a private letter to a friend, says that Howe has but two moves more, in which we shall checkmate him. I must leave the explanation of this to those who understand the game of chess. A report is just arrived that many Hessians had deserted. If this proves true, it's a favourable circumstance; great pains have been taken to persuade those people that they would be massacred if they fell into the hands of the Americans. Those that have been taken are very agreeably disappointed, and say that if their countrymen were undeceived, there would be a general revolt; some measures have been taken for this purpose, and perhaps with effect.

Enclosed you have some late resolutions of Congress repecting the Navy. Some further proposals are before Congress, which I expect will be soon taken up.

Present my regards wherever due, and be assured of the best wishes of your friend, &c.,

WM. WHIPPLE.

November, 10th.—General Howe not liking the situation of our Army, removed very suddenly in the night from White-Plains, where he has been encamped. This movement was a matter of great speculation in our Army, but from the observations made on his motions, it was conjectured that he intended to cross over to New-Jersey. General Washington has detached about four thousand, under the command of General Putnam, over the river above him, in order to give him a proper reception on this side. Advice is just arrived that the enemy had retreated from Crown-Point. The particulars of this affair is hourly expected by an express that's on the road.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, November 7, 1776.

Resolved, That the Salt purchased by the Council for the use of the inhabitants of this State shall be proportioned to the several Counties, as near as may be, according to the number of inhabitants in each; and that the quantity allotted to each County be delivered to such persons as shall apply for it, by order of the several Committees, on their paying the prime cost of fifteen shillings per bushel, to be distributed by said Committees amongst the people at the same price, expense of carriage only added.

Extract from the Minutes:

JACOB S. HOWELL, Secretary.

There are in store a few wagon loads ready to be delivered for each County.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Lee, November 7, 1776.

DEAR SIR: By an express from Major Clarke, stationed at Dobbs's Ferry, I find the enemy are encamped right opposite, to the number of between three and five thousand, and the Major adds, from their disposition and search after boats they design to cross the river. A frigate and two transports or provision ships passed the cheveau-de-frise night before last; they were prodigiously shattered from the fire of our cannon. The same evening, Colonel Tupper attempted passing the ships with the pettiaugers loaded with flour. The enemy manned several barges, two tenders, and a row-galley, and attacked them. Our people run the pettiaugers ashore, and landed and defended them. The enemy attempted to land several times, but were repulsed. The fire lasted about an hour and a half, and the enemy moved off. Colonel Tupper still thinks he can transport the provisions in flat-boats. A second attempt shall be speedily made. We lost one man mortally wounded.

General Mercer writes me the Virginia troops are coming on. They are now at Trent-Town. He proposes an attack on Staten-Island; but the motions of the enemy are such I think necessary for them to come forward as fast as possible. On York-Island, the enemy have taken possession of the far hill next to Spiten-Devil. I think they will not be able to penetrate any further. There appears to be about fifteen hundred of them. From the enemy's motions I should be apt to suspect they were retreating from your Army, or, at least, altering their operations.

Mr. Lovell, who at last is enlarged from his confinement, reports that Colonel Allen, his fellow prisoner, was informed that transports were getting in readiness to sail at a moment's warning sufficient to transport fifteen thousand men.

The officers of Colonel Hands's regiment are here with inlisting orders. The officers of the Pennsylvania regiments think it a grievance (such of them as are commissioned for the new establishment) that the officers of other regiments should have the privilege of inlisting their men before they get orders. I have stopped it until I learn your Excellency's pleasure. General Ewing is very much opposed to it. You'll please to favour me with a line on the subject.

I am, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's obedient servant,

NATH'L GREENE.

To his Excellency General Washington, at White-Plains.
Favoured by General Morris.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON.

White-Plains, 7th November, 1776.

SIR: On Tuesday morning the enemy broke up their encampments which were in front of our lines, after having remained there several days without attempting any thing. They have gone towards the North River and King's Bridge. This sudden and unexpected movement is a matter of much speculation. Some suppose they are going into winter quarters, and will sit down in New-York, without doing more than investing Fort Washington. I cannot subscribe wholly to this opinion myself. That they will invest Fort Washington is a matter of which there can be no doubt; and I think there is a strong probability that General Howe will detach a part of his force to make an incursion into Jersey, provided he is going to New-York. He must attempt something on account of his reputation, for what has he done as yet with his great Army?

Persuaded that an expedition to the Jerseys will succeed his arrival in New-York, with a detachment of his Army, as soon as I can be satisfied that the present manœuvre is a real retreat and not a feint, I shall throw over a body of our troops, with the utmost expedition, to assist in checking their progress. At the same time, I beg leave to recommend to your consideration the propriety and necessity that some measures should be taken to place your Militia on the best footing possible, and that a part of 'em may be in readiness to supply the place of the troops (denominated new levies) from your State, whose time of service will presently expire. Your vigilance and attention I know will not be wanting in any instance; yet there is one thing more I will take the liberty to mention, that is, that the inhabitants contiguous to the water should be prepared to remove their stock, grain, effects, and carriages, upon the earliest notice. If they are not, the calamities they will suffer will be beyond all description, and the advantages derived to the enemy immensely great. They have treated all here without discrimination. The distinction of Whig and Tory has been lost in one general scene of ravage and desolation. The article of forage is of great importance to 'em; not a blade should remain for their use. What cannot be removed with convenience should be consumed without the least hesitation. These several matters I thought it my duty to suggest to you, not doubting but you will give 'em such attention as they may seem to deserve; and that your own good judgment will point out many more necessary regulations adapted to the exigency of our affairs.

I do not know the state of the barracks about Elizabeth-Town, Amboy, and Brunswick. They may be exceedingly necessary to cover our troops. I think it will be advisable to have them examined, and that you should direct such necessary repairs to be made as they may require.

I have the honour to be, with sentiments of respect, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Livingston, New-Jersey.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL GREENE.

White-Plains, November 7th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The enemy, after having encamped in full view of us and reconnoitring our situation for several days, thought proper, on Tuesday morning, to decamp. They have bent their course to Dobbs's Ferry, inclining towards King's Bridge. What their real designs are, we, as yet, are strangers to; but conjecturing that too little is yet done by General Howe to go into winter quarters, we conceive that Fort Washington will be an object for part of his force, whilst New-Jersey may claim the attention of the other part.

To guard against the evils arising from the first, I must recommend to you to pay every attention in your power, and give every assistance you can, to the garrison opposite to you. To guard against the latter, it has been determined (but this as much as possible under the rose) in a council of war to throw over a body of troops so soon as we can with more precision ascertain the destination of the enemy into the Jerseys. To facilitate this move, the Quartermaster General has sent over for teams to meet the troops at the ferry above; and I should be glad to know your sentiments of the place they should be marched to as best for covering the inhabitants and impeding their progress towards Philadelphia, if such a scheme is in contemplation. Would not Brunswick be the most likely place to answer this end? or is it too far from New-York? They can have no capital object in view unless it is Philadelphia. Making excursions only into the Jerseys, unless it is for forage, is playing no more than a small game, but such a one as may be necessary for them and distressing to the farmers; for which reason the inhabitants should always be prepared to drive off their wagons, teams, and stock, that neither of them may fall into the hands of the enemy. Impress this speedily and forcibly upon them. They may rely upon it, that the enemy will leave nothing they find among them, nor do they discriminate between Whig and Tory. Woful experience has convinced the latter, in the movements of the enemy in this State, of this truth.

If you have not already sent my boxes with camp tables and chairs, be so good as to let them remain with you, as I do not know but I shall move with the troops designed for the Jerseys, persuaded as I am of their having turned their views that way. I am of opinion that if your magazines at Princetown were increased and those in the vicinity of New-York lessened, it would be better. We find great risk and inconvenience arising from having stores near navigation. Perhaps a magazine at Brunswick might not be amiss. The barracks there should be got in order.

I am, very sincerely, dear sir, your most obedient,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Greene.

---

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

White-Plains, November 7th, 1776.

SIR: In obedience to his Excellency's command, I am to inform you that yesterday the General Officers met, to take a summary view of our affairs. They appeared to be critical and truly alarming, on account of the approaching dissolution of our Army, and the departure of a large part of it, under the denomination of New Levies, on the eve of taking place.

Impressed with the importance of these matters, at a time when the enemy have a very numerous and formidable force watching an opportunity to execute their plans and to spread ruin and devastation among us, the council unanimously advised that application should be made to several of the States for supplies of Militia to fill the places of those who are now here, and in part the vacancies which will be occasioned by the return of the levies. The hope and prospect of raising a new army within a convenient time is so little, and the consequences so evidently alarming, if a sufficient is not kept up to counteract the designs of the enemy, that the council were of opinion that they should be engaged, if possible, to continue in service till the 1st of March, unless their return could be sooner dispensed with; flattering themselves that by that time, if not long before, such an army will be levied as to render any future claims of their service altogether unnecessary, unless in case of the most pressing necessity.

His Excellency, well knowing the exertions of your State and the difficulties you have experienced on account of the frequent large drafts from it from time to time, declines mentioning any particular or precise quota as necessary to be furnished by you, and means only to submit the propriety of the requisition, and the performance of it, to your consideration, fully confiding that whatever aid is in your power will be most readily granted. His Excellency thinks it material that some measures should be adopted for the purpose especially, as the Militia which lately came under General Saltonstall are extremely impatient to return. Two or three of their Colonels applied to him yesterday for that purpose, urging that they had not engaged for any particular time. He could not grant their request in the present situation of our affairs, but has little doubt but many of the men, as they have already, will go off.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

R. H. HARRISON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

---

GENERAL McDOUGALL TO COLONEL DE WITT.

White-Plains, 7th November, 1776.

SIR: Since Mr. Harper and you left me, I find, that if Henry G. Livingston, late Brigade-Major to Lord Stirling, should be appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of my old regiment, those officers who are worth retaining in the service will not continue. I therefore judge it my duty to give you this intelligence. As I expect my brigade will move in a few days I cannot answer Mr. Cortlandt's letter on the subject of the clothing of the troops, till we take our next post. The enemy have moved to the northward and westward towards Dobbs's Ferry yesterday, but we have not been able with certainty to gather their design. They have destroyed all furniture before them, and drove off the cattle and sheep within their reach.

Time will only permit me to add, that I am, with respect, your humble servant,

ALEX'R McDOUGALL.

To Colonel Charles De Witt, Esq., Member of Convention of New-York.

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp North-Castle, 7th November, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: A lordly mansion never contained more health and contentment than the little cell, half under ground, that we occupy here in the fields, dwelling with my own people. The soldiery have become very ragged, often very dirty, and sometimes hungry, without the means to satisfy. They daily called to fatigue or other duty, if not to uncommon hardships, yet they go to, and through all, with alertness and cheerfulness—I speak of my own regiment in particular. I wish I could retain them in service. I am much concerned for the Army, between the old and the new inlistment. The old troops cannot be indulged with furloughs; they will not, I fear, inlist again without such a privilege.

The enemy have retreated from White-Plains. It was a happy thought, the burning of a few houses upon our retreat from thence. That measure convinced them they had little to expect from penetrating the country. They saw how much we would sacrifice to the safety of our Army and disadvantage of theirs; at the same time it must have struck terrour into the Tories and influence them in our favour from the strong motive of interest, as they perceive their dwellings, &c., depend on our success.

7th, P. M.—The enemy are gone from their lines on the Sound. Do not yet learn their route; it is not unlikely they are returning to the city by way of Frog's Point, where they first landed, and near where their ships have been ever since laying; or may be, they will take a shorter way and go down the post-road; if so we shall hear of them at Fort Washington. We are told they insisted on taking their good friends the Tories along with them, though much against the inclination of the latter. They will serve them to bear burdens, if not to bear arms. I wish more of them might fall in their way. We do not find that the British Army show them any favour, except here and there a particular one. A Scot soldier, of more than common understanding for his class, who lately deserted, tells that the British officers are often disputing with one another on the merits of the controversy; that they begin to own us to be good soldiers save the want of a little more discipline; that the Army is very sickly.

Eight o'clock, Thursday Eve.—This moment an express from Head-Quarters, ordering Colonel Throop's regiment to march immediately, the rest of us to be in readiness, upon information that the enemy intend to take the passes at the Highlands. Fellows's brigade are ordered to Croton's Ferry to interrupt them; Bell's brigade to follow.

I am, with love and respect to mother, son, &c., your affectionate son,

JED. HUNTINGTON.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER DATED NORTH-CASTLE, NOVEMBER 7, 1776.

Since I wrote you the other day, an event has taken place which I think will finish this campaign: the enemy have suddenly and unexpectedly decamped. The general opinion is, that they are going into winter quarters at New-York; and indeed some of the deserters or prisoners told us this was what they intended; but I think the season is not yet so far advanced as to render this step immediately necessary. It is probable they will take Fort Washington in their return, or rather, that our people will abandon it, by which means they will at last become masters of New-York Island. They have become possessed of more territory this campaign than the last, but they will derive very little if any more advantage from it, than from their possessions in and about Boston: of honour, they will hardly gain so much, for they do not deserve it.

Let us review their mighty deeds: Two hundred sail of British ships gained possession of Staten-Island, a sandy spot of very little extent, inhabited by Tories, who surrendered it to them without firing a gun. At Long-Island they gained more credit, for by fighting they obtained a part of it, but much the largest part remains in our possession yet. The city of New-York, and every other place the enemy became masters of, was evacuated by us, and not conquered by them, except a small hill at White-Plains, which they bought and paid a high price for (by their own accounts) in British blood. This very hill they have now given up to us, as they did Bunker's, last campaign. In every battle and skirmish, except at Long-Island and the hill above-mentioned, we have been victorious. Now what have they to boast of? Nothing but a little territory which we evacuated, and by evacuating it obtained important advantages. Will this repay the expenses of the largest fleet and army Great Britain ever sent to America? Have all the enemy's exertions effected the so-much talked-of junction with Burgoyne, which was to produce wonders? Have they subjugated the "rebellious Americans"—the grand design of their coming here? Nothing of all this; but, to the eternal disgrace of Lord and General Howe, impartial history will record that they crossed an ocean of three thousand miles, with a fleet of three or four hundred sail, an army of near thirty thousand men, and a very large train of artillery, to subdue men who had been declared in the British Parliament to be "cowards;" and after all, marched but twelve miles from their ships during a whole summer and part of the fall, and then went into winter quarters. How is the glory of Britain fallen! how have her arms been sullied! I think General Howe must feel very much ashamed of himself.

Six sailors and three soldiers (prisoners) are brought in this morning: the sailors were sent on shore to get wood. I have been talking with the prisoners. The soldiers say the talk in their camp is, that the enemy intend attacking Fort Washington, and then retiring into winter quarters at New-York.

I must not omit telling you of a clever exploit of some Connecticut Rangers under Major Colburn. When the enemy attacked the lines of Harlem, these Rangers took a forewheel and a hind-wheel of a wagon, and fixed an axletree to them; upon the axletree they placed a keg which would contain about ten gallons, mounted like a mortar; in this they put a canteen with two cartridges in it, and fixed a rope to each end of the axletree. Another person got a pitchfork and wrapped some rags about it to make it look like a sponge. Thus equipped about forty of them marched off dragging their mortar with them; when they got within a proper distance of the enemy, they set fire to the cartridges in the canteen, and fired a volley of small-arms. The enemy observing the keg, mistook it for a mortar, and ran away with great precipitation. I have this piece of intelligence from an officer who saw the whole transaction, and from another who was told of it at Fort Washington. I think the epithet of cowards may be justly retorted; not from this instance only, but from others which might be mentioned.

The Light-Horse are certainly a set of poltroons. I have already sent you several instances of their cowardice, such as their retreating upon a single shot being fired at them at White-Plains; suffering a few of our Riflemen to take thirty sheep from them, &c., which you will easily recollect.

Since writing the above two more prisoners have been taken. They are a sergeant and private of the Grenadiers. And a drummer and fifer have deserted from the enemy. We are this minute informed that ten more prisoners have been taken by the scouting parties.

November 8.—The enemy's left wing is at Dobbs's Ferry; their right about three miles nearer New-York. Entre nous, I think the enemy must try to strike some important stroke which will make a noise before they go into winter quarters. From their lying along the river I suspect they intend either to enter New-Jersey, or make a push up the North River. In either case we are ready for them.

I have heard nothing about the packet, except that some women who live about two miles below the White-Plains, at whose house some British officers lodged, heard one of the officers say to the other that a packet had arrived which had brought d—d bad news. The very next morning the Army began to remove.

COMFORT SANDS TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fish-Kill, November 7, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to an order of Convention of the 20th September last to me, to prepare the publick accounts of this State, to be transmitted to the Treasury Office of the United States, at Philadelphia, I have to inform you that I have used the utmost diligence to complete them, but have not been able finally to do it, as there still remain some few accounts unsettled, which will be Continental. However, have got them in such a state as to be able to settle the greatest part; the remainder of them have a prospect of soon getting, which can be forwarded to me.

I apprehend it will be necessary for me to have an ample power from the Convention to take with me all the accounts and vouchers, as the Continental and Provincial accounts are so blended in the same vouchers that no separation can be made. I submit whether it will not be necessary for me to have discretionary power to settle the Continental account in the best manner I can.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

COMFORT SANDS.

To P. V. Cortlandt, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO COÖPERATE WITH GENERAL SCHUYLER.

The Committee appointed to coöperate with General Schuyler in devising and carrying into execution all such measures as they shall deem most effectual for repelling the invasion of the enemy's Army on the northern and western frontiers of this State, do report that they have, agreeable to order, performed the services assigned them, in the manner set forth in the Minutes of their proceedings, and the several papers numbered from No. 1 to No. 41, which are submitted this 7th day of November, 1776.

The Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, convened at Fishkill, by their Resolves entered into the 19th October, 1776, appointed Brigadier-General Ten Broeck, Evert Banker, Robert R. Livingston, Jacob Cuyler, Robert Yates, John Bleecker, Christopher Yates, John Taylor, John Ten Broeck, James Duane, Volkert Veeder, and William Harpèr, a Committee, in order to coöperate with Major-General Schuyler in devising and carrying into execution all such measures as they shall deem most effectual for repelling the invasion of the enemy's Army on the northern and western frontiers of this State; and that for the purpose of carrying into execution the said Resolves, any four of the above number, together with the Chairman, be a quorum.

Albany, October 24th, 1776.

And after having the Resolves read, thereupon proceeded to the choice of a Chairman, and appointed Robert Yates Chairman of the said Committee.

Resolved, That a Letter be sent to General Schuyler, and that R. R. Livingston prepare a draft for that purpose.

Mr. Livingston produced a draft, which being read and agreed to,

Ordered, To be engrossed, [front the Letter No. 1,] which was sent off by express the same evening.

Resolved further, That another Letter be despatched to P. R. Livingston, Esq., President of the Convention, acquainting him with the measures taken by this Committee, and suggesting what ought to be done below, and that Mr. Duane draft the same.

Resolved further, That Mr. Avery, the Deputy Commissary, be requested to render an estimate of the Provisions at the different Posts under his direction.

A Paper, dated the 24th instant, (marked No. 2,) signed by Thomas Esmay, a Sergeant in Colonel Whereupon, Resolved, That the Second Battalion of the Claverack Militia, commanded by Colonel Van Ness, and now at Schuyler's Ferry, be ordered to return to this city, to be ready to march for the suppression of the said insurgents. And an express was despatched accordingly.

Resolved, That a Spy be sent among the insurgents, to discover their numbers, motions, and designs.

Colonel Van Schaack having recommended a soldier of his battalion for that purpose, he was accordingly despatched, with instructions, and promise of a reward of ten pounds if he should perform the service satisfactorily.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Met according to adjournment.

Present: Robert Yates, President, James Duane, Jacob Cuyler, Robert R. Livingston, John Ten Broeck, John Taylor.

A Letter from Colonel Whiting, of King's District battalion, dated at King's District, the 24th instant, was read, (marked No. 3,) giving information of a number of disaffected persons in that District.

Resolved, That an officer and fifteen men, of the Albany Rangers, commanded by Captain Baldwin, and now quartered in this city, be immediately despatched to assist in opposing and securing the said insurgents; and that application be made to the Committee of Albany, under whose directions the said Rangers are, for that purpose. Which was accordingly done and agreed to.

Resolved, That a Letter be written to Colonel Whiting, directing and authorizing him to raise and detain for the same service the well-affected Militia remaining in that District, and to call on the nearest Township in the Massachusetts-Bay for such a number of men as will, together with his own and the Rangers, make up one hundred; and that he be further directed to see the men properly supplied with provisions, agreeable to the Continental allowance, upon which they will be placed both with respect to pay and rations. The whole body to be commanded by the said Colonel Whiting until he shall be superseded by a superiour officer.

The draft of a Letter to Colonel Whiting was read and approved of.

Ordered, To be copied, signed by the Chairman, and sent off by express. (Front the Letter No. 4.)

Mr. Avery, agreeable to request, delivered in an estimate of Provisions at the different stations. (See the Estimate, No. 5.)

It was represented to this Committee that Dr. Henry Van Dyck, Cornelius Glen, Benjamin French, Jacob A. Lansing, John Stevenson, Henry Ten Eyck, John Van Allen, John Visscher, of Schenectady, Major Edminston, a half-pay officer, Peter Van Schaack, Peter Vasburg, Robert Oksly, James Dole, Baker, John Tryon, are persons disaffected to the cause of American liberty, and that their stay in the County of Albany will be dangerous.

And thereupon, Resolved, That the members of this Committee who are members of the Committee of the County, wait on the Committee of the said County, and submit it to their consideration (if they have just grounds of their unfriendly disposition) to remove them out of this State immediately.

Whereas it is represented to this Committee that there are many disaffected persons in the Manor of Livingston and its neighbourhood, and that the remaining Militia who can be relied on are few in number and illy armed:

Resolved, That a Letter be written to the Commanding Officer of the Manor Regiment, directing him to detain the Militia there, and hold them in readiness to suppress any insurrections among the disaffected in that part of the State, or wherever else they may be ordered by this Committee or the Committee of Safety of the State of New-York.

Resolved, That the Committee of the Manor of Livingston be requested to arm and equip the Company of Rangers raised in that District immediately, and order them to be quartered at or near the place of rendezvous, and kept in readiness for immediate service; and that a copy thereof be sent to Lieutenant-Colonel Henry Livingston, of the Manor of Livingston. Which was accordingly done.

Mr. Duane, according to order, produced a draft of a Letter to Peter R. Livingston, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York; which was read and approved of, and ordered to be signed and sent, together with the several papers referred to in the said Letter. (See No. 6.)

John Vanden Bergh was brought before this Committee for examination. He is a person who lives near the Hellebergh, and suspected to be well acquainted with the proceedings and designs of the disaffected in those parts; which he, upon a long examination and with great backwardness, at last discovered. (See the Examination, No. 7.)

Agreed, To despatch a messenger to Colonel Vanden Bergh and Captain Slingerlandt, requesting their attendance on this Committee, to inform them of the situation of the country in and about the places alluded to in the above examination, and to march with Colonel Van Ness's Regiment, as guides, to those places. Which messenger was despatched accordingly.

Adjourned to-morrow morning.

Met according to adjournment.

Present: Robert Yates, Chairman, John Ten Broeck, Robert R. Livingston, John Taylor, Jacob Cuyler, James Duane.

Colonel Vanden Bergh and Captain Slingerlandt appeared according to request, and with them Lieutenant Luke. Colonel Vanden Bergh produced returns of such persons in his regiment who have not marched up with the Militia of the County; and it appears by other information, that most of them are such as have collected themselves in and about the Hellebergh, for the purpose of opposing by force the measures of Congress.

Agreed upon sending a Letter to Captain John Bradt, at Coxsackie; which was accordingly done. (Front the Letter No. 8.)

Colonel Van Schaack being sent for, and asked whether he could spare about fifty of the Continental troops two or three days, to march under the directions of this Committee to the Hellebergh, and he agreeing to it, he was desired to order them under the command of Captain Hicks, to be in readiness as soon as possible.

Captain Baldwin was also called in, and informed this Committee that he had only about fifteen men of his company of Rangers, which he was ordered to hold themselves in readiness for the same purpose.

Colonel Van Ness was ordered to detach eighty men out of his regiment for the same service, and the remaining part of his regiment are to remain in this city to perform the duty of those troops who are ordered out.

Resolved, That Captain Abraham Slingerlandt, of Colonel Vanden Bergh's regiment of Militia, be ordered to attend the above detachments, as a guide in the route they are to take for the apprehending the disaffected persons.

Resolved, That a set of Instructions be drawn for Major Ford and the party under his command.

Which said Instructions being drawn and agreed to,

Ordered, That the same be copied, and given to the said Major, for his conduct. (See the Instructions, No. 9.)

Resolved, That an answer be sent to Convention; and that copies of the Letters received from General Schuyler be therein enclosed.

Which is accordingly done, and sent by the return of the Express. (See the draft, No. 14.)

The General thereupon acquainting this Committee that he had ordered Colonel Dayton with his regiment to halt on their march until they should hear from this Committee, and that if a sufficient body of Militia could not be sent to secure Tryon County, that Colonel Dayton is to obey the directions of this Committee. (See No. 15, 16, 17.)

Which was accordingly done. (Front the draft of the Letter, No. 18.)

Resolved, That an Answer be sent to him, requiring his return and the party under his command to this city, as soon as their business is accomplished. (No. 22.)

Resolved, That an order be issued to the Commissary, Mr. Avery, to victual Major Ford's party with three days' Provisions.

Which was accordingly done, and sent up by some of the wagons belonging to the party.

John Vanden Bergh again appearing before this Committee, and discovering nothing further respecting the Tories in and about the Hellebergh, he was thereupon dismissed, and for his former services he was given forty shillings.

A draft of a Letter was prepared to be sent to General Herkimer, which was agreed to, and ordered to be copied and sent, and a copy thereof ordered to be enclosed in General Schuyler's Letter.

Mr. Dirck Swart was called in, in order to give this Committee information of such particulars as he heard at Bennington respecting two Letters which had been received by their Committee from Commissary Young and Deputy Adjutant-General Trumbull; and the information he gave is as follows. (See the Examination on the file subscribed by Mr. Swart, No. 23.)

October 29, 1776.

Present: Robert Yates, Chairman, James Duane, Robert R. Livingston, John Ten Broeck, Jacob Cuyler, John Taylor.

Major Ford, with the party under his command, returned from the Hellebergh, and reports, that he could not discover any parties of disaffected persons assembled together; that he had traversed the country, and found that most of the inhabitants had absconded; that he has apprehended, however, (see his Narrative, Letter A,) John Reid, John Long,

Gerrit Slingerlandt, Wouter Slingerlandt, Myndert Bradt, John Seeger, Jeremiah Pemberton, John Halenbeeck, (who he discharged,) Gerrit Seeger, Mathys Hoghtailing, (who he released, but retained his arms.)

Thereupon the Committee proceeded to the examination of John Reid, John Long, and Myndert Bradt.

As to the first, upon examination, his character appears suspicious, and therefore he was remanded to jail.

As to the second, that is to say, John Long, he appears to have been misled; and professing his hearty repentance, and promising a ready concurrence with the measures of Congress, was thereupon dismissed upon his promise to go up and join his Militia regiment at Fort Edward. (No. 24.)

Myndert Bradt appeared to be an ignorant lad, of about seventeen years, but not sufficiently candid, was thereupon remanded.

Received from General Schuyler a Letter of the 29th instant, in answer to that of yesterday's date, acquainting this Committee that he had ordered Colonel Dayton's regiment to prosecute their march to the northward, and that about four hundred of the Militia were ordered to march from Fort Edward to Tryon County, to be under the command of General Herkimer or Colonel Van Schaick, whom he had ordered into that quarter, with the two companies of his regiment up with him. (See No. 25.)

Thereupon Ordered, That Mr. Avery, the Deputy Commissary-General, be made acquainted with this movement, in order to be ready to furnish those Troops with Provisions.

Resolved further, That Captain Bradt march with his Company of Rangers into Tryon County, and to put himself under the command of Colonel Van Schaick, and that Captain Hager, with the party of Militia under his command, return to Schoharie, and hold themselves in readiness at a moment's warning, whenever they shall receive orders from Colonel Van Schaick, that they may contribute, with the rest of their fellow-subjects, who are now in arms, to the utmost of their power in defence of the rights and liberties of their country.

October 30, 1776.

From the information received from General Schuyler, it is judged necessary to alter the contents of the Letter intended to be sent to General Herkmyer. Which was accordingly done, and agreed to. (See the draft, No. 26.)

Mr. Duane prepared a draft of an Answer to General Schuyler's Letter of the 28th and 29th instant, which being read, approved of, and copied, was despatched by express, D. B. Van Schoonhoven, (No. 27.)

October 31, 1776.

Present: Robert Yates, Chairman, John Taylor, Jacob Cuyler, James Duane.

Received by the return of the Express sent yesterday to General Schuyler, an Answer, (see the Letter, No. 28.) and enclosing therein despatches for Colonel Van Schaick and Major Cochran, in Tryon County, which were by express immediately sent forward.

Also received a Letter from Colonel Whiting, from King's District, giving an account of the state of that District, and referring to two Affidavits brought up by the messenger. (Nos. 29, 30, and 31.)

Mr. Duane was requested to prepare a draft of a Letter to General Schuyler. Which being reported and agreed, ordered to be copied and sent. (No. 32.)

A draft of a Letter was also produced, directed to Colonel Whiting. Which being also agreed to, copied and sent by Major Bush. (No. 33.)

Also, another Letter to Colonel Van Rensselaer, which was sent by the same conveyance. (No. 34.)

November 1st, 1776.

Present: Robert Yates, Chairman, John Ten Broeck, James Duane, Jacob Cuyler, John Taylor.

By the return of the Express from the Fishkill, received the following Despatches from the Committee of Safety of New-York.

A Letter dated the 29th of October, (see the Letter, No. 35.) Enclosed therein a copy of their Resolves. (No. 36.)

Also, a copy of a Letter from Mr. Tilghman, from Head-Quarters. (No. 37.)

Resolved, That an Agent be appointed and empowered to purchase Wheat for the use of the Continental Army; and that he cause the same to be manufactured into Flour, and transported to such places where the same may be manufactured, with the utmost despatch.

Resolved, That if any shall so far disregard the safety and preservation of this country as to refuse to dispose of their Wheat, or other commodities necessary for the Army, on reasonable terms, (which this Committee have no cause to apprehend,) that the names of all such persons be forthwith returned to the Committee of Safety or Convention of this State, in order that proper measures may be devised for preventing the publick interest from being sacrificed by the disaffection or rapacity of individuals.

Resolved, That such Agent, if necessary, be authorized to impress Drivers, Wagons, Teams, or Carts, or other carriage, for the purpose of executing with the utmost despatch the Resolutions of this Committee.

Transmitted a copy of the above Resolutions to Mr. Avery, Deputy-Commissary, in a Letter. (See the draft, No. 38.)

November 2d, 1776.

Present: Robert Yates, Chairman, James Duane, Joh Ten Broeck, Jacob Cuyler, John Taylor.

Captain Stephen Lush furnished this Committee with a copy of a Letter, dated 20 October, 1776, from Joseph Trumbull to the Committee of Bennington. Also a copy of a Letter from James Yancey, Deputy-Commissary, to the said Committee, of the same date. (No. 39 and 40.)

Thereupon agreed to send for Mr. Avery, in order to be informed whether he has given information to Head-Quarters, at Ticonderoga, which could justify the reflections against the County of Albany, contained in one of those Letters; and also to know his reasons for not answering the Committee's Letter.

Mr. Avery was accordingly called in, and says, that he would have waited on the Committee before, but was, being much engaged, prevented; that he expects and has received considerable quantities of provisions. He was then told that this Committee were ready to give him their assistance, and that no exertions in the power of this State would be wanting to supply the Army, and that if he could point out anything that would be serviceable, it should be taken into consideration. He answered, that he would choose that an agent should, agreeable to the Committee's proposal, be appointed to purchase for manufacturing about one thousand bushels of flour; that he is also in want of coopers. Whereupon the Committee showed him the resolves of Convention respecting the exemption of coopers from militia duty, and that this Committee had already acquainted the County Committee with the said resolves, and that they had requested them to recall the coopers already gone up. He also said that he wanted about one thousand bushels of peas; that he does not know that he has met with any obstructions in transporting the provisions; that the Committee of Albany had promised him all the assistance in their power, but that (when he was in want of wagons when the Militia was called) he could not get a ready assistance, though he does not know but that the Committee did all in their power to assist him; that he has made no complaints to General Gates, but that he has wrote to the Commissary that there was a difficulty in getting wagons, because the Militia were called up that way. Mr. Duane thereupon read to him Mr. Yancey's letter to the Committee of Bennington, as also Mr. Trumbull's letter to the said Committee; thereupon he was asked from whom this information could arise. He said he had never given the Commissary any other information respecting the want of wagons, or the obstruction of their transportation, than what he has before related, and particularly that he had laid no blame on the inhabitants of the County of Albany; that the Committee of Albany have always behaved genteelly to him, and have readily offered their service to assist him; that the interruption of transporting the provisions occasioned by the calling out the Militia continued for a short time only. Whereupon the Committee declared, that as nothing could work a greater prejudice to the publick services, sowing the seeds of jealousy and distrust at so critical a conjuncture, the Committee should think it their duty to make the strictest inquiry into Mr. Yancey's letter, and the information and motives which induced him to write it; for that as on the one hand they would have taken care that any person who might have been guilty of obstructing the transportation, should be punished with the strictest severity, so it was equally their duty, if the charge in that letter were groundless, to have it publickly exposed, that the ill impressions which it had occasioned might be removed, and for this purpose they must request Mr. Avery, if he could do it consistently, to furnish this Committee with extracts or copies of such letters as he has lately sent to Ticonderoga upon the subject of transportation, either to General Gates or the Commissary there. He gave for answer, that he would; and thereupon withdrew.

In the afternoon he again waited on the Committee, and acquainted them that he had not kept copies of the letters which he had lately sent to Ticonderoga.

The Committee having, at their first interview with Mr. Avery, inquired further what quantity of provisions the Deputy Commissary-General had delivered over to him when he entered upon his office, answered, a sufficient quantity of beef, though but little flour. The Committee thereupon directed the late Deputy Commissary to lay before them a return of the flour delivered over by him to Mr. Avery, (No. 41,) which he accordingly did; from which it appears the quantity so delivered over, amounts to fourteen tierces and sixteen barrels of bread, sixteen Connecticut barrels and three thousand two hundred and nine New-York barrels of flour; being fifty-nine days' rations for eleven thousand men. At the interview with Mr. Avery on this day, the said return was produced to him, which he perused.

General Schuyler being arrived, and upon a conference with him respecting the situation of Tryon County:

Resolved, That General Schuyler be requested and authorized to issue his orders to the commanding or other officer in Tryon County, in case the enemy should invade the western frontiers of this State, to cause all the Cattle, Sheep, Swine, and Provisions, which may be exposed to their ravages, to be driven in and secured; or if that shall not be practicable, destroyed, that at all events they may not fall into the hands of the enemy. And for this purpose they are hereby authorized to impress Horses and Carriages.

Resolved further, That General Schuyler be furnished with a copy of the above Resolution.

The Committee entered into a conference with General Schuyler respecting the state of supplies for the Northern Army, and, among other things, inquired whether the transportation of provisions had been obstructed by the calling out the Militia, or from any other cause? In answer, the General informed the Committee that the Militia having been attended with a great number of baggage-wagons, he had immediately given orders for detaining and employing those carriages on the communication; that he had further ordered all the Militia of the Half-Moon District who chose, to be excused from military duty on condition that they would assist with their teams in transporting provisions, which a great number of them accordingly did; that in consequence of these measures the transportation, instead of being obstructed by calling out of the Militia, had been greatly facilitated; that he had never heard, nor did he believe, that the transportation had met with the least obstruction from any cause whatever, but, on the contrary, that provisions had been carried forward as soon as they were ready to be delivered by the Commissary; that during the present struggle, he had experienced so much readiness in the inhabitants of the County of Albany to assist in the transportation, that he had in no instance been under the necessity of impressing a single carriage.

Resolved, That Cornelius Cuyler and Peter Cantine be, and they are hereby appointed Agents to assist Mr. Avery, agreeable to his request, in purchasing Wheat, and manufacturing the same into Flour, to the amount of about one thousand barrels; and also to purchase one thousand bushels of Peas; and that they acquaint Mr. Avery from time to time of their proceedings, and take his directions as to the disposition of the said Provisions, and to apply to him to furnish them with money for that purpose.

Papers relative to the Proceedings of the above Committee.

Albany, October 24th, 1776.

SIR: We are informed by Mr. Taylor, who is just arrived from Cumberland County, that the Militia of that County, and those of Gloucester, were ordered to hold themselves in readiness to march, on their receiving intelligence that the enemy were besieging Ticonderoga, and that it was their intention to take their route through the country to that place. We deemed it expedient to inform you of their intentions, knowing the scarcity of provisions at that garrison. From the affidavits transmitted you by the Committee of Albany, we are led to believe that some part of the enemy's force propose to make an incursion in the western frontiers. We cannot therefore but lament the necessity that calls Colonel Dayton's regiment to Ticonderoga, and leaves the guard of the communication, on which the safety of the whole country depends, principally to the Militia. We submit to you the propriety of employing active scouts, who should go from the head of Hudson's River to Ticonderoga, to whom rewards might be offered, on their bringing intelligence of the enemy's approach.

We are, sir, &c. By order:

R. YATES, Chairman.

P. S. As we have just now received information of a most dangerous conspiracy of the Tories in and about the Hellebergh, we have recalled Colonel Van Ness's regiment, who is on his march to Fort Edward, in order to employ it against them. As soon as this necessary service is over, we shall order him to march up.

Albany, October 24, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to the directions of Convention, we have conferred with General Schuyler, at Saratoga, and some of the Field Officers, on the subject of the new arrangement of the Army; and have appointed recruiting officers at proper stations, and given them their instructions.

Having despatched what was necessary in this quarter, we should have proceeded immediately to Fishkill, had we not been prevented by the resolutions of the Committee of Safety, which requires us to assist in a new department here. We now wait for further directions, as, if we should leave Albany, there would not remain a quorum of the last Committee, of which we are members. You will be pleased to communicate to us the pleasure of the Committee of Safety by the return of this express. To avoid delay, we have borrowed twelve hundred pounds, to furnish the recruiting officers with the means of proceeding immediately on this special service, which we beg may be sent us by the express.

We are, sir, your most obedient servants,

JAS. DUANE,
ROB'T YATES,
JACOB CUYLER.

To Peter R. Livingston, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

raised and serving in the County of Albany, maketh oath that the within is a just and true muster-roll of his company of Rangers for the month of , (specify the month,) containing the names of the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of the said company, and the times of their respective inlistment and service.

III. Each Captain must also take the following deposition before the Chairman, of which the Chairman must give him a certificate in the following words: "I, Alexander Baldwin, Captain of a company of Rangers, raised and serving in the County of Albany, do solemnly declare, that I will once in every month, or as soon after the expiration of any month as possible, transmit to the Convention or Legislature of this State a muster-roll of the name of every officer or private under my command, and of their respective times of inlistment and service. I, the subscriber, according to orders of the Committee, went out in order to warn the men belonging to our company that staid behind about half a mile from my house. I saw upwards of thirty men on a march, well armed and accoutred; which men are livers in Rensselaerwyck, the chief thereof belonging to our regiment. They publickly said they intended to march to the *Helleberg*h, where it is said there were four hundred men in a body yesterday, well armed. It is said that their club increases every day.

As witness my hand, Thos. Esmay, Sergeant.

Albany, October 24th, 1776.

Sir: As we will have immediate use for your regiment for a day or two in this neighbourhood, we request that you will immediately march them back to this city, where you will be informed of the nature of your service.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

King's District, October 24, A. D. 1776.

Sir: By several ways I am informed that your Board determined to send the Tories that are now at Albany to Hartford; therefore I thought it my duty to inform your Board of some matters as they appear within and around our district; that the unfriendly parties have disregarded all orders relative to the call to march to Fort Edward; that they have since been seen to ride about in the night, and some of their troops, with members in them, late at night; that John Savage and Richard Power were at home since our regiment marched, and it is highly probable, in my view and others, that they determined to wrest the Tories out of the hands of the guard, unless it be a strong one, which I pray it may be, at least until they have passed through the land of the Moabites. The friends of the State I got together as soon as I arrived, and we determined at once to enroll ourselves and keep in large companies without intermission, until we can be better satisfied that we are in some degree secure from that abandoned set of persons that have, and still are, unwearied in their wicked machinations to complete our ruin. I hope, sir, you will at least send us such directions as will encourage and strengthen us, as our situation is, in my view, distressing, being kept in a constant danger of having our arms taken from us, and what next they may have the boldness to do, God only knows. I am sensible the mode we have adopted is, and will be attended with great expense, but as matters stand to the northward and southward, I cannot conceive that we are safe among internal enemies, unless constantly under arms. I could wish for more of our regiment to be at home for the good of the whole, or some Rangers to be on this side of the North River, but submit the matter, and remain, sir, your obedient, humble servant, W. Whiting.

To Mr. Barclay, Chairman.

P. S. Pray if there be any interesting news let me know.

Albany, October 25, 1776.

Sir: Your letter of yesterday, directed to the Chairman of the Committee of Albany, was delivered to us. We have ordered an officer with fifteen men, to go to your assistance, and would at the same time have you raise those of the Militia on whom you can rely, and call upon the nearest township in Massachusetts for such a number of men as will, together with your own and the Rangers, make up a hundred. With these we hope you will be able to take up and send the ringleaders to Fishkill, disarming the rest. You will take care to see the men under your command properly supplied with provisions agreeable to the Continental allowance, upon which they will be placed both with respect to pay and ration, and give us the earliest intelligence of your motions; and as the Rangers are much wanted in this place, you will be pleased to send them back as soon as they can safely be spared.

Your humble servant,

Rob't Yates, Chairman, &c.

[No. 6.]

Albany, October 25, 1776.

Sir: We met in Committee yesterday, on the arrival of the gentlemen appointed to arrange the Army from Saratoga. A number of important objects immediately engaged our attention. A capital one is the supplying the Army at Ticonderoga and the Militia marching to their assistance. The papers which we have the honour to transmit, will show the steps which have been taken by the Committee of this County to aid the Deputy Commissary-General here, who, without their exertions, we fear, would not have been able to procure the necessary supply. At the best, it will, on so sudden an occasion, be a difficult task. It has added to our anxiety to learn, by a letter from General Washington to Mr. Livingston, that the Army in that quarter was also in danger of being distressed for want of provisions. His Excellency entreats Mr. Livingston to use his influence to send, without delay, flour and beef for that Army towards the White-Plains, and also a number of teams—the more the better—to aid in removing the Army as occasion may require. We submit it to your consideration whether, if teams cannot now easily be procured from the eastward, it will not be advisable to order down a sufficient number belonging to such persons in the Manor of Livingston, Kinderhook, and Dutchess County, as cannot be trusted with arms. If this plan should be adopted, every owner of a carriage should be directed to supply himself with a week's provisions, to ease the Commissary as much as possible.

The spirit of disaffection has appeared at the *Helleberg*h,

King's District, and Coxsackie, in this County, and it requires vigorous measures to oppose and suppress it. Nothing is more necessary than that the jails here should be cleared of the State prisoners without delay, and the more especially as all the Militia of this city and neighbourhood are marched. We have therefore advised the County Committee to send those prisoners, with the causes of their confinement, to Fishkill, by water, in order to be forwarded to one of the neighbouring States, or disposed of as you shall judge most advisable. It would have been imprudent in every view to have marched them to another State at this juncture, when none but the disaffected remain in the County, and many of them are in arms and have threatened a rescue. We have found it necessary to detain a part of Colonel Van Ness's Claverack regiment, consisting of about one hundred and forty men, here, to oppose the designs of the disaffected at the Hellebergh. As they are much wanted to the northward, we did it with very great reluctance, and indeed, it could only have been justifiable on the most urgent necessity. It is much to be wished that Colonel Van Rensselaer, with part, or detachments of two regiments under his command, could be immediately ordered up to King's District, to which we have been able, notwithstanding the importunity of the inhabitants, to send only a small detachment of fifteen Rangers, commanded by a Lieutenant, and to direct Colonel Whiting to raise one hundred men in the neighbourhood and the Massachusetts Government. A party of fifty of the Schoharie regiment, and some of the Manor regiment, are detached to Coxsackie, where they are employed in dispersing and seizing the disaffected who are now in arms, and there is yet no account of their progress. We have thought it advisable to direct the few armed and well-affected Militia of the Manor of Livingston to be detained and kept in readiness for the internal service of the County, conceiving it unsafe, when the spirit of revolt is so prevalent in that quarter, to leave it defenceless. The information from King's District and the Hellebergh are enclosed.

We are, sir, your most humble servants.

By order: ROBERT YATES, Chairman.

To Peter R. Livingston, Esq., President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

Albany, 17th October, 1776.

SIR: On receipt of yours this morning, directed to General Ten Broeck, we issued our orders to the several Colonels to march the whole of their regiments, with the greatest despatch, to Fort Edward; and on inquiring of Mr. Avery, the Commissary-General, about providing carriages and provisions for the Militia on their march, and if any quantity was stored at Fort Edward, he answered that he had no instructions from you for providing the Militia; and as for provisions, there was none at Fort Edward, and that the whole of the provisions at the forts above was only a sufficiency for about three weeks at most, and that the supplying the Militia would entirely deprive the intended supplies to be forwarded for the Continental troops. In this alarming situation we request your immediate direction regarding the present march of our Militia.

We are, sir, your most humble servants,

JOHN BARCLAY, Chairman pro tem.
WM. TEN BROECK, Brig. General.

Albany, 19th October, 1776.

'Tis my request that the Committee of the County of Albany will employ a sufficient number of persons to purchase and forward on to such places as the troops now marching for the United States as they may be stationed at, upon the cheapest and best terms they can, cattle and flour for subsistence of said troops; and upon producing receipts of the persons they purchased of, for the cost of the same, and also receipts from the Commissaries at those places for the delivery of said articles, they shall receive pay from me for the same, as well as for their trouble and expenses. Also, the said Committee will furnish me with a sufficient number of wagons to transport provisions sufficient to supply the present exigencies of the Northern Army.

ELISHA AVERY, D. C. G.

Albany Committee Chamber, 21st October, 1776.

SIR: We have perused your request of the 19th instant, and are of opinion that your terms are too general and extensive; for if we employ a sufficient number of persons to purchase a sufficient number of wagons to transport provisions for our Northern Army, we should then take upon us the whole business of contracting and forwarding at least the most troublesome parts, and leave you only to issue, which, as our affairs are at present circumstanced, it is impossible for us to do, but will, with pleasure, give you what assistance we can.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

By order: JOHN BARCLAY, Chairman pro tem.

To Mr. Elisha Avery, D. C. G.

I do hereby certify that the above are true copies from the originals now in the custody of the Committee.

EXTRACT FROM MINUTES OF THE COMMITTEE AT ALBANY.

18th October.—This Board took into consideration how, and in what manner, the Militia now ordered to march to the northward, should be supplied when there; and thereupon

Resolved, That the Commissary be sent for and requested to inform this Board, whether he has orders from General Schuyler to supply the Militia with Provisions and other necessaries, whilst up to the northward.

Mr. Avery appeared, and informed this Board that he had no orders from the General to supply the Militia. He was then asked whether there was a quantity of provisions in store? He answered, no large quantity. He was then asked, how, and in what manner, the garrisons to the northward were supplied? He answered, there was at Ticonderoga a supply for about three weeks. He was then asked, whether he had any contractors out in the country? He answered, he had, and expected a pretty large supply of cattle in a few days. The Committee then informed him that they would assist him in purchasing and transporting provisions as far as their influence would extend, and advised him to write a letter to his Honour Major-General Schuyler, stating the above circumstances, and that this Committee would write him on the same subject. And thereupon,

Resolved, To send the following Letter to General Schuyler, viz: (Letter.)

And in order that the Commissary may the better understand the intention of this Committee,

Resolved, That the Commissary be served with this Resolution.

Resolved, That this Committee will at all times, upon application of the Deputy Commissary-General, assist him in procuring Provisions and Carriages, as far as their influence will extend.

19th October.—The Committee again took into consideration the distressing situation the Army to the northward may happen to fall for want of Provisions; and thereupon,

Resolved, That Messrs. John Ten Broeck, Jeremiah Van Rensselaer, and Stephen Schuyler, be a Committee to confer with the Deputy Commissary-General, what assistance he should want in procuring and transporting Provisions.

The Committee returned and reported, that they had waited on the Deputy Commissary-General, and requested from him what assistance he required from this Board, and that he had furnished him with the following written request:

The Deputy Commissary-General applied to this Board that the Cooper in the store, and four other persons employed in issuing Provisions and procuring Carriages for transporting the same, might be detained, and excused from the present march with the Militia to the northward.

Resolved, That the Commissary's request be granted. And the said persons are hereby excused accordingly, and that the Commissary's request, with the names of the persons, be delivered him; and that Nicholas Mersailles, one of the contractors for purchasing Cattle, be added to the persons excused.

The Deputy Commissary-General requested that Tennis T. Van Veghten might be excused from marching with the Militia to the northward, as he had employed him to purchase Cattle for the use of the Northern Army,

Resolved, That the Commissary's request be granted. And the said Teunis Van Veghten is hereby excused accordingly.

Mr. Myndert J. Ten Eyck, one of the members of this Board, being employed by the Deputy Commissary-General to purchase Flour and other Provisions,

Resolved, That the said Myndert J. Ten Eyck, and such others as are employed by the Commissary to purchase Flour and Provisions, proceed on their business with all despatch, and forward the same to such places as they shall be directed by the Commissary, with the greatest despatch; and they are hereby empowered to detain such persons as they shall deem necessary for the manufacturing of Flour, purchasing Provisions, and transporting the same.

20th October.—The Commissary appeared before this Board, and requested them to join with him in an application to the Convention of this State for a quantity of Flour said to be purchased by them at Esopus, and other places below: And thereupon

Resolved, To join with the Commissary in the following manner: "We join in the Commissary's request, and beg you will send forward, with all despatch, if not the whole quantity, as much as can be spared, for this department."

21st October.—The Committee took into consideration the Commissary's request, and conceived that his requisition was too general and extensive: And thereupon

Resolved, That the following answer be sent thereto by Captain George White, who is ordered to offer himself as a contractor for purchasing Cattle. [Front.]

Captain White returned, and reported that he had offered himself to the Commissary to purchase cattle; that the Commissary told him he had a sufficient number of contractors out at present, and if he wanted any, he would apply to the Committee.

EXAMINATION OF JOHN VANDENBERGH.

John Vandenbergh, of Niskishaw, in the County of Albany, saith, that his wife being ready to lie in, he did not choose to march with the Militia; that he went with about twenty to the Helderbergh, to consult what they had best to do, and took their arms with them to defend themselves if any should attempt to hurt them. Their first meeting was last Monday, at Mr. Commons's. Howe's Proclamation was mentioned. Richard Ridley had it at his house. John Commons said that those who thought that Congress were in the right should go, and those who thought the King was right should stay, but Commons said he did not know who was right. At this meeting were present Commons, Adam, Joachim, and Christian Huyck, and himself, who met accidentally. He first went to Commons for a pound of butter, and returned home to fetch his gun, and then went to the Hellebergh, and consulted the people there, the company being in all about twenty. The party they met there said that if the examined and his company would go, they would go; and he and his party agreed to go, and so they parted and each went home. That the examined is a Whig and thinks the Congress right. Hans Seger said he could get soldiers if he would go for them, but he would not; that they had been told that the Rangers would come and pull down their houses, and that they were determined to oppose them; that they heard that there were four hundred Tories at Stighkook. He thinks that the people he met are friends to the country, but that they won't fight if they can help it, and so agreed at said meeting; that the reason for not fighting for the country is, that they will not be against the King. The persons present at the said meeting, whose names he disclosed, are as follows: Jno. Read, Jacobus Oliver, Adam Seegar, Joachim, Jacob, and Christian Huyck, Jacobus Long, John Commins, Jacob Bradt, and Hans Segar, Arent Wormer, Garrit Bradt. Commins and Read advised him not to fight against the King, for if he did, he would be ruined and sent away. Read told him this yesterday, Commins a month ago. That they were to meet in three parties this morning to defend themselves against any troops which should attack them—one party at the Hellebergh, another at the Norman's Kill, and the other at Niskishaw, near Albert Bratt's; about thirty in each party, to be commanded by John Commins and Arent Wormer. If one party should be attacked, they were to give notice to the other, and then all were to join in; they were to come from the Hellebergh, Niskishaw, and the Norman's Kill; that he has heard them say, that if the King's troops should come into the country they would join them. Being further examined, he says that the party to be commanded by Arent Wormer is to lie at Niskishaw, near the house of one Stoppleheen; that the second party are to lie at Norman's Kill, but he does not know the place or commander; the third party to lie at the Hellebergh, under the command of Albertus Van Alstyne. Upon further examination, he says Commons is to command the party at the Norman's Kill; that all the whole party kept up a correspondence with them at Coxsackie, and they were to inform each other of what passed; that there were two people yesterday from Stichkook, when this agreement was made; that they were to stand upon their defence till the King's troops came. Hans Seger said he could get Indians at Schoharie to join them, and if it came upon a pinch he would go for them; that he believes the said several parties are now together, and it was agreed that every man should find his own provisions.

To Major FORD:

This Committee having received undoubted information that a number of disaffected persons are collected in different parties in and about the Hellebergh, Norman's Kill, Nestadher, and Beaver-Dam, with an evident design by force of arms to oppose the measures pursued for the preservation of the liberties of America, order you immediately to collect and take under your command eighty men, detached from Colonel Van Ness's regiment, one company of Continental troops under the command of Captain Hicks, and Captain Baldwin's company of Rangers, and having paraded and seen them properly equipped and provided, you are to march them to Coenradt Luke's, or James Slingerlandt's, where you shall refresh your men till near daybreak, when you shall again march from thence to the Hellebergh, and endeavour to take and disperse the disaffected who have been or are now assembled in arms, or in general all others between the ages of fifty and sixteen, who can give no good reason for their not having marched with the rest of the Militia agreeable to order. If they should not be at that place you are to follow them to the Norman's Kill, Nestoha, the Beaver-Dam, or wherever else they may be assembled, advising on this head with your guide. You are always to march with good intelligent scouts ahead, and flanking parties, to prevent surprise or being discovered by persons lurking in the woods for that purpose, and to retain all those who you may expect design to give intelligence of your motions. You are to be particularly careful that the men under your command do not plunder or maltreat the inhabitants of the country, whatever may be their political character. You will be attentive to secure those persons whose names you are furnished with. You are to send daily intelligence of your motions to the Committee of Albany, in order that you may be reinforced if necessary, or supplied with provisions if your stay should be longer than is at present expected.

ROB'T YATES, Chairman.

Saratoga, October 26, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am honoured with your favour of the 24th instant. The affidavits transmitted me, would countenance the supposition that the enemy intend an irruption on the Mohawk's river, but I can hardly imagine they will attempt it until they have met with success at Ticonderoga, which I both hope and believe they will not have. I did not, however, like to move Dayton's corps from the western quarter, but was pressed to do it in such terms by General Gates that I could not prudently refuse it. Lest, however, an accident should happen, I would advise that Colonel Van Ness, with his regiment, should on his return from Cox-sackie, march to Schenectady, or such place where he can be of most service in case of an attack. Our scouts from Johnstown, Fort George, and Fort Edward, all agree that there is not the least appearance of an enemy in the north-west quarters. I enclose you copies of letters from General Gates and General Arnold. I have had a copious eruption since you was here; it is going off, and I find myself in much better health.

I am, gentlemen, with every friendly wish, and with the greatest esteem, your most obedient servant,

[No. 11.]

Ticonderoga, October 24, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Your letters of the 14th, 17th, and 18th instant, are received in course, and are now before me. The ammunition arrived safe, and in as good order as could be wished; a most seasonable supply I assure you.

Not any of the Militia are yet come in. I hear of numbers being on their march, and I shall advise you as they arrive. Colonel Dayton's are not yet on this side the lake; I expect them every day. Our communications are free and unmolested; and the Eastern post and travelers are continually coming to Mount Independence by Otter Creek, and the roads that lead from thence, no scouts of the enemy appearing to disturb them. Cattle are pretty plenty upon the ground, as you will see by Mr. Yauncey's return enclosed. If you order cattle to be killed at Lake George, you had better direct them to be salted down in barrels, and sent over the lake in that way, for it arrives in a wretched condition when sent in quarters fresh. I shall be careful to have batteaus and vessels enough at Skenesborough to bring all the provisions you send there. Flour seems to me more in request than meal. You may be assured we are doing every thing our judgment can direct or our industry accomplish, for receiving the enemy properly. Spades, which I have so long and so often sent for, are so much wanted that even one single hundred would be most welcome. General Carleton keeps very close at Crown Point, his navy at anchor upon his flanks. I have scouts continually down both sides of the lake. I apprehend by this time his force is all collected, and expect this stillness will be succeeded immediately by a grand attack. Heaven grant he may be defeated! The Army here are in good spirits and think only of victory. Tenpenny, eightpenny, and shingle nails are exceedingly wanted, and where are the one or two thousand bushels of turnips and potatoes you was to send here? They would be of the utmost benefit to the Army. If you can send a good parcel of nail-rods our smiths can assist in making nails.

I am, dear General, your affectionate, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

The Honourable Major-General Schuyler.

Ticonderoga, October 24, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Your kind favour of the 17th I received some days since. I am greatly obliged to you for the friendship you express on my safety and having escaped the enemy.

I am extremely glad to hear the Militia are coming to our assistance. I believe the enemy, from the best accounts we can collect, are endeavouring to fortify Crown Point. I am afraid we shall not be able to detain a sufficient garrison for this place from the troops now here.

A boom will be laid across the lake this day, and a bridge to-morrow, from Ty to Mount Independence. We cannot ascertain the strength of the enemy. In a few days we shall be ready to make a trial of their force, if they think proper to attack us.

I have only time to add my most respectful compliments, and that I am, with every friendly wish, dear General, your affectionate and obedient humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

Fishkill, 24th October, ten o'clock at night.

GENTLEMEN: While the rider is sent for and preparing, I have copied Mr. Tilghman's letter, received past nine o'clock. Excuse the copy, 'tis made in haste. A letter of Colonel Nicoll, received this evening, confirms the report that three fellows taken in arms are condemned, and were to be hanged yesterday. The sentence was delivered by Lord Stirling, as President of the Court. I first heard they were part of a small body of Tories who fired on some of our troops, and have since heard they were deserters taken in arms.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, gentlemen, your most obedient,

JOHN MCKESSON.

Head-Quarters, Valentine's Hill, 22d October, 1776.

DEAR SIR: We are so constantly on the move that I am obliged to write when I can find an opportunity. We shall take up our lodgings at White Plains this evening, which the General intends to make his head-quarters for the present. The enemy are endeavouring still to outflank us, and we are moving rather ahead of them. Early yesterday morning an advanced party, consisting of Rodgers's Rangers, took possession of Mamaroneck, which our Militia abandoned with the utmost precipitation, as usual. The General rode up to White Plains to take a view of the country, and hearing of this party, laid a plan to cut them off. He accordingly detached Major Green, of Virginia, with one hundred and fifty men of the First and Third Virginia Regiments, and Colonel Haslet, of Delaware, with six hundred men, to support them. They attacked Rogers about day break, put the party to flight, brought in thirty-six prisoners, sixty arms, and a good many blankets; and had not the guides undertook to alter the first disposition, Major Rogers, and his party of about four hundred, would in all probability have fallen into our hands. We don't know how many we killed, but an officer says he counted twenty-five in one orchard. We had twelve wounded, among them Major Green and Captain Pope; the former in the shoulder, the latter slightly. We had removed all our stores from Mamaroneck, except some onions, so that I think they have made a losing voyage.

White Plains, 23d.—I wrote the above yesterday. We just this moment hear that the enemy have engaged General Lee's division. We have sent down for the particulars, which you shall have to-morrow.

Yours, TENCH TILGHMAN.

SIR: We were this day favoured with a letter from Mr. McKesson, enclosing a copy of a letter from Mr. Tilghman. We are certainly anxious to hear the event of the battle with General Lee. We enclose you copies of letters received from Generals Schuyler, Gates, and Arnold, which contain our latest intelligence from the Northern Army. We could wish that the Committee of Correspondence would establish expresses to this place, as good news published by authority would have a very happy effect on our Army and people.

Saratoga, October 27th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Yesterday I received a letter from Captain Allen, and this morning another from General Herkimer, both of which I enclose you. I think it absolutely necessary that a body of troops should be immediately sent to the Mohawk's river. I have ordered Colonel Dayton, with his regiment, which is at Canistighenna or Half-Moon, until they shall hear from you. If you can send such a body of Militia into Tryon County as will in all probability secure that part of the country, I then wish you to send orders to Colonel Dayton to prosecute his march to Ticonderoga, where he may be much wanted. If not, you will please to order him back to that country. He has my orders to obey your directions.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

[No. 16.]

Canajohary, 25th October, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: I have to acquaint your Honour that last Saturday night Peter Ten Broeck, of the Fall Kill, Hanyost Schuyler, Kackyake Johnson, with about twelve others, from the Klacebergh, went off to our enemies. I endeavoured to inquire for their route, and found out, of a very creditable person, a wife of one of those runaways and traitors, that they are gone to Oswego, in hopes to meet the enemy there. The same woman declared that the leaders of this runaway party received a letter from our enemies, which mentions that within six days from the day of their escape, the enemy would be assembled in Oswego. Sir John shall command six hundred regulars, and twenty-two nations of Indians having joined them. An Indian squaw was the express of the above-mentioned letter to the Canajohary Castle, and a belt should have been sent from those nations to Oneida, to invite them to join with those, threatening that if they would not agree to their proposal, they (the Oneidas) should depend upon it that they would be attacked first, and not a child's life would be then spared. This hostile invasion, says the above-mentioned woman, shall exist soon and surely upon the Mohawk river.

The circumstances of our present situation are so powerless, that we are not able to resist such a force against us, and have nothing to expect but to be slaughtered and drove off at the enemy's pleasure. I must, therefore, lay and recommend this to your Honour's discreet consideration, begging that you would please to procure us an expeditious succour of troops to oppose such cruel enemies, and to stop and annihilate their fatal intentions. I must add, that I apprehended already that if we should not be assisted with a sufficient number of troops, the inhabitants, or the major part of them, are inclined to lay down their arms before they would be so helplessly sacrificed. It is really my opinion that now is the time to hinder the enemy to invade the country here, and to ravage the same. It would be a pity to let the true patriots of the country in such a desolate condition, and therefore I don't doubt you will not delay with your needful assistance. I flatter myself of your answer in a few lines per this express, and am, as always, with great respect, honourable sir, your obedient, humble servant,

NICHOLAS HERKIMER.

To His Excellency Major-General Ph. Schuyler, Fort Edward.

P. S. I understand, also, yesterday, of Oneidas passing my house to go hunting, that most all the Oneidas are gone at present to hunt, and but a few chiefs left in the Castle.

Fort Dayton, October 21, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Colonel Elmer having gone with the chief part of his regiment up to Fort Schuyler, agreeable to your Excellency's order, he left me to command at this post till the return of Major Cochran. I thought proper to inform your Excellency of the present circumstance of our affairs, agreeable to my instructions, viz: On hearing some news to our disadvantage from Lake Champlain, we are credibly informed that there was a consultation held at Canajohary Castle among the Indians and several Tories, since which several of said Tories have (as is generally believed) absconded to join the enemy, viz: one Hanjoost Schuyler, sergeant in one of our Ranger companies, Hanjoost Haskamun, a son-in-law of the old widow Haskaman, and several others who were reputed to be dis affected persons. There are likewise, since said consultation, passing along upwards, a considerable number of Indians, as though to leave the place, endeavouring, as they pass, to get clear of their paper money. Upon the whole, as such multitudes of Tories, &c., have gone from this part, it is not altogether unlikely that if our Northern Army should be unsuccessful, we may soon have an invasion here; or if not, yet since it is our part to be in readiness, I would inform your Excellency that we have not more than twelve pounds of powder and a few cartridges, which, in case of necessity, would be short allowance for one hundred and twenty-three effective men, which is the number of this detachment, including Captain Eisinlord's company, to which I trust your Excellency will pay due attention, and forward a sufficient quantity of ammunition as soon as may be. There are likewise four swivel guns in this fort, for which, if we had proper ammunition, they might be of use in case of an attack.

I have the honour of being your Excellency's most humble servant,

LATHROP ALLEN, Captain.

Albany, October 28, 1776.

SIR: We received your favour of the 27th instant last night, and have agreed to the resolution which we have the honour to enclose. The night before last we despatched a detachment against the disaffected at the Hellebergh and its neighbourhood, which has been attended with the wished-for success, as they dispersed without opposition, and many of them are taken. Captain Bradt, who was despatched on a similar occasion to Coxsackie, writes us by express that he had successfully performed the service he was sent upon, and that he thinks the Coxsackie and Catskill companies will be sufficient for any further business in that quarter. Indeed, it appears to us that the report of the disaffection there has been greatly exaggerated, since the Committee of the District have thought fit to discharge even those who were apprehended as Tories, which, however expedient, is at least a proof that they are not thought dangerous. These vigorous measures having so happily suppressed domestick insurrections, will put it in our power to detach the troops, which, with the forces already on the western frontier, are particularly specified in our resolution.

You, sir, are the best judge of their competency; and it must, therefore, be submitted to your determination, whether Colonel Dayton's regiment shall be sent forward to Ticonderoga, or be commanded to their former station. It appears to us to be of the utmost moment that an active and spirited officer should, in the present conjuncture, be invested with the command on the western frontier, and especially as the apprehensions of at least part of the Continental troops seem to be more alarmed than the intelligence communicated to us can justify. We are strangers to Colonel Elmore. If his military character is not sufficiently established, we submit it to you whether Colonel Dayton, (in case his regiment should proceed to Ticonderoga,) Colonel Van Schaick, or some other officer of known abilities, ought not to be appointed for that important department. Such of the proposed detachment as consist of Militia, will march without delay. The two companies of Continental troops not being under our directions, must attend your orders. If this arrangement meets with your approbation, Captain Lush's company of Town Guards, seventy of Colonel Van Ness's regiment, under his command, besides the Canadian, will remain for your duty.

We are, &c., ROB'T YATES, Chairman.

To the Honourable Major-General Schuyler.

Sunday evening, October 27.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to orders we have arrived at the Hellebergh, and there we have taken several prisoners, amongst whom is John Reed, Pembleton, and others, seven in the whole, chiefly under arms, and well equipped with arms and ammunition. We had certain intelligence, as we thought, that there was about three hundred in one place, well fortified. We compelled a pilot, and formed ourselves in the best manner, and marched up to give them battle, in high spirits, and came to the place and found it destitute of men, which discouraged us greatly, and from here we sent out different scouts, and they bring in men pretty fast that they find under arms. This instant we have got new pilots, that I hope will help us, and by the intelligence that I have got, I think that we must stay two or three days longer; and all our men are almost out of provisions; being up night and day, takes more provision. We must have provisions sent to us for our suppers to-morrow night, or go without. Some of our men are now out of provisions, and it is difficult to get any here. I think we shall want two days' provision for our men—for eighty-two men in our regiment, and fifty-two in Captain Hicks's company. I desire that we may be favoured with salt provisions, for fresh does not agree with our people.

Gentlemen, I would be glad to be favoured with a letter from you, and such instructions as you shall think proper.

I am, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JACOB FORD.

To Mr. Robert Yates, Chairman of the Committee of Albany.

P. S. Our place of rendezvous at present is at Oliver Bront's, at the Hellebergh.

Lunenbergh, 27th October, 1776.

SIR: I received your favour of yesterday's date and note the contents. In compliance with my orders I have continually ranged the woods with my company, and have taken several Tories, whom I delivered from time to time to the Committee here, who, it seems, for reasons known to themselves, have discharged them.

The Schohary company proceeds immediately with me and my company for the Hellebergh the shortest way, agreeable to your directions. I have ordered the Coxsackie company, together with Captain Whitbeck's company, to attend the orders of the Committee now met at this place, which I deem sufficient for any business here, consequently my presence unnecessary.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

JOHN A. BRADT.

DIRCK SWART'S INFORMATION.

Mr. Dirck Swart gives information, that passing through Bennington on Wednesday last, one of the Committee of that place told him that two letters had been received, one from Mr. Trumbull, the Commissary-General, and the other from Mr. Trumbull, Deputy Adjutant-General at Ticonderoga; the first of which mentioned that some evil-minded people in and about Albany had stopped the provisions from going up to Ticonderoga, and that they had orders to purchase the wheat and send it to the mills, and to send up the flour at any expense, even if it should be on pack-horses. That wheat was accordingly purchased at five shillings and six pence lawful. That on hearing this report, some of the Militia who were going up, were much enraged and wished Albany in flames. That the express who brought the letters was a person who used to attend the store at Ticonderoga with Mr. Avery. That the examinant was invited to hear the letters read, but declined it.

[No. 24.]

JOHN READ'S EXAMINATION.

John Read says that he lives about ten miles from the city of Albany; that he came over to this country last war with Lord Howe's regiment; that he has lived before at Claverack; that he has served as a soldier for some years in that regiment; that on the morning that he was apprehended he was alarmed by his wife, who told him that the Rangers were coming; that he jumped out of bed, and with his shoes in his hand, in order to escape; that he was afterwards taken in the woods. That at the time he left his house there was no other person in his house except his wife and children, and that there was no other person then in the house.

AN EXAMINATION TAKEN ON A SOLEMN PROMISE NOT TO REVEAL HIS NAME.

John Long, of Nicadha, on examination, says, that Dirck Becker is his Militia Captain, and being warned to go up to Fort Edward, that he was ready to go, and prepared himself accordingly, but on his way he was dissuaded from proceeding by Frederick Oliver, Philip Luke, a son of John Luke, who were the principal persons that dissuaded him, saying that they would not go to be slaughtered by the Regulars, who would have this country in a month's time. That thereupon he repaired to Arent Wormer's, where there were about one hundred, who agreed not to go up, not to injure any person, but if the Rangers or Militia of Albany came against them and injured them, they would resist them. That they there agreed to keep scouts on the roads, and that they should notice each other upon any alarm. That besides the above persons, Frederick Wormer, Frederick Crousie, John Commons. That the views of those people when assembled were to hold out until the Regulars should come, and then they would join them. That Arent Wormer was to direct one of the parties, Bat Halenbeck another, and Frederick Oliver the third party.

November 1st, 1776.—The further examination of John Long, who says that there was present at Arent Wormer's, in the above company, George Swans, Peter Classe, Peter Bradt, Staats Bradt, Wouter and Garret Slingerlandt, Storen Bradt, Myndert Bradt, Gerrit Bradt, John Commons, a principal, Jacobus Oliver, Jacob Ball, a Captain of the Beaver Dam, which latter he was heard to declare he would not go up at all, Henry Waernar, Jacobus Hoghtaling, Johannes Seeger, Adam Seger, Jellis Creeble, John Wedenman.

[No. 25.]

Saratoga, October 29, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am honoured with your favour of yesterday's date. As I found that the Militia moved with the greatest reluctance from Fort Edward, I resolved to let Colonel Dayton prosecute his march to Ticonderoga, and to let about four hundred of the Militia from Fort Edward march into Tryon County, and gave orders accordingly early yesterday morning. Colonel Dayton is already passed this, and I momently expect the Militia here. Although I am quite in sentiment with you on B. Huston's information, yet it is very possible that General Carleton may detach, or already has detached, a part of his force (especially his Indians, Tories, and Canadians, who would be of very little service in an attack on our lines) to the Mohawk river. I shall therefore order the Militia whom I expect from Fort Edward, to proceed without delay to Tryon County, and to put themselves under the command of General Herkimer, or Colonel Van Schaick, whom I have ordered into that quarter, and referred to you for instructions. I do not apprehend that an attack will be made by the way of Fort Stanwix; and as the garrison at that place is sufficiently numerous, I would not advise the sending any more men there. I do not think it would be proper to strip the city altogether of troops, and you will therefore please to cause some of the Militia to remain, and desire Colonel Van Schaick to take the two companies of his regiment up with him.

I am, gentlemen, respectfully, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Committee of Convention.

[No. 26.]

Albany, October 30, 1776.

SIR: General Schuyler enclosed us a letter from you containing your reasons for believing that the enemy proposed to make an irruption into your County. We cannot help thinking that the information comes through a very suspicious channel; however, it is possible they may send small scalping-parties. A great force cannot come this season; and as for the twenty-two nations of Indians, it is too improbable to deserve the least credit. At a time when the Militia are all called out for the defence of their country invaded on the north and south, we cannot help expressing our surprise that the Militia of a County which has hitherto been respected for its zeal and spirit, should entertain the most distant idea of submitting to their inveterate enemy, and that, too, before they have seen or tried their force. We take the liberty to remind you that there is already in your County, exclusive of your Militia, seven hundred and forty-three men, which, when joined by the troops under your command, must, we apprehend, be greatly superiour to any force the enemy can send. However, we send you two companies of Continental troops, under the command of Colonel Van Schaick, with whom we wish you to consult about the proper disposition of the troops, and one company of Rangers. General Schuyler has ordered to your assistance about four hundred men. The Militia who will cross from Fort Edward are sent in compliance with your wishes, though we really think them unnecessary if the people of your County will exert any degree of that spirit which we have reason to expect from men animated by the glorious cause in which they are engaged. We doubt not, sir, that you will be careful to inspire them with proper sentiments on this subject. It would be advisable for you to order one thousand of your Militia to be raised, equipped, and sent to their proper stations, in which case they will be allowed Continental pay and rations. Captain Huger, with fifty men of the Schohary Militia, are now sent home, and have orders to hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's warning, whenever you may think it necessary to call upon them. You will be careful to keep out scouts on every quarter, who will be rewarded for their trouble.

We are, sir, &c.,

By order: R. YATES, Chairman.

To General Herkimer.

[No. 27.]

Albany, October 30, 1776.

SIR: We are favoured with your despatches of the 28th and 29th instant. From the uncertainty of the western intelligence, added to the importunity of General Gates, we do not see how you could well avoid sending Dayton's regiment to the northward; and yet if there should be an irruption into Tryon County, which is not altogether improbable, we shall find the want of a force that can be depended upon to give them a vigorous opposition. May it not still be prudent to detain Dayton's regiment at Fort George, so that they may be in readiness to proceed to Ticonderoga, or the western frontier, as the progress of the enemy may render necessary? Colonel Van Schaick will march this day with the two companies of his regiment, and Captain Bradt's company of Rangers. Captain Hager, who commands a detachment of fifty of the Schohary Militia, we shall order to repair to Schoharie and to be in readiness to attend Colonel Van Schaick's orders, on a moment's notice. We shall also direct General Herkimer to detach one thousand of his best Militia for immediate service. Colonel Van Ness's detachment of about one hundred and forty men, we shall detain here under his command, for town duty, leaving Lieutenant Conyer, who is one of our recruiting officers, to assist and advise Colonel Van Ness in the conduct of his department, which may be necessary on account of his inexperience in the military line.

The detachment is returned from the Hellebergh. They found only a few people in arms, seven of whom they have seized. The rest fled with precipitation. Defection in that quarter has, as usual, been much exaggerated, though we are satisfied that some designing knaves among them have endeavoured to sow the seeds of revolt. The majority are ignorant and deluded, and will readily return to their duty on forgiveness of their past misconduct.

We learn from Major Fonda, that one Hendrick Hicks, who pretends to be a deserter from General Carleton, is returned to Tryon County, as he says, by the way of the Split Neck, on the west side of Lake Champlain. Major Fonda is of opinion that it is practicable for the enemy to penetrate the western frontier by that route. He adds, that from the expressions and conduct of the Tories in Tiger, it is evident that they expect a sudden irruption of the enemy, headed by Sir John Johnson. You will give such weight to these hints as you think they deserve.

We have nothing before us which can authorize our longer continuance at this place, especially as our assistance is much wanted in Convention, and the military arrangement, which is so essential, must be delayed till our return to Fishkill. We propose, therefore, to set out for that place in the morning.

We are, sir, &c.,

By order: R. YATES, Chairman.

To General Schuyler.

Saratoga, October 30th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am this moment favoured with yours of this date. An hour ago Colonel Ogden arrived from Ticonderoga, which he left on Monday. He brings intelligence that there are not above two hundred tents at Crown Point. General Carleton has consequently only a small part of his Army there. This circumstance, the information of Hoff, and the movement of the Tories in this quarter, give me great reasons to supect that the enemy intend to penetrate by the Mohawk river, or to throw themselves on some part of the communication between this and Fort George. In this situation, it is extremely difficult to determine what measures are most eligible to take. I shall, however, venture on sending down part of the Militia, Dayton's being already near Skenesborough, and his men extremely averse to return to Tryon County. I must entreat you, gentlemen, not to think of leaving Albany at this very critical juncture.

I enclose you letters for Colonel Van Schaick and Major Cochran, which I beg you will seal and immediately forward to them by express, and if you please, convey similar orders to Brigadier-General Herkimer. I shall despatch an express to General Gates to request him to send a scout forty or fifty miles to the westward, and if he finds that any body of the enemy have marched towards the Mohawk river, then instantly to detach three regiments at least to that quarter, or more, according to the number of the enemy that have taken that route. Similar orders will be sent to General Ten Broeck and Colonel Ganseroort. Thus we shall have the most early intelligence of the enemy's movements, and be enabled to take proper measures to defeat their purposes.

I am, most respectfully, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Committee of Convention, at Albany.

GENTLEMEN: Part of the number of men specified in your letter are ready. I hope to be able to raise the whole soon. The Rangers are repeatedly sent out in small parties, but no discoveries of importance until this day, which is comprehended in the information sent by Major Buck, to whom I shall refer you for particulars; and remain, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

W. B. WHITING.

THE DEPOSITION OF ISAAC PEABODY AND SAMUEL ALLEN.

The Deposition of Isaac Peabody and Samuel Allen, of lawful age, who depose and say, that on the 12th instant they called at the house of Seth Chase, of Little White Creek, and hearing some words dropped which induced them to believe the said Seth an enemy of the country, they feigned themselves to be of the same sentiments. The said Seth and other persons then there, asked these deponents from whence they came; and upon answering that they came from Kinderhook, they said they had often heard that all the inhabitants there were Tories. These deponents thereupon said, that the word Tories was more properly applicable to their accusers than to themselves. The said Seth, and the persons at his house, said that they were of the same opinion. These deponents then asked them if they had not seen or heard of any friends to Government that had fled from persecution at Kinderhook and thereabout; they answered they had not. They then said that one of their Committee had lately been to them with the Association and requested them to sign, which they refused to do, as they did not choose to sign any promise of what they did not intend to perform. That the above discourse passed in the house of the said Seth Chase. These deponents then rode off, and after going some distance from the house, were called back by a person whose name they afterwards discovered to be Hough, and who had been in company with them at the tavern before they left it. These deponents then rode back, and Hough informed that after they left the house, he told the landlord that they (these deponents) were friends to Government and strangers in the place, and he thought they had better call them back; whereupon he had called to these deponents to return. He then invited these deponents to return to the house and lodge there, and if they were willing, they might be there secreted; which offer these deponents declined. These deponents then asked if their Kinderhook friends could get through northward to Burgoyne's Army. Hough said no, but that there was a much safer way to make their escape, for that there were eighty men from Arlington and Sunderland, that were to march the next night, and there were two of the King's Armies coming down. Burgoyne was coming around the lake, and Sir John Johnson was to come down the Mohawk river with the other Army, and that the best way for your Kinderhook Tories was to join that party, and they would meet the King's Army in three days, and be safe and out of danger. These deponents then desired him, if he had an opportunity, to give our Kinderhook friends this information, which he promised he would; whereon we bid him good night, and rode to one Samuel Hodge's, where we put up for the night, and upon consideration of what had passed, we agreed that it was best that one of us the next morning should go back to Chase's, and the other go and acquaint Cambridge Committee of what had passed; whereupon next morning we took our different ways as aforesaid. Deponents further said, that the said Esquire Hough said they are all friends about; we have got good friends in our Committee; had they not been as cunning as the devil we should have been torn to pieces before now, for the people down towards Cambridge were as fierce as the devils, and we would not have you go there, for you will be surely taken. He further said, I did not mean to take up arms or fight on either side, but I have been so harassed, that I have determined that I will go off with the party to Burgoyne, and in a few days turn and let them know what or whom I am, and that great part of the neighbourhood was going too; that there was a number of us met at this place (Seth Chace's) a night or two ago, it being a place of rendezvous—it being a dark rainy night. We said we believed you had an entertaining opportunity. He then talked and conversed two and two.

DEPOSITION OF ISAAC PEABODY.

The Deposition of Captain Isaac Peabody, of lawful age, being duly sworn, saith: That on Sunday morning, the 13th instant, he returned to the house of Seth Chase, in Little White Creek. I asked Mr. Chase if he had seen any of our Kinderhook friends the night past. He answered, no. I told him I wanted to see Mr. Hughs, the man we discoursed with last night in the road. He then told me Mr. Hough told him the discourse he had with us, and that Mr. Hough knew no more of the plan than what he had communicated to him. I asked him if he had for certain that Burgoyne with his Army was coming round the lakes? He answered, that Colonel Man had sent a page to Arlington, and he was at his house night before last, on his return to Colonel Man, and told him that Colonel Man's order to the people of Arlington was to remain peaceable and still, if their intentions were undiscovered, till further orders from him, for he found, by intelligence from Burgoyne, he would not get through his march so soon as expected; but if they were discovered, to make the best of their way to him. The page further saith, that the people of Arlington had made such preparations for their march, that they could not forego it without being discovered; therefore, would march to-night. Mr. Chase then said, the people of White Creek are secure, they would not march till further order from Colonel Man. He likewise said, that Colonel Man had twelve fat oxen for the purpose of victualling the friends of Government on their march to join the King's Army. And others had several more cattle for the same purpose. I then asked him to direct me to a plan whereby our Kinderhook friends could get safe to the King's Army. He then told me that Colonel Man had given countersigns at two places, and if these countersigns could be conveyed to your friends, they can pass safe, and get all intelligence necessary. He then spoke to his wife to bring him a paper, on which she immediately came to us and takes a paper out of her bosom and gave it to her husband, and he handed it to me, saying, Now I give you my life. I took the paper and read it to be this: "At Landlord Northrop's the countersign is Tryon; and at Jacob Lansing's Ferry, the countersign is Burgoyne." I told him for fear I should make a mistake in these countersigns, I would write them down. Then wrote them down. He then said that upon giving these countersigns out at these two places, we could be secreted, have provisions, or be helped on our way, or any thing we desired to forward. He further said, that Simon Covill was a good friend to Government, and that I might not be afraid of him; he further said, that his house was a place where Colonel Man's page came for entertainment, and to bring news to the friends to Government.

ISAAC PEABODY.

Bennington, October 14, 1776.

JAMES YOUNGLOVE, Chairman.

The said Isaac Peabody, upon recollecting further, said, that the above-said Seth Chase told him that Colonel Man had given orders, in the day time to keep the woods, and in the night to come upon the roads, and to march twenty in a body, at the distance of one mile one body from the other, and before and after each body of twenty men, one man should be placed at the distance of ten rods, and if anybody was coming after them, the rear guard was to speak loud enough for those before to hear, and the parties were then to skulk into the woods, and if any person were to meet them, the advance guard to act in like manner.

Albany, 31st October, 1776.

SIR: We were early this morning favoured with your despatches of the 30th instant. From your last intelligence it may be conjectured that no attempt will be made on Ticonderoga, which strengthens the apprehension of an incursion into our western frontier. In that case, the defenceless condition of that frontier will be lamented, and too probably, by those who judge only from events, censured. An inexperienced militia, if sufficiently numerous, cannot be relied upon, especially when their fears may be raised on account of the Indians. Under these difficult circumstances, increased by General Gates's importunity for Dayton's regiment, though all the Continental troops (two companies only excepted) were already at Ticonderoga and on the communication, it is very easy to account for your embarrassment, in which we participate.

Peter Ten Broeck, and the four other disaffected persons who have lately gone over to the enemy from Tryon County, were, we are informed, pursued by a party of the Oneidas, but these friendly Indians were given to understand by the Onondagas that it was disagreeable to them, and that the Oneidas should suffer if they did not desist. We submit it, sir, whether it will not be proper for you to send a spirited message to the Onondagas through Major Fonda, or in such other manner as you may judge best, complaining and demanding satisfaction for this unprovoked infraction of treaty, and insisting peremptorily to know whether they are to be considered as enemies or friends, that they may be treated accordingly. It will, at least, show a vigilant attention to their conduct and a contempt of their enmity, and, if it should not convert, may intimidate and keep them in awe, not to mention the necessity of our being apprised of the terms we stand upon with a neighbour who, in proportion to the measure of our deception, will be able to injure and distress us.

We have just received intelligence that a party of Tories of King's District and the southeast part of Rensselaerwyck, were collecting together to join the enemy; that they determined to cross the ferry at this place under the guise of Militia, but were to keep on the west side of the river, in expectation of being supported by their friends, and of meeting Indians and Canadians to conduct them to the enemy; that to distinguish themselves as Tories they were to club their firelocks; that one Palmeter was their Captain, and Showers and John Bay their Lieutenants; that if they should be discovered they were to make a wad of their muster-roll, and put it into the barrel of the Captain's gun; that Simon Warner, Barot Dyer, two Burnams, and two Hagermans, were among the company; that Palmeter had marched before to prepare the way for them. Another examination affirms that the Tories had orders to march on this alarm to the northward as Congress men, and to draw provisions till they could get to Fort George, and then to take possession of and keep it for the enemy. We can give no opinion of the truth of this intelligence. It is evident that every account of this nature has been greatly exaggerated, but it may be of use nevertheless to put us on our guard.

Before your letter came to hand, Mr. Robert Livingston had set out on his return, and as that part of the Committee for arranging the Army, which went to the southward, are got back to Fishkill, we think ourselves under the necessity of joining them. Indeed, considering the nature of our power, which chiefly respected the Militia, who are all now in motion, we do not see that we can be of any essential service here.

We are, sir, with great respect, your most obedient humble servant.

By order of the Committee of Convention of the State of New-York:

R. YATES.

To the Honourable Major-General Schuyler.

AUGUSTUS ODELL'S DEPOSITION RESPECTING THE TORIES.

The information of Augustus Odell, who saith, that this morning, about ten o'clock, he was in the woods about ten miles southeast of Albany, he came across one Showers, who asked which way this informant was traveling, who answered, he could hardly tell; but by dropping a few words of Tory talk, this informant soon discovered said Showers to be a Tory. He then told said Showers he wanted to get with John Savage. Said Showers said John Savage was gone; that he went away day before yesterday, with two men with him, to the northward to join the Regulars, determining to keep the west side of the river at Fort Edward. Then this informant asked for one Palmeter. Said Showers said Palmeter went yesterday the same way. Then this informer asked if there was any more men that he could find. Said Showers said he had been with one of his neighbours last night and the day back just before day, and he took his shoes in his hand and ran out into the woods and stood still, and perceived there was a number of men, but did not know how many that was under arms, and perceived they were Rangers; but told the informant if he would go with him to a house they could know, for they were strong Tories. Then this informant went with said Showers to the house where he (Showers) was to ask, and he began to talk with the woman in Dutch; and this informant heard the woman say fifty. Then said Showers turns to this informer and saith, there is fifty men; and this informer thinks that he (Showers) said they had been at old Michelse's the last night, and was now collecting together to go off to the enemy, and intend to go over Albany ferry under pretence to join our troops, but intended to keep the west side of the river, and expected to have friends to help them, and to meet Indians and French to convey them to the Regulars; and in order that they (the French) may know them to be Tories, they were to club their muskets. Also this informer saith, that said Showers said Palmeter was chosen Captain, and said Showers Lieutenant, but he refused, because he did not like Palmeter's plan, for he had got a roll of the men's names, and Showers asked said Palmeter what he would do with it if he was taken. Said Palmeter said he would roll it up and make a wad of it and put it into his gun. Also, John Boys was chosen First Lieutenant. The Second Lieutenant this informant has forgot his name, and a number that did not join the Militia was in the company; and the informant says to the best of his remembrance two of Burnham's sons and two of Hageman's sons was in the company. Also, this informant saith, said Showers said he was appointed Lieutenant over seven or eight men that tarry behind, and told this informer if he would stay with him he should be secreted, and did not know how soon he should march to join the Regulars. The above said Palmeter marched before his company to prepare the way for them.

DEPOSITION OF STEPHEN KITCHEN.

October 29, 1776.

The information of Stephen Kitchen, who saith, that on Friday last he saw one Simon Warner, and after common compliments, said to this informer, "I suppose I may say any thing?" Upon which this informer replied, you may. "Then," said Warner, "last night I saw Barret Dyre in New-Briton;" and said Warner said, "it was orders from an officer above for the Tories to form themselves into a body, for they expected when our Army got defeated at the northward, the Whigs would destroy all the Tories they could find, and that the Tories were to embody for defence." This informer further says he was with the said Warner yesterday, and told the said Warner he came on purpose to see him, and wanted to know if there was any way to escape to the King's Army; to which the said Warner replied, there was no other way to escape but to go over the North River, and so go around our Army. This informer asked the said Warner if Barret Dyer had been to the King's Army; and he said he had not, but that the said Dyer lived sometimes in New-Briton, and sometimes north of that place with Palmatier. The said Warner told this informant that they (the Tories) had but a few guns now, but that Dyer told him that they expected some up the North River. This informer asked the said Warner if he could go to Dyre. He said he thought not, for he changed his head-quarters often. The said Warner told this informer that Palmetier was with Dyre, the day before he saw Dyre. This informer asked Warner how Dyre and the rest of the Tories lived. He said about and amongst the rest of their friends. This informer says Warner further told him that Dyre informed him how he got away from Richmond—that he (Dyer) kept in the woods there till daylight, then came across the mountains, and by Captain Baldwin's, and to one Goodfellows, who is a corporal in the Grenadier company, and when he (the said Dyre) got to Goodfellows's, he whistled, and Goodfellows came to him. The said Warner told this informer that John Savage had with him about five hundred men, and that they had disarmed one Colonel of the Militia, and taken some guns and other warlike stores from him. The said Warner told this informer there had been a post-rider kept from Army to Army, (viz: the King's Armies,) but lately had been broke up. The said Warner told this informer that there was no orders, particular now, for the Tories from the King's Army; but as soon as our head-quarters were smashed, the Tories then would have orders what to do. This informer asked the said Warner what the Tories would do as to guns. We the Tories will have all them in the district, for he looked upon it there was Tories enough in this Government to manage what Whigs there was in the same. The said Warner told this informer the Tories had orders to march on this alarm to the northward in the name of Congress men, and to draw provisions till they got to Fort George, and then take possession of the same and keep it. The said Warner further said that there would be Tories enough going to the King's Army if the Militia came back, for that would be their orders. If any Tory was going to be carried off, only let him know of it, and there should not be a man carried off, for they would be rescued. And further this informer saith that Warner told this informer, if he would come on the hill and whistle he would show this informer people that knew better where Dyre was then he did. The said Warner told this informer that John Brigs, and Wart that lived with Brigs, was good friends, and that Joseph Chapman could go though the woods, meaning, as this informer supposes, to the King's Army.

STEPHEN KITCHEN.

The request of General HOWE, Governour TRYON, and Sir JOHN JOHNSON, to raise Troops in ALBANY County, with a copy of the Oath of Secrecy and Allegiance to the King.

By the request of the Honourable William Howe, commander of his Majesty's Forces in America, and William Tryon, Esq., Governour in and for the Province of New-York, and likewise by the desire of Sir John Johnson, Bart., that a Battalion of Loyal Volunteers be inlisted in the County of Albany to serve in and for the Province of New-York, and for the preservation of their lives and properties, and more especially to show their loyalty and affection to his Majesty, in order to assist in restoring publick peace and tranquillity in this distressed country, as they cannot expect any friendship or protection from his Majesty's Forces if they do not do their utmost endeavours to assist his Majesty in subduing and conquering his rebellious subjects, in order to bring them to condign punishment: Therefore, for the more speedy, and in the most secret manner, a battalion of Loyal Volunteers be inlisted, and each officer and private volunteer to take an oath to keep secret every thing that shall be communicated to them by their superiour officers; that J. H., Esq., is chosen and appointed Colonel and Commandant of said battalion of Loyal Volunteers, and each company is at least to consist of fifty rank and file, with one Captain, one Lieutenant, one Ensign, and when raised and joins his Majesty's Forces, each officer and private volunteer will receive the same pay, clothing, arms and accoutrements, as any other inlisted American volunteer, and be entitled to the same lands as any regular soldier. The said Loyal Volunteers will be discharged with the first American battalion.

"I, A. B., do swear to be true to his Majesty King George, and to serve him honestly and faithfully in defence of his person, crown and dignity, against all his enemies in America, or opposers whatsoever; to keep secret, and to observe and obey, the orders of my superiour officers that shall be issued out to me from time to time. So help me God.

"I, A. B., do swear to keep secret all that you shall say or read to me, and not to reveal the same to blood relation or any person whatsoever. So help me God."

[No. 33.]

We received your favour of the instant, early this morning. Not knowing the extent of the conspiracy of which you gave us information, nor whether you could raise and arm the company we directed, with sufficient despatch, we ordered Colonel Van Rensselaer, with one hundred and fifty of the Claverack Militia, to march into King's district, where you may soon expect to see him. As he is much wanted for an important service in this quarter, he must be detained no longer than the safety of the district and the condition of the disaffected renders absolutely necessary. After these vigorous measures, which will convince our internal enemies both of our vigilance and our power, the disaffected will no doubt be intimidated and disperse, and we think a guard of forty or fifty men, kept in constant motion, will be sufficient for your protection. Mr. Beles assures us so many can be armed. We recommend it to you to imbody them accordingly; indeed, even if it had been otherwise, it is out of our power at present to furnish arms and accoutrements, as you request.

By order: R. YATES, Chairman.

[No. 35.]

Fishkill, October 29, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Safety have received the letter of your Committee by express, inclosing minutes of the Committee of the County of Albany, relative to the department of the Deputy Commissary-General. The exertions which they have made to procure the necessary supply for the Northern Army, are highly laudable, and deserve the warmest approbation of the Committee of Safety.

We have been loudly called upon by his Excellency General Washington to forward a supply of flour for the use of the Army at the White Plains. We have devised all the means we can think of to prevent the Army from suffering for the want of that article, which you will see by our resolutions, a copy of which we now transmit you. We are of opinion that if a similar mode was adopted to the northward it would be productive of good effects. We are informed that there are several mills between Albany and Lake George, which might be kept constantly employed in manufacturing flour for the Northern Army, if the Commissary-General would engage persons to purchase up grain and to have it transported to the mills most contiguous. It would, however, be needless for us to enter into a particular detail on this subject. Your Committee, from being on the spot, are the best judges of what further measures will be necessary for supplying that Army, and are invested with full powers for carrying into execution all such measures as you shall think effectual for repelling the invasions of the enemy on the northern and western frontiers. Whilst we, therefore, in this quarter, exert ourselves in devising and executing whatever shall appear to us most conducive to the publick safety, we trust that your attention and zeal will not be wanting in giving vigour to our military operations to the northward, and in quelling, by such means as you shall deem most prudent, the insurrections of the disaffected in that part. We highly approve of your having detained those detachments of the Militia which you mention for that purpose, but it is not in our power to order up the detachment under the command of Colonel Van Rensselaer, as we have now in custody near two hundred and twenty dangerous and disaffected persons, whom we propose removing to Exeter, in the State of New-Hampshire. A detachment of seventy-six persons of this stamp was sent off a few days ago; and from the information we have received from the Committee appointed by the Convention of this State for inquiring into, detecting, and defeating, all conspiracies which may be formed in this State against the liberties of America, we have reason to think that there will be a necessity of apprehending and removing several other persons. You must, therefore, be sensible that no dependence can be put on this quarter. Should you find it necessary to employ a further force for the purpose of seizing and securing the disaffected, we recommend it to you to endeavour to raise as many men in the Massachusetts-Bay Government as you shall think necessary.

We transmit you a copy of the last intelligence we have received from Head-Quarters. We flatter ourselves that our accounts from the northward will be equally favourable.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your and the Committee's most obedient and very humble servant,

By order: PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT, V. P.

To Robert Yates, Esq., Chairman of the Committee appointed to repair to Albany to confer with General Schuyler.

[No. 36.]

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, Fishkill, October 29, 1776.

Whereas the Committee have been called upon by his Excellency General Washington, by a Letter from Tench Tilghman, Esq., dated the 26th instant, to exert themselves in devising all possible means for the expeditious supply of Flour for the American Army, in the County of Westchester:

Resolved, That Henry Schenck, Esq., or such agents as he may think proper to employ, be empowered to purchase up Wheat for the use of the Continental Army, and that he cause the same to be manufactured into Flour, and transported to the landings most contiguous to the places where the same may be manufactured with the utmost despatch.

Resolved, That the names of all the persons who shall refuse to part with their Wheat at a reasonable rate, be forthwith returned to the Committee of Safety, or to the Convention of this State, in order that proper measures may be devised for preventing the publick interest from being sacrificed to the perverseness, disaffection, or avarice of individuals.

Resolved, That Henry Schenck, Esq., or the Agents by him employed in purchasing Wheat, be authorized to impress Drivers, Wagons, Teams, Ox-Carts, or other Carriage, for the purpose of executing, with the utmost despatch, the resolutions of this Committee.

Resolved, That all the Coopers in the Counties of Dutchess, Westchester, Orange, Ulster, Albany, Tryon, and Charlotte, be exempted from all Militia duty of what kind soever, for the space of two months from the date hereof: Provided, always, That the said Coopers are employed in exercising their trades in preparing and making flour, beef, and pork Barrels.

Ordered, That copies of these Resolutions be transmitted to his Excellency General Washington, to the Commissary-General, and to the Committee of the Convention of this State, now sitting at Albany; and further, that the last Resolution, respecting the Coopers, be transmitted to the Commanding Officers of the Militia in the Counties abovementioned.

Head-Quarters, White Plains, 27th October, 1776.

SIR: I have your favour of yesterday. The General highly approves of your plan of having Rogers's prisoners sent up to your Convention, and will have it done out of hand. You will receive with them several prisoners taken about this part of the country. The one that appears to be deepest in their schemes is James Budd, whose examination you have enclosed. You may question him without letting him know you have the examination; and from comparing the accounts given at different times, form a judgment of the truth. Our scouting parties are very active and very successful. Yesterday they brought in five British prisoners, and this morning twelve Waldeckers. The latter are amazed at the kind treatment they receive. They say they were torn away from their own country, and will willingly remain among us. They say if their fellow-soldiers knew how kindly they would be treated, and how plentifully and happily they might live, they would lay down their arms and come among us. We shall contrive to make a good use of those fellows.

Our neighbours remain very quiet in this quarter, but we have heard a heavy cannonade about Fort Washington; we don't know the occasion yet, but have sent down for intelligence. You are misinformed as to the quantity of provisions we have lost. When General Lee removed he was obliged to leave eighty or ninety barrels of provisions of all kinds for want of wagons. We already make a very respectable figure, our front lined and abutted, and some redoubts well forwarded on our rear, impassable for horse or foot, but through passes of which we have possession. Send us good news from the northward, and never fear us—we will play our part.

I am, dear sir, yours sincerely, TENCH TILGHMAN.

SIR: In order that this State may aid you to the utmost in furnishing the Northern Army with provisions, we have agreed to the resolutions, of which we enclose you a copy, and are accordingly ready to assign you an agent fully authorized to carry into effect that part which relates to the purchase and manufacture of wheat with vigour and despatch. If you can point out any thing more effectual, or stand in need of further advice or support respecting your department, we shall cheerfully assist you on the first information, it being our intention to leave nothing undone which at this arduous conjuncture may contribute to the important purpose of supplying the Northern Army with provisions.

We are, sir, your most humble servant,

[No. 39.]

Ticonderoga, Head-Quarters, October 20th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The late success of the enemies of American liberty on this lake renders it probable, I might say certain, that this post will very soon be attacked. In that case, as the enemy may perhaps attempt a blockade rather than an immediate attack on our lines, a large supply of provisions will be absolutely necessary. You are therefore requested, gentlemen, to lend all the assistance in your power in forwarding provisions of every kind from Bennington to this place by way of Skenesburgh. The badness of the road may render it necessary to send flour, &c., on pack-horses in bags; if no other method is practicable make use of that. Regard not the expense. Mr. Yancey, Deputy Commissary-General, has the General's orders to pay every necessary expense and charge that may arise.

I am, gentlemen, by the General's orders, your very obedient servant,

Ticonderoga, October 20th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This is to inform you, that in consequence of a number of disaffected persons in and about Albany to the common safety of this continent, there is great danger of a too long delay of the contracted provisions for this Army from that place, and in particular the article of flour, and that we have not more than will answer for bread for the Army present than about sixteen days. And as the advances of the Army may be but slow, and in order for a blockade, and to cut off all communications to this place—all which makes it of the utmost importance that we have an immediate supply—and as I am appointed and empowered to act and contract for every necessary provision for this department, by the Commissary-General, Joseph Trumbull, Esq., I thought it of the highest importance to make this pressing application, that you would contract and immediately forward to Skenesburgh landing all the flour that can be purchased for the Army on the northern department. And relying, gentlemen, on your publick patriotism to serve your country, I make not the least doubt that you will comply with this request; and as your pay, I will from time to time furnish you with the Continental currency as fast as my present hurry of business will permit, and beg you will forward me your answer immediately, how much you will be able to supply me with, and in what time, so that I may be able to satisfy the Commander-in-Chief at this place with this very important business; and you will greatly oblige yours, with the greatest respect, your most humble servant,

RICHARD VARICK TO GENERAL GATES.

Fort George, November 7th, 1776.

Dear General: On Sunday last, General Schuyler being informed of the scarcity of flour with the Army, ordered Major Rensselaer and myself to repair to the communication between Half-Moon and this place, to order the flour, amounting to above twelve hundred barrels, then at the different posts, to be forwarded instanter.

After having given the proper orders below, I came to this place yesterday, and found above four hundred and fifty barrels lying here, for want of men to navigate the batteaus; and on pressing the matter to Colonel Ganscvoort, he assured me that he had not a man to spare from his garrison, who are not continually employed in procuring wood for the general hospital, in scouts, and mounting the different guards. Little assistance can be expected from our Militia. I would therefore ask the liberty to request you to send a party of men from Tyonderoga, to carry the provisions across the lake.

As the enemy have decamped, the Army will be in a situation to be mustered very soon. I have sent to the Quartermaster-General for paper, &c.; hope to find it at Albany on my return thither.

You may be assured, my dear sir, that I shall make no unnecessary delay in entering on the duties of my office. I hope soon to have the honour of paying you a visit.

I am, my dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,

Rich'd Varick.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

GENERAL GATES TO A COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, November 7th, 1776.

Gentlemen: The enclosed letter to Mr Hancock will give you some idea of the perplexities I have undergone from the New-England Deputies. It will likewise convince you that it has not, nor is yet in my power, to send you the all that is wanted, and the all that will be wanted this winter and the next campaign, for this Army.

The knowledge of military service in general, and of this in particular, cannot be reasoned upon in abstracts; and were it attempted, it must multiply needless debates, and perhaps absolutely confound the business in view; I will therefore confine myself to the sending you of a list of what should be supplied, to stop the enemy's progress this winter, and secure us against their threatenings next campaign.

It is the ruling maxim of my conduct in military operations, to suppose the enemy will do what he might and should do. On this principle I can scarcely be deceived, unless I do not do what I ought to do.

I am almost tired of applying to Congress for supplies. They mean to do right; but, besides their labouring under very great difficulties to supply in due time the demands of their Generals, they certainly want judicious, and very often disinterested information. Let them put an unlimited confidence in their commanding Generals respecting those matters, and such only which in the nature of things it is morally impossible Congress should perfectly know; and if they think it unsafe to put such trust in their Generals, let these be instantly removed. Honour will then prevail, and its irresistible influence be felt in every department. By these means the United States will be well served. I think no other road can lead us to success.

I am, with unfeigned respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

Horatio Gates.

To the Hon. Messrs. Rich'd Stockton and George Clymer, Esqs.

P. S. After the perusal of the enclosed, I desire it to be sealed up and forwarded immediately after.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

New-Haven, November 7th, 1776.

Sir: I have the honour to transmit you the enclosed, the purport of which is of that consequence and importance to this State in its present situation that I flatter myself Congress will give the earliest attention thereto, and will afford all the needed assistance. The exposedness of our seacoasts whilst so formidable an Army is on our borders and a triumphant Navy in possession of our Sound, and the seat of war still likely to remain in our neighbourhood, together with the exhausted circumstances of this State, by means of its extraordinary exertions in the common cause, we trust will afford such obvious arguments in favour of our request that your assistance will not be denied us.

And am, with esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

Jonathan Trumbull.

To President Hancock.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL'S PROCLAMATION LAYING AN EMBARGO.

By the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esquire, Governour and Commander-in-Chief of the State of Connecticut, in America:

A Proclamation.

Whereas it hath been resolved by the General Assembly now convened at New-Haven, "that an embargo be laid upon the exportation out of this State, by land or water, (without a permit from the Governour,) of Wheat, Rye, Indian Corn, Pork, Salt, Peas, Beans, Bread, Flour, and every kind of Meal, except necessary stores for vessels outward-bound; likewise all kind of Cloths, Linen and Woolen, fit and suitable for clothing for the Army, except such as shall be provided and sent for the use of our Army or Navy; and also, that an embargo be laid upon the exportation out of this State, by water, of the following articles, viz: Beef, Live Cattle, Sheep, Butter, and Cheese: Provided, this act shall not extend to prevent any particular person or persons from carrying or sending to such soldiers in the Army as may be under the care and special relation of such person or persons, any necessary clothing or provision they may want for their own use and consumption:" And said Assembly have requested me to give notice thereof:

I have, therefore, thought fit to issue this Proclamation, hereby notifying all persons that said embargo is laid, and requiring them to comply therewith. And I do hereby prohibit all persons from transporting, by land or water, and from shipping on board any vessel for transportation, any of said articles, (excepting only as in said Resolves is excepted,) under the penalties of the law of this State in such case provided. And I do require and enjoin all persons to exert themselves that said Resolve be effectually carried into execution.

Given under my hand, at New-Haven, this seventh day of November, Anno Domini, 1776:

JONTH. TRUMBULL.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO COMMODORE HOPKINS.

Council Chamber, Providence, November 7th, Saturday Evening, 7 o'clock.

SIR: Yours of this day is just handed me by Mr. Brownel, and thank you for the intelligence, though had repeated advice thereof by land from each side of the Bay, the Committee having taken up about forty prisoners of the sailors brought here by the several privateers, and believe there is as many more yet about the street. Our jail is very full, and sending them in the country may not answer, as there will be but few or no men there to take care of them. I have called in all the men in this County to the defence of the State. About five hundred men have marched for Newport. Before I received yours, had got printed and dispersed a great number of the enclosed handbills, so that should the enemy delay their attack on this part of the State a few days, I hope to give them a very handsome reception.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To Esek Hopkins, Esq., Commander of the Continental Navy, on board the Warren, near Pawtuxet.

P. S. Please to let me know as soon as may be, what number of the above prisoners shall be sent on board your ships.

ESCAPE OF BRITISH PRISONERS FROM NORTHAMPTON JAIL.

Northampton, November 7, 1776.

Escaped from the jail in Northampton, Robert Arnold and Henry Stanhope, two prisoners, lately Midshipmen in the British Navy; the former a short, well-set, smart-looking, fresh-complexioned man, about thirty-five years old, wore a coat of a London brown colour. The latter absconded heretofore when on parole, and was retaken at Middletown; he also is a short man, with light hair, pale complexion, large eyes, lips and nose. Whoever will apprehend and secure either of said persons shall receive twenty dollars reward and necessary charges, from

AARON WRIGHT, Jailer.

BOSTON COMMITTEE TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

To the Honourable the Council of this State:

The Committee of Safety, &c., for the town of Boston, report to your Honours, that this day was brought before them one John Dean Whitworth, a prisoner, taken in arms against the forces of the United States of America; that the said Committee ordered the said Whitworth to be committed to the jail in this town, there to remain until your Honours shall give orders concerning him.

In the name and by the order of the Committee, I am, very respectfully, your Honours' most obedient and very humble servant,

NAT. BARBER, Chairman.

Boston, November 7th, 1776.

To the honourable the Council of this State.

The guard who brought the prisoner have an account of expenses attending the same. As the Committee have no fund to discharge it, they have advised them to lay the same before your Honours.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO COL. WINGATE.

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, November 7, 1776.

SIR: This State has employed Mr. James Anderson to ride post from hence to Ticonderoga, and he is to bring all the letters from the troops directed to New-Hampshire, free of cost.

In behalf of the Committee, I am your humble servant.

To Colonel Wingate.

P. S. You will notify the troops belonging to New-Hampshire of the above.

BY THE KING.—A PROCLAMATION

For recalling and prohibiting Seamen from serving foreign Princes and States; and for granting rewards for discovering such Seamen as shall conceal themselves.

GEORGE R.

Whereas we are informed that great numbers of mariners and seafaring men, our natural-born subjects, are in the service of divers foreign Princes and States, to the prejudice of our kingdom: We have, therefore, thought it necessary, by and with the advice of our Privy Council, to publish this our Royal Proclamation, and do hereby strictly charge and command all masters of ships, pilots, mariners, seamen, shipwrights, and other seafaring men whatever and wheresoever, (being our natural-born subjects,) who are in the pay or service of any foreign Prince or State, or do serve in any foreign ship or vessel, that forthwith they, and every of them, do, according to their known and bounden duty and allegiance, withdraw themselves, depart from, and quit such foreign services, and return home to their native countries. And further, we do hereby strictly prohibit and forbid all masters of ships, pilots, mariners, seamen, shipwrights, and other seafaring men whatsoever, (being our natural-born subjects,) from entering, and do charge and command them, and every of them, from henceforth, to forbear to enter themselves into the pay or service of any foreign Prince or State, or to serve in any foreign ship or vessel whatsoever, without our special license first had and obtained in that behalf; to all which we expect due obedience and exact conformity. And we do hereby publish and declare, that the offenders to the contrary shall not only incur our just displeasure, but be proceeded against for their contempt according to the utmost severities of the law. And we do hereby declare, that if any such masters of ships, pilots, mariners, seamen, shipwrights, or other seafaring men, (being our subjects,) shall be taken in any foreign service by the Turks, Algerines, or any others, they shall not be reclaimed by us as subjects of Great Britain. And we do hereby promise and declare, that a reward of two pounds for every able, and thirty shillings for every ordinary seaman, shall be paid any person who shall discover any seaman or seamen who may secrete themselves, that so such seaman or seamen shall be taken for our said service by any of our sea-officers employed for raising men, on or before the thirty-first day of December next; the said rewards to be paid for any seaman or seamen so discovered and taken in and about London, by the principal officers and Commissioners of our Navy; and at the out-ports, by the Naval Officers, (where there are any;) and where there are no Naval Officers, by the Collectors of our Customs, immediately upon a certificate being produced to the said principal officers and Commissioners of our Navy, Naval Officers, or Collectors respectively, by the person who may make discovery of any seaman or seamen as aforesaid, certifying his name, and the name or names, and number of seamen procured in consequence of his discovery; the said certificate to be given by such officer as may take such seaman or seamen for our service.

Given at our Court at St. James's, the eighth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six, in the seventeenth year of his reign.

God save the King!

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON TO WILLING AND MORRIS.

St. Eustatia, November 8th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The present tends to inform you we have received from Captain Samuel Pote the sum of thirteen hundred and twenty pounds, this currency, which we have already appropriated to the service of the State of Maryland. For this sum we have given our obligation, with Mr. Richard Gennings, merchant of this island, as security, payable ten days after demand, with interest of ten per cent. We have, therefore, to request, as Captain Pote takes passage in this vessel for Philadelphia, you'll endeavour to take up this obligation, which otherwise we may find difficult to discharge here when demanded.

The terms with him rely on you to make, but think you had better give currency per currency, in specie, together with interest accruing, than suffer a demand of the money here. Should you take up the above obligation, which will be rendering the State of Maryland a singular service, please to advise us thereof by first opportunity.

We are, gentlemen, with esteem, your most obedient servants,

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON.

To Messrs. Willing & Morris, merchants, Philadelphia.

---

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON TO THE MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Eustatia, 8th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The foregoing is what we have wrote Messrs. Willing & Morris relative to the obligations given Captain Samuel Pote for a sum of money which we had imminent occasion for, but fearing they will not exert themselves in that business unless they have orders from you, therefore must entreat you on receipt of this to write to and press them to take up said obligation, that we are incapacitated to discharge, should it be demanded here, we being so largely in advance of the publick already. We flatter ourselves, as we have strained every nerve to serve the State on every occasion, you will pay particular attention to our request.

Time will not permit us to enlarge, therefore conclude, with the highest esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

To the honourable the Council of Safety, State of Maryland.

Williamsburg, Virginia, November 8, 1776.

By the last South-Carolina Gazette, we learn that General Howe and the brave Colonel Moultrie were just returned to Charlestown from Georgia, and that there had been two skirmishes to the southward, in both of which our people were successful, but no particulars are mentioned; that a French sloop, with a valuable cargo of warlike stores, linens, wines, molasses, &c., were also arrived from Martinico.

Arrived in York river, the sloop Jane, Booker; schooner Success, Hill; and schooner Rambler, Buffington; all from St. Eustatia, with eight hundred casks of gunpowder, considerable cargoes of salt, cordage, and dry goods.

Letters of undoubted credit from Martinique, dated the 27th of July, say, there are now in the French Islands about fifteen thousand troops; that their fortifications are in the best order, and that they only wait for a pretext to break with Great Britain, which most people there imagine will soon be found. The French are much pleased with the Americans becoming an independent people, and highly extol them for the struggle they are making for their liberties. Every kind of Continental produce is much wanted in the French Islands, and bear a high price.

Since the 1st instant, a Spanish ship arrived in Hampton road; it is said she has come to purchase a cargo of flour, and has on board six thousand dollars. Advices by this ship say, that the French seem determined to strike some capital blow against Great Britain in a very short time.

We hear that eight hundred North-Carolina troops are daily expected at Suffolk, who are on their march to join the Northern Army, near New-York.

A couple of vessels are gone up the Bay with nine hundred barrels of gunpowder each, besides salt and dry goods.

Williamsburg, November 8, 1776.

The Officers of the Second Regiment who are now recruiting will please to inform me immediately of their success, and so soon as their companies are completed, to repair without loss of time to Williamsburg.

Letters directed to me near Fredericksburg.

Lieutenant-Colonel of Second Regiment.

Williamsburg, November 8, 1776.

All Marines out upon furlough, belonging to my quota, are desired immediately to repair on board the brig Muskito, Captain Harris. Deserted, Jesse Harden, Joseph Hairlow, and Thomas Meriman, for apprehending each of whom I will give three pounds reward.

JACOB VALENTINE.

ARCHIBALD BUCHANAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have received only five hundred pounds towards building gondolas. They are both decked, and now a calking, and will be ready very soon. You may order rigging and the materials as soon as you please. I want a further sum of money, which please to pay to Mr. John Donelson.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

ARCH'D BUCHANAN.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

CUMBERLAND DUGAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, 8th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 6th instant have received, desiring of me to be informed what readiness the schooner Ninety-Two's in for sea, &c., of which the bearer, Captain Kilty, can inform you particularly; only I have to say her cargo is all ready to go off. She has been hove down and graved with tallow, bottom, &c., but yet the carpenters have some little to do to her. How long it will take them, Captain Kilty will advise you, but I think she will be all clear for sea this day week. She has now in some of your staves, twenty hogsheads tobacco, and two hundred and twenty barrels flour; the rest of her flour I expect to get in to-morrow and the beginning of next week, and then her bread to fill up. As to a master, I imagine you won't get your choice of an undoubted good man, without you give the consignment, which they seem all to hang out for here; but by the time the vessel is loaded, I hope shall be able to procure a man of merit, and if such applies to you, hope you'll send him here.

I am informed you have some salt vessels arrived to you, which is an article much wanted here, and the present is principally to propose purchasing a cargo of you, which shall take immediately out of your vessel at the highest price any person will give here, and shall pay on receipt for the same, or load the vessel for you as you may order, or shall otherwise receive the salt in my warehouse, and retail it to the publick as you may think proper to order it; in all which expect to be accountable to you, and do your business to your satisfaction, I hope, and on as low terms as any person in this place. Should be glad you would please to favour me with a line on this head, which shall esteem a favour; and having now nearly done with the Ninety-Two, shall be out of business, and do wish you would order me the loading of another of your vessels, or any other business you may have to do this way; in all which I hope to act to your satisfaction.

Gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

CUMB'D DUGAN.

To the honourable the Council of Safety for Maryland, at Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WARD.

Philadelphia, November 8, 1776.

SIR: I do myself the pleasure of forwarding the enclosed resolve, by which you will be informed that Congress, in consideration of your keeping the command in the Eastern Department, have come to the determination to allow you the pay of a Major-General commanding in a separate department, from the time of your resignation until a suitable person can be appointed in your stead, or the matter shall be otherwise ordered by Congress.

Wishing you all possible health and happiness, I am, with sentiments of esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Hon. Major-General Ward, Massachusetts-Bay.

BOARD OF WAR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

War Office, November 8th, 1776.

SIR: Mr. Lewis (a brother Delegate) has given Congress information that application had been made to your Excellency by a flag from General Howe, to permit Mrs. Watts and Mrs. Barrow, the paymaster's wife, to go to their husbands in New-York, and at the same time, requested Congress to assist him with their authority to obtain the release of his lady, whom the enemy would not permit to come out. The House having referred the matter to the Board of War, we beg leave to represent to your Excellency the propriety of obtaining Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Robinson, her daughter, with her children, in exchange for Mrs. Watts and Mrs. Barrow; and if you have not already permitted these ladies to go into York, or given General Howe a promise to that effect, that you will make the release of our ladies, if we may be allowed the expression, a necessary requisite. Indeed, should you have complied with General Howe's request, we submit it to your Excellency whether Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Robinson may not be asked for in return. We do not imagine that you will be refused; but should you, we must recur to the unhappy expedient of withholding in future every similar indulgence to those ladies in our power, who may desire to visit their connexions in the Army.

We are very sorry that our enemies have compelled us to resolve upon any thing which looks like severity, or indeed to lay any restraint upon the fair sex; but though we cannot approve the practice, we shall be obliged to follow the example of his Britannick Majesty's commanders.

We have the honour to be, with the most perfect esteem, your very obedient servants,

BENJ'N HARRISON,
JAMES WILSON,
EDWARD RUTLEDGE.

His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c., Head-Quarters.

P. S. Should Mrs. Watts and Mrs. Barrow carry in their baggage, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Robinson must have the same indulgence. Perhaps if the ladies cannot be exchanged upon the above terms, Mrs. Lewis may be exchanged for Mrs. Kempe.

RICHARD PETERS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

War Office, Philadelphia, November 8th, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: General Schuyler is very desirous of having an answer to his letters respecting the Nanticoke Indians. The Six Nations repeatedly complain that those of that nation who were left in Maryland are detained there, contrary to their inclinations. This idea, though not founded in truth, creates much uneasiness, and is constantly held up by the Indians, in their conferences with the General.

Congress have before written to your State on the subject on which I have now the honour of addressing you by order of the Board of War, but have not been favoured with an answer, which I have it in command to request you will now be pleased to give, that it may be transmitted to General Schuyler, and he may thereby be enabled to satisfy the minds of the Indians on this subject.

With the greatest respect, I have the honour to be, your most obedient humble servant,

RICHARD PETERS, Sec'y.

To the honourable Convention, or Council of Safety, Maryland.

P. S. The Board have received an account of prisoners of war in your State, and would be obliged to you for a list of the officers of Continental troops raised in your State, their ranks, and dates of commission, and also the number of privates.

MEETING OF CITIZENS OF PHILADELPHIA.

At a meeting of a number of the citizens of Philadelphia, in the Philosophical Society Hall, the 8th of November, 1776, Peter Chevalier Chairman:

Resolved unanimously, That the following Instructions to the Representatives of the City of Philadelphia, in Assembly, be published for the consideration of the citizens previous to a town-meeting to be held at the State House, the 12th instant, at nine o'clock in the forenoon:

To GEORGE CLYMER, JOSEPH PARKER, ROBERT MORRIS, MICHAEL SHUBERT, JOHN BAYARD, and SAMUEL MORRIS, Jun., Esquires:

GENTLEMEN: The late suffrages of your fellow-citizens in appointing you to represent the City of Philadelphia in the ensuing General Assembly of Pennsylvania, is a sufficient proof that we confide in your wisdom and integrity. We lament that the frame of Government formed by the late Convention of the State is such that we are obliged to charge you to use your utmost influence to prevent the immediate execution of it. We feel, with our fellow-citizens in every part of the State, the inconveniences of a want of a regular Government, that shall collect and exert the strength of the State against our powerful external and artful internal enemies; but we choose rather to suffer these inconveniences for a few weeks longer than submit to a Government which we apprehend is by no means equal to those purposes, and which destroys the great objects of equal liberty and free Government, for which alone we consented to draw the sword in the present contest with Great Britain.

We require of you, therefore, to propose to the Assembly, as soon as it is convened, to make such alterations and amendments in the constitution formed by the late Convention as are necessary to render it a safe, rational, and consistent frame of Government; and we require your particular attention to the following Instructions relative to that important business:

First. You will consider well, that all Government is founded in the weakness and depravity of human nature, and that the perfection of Government consists in forming its powers in such a manner as shall most effectually guard against arbitrary power on the one hand and licentiousness on the other; and by these means give security to every individual for his liberty, property, and life.

Secondly. You are to consider well the influence of ancient habits upon the minds of your constituents, and therefore you are to oppose unnecessary alterations in the late form of Government of Pennsylvania, confining yourselves chiefly to such innovations as are necessary to abolish the late regal and proprietary power of the State, and to place the whole Executive power of the Government in the hands of the servants of the people.

Thirdly. You are carefully to adopt such parts of the constitution formed by the late Convention as secure to the people annual elections, suitable division and rotation of offices, liberty of conscience, freedom of the press, and trial by juries.

Fourthly. You are to use your endeavour to divide the supreme legislative power in such a manner as shall produce wise, just, and well-digested counsels, and thus secure the State from the influence of hasty, incorrect, passionate and prejudiced determinations.

Fifthly. You are to urge the necessity of Judges holding their commissions during good behaviour, as a regulation essential to the equal administration of justice.

Sixthly. You will endeavour to form a Government in such a manner as to leave the people at all times in a situation adequate to their wants, and by no means encroach by any arbitrary article in the constitution upon the liberty of succeeding years, but allow the suffrages of the people, collected in any way they shall think proper, to make such changes in their constitution and laws as they shall at any time judge essential to their freedom and happiness. You will therefore oppose those dangerous and alarming innovations in a free Government, a Council of Censors, and a Septennial Convention.

Seventhly. You will use your influence to have such temporary ordinances passed as are necessary for the safety and protection of this State, as well from internal as external enemies.

Eighthly. You are to remember that the consent of a majority of the people alone can render a frame of Government, as well as laws, valid, and therefore you will propose that the frame of Government be submitted to the consideration of the people a reasonable time, and after having collected their opinions in such a manner as shall be most expedient, you are to alter or confirm the same, as shall be found necessary. You will then immediately dissolve yourselves, having previously issued writs for the election of Assembly and other officers of Government.

COLONEL MORGAN TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Fort Pitt, November 8, 1776.

SIR: I have the happiness to inform Congress that the cloud which threatened to break over this part of the country, appears now to be nearly dispersed. The Six Nations, Delawares, Munsies, Mohicans, and Shawanees, who have been assembled here to the number of six hundred and forty-four, with their principal chiefs and warriours, have given the strongest assurance of their resolutions to preserve inviolate the peace and neutrality they have engaged in with the United States. About sixty or seventy families, composed of most of the different tribes of the Six Nations, and a few of the Lake Indians, but principally of the Senecas, who removed from near the mouths of Cross Creeks, on the Ohio, a few years ago, and are now seated on the heads of the Scioto, have been the perpetrators of all the mischief and murders committed on the frontiers of Virginia, since the last treaty.

The murders which have come to my knowledge are of two women at the mouth of Fish Creek, (where one boy is missing,) one man opposite Hockhocking, where four others were wounded, and two soldiers, who were killed and scalped within half a mile of Fort Randolph, at the mouth of Great Kenawha, all on the banks of the Ohio. Two days before the last-mentioned happened, the Shawanese made it their business, as they frequently have done, to inform the commanding officer at Kenawha, that a party of Mingoes, as these people are generally called, were in the neighbourhood, with hostile intentions. Before any of these murders were committed our frontier inhabitants were generally flown from their farms and evacuated the country for two hundred miles in extent, except at particular places, where some of them forted, and proposed to make a stand. This flight was occasioned by the false alarms we received in the months of August and September last, respecting the great assemblies of Indians to attack this post, and of a general war being inevitable. In order to put a stop to the conduct of the banditti above-mentioned the Six Nations have now deputed a principal chief and several warriors to go and remove the whole of them to the Seneca country; or at least, to make them sensible of their errour, and engage them to desist. In case of a refusal, they are to threaten them with a total extirpation, as disturbers of the general peace; in which several chiefs of different nations have assured me they will unite. Several principal men of the different nations having accepted the invitation of Congress to visit them, is a further proof of the peaceable disposition of their tribes. The Indians having frequently complained of our surveying their lands, and having now pointed to a recent instance thereof in publick council, will give Congress a good opportunity to convince them of the sincerity of our professions on that head. For the particulars of every transaction here, I beg leave to refer to the Commissioners who wait upon Congress with their report.

GENERAL STEPHEN TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Trenton, 8th November, 1776.

Enclosed are the receipts for what we have had for the use of the brigade under my command.

Please to inform the Board that we left sick and convalescent at this place: of the Fourth Battalion, 95; of the Fifth Battalion, 130; of the Sixth Battalion, 99;—324.

I give out that we are on our march to join the grand Army. When we arrive at Brunswick, I will wait on General Mercer, at Amboy, and if any thing can be done on Staten-Island I will rejoice at the opportunity.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

ADAM STEPHEN.

To Secretary Peters, War Office, Philadelphia.

P. S. The brigade are moved to Princeton.

GENERAL MERCER TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

[Read 11th: Referred to the Board of War.]

Perth-Amboy, 8th November, 1776.

SIR: By an express just now arrived, General Greene informs me that the motions of the enemy discover an intention of crossing over to the Jersey side. About ten thousand of them appeared yesterday opposite to Dobbs's Ferry. General Washington has ordered a part of his Army to cross the river above the enemy. I have ordered the Virginia troops at Trenton to move on with all possible expedition, and shall draw together what force can be spared from these posts to join our Army at Fort Lee. The disaffected inhabitants of Monmouth County, along the shores of Middleton and Shrewsbury, expect daily that the enemy will make a descent on that part of the coast. They are forming associations to join the British troops on their landing. Colonel Thompson, with part of his battalion of Sussex Militia, marched two days ago to reinforce Colonel Hendrickson, who commands the Militia of Monmouth, with orders to secure such persons as were openly inimical, and to drive off all the stock fit for use.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

HUGH MERCER.

To Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER AT MOUNT WASHINGTON, TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA.

Mount Washington, York Island, November 8, 1776.
Friday night, 10 o'clock.

This day a few of the common soldiers of the Third and Fifth Pennsylvania battalions gave rise to a little skirmish, which, though trifling in itself, yet I cannot help relating, as it serves to point out some of the effects of discipline.

The scene of this little rencountre lay on an eminence between the termination of Mount Washington and King's Bridge, in a transverse line with, and under the full command of a height in possession of our Hessian enemy. Near the summit of this eminence, and facing some of our works, is a large rock or natural breastwork, where a small body of their men were posted. Two of our people had the boldness to advance up this hill, without the least cover, in order, as they said, to have a fairer shot at those planted behind the rocky barrier. These sustained the musketry of the Hessians and the fire of a field-piece from the neighbouring height. Some more of our men came up to their assistance. The fire upon the breastwork was now redoubled, and poured in upon their enemies in such a close and well-managed succession as entirely silenced them.

The Hessian main guard, who were posted about four hundred yards from this place, seeing the danger of their sentries, turned out and marched to their relief. I think there was about fifty of the enemy in motion. Our little body was now augmented to between fifteen and twenty. They were now at but a very small distance from the rocky breastwork, when perceiving the route of the Hessians, they saw that they must either give up the ground they had gained, or intimidate the approaching enemy. At this critical juncture I could see the brave fellows form with the utmost regularity and order; and then, as if under the command of the best officer, arrange into three divisions. The spectators on both sides, as if by mutual agreement, seemed willing to trust the issue of this little affair to those already in the field and in motion.

Two of our divisions immediately began a circuit round the bend of the hill, in order, as was supposed, to get on the rear of the enemy at the rocks, and opposite the main guard, who were coming on, whilst the centre division advanced towards the rock, keeping up all the while a regular fire. This little piece of instinctive, or rather mechanical generalship, had a most beautiful effect. The sentries, aware of their danger, precipitately retreated, carrying off with them two killed or wounded. Our men took possession of their post, burned their huts, and secured a rifle-gun, a musket, and blanket, which I suppose belonged to those who were carried off. Upon gaining the contested ground, they gave three cheers for the Congress, which was returned by their flanking parties, and replied to by a discharge from the Hessian artillery. The divisions now united, and seemed, notwithstanding their enemy's field-pieces and superiour force which was advancing against them, resolved on defending the height they had so martially obtained. For this purpose we could see them dispose themselves along a railed fence that commanded the road by which the Hessian guard must pass before they could make an advantageous attack. They were now reinforced with a few stragglers from other regiments. Their fire was so very well directed and judiciously managed as to keep the Hessians at bay; and at length forced them to take shelter in an orchard nearly opposite to our little line of adventurers. They held their ground till night, and then came off in good order, and with only one man wounded, a Sergeant Wright of the Third Pennsylvania Regiment. He received a ball in advancing to the rocky breastwork.

I have been the more particular in the detail of this little affair, as it serves to show, in some measure, the force and advantage of good discipline. Here a few men out of the Third and Fifth Pennsylvania battalions, which are remarkable for their discipline, without any preconcerted plan, met together by chance, and without a leader to direct them, exhibited an epitome of generalship that would not have dishonoured even Hannibal or Scipio. Examples of this kind show more than any thing else the importance and necessity of early and late inculcating the strictest forms of discipline. It is by no means improbable that the beauty and order of most of the animal motions arise from repetition. This, particularly in the soldiery, begets habits which are often preferable to the greatest courage.

November 9th.—Hitherto the achievements of our little Army on York Island have been extremely fortunate. The genius that presides here seems to be of the enterprising kind. Last campaign it was thought matter of great hardihood and praise to burn the enemy's guard-house at Roxbury, on Boston Neck, and a few houses in Charlestown, under cover of the night. But here such exploits are conducted in open day.

This morning we found the enemy once more in possession of the rock from whence we had routed them yesterday. About eight men, under the command of Colonel Penrose, of Philadelphia, and Major Hubley, (lately an officer to the northward,) resolved to dislodge them a second time. As the men were in high spirits, and the barn and dwelling-house which the guard occupied at but a small distance, the Colonel proposed storming them. We soon regained the rock, and, with surprising rapidity, the houses, notwithstanding an incessant fire from their artillery, main guard, and a small redoubt in an orchard adjoining the guard that commanded the road. The Hessians were soon obliged to abandon their posts. We killed on the spot about ten, the rest either escaped or were burned in the houses, which some of our men, without order, immediately fired.

It is something remarkable that on our side we had only one man wounded. Perhaps the sally was so unexpected as to have entirely disconcerted and confused them. No men ever behaved more resolutely or bravely than ours.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

White-Plains, November 8, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have been favoured with yours of the 31st ultimo, by Monsieur Laytamai, and must take the liberty of referring you to my former letters upon the subject of providing for the French gentlemen who shall incline to enter the service of the States. To me there appears that one of two modes must be adopted: they must either be appointed to places in some of the regiments, or formed into a distinct corps. The former was advised as the most eligible in respect to the gentlemen who were here before. It requires time to form an accurate opinion of the merits of an officer, and the present situation of the Army will not allow me to pay a particular attention to Monsieur Laytamai, or such notice as he may wish to receive, or I to give; nor is there any way of making his stay here agreeable.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL GREENE.

Head-Quarters, November 8th, 1776.

SIR: The late passage of the three vessels up the North River (which we have just received advice of) is so plain a proof of the inefficacy of all the obstructions we have thrown into it, that I cannot but think it will fully justify a change in the disposition which has been made. If we cannot prevent vessels passing up, and the enemy are possessed of the surrounding country, what valuable purpose can it answer to attempt to hold a post from which the expected benefit cannot be had? I am therefore inclined to think it will not be prudent to hazard the men and stores at Mount Washington; but as you are on the spot, leave it to you to give such orders as to evacuating Mount Washington as you judge best, and so far revoking the order given Colonel Magaw to defend it to the last.

The best accounts obtained from the enemy assure us of a considerable movement among their boats last evening; and so far as can be collected from the various sources of intelligence, they must design a penetration into Jersey, and fall down upon your post. You will therefore immediately have all the stores, &c., removed, which you do not deem necessary for your defence; and as the enemy have drawn great relief from the forage and provisions they have found in the country, and which our tenderness spared, you will do well to prevent their receiving any fresh supplies there, by destroying it, if the inhabitants will not drive off their stock, and remove the hay, grain, &c., in time. Experience has shown that a contrary conduct is not of the least advantage to the poor inhabitants, from whom all their effects of every kind are taken, without distinction and without the least satisfaction.

Troops are filing off from hence as fast as our circumstances and situation will admit, in order to be transported over the river with all expedition.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

Go. Washington.

To Major-General Greene.

P. S. I need not suggest to you the necessity of giving General Mercer early information of all circumstances, in order that he may move up to your relief with what troops he has.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN VIRGINIA, DATED HEAD-QUARTERS, WHITE-PLAINS, NOVEMBER 8, 1776.

We have certain information that the enemy are retreating towards King's Bridge; in consequence of which our General has sent out strong parties to harass their rear. He has acquired great honour in baffling the schemes of General Howe, who is most certainly disappointed in his grand plan of surrounding our Army. He has been employed in this business since the 17th of last month, and has now pushed off without having benefited his cause in the smallest degree. His Army have marked their march and retreat with every act of rapine and desolation, not confining their depredations to the Whigs, for the Tories have equally sufferred with them. It is alleged that it is not in General Howe's power to restrain the Hessians and other foreigners in his Army, it being of too much consequence to offend them for trifles.

ROBERT BOYD TO MATTHEW CANTINE.

New-Windsor, November 8th, 1776.

Sir: I am requested by the Committee of our County to solicit the members thereof now representing it in the Convention of the State, to have the matter determined relative to the members of the Precinct Committee being subject to military duty. As there is some uneasiness prevailing in the County, I beg you will use your endeavours to have the matter fixed in absolute terms, so that it may be clearly understood whether Committees are subject to the command of military or militia officers.

I further request that you will endeavour to have the matter determined what is to be done concerning recruits who neglect to attend County Committees, after due notice given them.

Sir, your compliance will much oblige your constituents, also save trouble to your humble servant,

Robert Boyd, Jun.

To Matthew Cantine, Esq., one of the members for Ulster, in Convention, New-York.

JOHN THOMAS TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Fishkill, November 8, 1776.

Sir: The beginning of June last, when in New-York, I purchased a quantity of tea and sent it up to Esopus, in Ulster County, for safety. A few days ago I went up to fetch the tea, intending to carry it to Connecticut, the place where I live, and found that one box of it had been opened by persons unknown, and that the remaining part was in the custody of the Committee. I applied to them for it, which they refused delivering me, until I could get an order from the Convention of this State. I therefore beg the favour of the honourable Convention to give such directions to the Committee that I may receive my property again, which I humbly conceive I am justly entitled to.

I am, sir, your obedient servant, John Thomas.

To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., President of Convention.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Albany, November 8th, 1776.

Sir: Mr. Livingston's furnace not being in blast, has disappointed me in getting stoves from thence. That at Salisbury is employed in casting cannon, and I am informed that there is a furnace in the Highlands, where they may be procured. Permit me to beg the favour of you to get the owner to cast fifty of the largest size in common use; they are to have pipes fixed on them. I wish them to have them done as soon as possible, and sent to this place. I shall immediately order payment on receiving the account.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient, humble servant,

Philip Schuyler.

The honourable President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, November 8, 1776.

Dear Sir: I have the honour to inform your Excellency that General Gates has advised me of the retreat of the British troops from Crown-Point. The last of them left Crown-Point on Monday morning. Sir John Johnson is returned with them.

I am, most respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

Ph. Schuyler.

His Excellency General Washington.

Be so good as to forward this account to Congress, as I have not time to write, this going by the Convention post.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, November 8, 1776.

Dear Sir: I am just favoured with your letter of the 5th instant, advising me of the departure of the British troops from Crown-Point, an event that will give great pleasure to the country. General Washington continues securely posted on the heights, near the White-Plains. Nothing material has lately happened there, except that the enemy's ships sustained considerable damage in their attack on Fort Washington.

Accounts from Boston say that a vessel is arrived there, the master of which declares that war is proclaimed by the French against England. He goes so far as to say that he had himself read the declaration. A prisoner and deserters from the British Army near the White-Plains say that such a report prevailed with them.

As the Militia are now coming away, there will not be a person left to assist in conveying the boards, &c., to you from Cheshire's. You must therefore send men to Skenesborough and Cheshire's. Flour is getting on very fast, and I hope in a few days to send you more nails.

Pray cause the lake, from the redoubt to Mount Independence, to be sounded, and all the different depths marked down on a line, of the distance between the two.

In ten days we shall have barracks at Saratoga for a thousand men.

I am, dear General, with every friendly wish, yours most sincerely,

Ph. Schuyler.

The Honourable General Gates.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Albany, November 8th, 1776.

Sir: I have the honour to advise you that General Carleton with his whole Army is retreated to Canada. The last of his troops left Crown-Point at ten o'clock on Monday morning. Sir John Johnson returned with him.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

Ph. Schuyler.

Honourable President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

MATTHEW VISCHER TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Albany, November 8th, 1776.

Dear Sir: Yesterday we had accounts from Colonel Ten Broeck that Barent Roseboom, with fifteen of our Albany Militia, had been to Crown-Point, where they found some horses and cattle, which have been brought into our camp. Just now Major Stewart arrived, who brings accounts that the enemy have entirely evacuated Crown-Point, and are returned to Canada, telling the inhabitants at that place they would return early in the spring, when they would give our Army hot work. Nothing from the westward but peace. Messrs. Gansevoort, Lush, Dr. Young, and myself, are appointed a Committee to correspond with the Convention. Mrs. Yates and the family is well.

Yours sincerely,

Matthew Vischer.

To Mr. Yates.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 15.]

Albany, November 8th, 1776.

Sir: Before this comes to hand you will probably be informed that the enemy have retreated from Crown-Point into Canada, an event of which General Gates advised me by the bearer hereof, Major Steward. I have ordered such of the Militia to be dismissed as still remain to the northward and westward.

Messrs. Stockton and Clymer are expected here to-day. I shall communicate to those gentlemen what I think necessary to be done in this department in the course of the winter.

I have been disappointed in procuring stoves for the barracks at Mr. Livingston's iron works, which are not in blast. It is hardly possible to do without them, and I shall therefore send to some other place; but as I cannot procure sheet-iron for the pipes, I wish to have one hundred and fifty sheets expedited to me the soonest possible.

I am, sir, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

Ph. Schuyler.

---

LEONARD GANSEVOORT TO PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT.

Albany, 8th November, 1776.

Sir: I am directed by the Committee of the City and County of Albany to acknowledge the receipt of the resolve of your House by express.

By Major Walter Stuart, Aid-de-Camp to General Gates, who just now arrived from Ticonderoga, we learn that the enemy have entirely evacuated Crown-Point, and are returned to Canada, telling the inhabitants that the season was too far advanced this year, but that early in the spring they would return and give them (meaning our Army) hot work.

We have received nothing from the westward, but that every thing was peace in that quarter.

I am, most respectfully, your very humble servant,

Leonard Gansevoort.

To Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq.

MORGAN LEWIS TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, November 8, 1776.

Honoured Sir: Immediately upon my arrival here I was informed by General Schuyler that the reason of my being sent for was in order that I might perform the duties of my department, he being determined to act in the Quartermaster line no longer; so that I imagine I shall be detained altogether at this place. I have delivered the General your memoranda of the articles wanted at Ty. He informs me he has wrote for them some time since, and will forward them as soon as they arrive. When at Skenesborough I gave all necessary orders relative to the procuring provender for the cattle, and hope ere this they have been complied with; although I confess I cannot put so great a confidence in the present commanding officer there, as I at first imagined.

By express from New-York we learn that our Army and the enemy have had many skirmishes lately, in most of which we have proved successful. That Head-Quarters is at North-Castle, the two Armies in view, each endeavouring to out-flank the other, and a general action supposed to be unavoidable. General Burgoyne is confidently asserted to be at New-York, and if there is any faith in Dutchmen, which I greatly doubt, Sir John Johnson is near the Mohock country.

Permit me now, sir, to congratulate you on the arrival of that happy period to which we have all looked forward with the most anxious expectation: France has declared war with Britain. General Schuyler last night received information from Head-Quarters at New-York, that a vessel had arrived at Boston, from one of the French islands, bringing the intelligence; and what induces me to believe it true is, that a deserter who came from the enemy says they had received the like information. God grant that this may divert the arms of Britain to another quarter, is the sincere wish of, sir, your ever affectionate and obedient humble servant,

Morgan Lewis.

General Gates.

BERNARD ROMANS TO GENERAL GATES.

Skene's Borough, November 8, 1776.

Honoured Sir: Agreeable to the instructions you were pleased to honour me with, I have repaired to this place, and also to Fort Anne, or Cheshire's, where I have viewed, and, as well as the shortness of time and the want of instruments would allow, surveyed the works already done at both places, the result of which please to accept in the following report:

At Skeenesborough the spot pitched upon appears to be the best place on the west side of the river, or, indeed, any where at all for the protection of the mills, which I take to be in no small danger, should the enemy ever attempt to destroy them. But the thing called a fort, baffles all description: It is an irregular polygon; irregular indeed; and by its form, indefensible with a vengeance. Add to this that it occupies so much ground as to require at least three hundred men to defend it in every part, to which material defect the stupidity of its plan adds not a little; nor could a body of men hold out in it for want of water—a well, I fear, being unattainable within the stockado. The plan will exactly acquaint you with its size and shape. The palisadoes are bad; many are slabs, as are all the fraizes. The gate is only three inches thick, of white pine. The barracks forty-five foot by twenty, and of the foolish structure called a story and a half. On the subject of the two last articles, I have told the commanding officers what I now inform you of. To the first, he seems to believe that the gate is thick enough; my last remark he was sensible of, but the carpenters must go home, and the late season will not admit of a more extensive building. The pricked lines on the same plan will show you my opinion how this piece of ground might have been occupied to some advantage. Colonel Wynkoop seems, however, to think much of a vigorous defence he could (with fifty men) make in the present fort; and on the whole, that gentleman seems very averse to have any more work done here.

The stone house on the east side appears to me calculated to become a great nuisance in the hands of a partisan, who might slily come here; therefore I think it necessary to be dismantled, or if not, I would recommend the blocking up of its doors and windows. The small building joining, affords one good flanker already, and if it was stockadoed on its south side, as my pricked line, and part of the roof on the north side prepared to remain as a blind towards the hill, while the remaining part be ready to take down in case of attack: thus altered, this small work, in the hands of sixty or eighty men, (notwithstanding its vicinity to the hill,) might make an obstinate defence against a very furious assault, especially if the garrison be conducted by an officer who is acquainted with the methods of defence in such posts, the more so as one or two light cannon might be employed to advantage in it, and as it appears to stand on a spot where a well might be obtained.

The work at Cheshire's is good, substantial, and well contrived, but its flankers ill executed. Enclosed is its plan. The dotted lines denote how I thought of altering it; but as I had no orders, could give no positive direction about it. The simple line will show how it was intended to be enlarged, but, in my opinion, such enlargement would be folly, as it is now of sufficient extent for two hundred men. Whoever built the works at the mill at Cheshire's was either well guided by chance, or had very clear ideas of the defence of a piece of ground, joined to an excellent coup d'oeil, but the woods must be cleared around it, without which the mill is in danger, in spite of the block-house. The officer at this last place has only seventeen men fit for duty—a number scarce enough to work the mill. I think that with about thirty men I could undertake its defence against five hundred small-arms, while provision lasted. It has an inexhaustible supply of water. A plan would afford very imperfect ideas of it. I will, therefore, furnish you a perspective of it, in case I return there. The mill seems to me to have some small defect in its construction; it cuts, however, many plank. When I was there, I saw from twenty-two hundred to twenty-four hundred good boards at it, but Mr. Yates tells me he cannot send them down for want of men and boats. I have not had an opportunity of seeing the returns here, but it does not appear to me that there is much above fifty—a number very incompetent to do the necessary duty of the place; if, therefore, you choose to have any thing more done, it will be requisite that at least two well-conducted companies be sent to this place.

I beg your excusing the roughness of the draughts. I could not execute them better for want of time and instruments.

I wait your orders, to which I shall pay the utmost deference in their execution.

I remain, with all possible esteem, honoured sir, your most obedient servant,

B. Romans.

To General Gates.

---

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Ticonderoga, November 8th, 1776.

Dear Sir: The vessels and a number of batteaus were sent about a fortnight ago to Skeensborough, as you desired; but an insignificant quantity of flour has been received from that post, and nothing lately from Fort George. Major Livingston, who arrived here yesterday from that place, does not give me the most promising hopes of a supply that way. Our demands being great, and the means in our power here very small, I entreat you will exert your utmost authority to provide us with a sufficiency of flour.

When Colonel Trumbull left this camp, he told me he then had a very large sum of money in hand, and promised he would immediately send one hundred thousand dollars for the recruiting service. This happened about one month ago; and, to my astonishment, he now writes to his assistant here, that his cash it mostly paid off! Unless I be immediately supplied with the double of that sum, the indispensable recruiting of this Army for the defence of these posts during next winter, will be utterly defeated, notwithstanding all the pains and generous exertions of Congress for its accomplishment. The arrears of all the regiments, and the ration money so long due, must now all be cleared off; hence you may easily judge of the demand.

The proceedings of the Court-Martial on Colonel Donald Campbell were sent by him and sealed up, to General Washington, for his opinion, but I have not received it as yet.

There was not, on Tuesday, the least sign of an enemy forty miles below Crown-Point; and the inhabitants who daily come here from down the lake, besides several other circumstances, give reason to believe the enemy have, in good earnest, retired into winter quarters, but I will remit nothing of my vigilance.

I sent yesterday a barge to Isle-aux-Noix, with Lieutenant Evans and a Frenchman, who has a family in Canada. I expect the return of the barge will favour me with good intelligence, which I shall communicate to you as speedily as possible.

To the Hon. Major-General Schuyler.

New-London, November 8, 1776.

Some time ago, one Samuel Glover, a notorious offender, was taken at Mastick, on Long-Island, and is committed to jail in this town. The following papers were found with him:

This is to certify that Ensign Samuel Glover is authorized to inlist men to join my company, to complete a battalion in his Majesty's service, for the defence of the liberty of America.

Given under my hand, at Brook-Haven, this 22d day of September, 1776.

Jacob Smith.

Brook-Haven, October 18, 1776.

Sir: In consequence of instructions I have just received from Head-Quarters, you are forthwith to impress wagons and horses for his Majesty's service. The number is unlimited; therefore do not stint the cause. If you can't get a sufficient number of wagons, teams will answer, a driver for every team, which you will send without loss of time to White-Stone, near Flushing.

I beg, sir, you will exert yourself upon this occasion, and do not omit one moment, as it seems to be critical.

Jacob Smith,
Captain in the first Company in first Battalion, Brigadier-General Delancey's Brigade.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Providence, November 8th, 1776.

Gentlemen: Mr. Earle, the master of the Alfred, has applied for leave to come to Philadelphia to see his family; and as he has done his duty since in the service as a good officer, have given him leave to come to you and take your further directions.

Captain Field, in the Eagle, has made a complaint to me against Captain Jones, for taking out some of his hands. I have inquired so far as to find that Captain Jones met the privateer a coming in from a cruise, and on sending on board found two men belonging to the fleet, and two more belonging to the Rhode-Island brigade, all four of whom he took out, and I believe some more, which can't be well accounted for any other way than Captain Jones knew that the privateers made a constant practice of carrying away the men belonging to the fleet, thought it would put some stop to that practice, and not be any damage to the owners, as she was coming in from a cruise. I can't but believe that Captain Jones did as he thought best for the good of the publick, and I confess I shall be glad if it meets your approbation.

I hear that the Cabot has been in at Cape Ann, and expect her in to New-London in a few days; if so, shall try to get her fit to join in the expedition.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient humble servant,

Esek Hopkins.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the honourable Marine Committee at Philadelphia.

---

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO CAPTAIN HINMAN.

Providence, November 8th, 1776.

Sir: I received yours of the 2d instant, and congratulate you on your success. And now to let you know that I have received orders from the Marine Committee to proceed on an expedition in which the Cabot is to be employed. Should you be arrived at New-London, I desire you will get the Cabot graved and fitted for sea as soon as possible with four months' provisions on board. I have a Captain's commission from the Marine Committee, appointing you Captain of the Alfred, but as she is out at present, shall continue you on board the Cabot or on board the Columbus. Should be glad to see or hear from you as soon as possible. I desire you will on your arrival let my negro man Loushir come home, and send Surrinam Wanton with him, as I have bought him at vendue.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

Esek Hopkins.

To Elisha Hinman, Esq., Commander of the Brigantine Cabot, at New-London.

---

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO WILLIAM ELLERY.

Providence, November 8th, 1776.

Sir: There was a negro man on board the Andrew Doria named Dragon Wanton, which I have purchased. Should be extremely glad if you will take the trouble to take some charge of him, and either send him to me, or see that he is employed in the service with Captain Biddle, or any other way, as you may think fit.

My brother showed me a letter of yours, in which it seems I was roughly handled in Congress. It is true that I applied to the Committee for blankets for slops in the ships, but how they came by them I am altogether ignorant; however I am extremely obliged to you for supporting me.

We have no news here, nor nothing extraordinary, except that the privateers have great luck, and getting money fast. I wish they may not carry it so far as to be any ways detrimental.

I am, with great respect, sir, your friend and humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To the Honourable William Ellery, Esq., one of the members of the honourable Continental Congress at Philadelphia.

ESCAPE OF ABRAHAM HAIT FROM SPRINGFIELD JAIL.

Made his escape from the County jail in Springfield, in the State of the Massachusetts-Bay, in the night after the 8th instant, Abraham Hait, who was sent by the Committee of New-York to be confined in said jail for treasonable practices against the American States. He is about thirty years of age, five feet ten inches high, of a light complexion, wore away a blue coat and leather breeches. He says he belongs to New-Castle, in the State of New-York; also John Pickering, who was sent by said Committee to Worcester jail, and was taken sick in Springfield. Whoever will take up and return them to said jail shall receive five dollars reward.

THOMAS STEBBINS,
Chairman of said Committee.

Springfield, November 8, 1776.

SILAS DEANE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, 9th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have wrote you often and particularly of affairs here. The want of intelligence retards every thing. As I have not a word from you since the 6th of June last, I am well-nigh distracted.

That I may not omit any chance of sending to you, I write this, though I have long and minute letters by me waiting the departure of Monsieur General Du Coudray and his train, who, had I been properly and in season instructed, would before this have been with you; at present I have put much to the hazard to effect what I have.

Enclosed you have my thoughts on naval operations; and I pray you send me some blank commissions, which will enable me to fit out privateers from hence without any charge to you.

A war appears at hand, and will probably be general. All Europe have their eyes on the States of America, and are astonished to find month after month rolling away without your applying to them in form. I hope such application is on its way: nothing else is wanting to effect your utmost wishes.

I am, with compliments to friends, and respect to the honourable Congress, &c.,

SILAS DEANE.

PLIARNE, PENET, & CO. TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Nantes, le 9 Novem'r, 1776.

MES SEIGNEURS: C'est pour avoir l'honneur de vous assurer de mes respects, et celui de vous prevenir que j'écris à Monsieur le Docteur Franklin, et le prié de vouloir bien vous communiquer ma lettre, tant pour les trois passagers qui ont desiré passer au Continent, que pour mes opérations particulier et nouvelles de France.

Le Capitaine Rawlens ne partira qu'à la fin de Novembre. Nous le retenons dans l'espérance de recevoir encore quelques fonds afin de lui donner un plus fort chargement. Nous nous recommandons toujours à vos faveurs et aux demandes de nos lettre premiere, esperons que vous ferez enlever cette hyver au moins les objets que nous avons contracté avec vous, Mes Seigneurs, et que nous avons à votre disposition, dans nos magasins depuis bien du tems.

En cas que M. le Docteur Franklin ne fut à Philadelphia, nous vous prions de retirer sa lettre que j'ai l'honneur de lui écrire, et d'en prendre connoissance. Vous trouverez cy-joint le discour du Roi au Parlement et aux Communes, lequel nous est arrivé aujourd'hui de Londres.

Nous avons l'honneur d'être, Mes Seigneurs, avec un profond respect.

30 Novem'r, 1776.

MES SEIGNEURS: Nous avons l'honneur de vous expédier ce jour le navire le Sally, commandé par Capitaine Rawlins, chargé de plomb, poudre, fusils neufs du dernier modelle d'infanterie de France à l'épreuve, platines à doubles brides, tous du même calibres et proportions, tel que l'on les fournit au Roi, les ayant tiré de ses manufactures; ses armes sont munis de leurs bayonettes, avec leurs fouraux de cuire, baguettes d'acier et un tirbour et tirballe. C'est de ce modelle que nous vous fournirons les quinze mil demandé par notre contract. Vous trouverez aussi de belles platines pareille à ceux des fusils, bien finies et perfectionnés. J'y ai joint des aiguilles à voilles et ordinaire avec quelques balles de differentes espèces de toilles; nous prions le Seigneur que cela vous arrive heureusement, espérant que vous serez satisfaits de la qualité des marchandises et munitions ainsi que des prix que nous vous passons au meilleur compte possible, persuadé qu'il n'en parviendra pas au Continent de meilleure qualité et à meilleur compte à moins qu'elles soyent fournies par notre maison.

Nous sommes toujours à l'attente de vos navires, et nous nous referrons aux demandes de nos premieres lettres, espérant que l'intérest que nous prennons pour le bien de votre nation, nous méritera de plus en plus votre confiance. Nous sommes informé que vous avez de capitaux dans plusieurs places d'Europe. Nous vous prions de vouloir bien avoir égard aux expéditions que nous devons vous faire, ayant les munitions et autres effets en magasin depuis six mois, que ce monte à un somme de 30 à 40 mil livres sterling de laquelle nous en avons reçus à peine six.

Vos maisons à Cadiz qui ont des fonds considerables à vous, n'en ont pas encore rendu compte à M. Schweighauser. Rien arrivé à Nantes depuis six mois, qu'un de vos navires chargé de grains à l'adresse de Monsieur Schweighauser. Voici le tems bon pour vos expéditions, nous esperons en recevoir pendant cette hyver, nous ferons tout ce qui dependra de nous pour expédier vos capitaines aussitôt arrivé.

Monsieur le Chevalier de Vraicourt, Ingénieur et Officier d'Artillerie, que j'ai déjà eu l'honneur de vous annoncer, aura celui de se présenter chez vous et vous offrir ses services. Il emporte avec lui tous les instruments et livres nécessaires à son état. Nous n'avons fait aucune condition ensemble: ce n'est qu'aprés qu'il aura fait connoître son mérite et ses talents pour la guerre qu'il espére mériter vos faveurs. Il a fait toute la derniere guerre, s'est toujours distingué dans toutes les opérations, il en a même des certificats avec lui, il a servi à l'armée comme Capitaine du génie et de l'artillerie, et est munis de tous ses brevets et commission. C'est un très bon gentilhomme de très grand noblesse dans le Luxembourg; M. son père étoit M. le Comte de Vraicourt, Directeur Général du génie; ce n'est qu'en ces considérations que je l'ai determiné de passer au service de la liberté, qu'il entreprend avec plaisir. Je me ferai toujours un devoir, Mes Seigneurs, lorsqu'il me sera possible de vous procurer un pareille sujet.

On vient de nous annoncer, que la flotte Espagnol a fait voile le 13 avec 20 mil hommes de troupes, l'on ignore sa destination; l'on dit aussi le Roi de Portugal est mort. La France vient d'expédier une petite flotte pour les Colonies Françaises, laquelle vous viendrat avantageuse pour les battiments que vous expédiez, chargé de denrees dans nos Isles. Cette flotte empêchera les frégattes Anglaises d'approcher de si près de nos côtes. On annonce aussi dans le moment qu'un navire Américain sortant de la riviere de Bordeaux, fut pris par un Anglais. Ce navire étoit (à ce que l'on dit) chargé de draps et autres marchandises seches pour aux environs de 20 mil livres sterling. Il en est arrivé en même tems deux autres, l'un venant de la Caroline, chargé de riz et indigo, l'autre venant des environs de Boston. La plupart des navires Américains viennent à Bordeaux, c'est cependant le plus mauvais port de France, tant pour les risques a courir pour l'entrée que pour ceux d'être vendue, par quantité de maisons Anglaises et Irlandaises, qui y sont établies. Ces personnes ne s'occuperont qu'à rendre compte chaque fois qu'il arrive un de vos navires. Vous verrez, Mes Seigneurs, que vous perderez quantité de navires dans ce port. Je suis même surpris que ce soit une maison Juif-Irlandaises qui soit dans cette ville à la tête de vos opérations les plus secrettes: c'est la maison Delaps, qui recevoit toutes les expéditions du Continent. On m'a dit que cette maison a reçu des ordres en conséquence du Congrès et de votre envoyé en France, qui a toute confiance en eux. Je desire, Mes Seigneurs, que vous ayez tous lieux d'être satisfait d'eux, mais j'ose vous dire que ce n'est pas ce que la publique pense. Avant qu'il ayt reçu de vos battiments il passoit pour le plus grand royaliste qu'il y ayt en France.

Nous avons à Bordeaux notre maison, Messrs. Reculé de Basmarain et Raimbeaux; nous avons pris la liberté de vous les recommander. Nous leurs avons envoyé dernierement une ordre pour retirer les lettres qui parviendrout à notre adresse à Bordeaux, par la voix des capitaines Américains. Nous avons joint aussi sur ce billet que si les dits capitaines n'avoient point d'adresse directe dans la dite ville nous les prions de traiter avec la ditte maison, en qui ils peuvent avoir toute confiance. Messrs. Delaps ont été informés de cela, ils nous ont écrit une lettre peu reflêchie en nous menaçant du Congrès, nous sommes très tranquilles à cette égard et voici le faitte que nous avons l'honneur de vous mander.

Nous avons l'honneur d'être, avec la considération la plus distingué, Mes Seigneurs, votre très humble et très obeissant serviteurs,

PLIARNE, PENET, & Co.

Mes Seigneurs, membres du Committée Secret de l'honourable Congrès Général, à Philadelphia.

P. S. Monsieur J. D. Schweighauser a payé une somme de 1443l. 10s. pour des instruments necessaires à M. le Chevalier de Vraicourt, qu'il aura l'honneur de vous remettre, j'ai fait faire cette emplette ici, vue qu'il m'a dit avoir besoin de ces articles pour travailler aussitot arrivé au Continent. Vous trouverez cy-joint les quittances.

On vient nous annoncer qu'un de vos corsaires Américains est arrivé au Cap Quiberon avec une capture de vin de Sicurre, venant de Bordeaux, expédié sur un navire Anglais pour Londres. Comme le capitaine corsaire pourrait avoir besoin de quelques choses, nous lui avons fait savoir de l'adresser à nous en l'assurant que nous lui donnerons tous les secours qu'il nous sera possible.

A la sollicitation de Messieurs Penet et Compagnie, &c., je donne ma parole d'honneur de passer au Continent, pour y rendre tous les services dont je serais capable, mais sans contracter icy aucun engagement, me reservant toute liberté, en cas que je ne me trouve pas bien en Amérique, soit pour les grades, ou tous autres arrangements, qui pourroit ne me pas convenir, auquel cas les Seigneurs du Congrès me fourniront passage pour repasser en France quand je voudrais.

Signé:

Je soussigné certifie que M. Penet a payé, pour livres, ustensiles, et instruments du génie, pour le compte du Congrès—le tout commandés et arrivés de Paris sur mes modelles—sçavoir: mille livres d'une part, et quatre cents quarante trois livres dix sols faisant la somme de 1443 livres 10 sols, et qu'il les fait embarquer sur le navire le Sally, sur lequel je passe.

Fait à Nantes, le 24 9bre, 1776.

LE CHEVALIER CTE. DE VRECOURT.

[TRANSLATION.]

Nantes, 9th November, 1776.

MY LORDS: I have the honour to assure you of my respect, and to inform you that I write to Dr. Franklin, and desire him to communicate my letter to you, as well in regard to the three passengers who desire to go to the Continent, as my particular operations, and news from France.

Captain Rowlens will not sail until the latter end of November. We keep him in hopes we shall receive some funds, and be able to give him a more considerable cargo. We continue to recommend ourselves to your favour, and refer to the demands in our first letter. We hope that you will enable us to ship this winter at least those articles we contracted with you for, which we have now laying in our stores at your disposition for this long while past. In case Dr. Franklin should not be at Philadelphia, we beg of you to open his letter and read it. Enclosed you have the King's speech to his Parliament, which arrived this day from London.

We have the honour to be, with profound respect, yours, &c.,

Nantes, the 30th November, 1776.

MY LORDS: This day we have the honour to despatch to you the ship Sally, Captain Rawlens, loaded with lead, powder, new muskets according to the last model of the French Infantry, with doubled-bridled locks, proof, with each its bayonet, scabbard, steel ramrod, and screw on this same model, will be the fifteen thousand we shall furnish agreeable to our contract. You will also find the gun locks equal to those in the muskets, well finished and perfect. I have added some sail needles, with some bales of different kinds of linen, which we hope will arrive safe to you, and that you will be pleased with the quality of the goods and the prices, which we have charged as low as possible, and we are persuaded you will receive none in the Continent of a better quality and at a cheaper rate, except what may be supplied your house.

We are still in expectation of some of your vessels. We refer to the contents of our first to you, and hope that our sincere attachment to the interest and success of your States will procure us your confidence more and more. We are informed that you have large sums of money in different cities of Europe, and we beg you will consider the large remittances we are to make to you, as we have the ammunition and other goods in store since six months, amounting to thirty or forty thousand pounds sterling, of which we have hardly received six.

Your houses at Cadiz have large sums of yours, and have not yet accounted with Mr. Schweighauser. Nothing has arrived at Nantz since six months, except one of your ships, loaded with grain consigned to Mr. Schweighauser. As this is a good time for your expeditions, we are in hopes we shall receive some during this winter, and we shall endeavour to give your captains the quickest despatch.

Mr. the Chevalier de Vraicourt, Engineer and officer of Artillery, who I have already had the honour to mention to you, will present himself to you and make you an offer of his services. He carries with him all the books and instruments necessary to his profession. We have made no agreement together: it is only after making known his merit and military talents that he hopes to merit your favour. He was in the army all last war, and was distinguished in all the operations of it, of which he has undoubted certificates. He served as Captain of Engineers and Artillery, and has all his commissions. He belongs to an ancient and noble family in Luxembourg: his father was the Count of Vraicourt, Director-General of Engineers. It is only on those considerations that I have persuaded him to enter into your service; and he has undertaken it with pleasure. I shall, my Lords, always regard as my duty when in my power to procure you such persons.

We have been this moment informed that the Spanish fleet sailed the 13th with twenty thousand troops: its destination unknown. It is also said that the King of Portugal is dead. France has despatched a small fleet for the French Islands, which will be advantageous to your States, as it will be a safety to the vessels you may send to the French Islands, by preventing the English frigates approaching their coast. We are also informed of an American vessel which sailed from the river of Bordeaux, loaded with broadcloths and other dry goods to the amount of twenty thousand pounds sterling, was taken by an English vessel. Two ships are arrived: one from Carolina with rice, and the other from the neighbourhood of Boston. Most of the American ships go to Bordeaux, although it is the most dangerous port in France, as well in regard to the entrance of that river as the danger of being betrayed by numbers of English and Irish houses established there, who give daily advices of the arrival of your vessels. I fear you will be convinced of this by losing many vessels at and from that port. I am also surprised that it should be an Irish-Jew house that should be at the head of all your most secret operations in that city: it is the house Delaps. They receive all the despatches from the Continent, and I am told that this house has received orders also from Congress and from your Envoy in this Kingdom, who has placed all his confidence in them. I wish, my Lords, that they may give you entire satisfaction, but I can assure you it is not the general opinion here. Before they had consignments from America they were reported the greatest royalists in France.

We have our house at Bordeaux, by the firm of Reculé de Basmarain & Raimbeaux; and we have taken the liberty to recommend them to you. We have lately sent them an order to take your letters by the American ships. We have also mentioned to them that if the American captains were not consigned in that city, to do every thing in their power, and tender them their services; which Messrs. Delaps hearing of, have wrote us a letter, with little discretion, and threatening us with the resentment of the Congress—but we are very easy on that account.

My Lords, we have the honour to be your most humble servants,

PLIARNE, PENET, & Co.

To the honourable the Secret Committee of the honourable Congress at Philadelphia.

P. S. Mr. J. De Schweighauser has paid 1443 livres 10 sols, for instruments necessary to Mr. the Chevalier Vraicourt, which he will have the honour to deliver you. I had those things bought here, as he told me he would want them on his arrival in the Continent. Enclosed you will find the receipts.

We just now hear that one of your American privateers is arrived at Cape Quiberon, with a prize loaded with wine of Segure, loaded on an English ship bound to London. As the Captain of that privateer might want something, we have sent to let him know we would supply him with any thing he may want.

At the solicitation of Mr. Penet & Co., I engage my word of honour that I will go to the Continent, there to render all the services I am capable of, but without contracting here any engagements, reserving myself at entire liberty. But in case I should not find myself well in America, either as to my rank or other arrangements, which might not be agreeable to me, in this case the Lords of the Congress will furnish me with a passage to return to France when I shall choose it.

THE CHEVALIER COUNT DE VRECOURT.

I, underwritten, do certify, that Mr. Penet has paid for Engineer's books, utensils, and instruments, on account of the Congress—the whole coming from Paris on my models—viz: 1,000 livres of the one part, and 443 livres 10 sols of the other, making in the whole 1,443 livres 10 sols, and that he has embarked them on the ship Sally, in which I am to go passenger.

At Nantes, November 24th, 1776.

THE CHEVALIER CTE. DE VRAICOURT.

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON TO THE MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Eustatia, 9th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We think it highly necessary to advise you of our draft, bearing date 8th instant, on Messrs. Willing & Morris, for four hundred and fifty pounds, Pennsylvania currency, (for the emolument of the State of Maryland,) in favour of Captain Samuel Skinner. We have given them suitable information relative to said bill, and hope it will be duly honoured.

We are, with the greatest esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servants,

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON.

To the honourable the Council of Safety for the State of Maryland.

---

JOHN DENT AND J. PARNHAM TO THE MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Annapolis, November 8th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Hugh Gardner, of Charles County, being desirous of serving the American States in the military way, we beg leave to recommend him to your honourable Board. From a thorough knowledge of Mr. Gardner, his strong attachment to the interest of his country, the zeal he has always shown in the common cause, his indefatigable assiduity and application to and knowledge of military affairs, we can assure that his merit would well entitle him to the command of a company, or, indeed, to a higher commission. But as he is sensible that there are men of merit who have been some time in the service, and ought to be preferred, all that he at present aspires to is a lieutenancy, and I believe he would be glad of being in the matross service. We would, therefore, propose him as First Lieutenant in the company of Matrosses now raising for this town; to the command of which company, from the good opinion we entertain of his abilities, we hope Mr. William Campbell may be preferred.

We are, gentlemen, most respectfully, yours,

JNO. DENT,
J. PARNHAM.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, November 9th, 1776.

SIR: You will perceive from the enclosed resolve that Congress, having reconsidered their vote of the 14th October, have agreed to give the former allowance of one dollar and one third of a dollar to the officers on the reinlistment of every soldier in the camp. The completing the Army at present being an object of the utmost importance, the Congress are desirous of adopting every means in their power to induce the officers to fill up their respective companies as soon as possible.

The situation of the Northern Army being at this juncture extremely critical, and your services in that department of the highest use and importance, the Congress wish for a continuance of your influence and abilities on behalf of your country. They have, however, agreeable to your request, consented that you should repair to this city, whenever the service, in your opinion, will admit of your absence.

Although Congress have repeatedly applied to Maryland on the subject of the Nanticoke Indians without effect, yet are they determined to make another application, the result of which shall be immediately transmitted to you.

I do myself the pleasure to forward blank commissions, agreeable to the enclosed resolves, and am to request you will fill them up according to the ranks and times of service of the officers, making in Colonel Elmore's regiment such arrangements as you shall think proper.

November 13th.—Congress has had sundry resolves from Massachusetts-Bay laid before them, increasing the pay of their troops, beyond what Congress had given. The enclosed resolves will inform you that this measure was disapproved of by Congress, who have agreed that the troops may be inlisted during the war, or for three years, as shall be most agreeable to them.

I have the honour to be, &c., &c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Hon. Major-General Schuyler.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, November 9th, 1776.

SIR: You will perceive from the enclosed resolve that Congress, having reconsidered their vote of the 14th October, have agreed to give the former allowance of one dollar and one third of a dollar to the officers on the reinlistment of every soldier in the camp. The completing the Army being at present an object of the utmost importance, the Congress are desirous of adopting every means in their power to induce the officers to fill up their respective companies as soon as possible.

You will please to take the most effectual steps for punishing, in an exemplary manner, as far as the articles of war will admit, all deserters from the Army at this time of trial and danger. The baseness of those officers and soldiers who can turn their backs upon their country, in her present situation, merits the severest chastisment.

The enclosed letter from Colonel Miles to Mr. Wister, of this city, I am directed by Congress to transmit to you, that you may take such steps relative to the exchange of the gentlemen therein mentioned as you may judge proper.

Mr. Partridge, one of the Committee from the State of Massachusetts-Bay, having laid before Congress sundry resolves of that State increasing the pay of their troops beyond what the Congress had given, they have come to a resolution disapproving of that measure, and have agreed that the troops in the American Army may be inlisted for three years, or during the war, as shall be most agreeable to them, subject to the terms mentioned in the enclosed resolves.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To his Excellency General Washington.

CAPTAIN HARRIS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, 9th, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIRS: I arrived here the 2d instant, with seventy-six privates. A return of my company, stores, &c., the state of our guns, I delivered the Board of War, and begged that those wanting repairs might be sent to the smiths for that purpose: my request was not complied with. To have marched to camp with guns in such order would have been folly. I therefore applied to Colonel Ramsey for money, who procured me two hundred and fifty pounds.

I have taken the liberty to enclose my account, by which you will see there is a balance due the company, which I beg may be sent, or an order therefor, to Colonel Ramsey. I have been obliged to advance money, as the company was in need and unwilling to march without being paid.

I am, honourable sirs, your most obedient, humble servant,

ROBERT HARRIS.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Elizabeth-Town, 9th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 7th instant I had the honour of receiving last evening, being accidentally in town, where, upon occasion of it and some other publick business, I stayed the whole night. After sending for General Williamson, and beginning to prepare a copy of your letter for General Mercer, the latter happened to come in person, and was of great use in the business before us. We examined six or seven women who came from New-York, and though they appear to be Whigs, and had part of their effects and near relations amongst us, have a number of stories to tell, which, though probably told with no ill intention, yet have a natural tendency to discourage the weaker part of our inhabitants.

For my part I am utterly against this kind of communication between this State and New-York, and could earnestly wish the officers under your command would be as sparing as possible of their permissions. The sex are mistresses of infinite craft and subtlety, and I never heard or read of a great politician who did not employ petticoats to accomplish his designs. Certain it is that the greatest politician on record, I mean the devil, applied himself to a female agent to involve mankind in sin and ruin.

We had also a Hessian deserter under examination, who is, I believe, the first of that people that has come over to us from Staten-Island. He was not capable of giving much information, but in general says they are very sickly on the Island—would desert in numbers if not prevented by the water—were forced into the service—have received no pay.

Respecting the subject-matter of your letter, I have in the strongest manner recommended that part of it relative to the removal of the grain, &c., to the Committee, who are to meet upon it to-day. If they do not exert themselves in the matter agreeable to the wishes of the military, I mean to the necessity of the case, the military must act as prudent people in such cases ought to do.

As the Governour of this State is a civil magistrate, it cannot be expected that he will act an arbitrary, that is, an illegal part. But I doubt not all our magistrates will connive as much as possible at every thing done by the military, which bears the evident stamp of necessity, and cannot be impeached of wantonness or the causeless exertion of power. I think it is so absolutely necessary to remove the articles you mention, that I have already begun to set the example.

As our Assembly meets next Wednesday, I shall lay before them the importance of taking some measures to place our Militia on the best footing possible, and that a part of them may be in readiness to supply the place of the troops denominated the New Levies. At any time of an apprehended invasion, I shall be ready to call out what numbers of the Militia you think proper to repel it, that being an undoubted prerogative of the Governour of this State; but whether they will obey the orders, God only knows; and that they will be worth but little if they do, I experimentally know.

Our Council have passed an exceeding good Militia bill the last session, but it did not pass the Lower House. Whether it was there obstructed on account of its goodness, does not become me to say. Should I be honoured with any of your letters after Monday next, you'll please to direct to me at Burlington.

With my sincere respects to Colonel Read, I have the honour to be, sir, your most humble servant,

WIL. LIVINGSTON.

To His Excellency General Washington, at Head-Quarters.

In consequence of my orders in virtue of your requisitions to have all the prisoners belonging to the British Fleet and Army in this State collected at Brunswick, the enclosed is the first return I have received.

DR. SHIPPEN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 12th: Referred to Medical Committee.]

Newark, 9th November, 1776.

DEAR AND HONOURABLE SIR: I think it proper to inform the honourable Congress that I have not yet taken any of the Continental sick on this side the North River under my direction agreeable to their last regulation, because Dr. Morgan differs in opinion with me concerning the meaning of Congress, and because General Washington desires they may remain under his care, as you will see by the enclosed letter from his Excellency the General, who makes no distinction between my appointment in July and your resolves in October, and, in my opinion, has not seen the letter, "which expressly says," all the sick on this side of the North River shall be under my care and direction.

The Congress will see by the enclosed from General Mercer, his sentiments on the subject, and the necessity of my receiving further directions from them. I should not trouble the Congress on this head, but that I imagine they expect I am exerting my best endeavours to relieve the poor soldiery from the great distress they suffer daily, and because it is impossible Dr. Morgan can pay any attention to them, as he is now busy in establishing hospitals at a great distance on the other side of Hudson's River.

I have the honour to be, dear sir, your and the Congress's obedient and very humble servant,

W. SHIPPEN, Jun.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Lee, November 9, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your Excellency's letter of the 8th this moment came to hand. I shall forward the letter to General Stevens by express. The stores at Dobbs's Ferry I had just given orders to the Quartermaster to prepare wagons to remove them. I think the enemy will meet with some difficulty in crossing the river at Dobbs's Ferry; however, 'tis not safe to trust too much to the expected difficulties they may meet there.

By the letter that will accompany this, and was to have gone last night by Major Mifflin, your Excellency will see what measures I took before your favour came to hand. The passing of the ships up the river is, to be sure, a full proof of the insufficiency of the obstructions in the river to stop the ships from going up; but that garrison employs double the number of men to invest it that we have to occupy it. They must keep troops at King's Bridge to prevent a communication with the country, and they dare not leave a very small number, for fear our people should attack them. Upon the whole, I cannot help thinking the garrison is of advantage; and I cannot conceive the garrison to be in any great danger. The men can be brought off at any time; but the stores may not be so easily removed, yet I think they can be got off in spite of them, if matters grow desperate.

This post is of no importance only in conjunction with Mount Washington. I was over there last evening; the enemy seems to be disposing matters to besiege the place; but Colonel Magaw thinks it will take them till December expires before they can carry it. If the enemy don't find it an object of importance they won't trouble themselves about it; if they do, its a full proof they feel an injury from our possessing it. Our giving it up will open a free communication with the country by the way of King's Bridge, that must be a great advantage to them and injury to us. If the enemy cross the river I shall follow your Excellency's advice respecting the cattle and forage. These measures, however cruel in appearance, were ever my maxims of war in the defence of a country; in attacking they would be very improper.

By this express several packets from Congress are forwarded to you.

I shall collect our whole strength and watch the motions of the enemy, and pursue such measures for the future as circumstances render necessary.

As I have your Excellency's permission, I shall order General Stevens on as far as Equacanock at least. That is an important pass. I am fortifying it as fast as possible.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient, and very humble servant,

N. Greene.

To His Excellency General Washington, at White-Plains.

COLONEL ATLEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, November 9, 1776.

Sir: Persons in captivity, let whatever pains be taken to make that state agreeable, are still unhappy and anxious for a releasement.

Such, sir, at present, is my state. I have been so happy this minute to be visited by a gentleman of the King's Army, to whom I am particularly obliged with the information of the imprisonment of a certain Mr. Thomas Irving, Receiver-General of the Quit-Rents of South-Carolina, taken by Mr. Hopkins, and now in Connecticut. He was kind enough to inform me that Lord William Campbell, with himself, had been mentioning an exchange between Mr. Irving and myself, and that they doubted not, if it was agreeable to General Washington, that General Howe would readily consent to it, and that it might be immediately effected.

I have by this opportunity taken the liberty to lay the above before you, and if agreeable to you, sir, must beg the favour of as speedy an answer as possible.

I am, sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

Sam'l J. Atlee.

General Washington.

COLONEL MILES TO WILLIAM WISTER.

New-York, November, 1776.

Dear Brother: I this moment received yours with the money sent by Mr. Foxcroft, as did all the other gentlemen. I should be extremely glad to be released from my confinement here, if such a thing could be obtained, and I have some reason to believe that if a proper application was made to Congress, an exchange might be accomplished between myself and Mr. Foxcroft, and perhaps Colonel Atlee or Lieutenant-Colonel Piper would be given up for Mr. Dashwood. I hope no time will be lost by my friends in making this application to Congress, and I have no doubt but Mr. Foxcroft's interest here will effect my desire, if the request should be made by the Congress to General Howe.

I am in good health, and hope all my family, friends, and acquaintances are so too.

Captain Wister is here.

I am, dear brother, yours, &c., Sam'l Miles.

To Mr. William Wister, Merchant, in Philadelphia.

PETITION OF MILES OAKLEY.

To His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of all the Forces of the United States of America:

The Petition of Miles Oakley humbly showeth:

That by his labour and industry he had procured himself a small piece of land at the White-Plains, contiguous to the Court-House; that on it, within the last four or five years he built him a comfortable and convenient house and barn; that he kept an inn for the entertainment of travelers, which enabled him to maintain his family, which consists of a wife and four small children; that on the approach of the enemy he removed his wife (who lay in but six days before) with his children to the north of the lines formed by the troops under your Excellency's command; that on his return to bring off some of his furniture and most valuable effects, he found his house robbed and pillaged, his desk split to pieces, his money, books, and papers taken and carried away by our own troops, by which means he is left without a second bed and scarce a change of clothes for himself, his wife or children; this your petitioner bore with resignation, not doubting but if he should again get into his house he should by his industry in time retrieve his losses. But so it is, may it please your Excellency, that on Tuesday night last, your petitioner's house and barn was by some of the American troops burnt to the ground, and your petitioner and his family left without any means whatever of obtaining a subsistence. That your petitioner's losses do not amount together to less than seven hundred pounds currency.

Your petitioner begs leave to observe to your Excellency that he has ever been a friend to his country; that he served as a Lieutenant in the late northern expedition under the command of Generals Schuyler and Montgomery. Your petitioner therefore begs your Excellency will be favourably pleased to take his melancholy case into consideration, and give him such relief in the premises as to you in your great wisdom shall seem just and reasonable. Your petitioner further begs, if your Excellency should be of opinion that the granting your petitioner relief is not properly within your department, that your Excellency will be pleased to inquire into the truth of the facts within set forth, and give your petitioner such certificates and recommendations, either to the honourable Continental or Provincial Congress, as you shall think your petitioner's hard case truly deserves.

And your petitioner shall ever pray.

Miles Oakley.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read the 12th.]

White-Plains, November the 9th, 1776.

Sir: I have the honour to transmit you a copy of a letter from General Gates to General Schuyler, and of another paper containing intelligence respecting the Northern Army, and the situation of the enemy in that department. They this minute came to hand, and to them I beg leave to refer you for particulars.

By every information I can obtain, and the accounts I had last night by two deserters who were very intelligent and particular, General Howe still has in view an expedition to the Jerseys, and is preparing for it with the greatest industry. I have detached the first division of our troops, which was thought necessary to be sent, and which I hope will cross the river at Peekskill to-day. The second I expect will all march this evening and to-morrow morning. I propose to follow myself, in order to put things in the best train I can, and to give him every possible opposition. I hope, when the two divisions arrive and are joined to such other force as I expect to collect, to check his progress and prevent him from penetrating any distance from the river, if not to oblige him to return immediately with some loss. Whatever is in my power to effect, shall be done.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

---

Ticonderoga, 31st October, 1776.

Sir: Monday morning, between eight and nine o'clock, our advance guard-boat down the lake made the signal for the approach of the enemy's fleet. In about one hour, five of their largest boats or gondolas appeared in sight, and a number of troops, Indians and Canadians, were seen landing upon Three-Mile Point. Soon after, two of the armed boats stood over to the east side of the lake, inclining upwards, as if sent to reconnoitre. When they came considerably within shot, they were fired upon from two redoubts very near the shore, and by a row-galley that is stationed to cover the boom. They thereupon retired. In the mean time the enemy's troops were distinctly seen to land upon the back of the Point, and presently after, thirteen small batteaus and birch canoes crossed from the west to the east side of the lake into a bay, about four miles below our redoubts. Upon these threatenings of an attack, our lines, redoubts, and posts, were all manned; and as the motions of the enemy seemed to indicate they were gathering their main force upon the west side of the lake as if intending to make their push there, I ordered three regiments, Poor's, Read's, and Greaton's, from Mount Independence, to reinforce this side. The orders were instantly obeyed, and nothing could exceed the spirit and alertness which was shown by all officers and soldiers in executing every order that was given. About four in the evening, the boats and canoes that had passed to the west side of the lake, returned, and the enemy were seen plainly to reëmbark at the Three-Mile Point. I immediately ordered the guard-boat to resume her station, and by sunset it was observed the body of the enemy had retired.

By the information I receive daily, I find that General Carleton continues in his post, and that three large vessels are anchored near Putnam's Point, a little below which all the Light Infantry, Grenadiers, and a large body of Indians and Canadians are encamped. Chemung-Point and Crown-Point are also occupied by the enemy.

Yesterday I received the enclosed intelligence from Newbury, Co'os. If Sir John Johnson did actually march at the time he is said to have done it, he must be upon the Mohawk river now; or if he aims at Fort George, Dayton's regiment cannot be better stationed than there. Surely the Oneidas will give you all the necessary information upon this head. But how could Sir John get back should he meet with a check? I have seen the Mohawk river fast frozen the 10th November.

Colonel Lewis set off yesterday morning by the way of Skeen. He has memorandums of our wants, and will be with you as soon as this letter. Colonel Ganseoort writes me for spades; you must answer his demand, for I cannot.

We received the good news you sent us from New-York with joyful hearts. It was immediately made publick to the Army in the manner you advised.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To General Schuyler.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MR. JAMES LOVELL, LATELY RELEASED, DATED FORT LEE, 7TH NOVEMBER, 1776.

From the jealousy and caution used in regard to me while in New-York harbour, and in the course of my conveyance across Staten-Island, I was unable to make myself master of any circumstances which can tend to form any proceedings of the illustrious assembly in which you preside, except, perhaps, this single one, that orders were given out on the first, or a day before, to prepare into a complete readiness transports for fifteen thousand men. The purpose is mere matter of my conjecture. If great success should be the lot of the British Army early in this month,

I conceive an attempt might be made to push some round to the northward; but if defeat or disappointment continues a little longer, I imagine a southern expedition may be the consequence. General knowledge collected already, or daily arriving, to found your Councils, will fix the value to be set upon the above intelligence. I wish time may prove that I might have altogether omitted to convey it to your eye.

JACOB HORNBECK TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Rochester, November 9th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Forasmuch as the town of Rochester is in great need for salt, as the season of the year is now for killing their winter provision and pork for next summer, and when they can't get a supply of salt, they will be obliged soon to turn their fat hogs out of the pen, and their fat cattle among their other, to a great loss of several poor families; wherefore your Committee of said town, in behalf of themselves and the inhabitants of Rochester, do humbly desire, if your honourable Board have any salt to spare, you will please to grant us a supply; and if you have none to spare, and could direct us where we might get salt, we would, paying to your honourable Board, or any person else, the price for salt, not spare any trouble to fetch the same; and humbly desire you will please to give us your answer to our messenger, the bearer hereof; and you will, gentlemen, greatly oblige your most humble servants.

By order of the Committee and inhabitants of Rochester.

JACOB HORNBECK, Chairman.

To the Convention of the State of New-York.

Four lbs. of salt, 4 ozs. of saltpetre, 2 lbs. of sugar, 4 gallons of water.

GENERAL GATES TO COLONEL HIDE.

Tyonderoga, 9th November, 1776.

SIR: I am to return you, and the officers and men of your regiment, my sincere thanks for the spirit and alertness you have shown in marching to the defence of this important pass, when threatened with an immediate attack from the enemy. I now, gentlemen, dismiss you with honour. I also certify that neither you, nor any of your officers or soldiers, have received any pay from me for your services upon this occasion. That I leave to be settled and adjusted between your State and the General Congress of all the United States.

With sentiments of gratitude and respect, I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To Colonel Caleb Hide, commanding a Regiment of Militia of the County of Berks, State of Massachusetts.

[The same to Colonel B. Robinson, and Colonel Moses Robinson, Colonel Brownson, &c.]

GENERAL GATES TO COLONEL ASHLEY.

Tyonderoga, 9th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I return you and the officers and soldiers of the regiments under your command, my sincere thanks for the spirit and expedition both you and they have shown in marching, upon the first alarm, upwards of one hundred and fifty miles, to the support of this important pass, when threatened with an immediate attack from the enemy's Army. I now dismiss you with the honour you have so well deserved. I further certify that neither you, nor any under your command, have received any pay or reward from me for your services upon this occasion; that I leave to be settled by the General Congress with the Convention of your State.

With great respect, I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To Colonel Ashley and Colonel Bellows, commanding the regiments of Militia from the County of Cheshire, in the State of New-Hampshire.

GENERAL GATES TO COLONEL CHASE.

Tionderoga, November 9, 1776.

SIR: I am to return you and the officers and men of your regiment my sincere thanks for the spirit and alertness you have shown in marching to the defence of this important pass, when threatened with an immediate attack from the enemy. I now, gentlemen, dismiss you with honour. I also certify that neither you nor any of your officers or soldiers have received any pay from me for your services upon this occasion; that I leave to be settled and adjusted between your State and the General Congress of all the United States.

With sentiments of gratitude and respect, I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

HORATIO GATES.

To Colonel Jonathan Chase, commanding a regiment of Militia from the County of Cheshire, in the State of New-Hampshire.

GENERAL GATES TO COLONEL GANSEVOORT.

Tyonderoga, November 9th, 1776.

SIR: I am astonished at your keeping all the batteaus at the south end of the lake, and not sending forward the flour. By your last return, exclusive of the Militia, you had two hundred and thirty-one, officers included, fit for duty at Fort George. I am convinced there is not an enemy within a hundred miles of your post; so you need not have any apprehensions upon that account. It is my positive orders you immediately despatch every boat you have, full of flour, to this landing. Fifty men is more than sufficient for your present garrison. The bearer takes sixty men with him to assist in bringing over the flour; and I have been obliged to carry the boats over this carrying-place to transport him and his party, not having one at this end of Lake George. Despatch the large vessels as quick as possible, and continue to keep the batteaus going as long as the navigation is open. I desire you will see the batteaus full freighted; and as it grows late in the season, order seven men into each batteau.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Gansevoort.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL WARD.

9th November, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: The Deputies from the State of New-Hampshire have informed me that there is a Continental regiment raised in that State, under the command of Colonel Pierce Long, stationed at Portsmouth. As the regiments from that State, now at this post, have suffered exceedingly by defeat, disease, and fatigue, it would most certainly be for the immediate benefit of the service that Colonel Long's regiment should be ordered to march directly to this place, and the three regiments commanded by Stark, Poor, and Reed, shall, upon their arrival, march to Portsmouth, where they cannot only be recruited, but recovered and refreshed after the almost unspeakable fatigues and distresses they have undergone. I beg you to determine upon this matter without referring it to any one but the General Court of your State, as it would defeat every good intention to delay it longer.

To Major-General Ward.

JOHN TRUMBULL TO COLONEL PATTERSON.

SIR: The General is pleased to order that the rendezvous for your regiment on the new establishment be at Springfield, in the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

To this place you will order your officers and men to repair on the 1st of January, and will there wait orders as to the Army which you are to join.

Given at Head-Quarters, Albany, this 30th day of November, 1776.

By command of the Honourable Major-General Gates.

JOHN TRUMBULL, D. Adj't Gen'l.

To Colonel John Patterson.

COLONEL BLANCHARD TO MESHECH WEARE.

Mount Independence, November 9, 1776.

SIR: We arrived here last Saturday evening, in company with the gentlemen appointed by the Massachusetts State, who we accidentally fell in with at Manchester. The next morning both Committees waited on General Gates, who received us with politeness, and laid before him our business, and solicited his assistance and protection. The General observed that by our raising the wages the other States would be under the necessity of doing the same, and that in fact it was stating the pay of all the soldiery.

The Massachusetts Committee are clearly of opinion that the men cannot be raised in their State without the additional encouragement, i. e., twenty shillings per month, and a blanket or eighteen shillings yearly. We have heard that Connecticut have added twelve shillings per month; and upon the whole, the General has advised us to proceed, though he seems not pleased with the great wages, as he calls it.

We have, after consulting with the General, Field-Officers, and Captains of our battalions, proceeded to appoint John Stark, Esq., Colonel; Joseph Cilley, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel; and George Reed, Esq., Major: Enoch Poor, Esq., Colonel; Nathan Hale, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel; and Winborn Adams, Esq., Major—Field-Officers for our two battalions; and are preparing beating orders for Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns, to recruit the men. Committees from Pennsylvania and the Jerseys have been up, and commissioned field and other officers for a number of battalions, and are recruiting.

When the shattered part of our fleet returned in the manner you have doubtless heard, an attack was expected immediately. The General sent expresses to raise the Militia; upon which alarm, about one thousand or fifteen hundred men came in from New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay and the Green-Mountains, and great pains have been taken to fortify this Mount, which is now pretty strong. A party from the enemy, in thirteen boats, about ten days since, appeared in sight of this place and sounded the lake, but they soon retired.

The Canadians, Indians, and Regulars, have evacuated Crown-Point, their numbers not certainly known, but supposed to be about one thousand Canadians and Indians, and seven thousand Regulars.

A report prevails in camp that General Burgoyne is dead.

Two gentlemen taken in Canada last year in the regular service, are sent down to St. John's in a boat, with a flag, and by this means the General expects to gain intelligence whether the King's troops intend an attack this fall. Our parties are constantly reconnoitring the lake. Their task has been arduous.

The General prays that the battalion stationed at Portsmouth would come here. He has wrote by Lieutenant-Colonel Cilley to Major-General Ward, at Boston, for his order for their removal. By this means our men will be discharged and the recruiting greatly facilitated. We fear that we cannot inlist many at present. Provisions are plenty and good. About thirteen or fourteen thousand men, Militia included, draw allowance.

The two mortars that are here are ruined. There is plenty of gunpowder and a great number of cannon. A supply of medicines are arrived and on the way. Those we received at Exeter are delivered according to order. We shall endeavour, or some one of us, to attend the General Court at their next sitting. It is expected that two thousand five hundred men, or thereabouts, must garrison these places this winter. Barracks are building with all the despatch possible. We make no doubt but you pay the greatest attention to the article of clothing. We have been as industrious in our business and as attentive to our orders as possible.

We are, with great respect, sir, your most humble servants,

JONA. BLANCHARD, for the Committee.

Honourable Meshech Weare, Esq., to be communicated.

P. S. The small-pox is not in camp, nor any where this way. The days are short, and in our crowded situation do business slowly.

---

JOHN BRADFORD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Boston, 9th November, 1776.

SIR: I've received a letter from Captain William Burke, late commander of the schooner Warren, in the service of the Continent, dated Halifax, 8th October, who was unfortunate in being taken by the Liverpool ship of war, Captain Bellew, who has treated him with great humanity. Burke desires me to acquaint your Excellency that he sailed from thence (in company with the flag of truce which brought away his men who are arrived at this port) for York, in order to be exchanged for Captain Bellew's Lieutenant, who is a prisoner at Germantown, near Philadelphia, by the name of Richard Bowger. It's probable poor Burke is arrived at York ere this. He is a worthy, brave man, and deserved a better fate.

I have the honour to be, with the most profound respects, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

JN. BRADFORD, Agent.

GENERAL WARD TO JAMES WARREN.

Boston, November 9, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed is a petition I received from the officers of Colonel Marshall's regiment. The grievance therein complained of, I think belongs to the honourable Court to redress; therefore I have enclosed the petition, and earnestly request the grievance complained of may speedily be removed, as it is of the utmost importance at this time that the State should fulfill every engagement made to the men; if not all, surely so capital one as their daily allowance. I fear if it is not soon redressed the consequence will be the men will refuse doing their duty; if they do, it will be unreasonable to punish them, when the cause of their refusal was a breach of promise on the part of the State.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

Mr. Speaker.

CAPTAIN EDDY TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Cumberland, November 12th, 1776.

Pursuant to instructions, &c., proceeded from Boston, raised a few men, and arrived at Cumberland in high spirits, when some of the inhabitants joined us, and we seized a vessel in the harbour, with a great quantity of stores, &c., for the garrison. And besides an officer and twelve men that we sent back from Shepody, we have taken above thirty prisoners, and have attempted the garrison, but cannot take it without some cannon and mortars, nor can we get off what we have taken without some help, as there is a man-of-war in the bay. We have therefore to entreat of the Province of the Massachusetts, for ourselves and for the inhabitants of Nova-Scotia, to send some privateers into the bay, and some troops and military stores, that we may be able to promote the general cause and add another Province to the United Colonies.

I must refer you for further intelligence to Mr. Throop, the bearer; and subscribe, in the utmost haste, your Honours' obliged, obedient, humble servant,

JONATHAN EDDY.

To the Honourable Council and Assembly of Boston.

---

PETITION OF THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY IN THE COUNTY OF CUMBERLAND.

To the Honourable Court of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

Whereas Captain Eddy, with a small party, has invaded Cumberland, and taken a guard of twelve men, also a provision vessel with her guard, and a vessel from Annapolis, with produce for this place, and has attempted to storm the garrison, but finds it impracticable with all the assistance he can raise here: And as intelligence is already gone to Halifax, we are in the utmost distress, therefore beg, for the preservation of our lives and the lives of our families, for immediate help of five hundred or a regiment of men, if it may be, with two mortars, ammunition, and provision; and we, your humble petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

For particulars we must refer you to Mr. Throop, on whom you may depend.

Sheppardy, County of Cumberland, November 3d, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have sent to your care Captain-Lieutenant John Walker, and twelve other prisoners taken by us at Sheppardy, which please to send to the westward as soon as possible. We would have you take particular care of Captain Walker, as he is a countryman of yours, and would be very glad of an opportunity of joining the regulars again.

We are all in high spirits, and our party increases daily. We are in hopes of being strengthened further by Colonel Shaw. If possible, beg that you would inform the honourable Council of our proceedings. If you have any news from the westward beg that you would send it to us by the bearers.

MARYLAND CONVENTION TO THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read 13th November.]

Annapolis, November 10th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In obedience to the order of Convention I am to inform you that they are exceedingly unhappy to find that there should have been any the least difference of opinion between your honourable body and the Convention. That according to your desire they have reconsidered their former resolutions for raising the quota of troops of this State, and have, on a very deliberate and attentive consideration of the subject, come to the resolutions which I am directed and have now the honour to enclose and transmit.

I am further directed to acquaint you that the very important business of this Convention has so closely engaged their attention that the delegation of members to represent this State in Congress has hitherto been almost necessarily delayed, but that they will now be appointed, and will very soon attend.

I am, with the highest respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

MATH. TILGHMAN, President.

To the honourable Continental Congress now sitting in Philadelphia.

In Convention, November 9th, 1776.

The Convention resumed the consideration of the Letter from the honourable President of the Congress, and the Resolutions of Congress laid before them yesterday, and thereupon come to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That if the honourable Congress will specify any Land belonging to the United States as a common stock to be divided amongst the soldiery in their service, the Commissioners appointed by this Convention to repair to the camps in New-York and the Jerseys, immediately on its being made known to them, do proceed to the camps and endeavour to inlist such of the troops and Militia of this State now there as are willing to enter into the Continental service on the terms proposed by Congress; or if the Congress will not make such specification of the lands to be given as aforesaid, and will permit the inlistment of the quota of troops of this State on the terms proposed by this Convention, that then the Commissioners proceed to the camps and endeavour to procure the inlistment of the troops according to the former resolutions of the Convention, paying to each non-commissioned officer and private who shall so inlist the twenty dollars bounty allowed by Congress, and the additional bounty of ten dollars proposed by the said resolutions of Convention to be allowed by this State. But if the honourable Congress will not specify the lands as aforesaid, and should signify a desire that the said additional bounty of ten dollars should not be given, that then the Commissioners, with the permission of Congress, proceed as aforesaid and endeavour to effect the said inlistment on the bounty of twenty dollars allowed by Congress; but they are not to engage the faith of this State to give or make good any bounty of lands, or give any assurances whatsoever that they will have such bounty.

Resolved, That Mr. President write to the Congress and inform them that this Convention feel themselves very unhappy that there should have been any the least difference of opinion between them, and as desired, have reconsidered their former resolution for raising the quota of troops of this State, and on a very deliberate and attentive consideration of the subject, have come to the resolutions of this day, which the President is requested to enclose.

That this Convention never apprehended that the Congress intended this State should be obliged, in its individual capacity, to make good the bounty of land to the soldiery, but were of opinion, and remain firmly persuaded, that if the bounty of land should, by authority of this State, be proposed as a motive to induce the individuals of its quota to inlist, this State will be bound in good faith to see that bounty effectually granted; and therefore, as this State has no land belonging solely and exclusively to itself with which to make good the bounty, it is not only prudent but necessary, before they do an act which will engage the faith of the State, to know what land is to be applied, and on what terms, to the designed purpose.

That this Convention are under the strongest impressions that the back lands claimed by the British Crown, if secured by the blood and treasure of all, ought, in reason, justice, and policy, to be considered as a common stock, to be parcelled out by Congress into five convenient and independent Governments, as the wisdom of that body shall hereafter direct; but if these (the only lands as this Convention apprehend that can) should be provided by Congress at the expense of the United States to make good the proffered bounties, every idea of their being a common stock must be hereby given up; some of the States may, by fixing their own price on the land, pay off what of their quota of the publick debt they please, and have their extensive territory settled by the soldiery of the other States, whilst this State and a few others must be so weakened and impoverished that they can hold their liberties only at the will of their powerful neighbours.

That this State is so far from having an intention to increase unnecessarily the expenses of the United States, that it hath uniformly given every evidence to the contrary. But this Convention, impressed with the indispensable necessity of establishing and keeping up a good Army, at the same time that they could not be active in giving up a common right of the United States, or in rendering the freedom of their own precarious, determined to exert the only safe means in their power to raise the quota of this State; nor can this Convention yet see any possibility of injury to the common interest, from this State adopting the most effectual means to raise its quota of troops of its own inhabitants, partly or even wholly at its own separate expense.

That this Convention have a strong disinclination to go into any discussion of the powers with which the Congress is invested, being fully sensible that the general interest will not be promoted by either the Congress affirming or this Convention denying the existence of a fullness of power in that honourable body, the best and only proper exercise of which can be in adopting the wisest measures for equally securing the rights and liberties of each of the United States, which was the principle of their union.

That this Convention, very sincerely disposed to contribute every thing in their power towards the common cause, will, if the Congress choose neither to specify the lands to be given in bounties nor to permit the State to give the proposed additional bounty of ten dollars, endeavour to inlist its quota of troops on the twenty dollars bounty allowed by Congress; but if the event should prove a disappointment, it cannot be imputed to this State.

That this Convention request the honourable Congress soon to signify their pleasure in this matter to the Commissioners of this State now attending in Philadelphia, that the little time left may not be lost.

ADDRESS TO THE INHABITANTS OF ESSEX COUNTY, NEW-JERSEY.

Newark, November 10, 1776.

The Committee of the County of Essex think it proper to inform the inhabitants of it, that they have received intelligence by a letter from his Excellency General Washington, at the White-Plains, dated the 7th instant, that General Howe, with the Army under his command, had retreated from that place, with an intention, as he supposed, of sending a detachment of his troops into the Jerseys. The General therefore advises all those who live near the water, to be ready to move their stock, grain, carriages, and other effects back into the country. He adds, if it is not done, the calamities we must suffer will be beyond all description, and the advantages the enemy will receive immensely great. They have treated all here without discrimination: the distinction of Whig and Tory has been lost in one general scene of ravage and desolation. The article of forage is of great importance to them; not a blade, he says, should be left; what cannot with convenience be removed, must be consumed without the least hesitation. They have further intelligence, by a letter of this day from General Mercer, at Fort Lee, per express, that General Greene had just received advice from General Washington that he was now fully convinced the enemy intended to cross the North River and make an incursion into this State, desiring we may be prepared in the best manner possible to defeat the design of their coming.

The Committee taking into consideration the present alarming situation of this country, recommend it to all the inhabitants who live near the water, or the great roads leading through the country, to remove as soon as possible their stock, grain, hay, carriages, and other effects, into some place of safety back into the country, that they may not fall into the enemy's hands.

By order of the Committee:

WILLIAM BURNET, Chairman.

COLONEL MILES TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, November 10th, 1776.

SIR: John Foxcraft, who has been prisoner in Philadelphia for some time, is now here on his parole, and from the conversation I have had with him, have reason to believe that General Howe will consent to an exchange of Mr. Foxcraft and myself, and perhaps Lieutenant-Colonel Piper will be given up for Mr. Dashwood, who is still a prisoner in Philadelphia. I hope, sir, you will not only approve of, but take such steps as may be likely to effect this exchange, so desirable to the persons concerned.

There are also in Philadelphia, a Captain Forist and two other gentlemen, Mr. James Shanks and Mr. Thomas Byrne, whom their friends say will be exchanged for officers under the rank of Major. I could wish that Captain Thomas Herbert, of the Pennsylvania musketry, might be accepted for Captain Forist, and Lieutenant John Davis, of the Pennsylvania Rifle Regiment, for one of the young gentlemen, and perhaps Lieutenant Edward De Coursey, of the Maryland regiment, will be given up for the other.

I flatter myself that it will be agreeable to you, sir, to release any of your officers upon equitable terms, and that you will take the earliest opportunity of doing it.

I am, sir, with the utmost respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

SAM'L MILES.

To George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the American Forces.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Lee, November 10, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Your Excellency's favour by Colonel Harrison, of the 8th, came to hand last evening. I am taking every measure in my power to oppose the enemy's landing, if they attempt crossing the river into the Jerseys. I have about five hundred men posted at the different passes in the mountains fortifying. About five hundred more are marching from Amboy, directly for Dobbs's Ferry. General Mercer is with me now. I shall send him up to take the command of these immediately. I have directed the General to have every thing removed out of the enemy's way, particularly cattle, carriages, hay, and grain. The flour at Dobbs's Ferry is all moved from that place, and I have directed wagons to transport it to Clarke's and Orange towns. I was at Dobbs's Ferry last night; left it at sundown; saw no new movement of the enemy. The enemy landed from on board the ships many bales of goods, supposed to be clothing. I am sure the enemy cannot land at Dobbs's Ferry; it will be so hedged up by night. The flats run off a great distance, they can't get near the shore with their ships. If the enemy intends to effect a landing at all, they'll attempt it at Naiacs, or Haverstraw Bay. I wish these intelligences may not be calculated to deceive us. Methinks if the enemy intended crossing the river, they would not give us several days to prepare to oppose them. They might have taken their measures, lain concealed until they had got every thing in readiness to cross the river, and then effected it at once. It might have been so much easier accomplished that way than it can now, and so many more advantages obtained, in getting possession of the grain, hay, cattle, wagons and horses, that I cannot help suspecting it to be only a feint to lead our attention astray. I wish it may not turn out so. However, I shall exert myself as much to be in readiness as if they had actually landed, and make the same disposition to oppose them as if I was certain they intended to cross.

I shall keep a good intelligent officer at Bergen, and another at Rall's Ferry, to watch the motions of the ships.

Your Excellency's letter to General Putnam this moment came to hand. I have ordered the Quartermaster-General to send off all the superfluous stores, and the Commissaries to hold themselves in readiness to provide for the troops at Dobbs's Ferry and Haverstraw Bay.

I have wrote to Colonel Hawkes Hay to have the road altered at King's Ferry. I directed Colonel Tupper to send up to that ferry all the spare boats. I had given orders for collecting and scuttling all the boats before your Excellency's letter came to hand on the subject. Our numbers are small for the duty we have to go through, but I hope our exertions may be in some proportion to your Excellency's expectation. Sixty or seventy sail of shipping from Frogg's Point and Morrisania, have fallen down the East River to New-York.

In my next I will enclose your Excellency a return of the stores of all kinds at this post, and take your further directions as to the disposition of them.

Believe me, dear General, to be your most obedient and very humble servant,

NATH'L GREENE.

To his Excellency General Washington, at White-Plains.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM FORT LEE, DATED NOVEMBER 10, 1776.

The enemy have not decamped, as was reported, but are still at Dobbs's Ferry. Part of our Army have come this side of the river. General Washington will cross to-day. Deserters confirm the suspicions of the enemy's design to pay us a visit in the Jerseys; but the attempt is so dangerous, and so long delayed, that I can scarcely believe it is seriously in agitation. Yesterday Colonel Magaw's men killed thirteen Hessians and an officer, and stripped them. This little enterprise gives spirit to our men, and insensibly reduces the number of the enemy.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

SIR: The late movement of the enemy, and the probability of their having designs upon the Jerseys, confirmed by sundry accounts from deserters and prisoners, rendering it necessary to throw a body of troops over the North River, I shall immediately follow; and the command of the Army which remains, after General Heath's division marches to Peekskill, devolving upon you, I have to request,—

That you will be particularly attentive that all the intrenching and other tools, excepting those in immediate use, be got together and delivered to the Quartermaster-General, or Major Reed, who heretofore has been intrusted with them.

That you will direct the commanding officer of Artillery to exert himself in having the Army well supplied with musket cartridges; for this purpose, a convenient place at a distance should be fixed on, that the business may go on uninterrupted.

That no trps oo who have been furnished with arms, accoutrements, or camp utensils, be suffered to depart the camp before they have delivered them, either to the Commissary of Stores, or the Quartermaster-General, or his Assistant, as the case may be, taking receipts therefore, in exoneration of those which they have passed. In a particular manner, let the tents be taken care of, and committed to the Quartermaster-General's care.

A little time now must manifest the enemy's designs, and point out to you measures proper to be pursued by that part of the Army under your command. I shall give no directions, therefore, on this head, having the most entire confidence in your judgment and military exertions. One thing, however, I will suggest, namely: that as the appearance of embarking troops for the Jerseys may be intended as a feint to weaken us, and render the strong post we now hold more vulnerable, or if they find that troops are assembled with more expedition, and in greater numbers than they expected, on the Jersey shore to oppose them;—I say, as it is possible, from one or the other of these motives, they may yet pay the Army under your command a visit, it will be unnecessary, I am persuaded, to recommend to you the propriety of putting this post, if you stay at it, into a proper posture of defence, and guarding against surprises. But I would recommend it to your consideration whether, under the suggestion above, your retiring to Croton Bridge, and some strong post still more easterly, (covering the passes through the Highlands,) may not be more advisable than to run the hazard of an attack with unequal numbers. At any rate, I think all your baggage and stores, except such as are necessary for immediate use, ought to be to the northward of Croton river.

In case of your removal from hence, I submit to the consideration of yourself and the general officers with you, the propriety of destroying the hay, to prevent the enemy from reaping the benefit of it.

You will consider the post at Croton's (or Pine's) Bridge as under your immediate care, as also that lately occupied by General Parsons, and the other at Wright's Mill. The first I am taught to believe is of consequence; the other two can be of little use while the enemy hover about the North River, and upon our right flank.

General Wooster, from the State of Connecticut, and by order of the Governour, with several regiments of Militia, are now, I presume, in or about Stamford. They were to receive orders from me; of course they are to do it from you. There are also some other regiments of Connecticut Militia, who came out with General Saltonstall, and annexed to General Parsons's brigade, and others which you must dispose of as occasion and circumstances shall require; but as by the late returns, many of those regiments are reduced to little more than a large company, I recommend the discharge of all such supernumerary officers, and the others annexed to some brigade.

As the season will soon oblige the enemy to betake themselves to winter-quarters, and will not permit our troops to remain much longer in tents, it may be well to consider in time where magazines of provisions and forage should be laid in for the Army on the east side Hudson's river. Peekskill, or the neighbourhood, would, I should think, be a very advantageous post for as many as can be supported there. Croton Bridge may probably be another good deposite, or some where more easterly, for the rest, as the Commissary, Quartermaster, &c., may assist in pointing out.

It may not be amiss to remind you, for it must (as it ought to) have some influence on your deliberations and measures, that the Massachusetts Militia stand released from their contract the 17th this instant, and that the Connecticut Militia are not engaged for any fixed period; and by what I can learn, begin to grow very impatient to return, few indeed of whom being left. If the enemy should remove the whole, or the greatest part of their force, to the west side of Hudson's river, I have no doubt of your following, with all possible despatch, leaving the Militia and invalids to cover the frontiers of Connecticut, &c., in case of need.

Given at Head-Quarters, near the White-Plains, this 10th day of November, 1776.

Go. Washington.

To Major-General Lee.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Head-Quarters, November 10th, 1776.

Sir: I was yesterday favoured with a call from the gentlemen appointed Commissioners from your State to arrange your officers, and to adopt some line of conduct for recruiting the quota of men which you are to furnish. In discussing this subject, the gentlemen informed me that your Assembly, to induce their men to inlist more readily into the service, have passed a vote advancing their pay twenty shillings per month over and above that allowed by Congress. It is seldom that I interfere in the determinations of any publick body, or venture to hold forth any opinion contrary to the decisions which they form; but upon this occasion, and being requested by the Commissioners to give my sentiments, I must take the liberty to mention, (especially as the influence of that vote will be general and Continental,) that according to my ideas, and those of every general officer I have consulted with, a more mistaken policy could not have been adopted, or one that would, in its consequences, more effectually prevent the great object Congress have in view, and which the situation of our affairs so loudly calls for, the levying of a new Army. That the advance allowed by your State may be the means of raising your own quota of men sooner than it otherwise would, perhaps may be true; but when it is considered that it will be an effectual bar to the other States raising their quotas—when it is certain that if their quotas could be made up without this advance coming to their knowledge; that the moment they come to act with troops who receive higher pay, that jealousy, impatience, and mutiny, will immediately take place, and occasion desertions, if not a total dissolution of the Army,—it must be viewed in an injurious and fatal point of light. That troops embarked in the same cause and doing the same duties will not long act together with harmony, for different pays, must be obvious to every one. Experience has already proved it in this Army. Whether Congress will take up the matter and make the advance general, is what I cannot undertake to determine; but I conceive there is little probability of it, as the addition of a suit of clothes to the former pay of the privates was long debated before it could be obtained.

I could enumerate many ill consequences which must arise from the measure, which are omitted for want of opportunity. Those I have mentioned, I am persuaded, will appear obvious to you upon reflection, and I trust, as they were dictated by a firm regard to the service, that they will not only have your attention, but your pardon.

I have the honour to be, in haste, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL KNOX.

Sir: As it is more than probable, (unless General Howe should throw his whole force into the Jerseys and bend his course towards Philadelphia,) that there will scarce be a junction of our troops again this season, it may be well for you to consider of a proper partition of the field artillery, artillerists, and stores for each service; and delay no time in the arrangement and despatch of those destined for the western side of Hudson's river.

With respect to yourself, I shall leave it to your own choice to go over or stay; if you do not go, Colonel Mason must. Such stores as are necessary must be sent; and I entreat that no time may be lost in fixing musket cartridges for the use of the Army on the east side, whilst a sufficient number are sent for the purpose of supplying that on the west.

For other directions and orders in the line of your department, I shall embrace some other opportunity. In the mean time your own judgment will govern you; and I am persuaded, sufficiently stimulate to the discharge of every act by which the publick service can be benefited.

It is unnecessary to add, that if the Army of the enemy should wholly or pretty generally throw themselves across the North River, that General Lee is to follow.

Given at Head-Quarters, near the White-Plains, this 10th day of November, 1776.

Go. Washington.

To Colonel Henry Knox, of Artillery.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL MIFFLIN.

SIR: As the period is fast approaching when part of this Army will stand released from their engagements to serve the publick, and little prospect remains of prevailing upon them to stay longer, it becomes highly necessary for you in time to set about a collection of (at least an inquiry after) the tents and other stores which have been delivered from your department, and see that they are carefully deposited in some safe place. The tents (all such, however, as want it) are to be repaired, and put into the best order against another season, as all other articles which may require the like, and will admit of it, also should.

Take, especially, care that all the intrenching tools at the different encampments not in immediate use, be all collected and removed to some place of safety, or where Major-General Lee shall direct. I do not conceive that there is occasion to forward any with that part of the Army going to the Jerseys; but of this you can be satisfied from inquiry.

The uncertainty of the enemy's designs renders it almost impossible to point out places, with any degree of propriety, for magazines of forage, &c., dependent upon your department. But as Peekskill, or the neighbourhood of it, is considered as an important post, you cannot do amiss in laying in plentifully at that place. And I should think another deposit at Croton (or Pine's) Bridge, could not be amiss, as it is represented to me as a post which ought to be held.

Time and circumstances may render further instructions necessary; till which your own judgment, and General Lee's orders, must be your government.

Given at Head-Quarters, near White-Plains, this 10th November, 1776.

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Brigadier-General Mifflin, Quartermaster-General, or his Assistant.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

SIR: The late movements of, and accounts from, the enemy rendering it indispensably necessary that a body of troops should be thrown into the Jerseys, it will be incumbent on you to know how and in what manner they are to be supplied.

This move of a considerable part of our force will of course lessen the consumption of provisions at this side, and enable you to increase your magazines with greater facility. Where to point these out with precision, at this instant, I know not, except at or near Peekskill, which, as a post of importance, and contiguous to two garrisons, may well be adopted as one place for a deposit, and I think near Croton (or Pine's) Bridge may be considered as another, as I am taught to believe that this is also an important pass, and necessary to be held.

My present ideas are, that the other places for magazines should be more easterly, at or near the other passes through the Highlands. However, on this subject you will consult General Lee, who will remain with the troops at or in the neighbourhood of this camp for a while.

I should think it unadvisable to have more provisions or stores in this camp than what may be necessary to supply the present wants of the troops, as from the scarcity of teams it has been found extremely difficult to have even the tents and the necessary baggage of the Army removed upon any emergency, however urgent.

In case the enemy should make a pretty general remove to the Jerseys, that part of the Army under General Lee will more than probably follow, notice of which I now give.

Given at Head-Quarters, near the White-Plains, this 10th day of November, 1776.

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Comm'y Gen'l Provisions.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO EZEKIEL CHEEVER.

SIR: As the Army (at least part of it) is near the period of its dissolution, you are to exert yourself to the utmost in recovering all the arms and other stores which have been issued by you to the several corps (whether Continental or Militia) in the service of the United States. Such of the arms as are unserviceable and cannot be repaired by the armourers of the Army, are to be packed in chests with an inventory thereof, and numbered, in order that they may be sent to the Board of War at Philadelphia, or delivered to their order, for the purpose of repair.

All the other stores are to be deposited in careful order in some safe place near the winter-quarters of the troops, on the east side of Hudson's River, comprehending the stores taken from them.

You will remain on this side (that is the east side) till further orders, and be particularly attentive to the above directions. I shall appoint some person to do this duty on the west side of the river, whom you are to furnish with a list of such articles as the troops there have drawn from you.

Give particular attention to the makers of cartridges, that there may be no want of this article; and as a part of the Army are removing to the Jerseys, under the supposition that the enemy are bending their course that way, consult with Colonel Knox on the stores necessary for their use, and see they are forwarded.

It is unnecessary to add that the troops under General Lee will also cross Hudson's River, if it should be necessary, in consequence of the enemy's throwing their force over.

Given at Head-Quarters, near the White-Plains, this 10th day of November, 1776.

GENERAL MIFFLIN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 12th.]

Peekskill, November 10, 1776, 8 o'clock A. M.

MY DEAR SIR: This morning at four o'clock an express passed this town with despatches from the honourable Convention of New-York to his Excellency General Washington, at White-Plains. The express produced a copy of a letter from the Committee of Albany to the Convention, which letter mentioned in most positive terms the evacuation of Crown-Point by the enemy, and the retreat of General Carleton with his whole force to Quebeck. The enemy left Crown-Point on Monday, the 28th of October.

I am, sir, with much friendship, your obedient servant,

THOMAS MIFFLIN.

The Hon. John Hancock, Esq., Philadelphia.

P. S. General Lord Stirling passed King's Ferry yesterday afternoon to New-Jersey, with twelve hundred men. Colonel Hand is now embarking for Jersey with one thousand; General Bell with seventeen hundred is here and preparing to embark; the whole under the command of General Putnam. General Washington is expected here this morning. The enemy's main body was encamped yesterday between Dobbs's Ferry and Colonel Phillips's Mills. If they attempt any thing in New-Jersey we shall be able to face them, and I trust drub them.

---

LORD STIRLING TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Haverstraw, November 10, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I got to the landing-place yesterday afternoon, with Haslet's, Miles's, and part of Weedon's, with our artillery; the remainder arrived in the night, and are now landing. The landing-place is very inconvenient, as at half tide the vessels are obliged to lay at the distance of five or six hundred yards from the shore, which makes tedious work with the few boats that are here; besides it is open to any insult the enemy is pleased to commit. About half a mile further north, and on the north side of Stony Point, is a good landing place in deep water, and easily secured, by placing two pieces of cannon on the end of the point. It will require about half a mile of new road, and a short causeway, and a small bridge.

I hope to be able to march this morning. I have ordered a scouting party to advance ahead, and a hundred men to possess a gap in the mountain just above Kease's Landing, which it commands. Through this gap the road passes. The next landing is at a place called Naiak, below the mountains of Verdrietiga Hook, but they will not, I think, risk a landing there, as the roads is commanded by a long chain of mountains.

The great pass through the Highlands lies fourteen miles back from the river, and will best be supported with troops from Tappan; and on consulting General Greene, a proper body of troops will be sent there; but at present the first object is to prevent their landing, and therefore I shall hasten on to those places where it is most likely they will attempt it.

I find General Greene has posted five hundred men with four pieces of cannon and one howitz at Dobbs's Ferry, and that I believe will be sufficient to defeat any designs they may have there.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

ROBERT BOYD, JUN., TO PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT.

New-Windsor, 10th November, 1776.

SIR: This will be handed you per Mr. McClaughry, who hath in his possession under guard, whom he will also deliver to you or order, two certain felons, named, by their information, Henry Vank and James Briggs, who were apprehended in this place yesterday by Messrs. Jackson and Holliday, two of the members of this Committee, for passing false money. It appears that a three-dollar bill of the emission of this State, dated 2d September, '75, is altered into a thirty-dollar bill, and as such passed it. It is now in the hands of one of the above gentlemen, who you may call on whenever you shall want full proof of the matter.

I am, sir, with much esteem and due respect, your very humble servant,

ROB'T BOYD, JUN.

To Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq., President, in Committee of Safety, Fishkill.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, November 10, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: Yesterday a member of the Convention of this State, immediately from Fishkill, informed us that the enemy had retreated to New-York Island. This story comes so straight that I have very little doubt of the truth of it. It was even said that they had ordered all the forage which they had collected on Long-Island to be embarked, and that these movements were occasioned by some bad news they had received, bad to them, but I hope good to us.

Colonel Dayton's father is dead, and his presence much wanted at home. Will you be so good as to inform him that he may return to Jersey whenever he pleases?

Pray order all the storekeepers to make returns to the Paymaster-General, or his deputy, of all clothing and stores that have been delivered to them, that proper stoppages may be made agreeable to the resolutions of Congress.

You will also please to order that all the arms belonging to the United States, and in the hands of such corps whose term of inlistment is expired, be lodged in the hands of the conductors. Several of the Pennsylvania and Jersey troops have drawn arms at this place.

I am, dear General, affectionately yours, &c., &c.,

PH. SCHUYLER.

General Gates.

JOHN MORGAN,
Director-General of the Hospital, &c.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN LONDON, DATED DOVER, ENGLAND, NOVEMBER 11, 1776.

Arrived the Georgiana, Kentish, from Bluesfields, in Jamaica, after a passage of thirteen weeks and four days, under convoy of the Pallas frigate, the Hon. Captain Cornwallis, with a fleet of about one hundred sail of ships. On the 18th of September, in latitude 31° 47′, longitude 75°, the Pallas made sail, and was out of sight of said ship seventeen days after. On the 5th of October, the Georgiana was chased, and taken by an American brig-of-war, called the Cabot, Captain Hinman, mounting fourteen six-pounders, as many swivels, and one hundred and fifty men. After being plundered of all their arms, powder, and as much sugar, rum, cotton, &c., as the Americans could conveniently get out, they put on board the officers and seamen belonging to the under-mentioned ships, prizes which they had taken, viz: the Westmoreland, Hore, from Jamaica to London; the Lowther, Cowman, from ditto to ditto; on the 27th of September, in latitude 41° 30′ N., longitude 45°: the Esther, Harvey, from ditto to ditto; the brig Watson, Pearson, from ditto to Liverpool; and the Clarendon, Denniston, from ditto to Glasgow; on the 2d of October, in latitude 41° N., longitude 45°. They sent on board for the maintenance of the people three barrels of pork, two hundred weight of bread, and two puncheons of water, which were not sufficient, as they have been at very short allowance ever since parting from the American pirates, which was the next day. Captain Kentish spoke with the Betsey, Angus, from Jamaica, off Scilly, who spared him some bread and water, or they must all have perished.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN LONDON, DATED SOUTHAMPTON, (ENGLAND,) NOVEMBER 11, 1776.

The brig Kingston, Captain Reveness, is this day arrived in fourteen days from Oporto, and brings advice of the arrival there of the brig Ceres, Captain Squires, in seven days from Bilboa, and that sixteen sail of American privateers were there, one of which had taken five sail of English ships on her passage thither, among them was the Susanna, Crawford, from Oporto for London, lately mentioned. The day Captain Reveness sailed from Oporto, an express arrived there from his Majesty's Consul at the Groyne, setting forth that four American privateers were then in the harbour of Ferrol, supplying themselves for a cruise. The same day the post from Lisbon brought advice that a schooner of eighteen guns, sailing extraordinary fast, had taken several vessels near the Rock, one of them, a brig laden with corn, after having taken the pilot on board. Their colours are a red field with thirteen stripes, where our union is placed, denoting the united rebellious Colonies.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO CAPTAIN WARNER.

Philadelphia, November 11, 1776.

Sir: We have received intelligence that our enemies at New-York are about to embark fifteen thousand men on board their transports, but where they are bound remains to be found out. The station assigned you makes it probable that we may best discover their destination by your means, for it will be impossible this fleet of transports can get out of Sandy Hook without your seeing them; and we particularly direct you to take such station as will prevent a probability of their passing you unseen. The Wasp must act in conjunction with you, and for that purpose you will concert with Lieutenant Baldwin what is best to be done, and give him orders accordingly. When you discover this fleet, watch their motions, and the moment they get out to sea and shape their course, send your boat on shore with a letter to be despatched by express, informing us what course they steer, how many sail they consist of, if you can ascertain their numbers, and how many ships-of-war attend them. We expect this letter will be sent off to you by Mr. James Searle, who is at Shrewsbury, and he will either receive your letters and send them off to us by express or get some proper person to do it. If this fleet steer to the southward, either the Fly or Wasp, which ever sails fastest, must precede the fleet, keeping in shore and ahead of them; and if you find they are bound into the Capes of Delaware, run into some of the inlets on the Jersey shore, and send one of your officers or some proper person to us instantly with an account thereof. The dullest sailer of the Fly or Wasp must follow after this fleet, and watch their motions, and whenever you make discovery of their destination, so as to know it with certainty, put in for the land and send us information by express. Thus you must watch this fleet, one before and the other after them, until you can inform us where they are bound. Should they go for Chesapeake Bay, put into some of the inlets on the coast and give advice to the Council of Safety of Virginia and Maryland by express. If they go for North-Carolina, South-Carolina, or Georgia, observe the same conduct, and if they go to the northward do the like. In short, we think you may, by a spirited execution of these orders, prevent them from coming by surprise upon any part of this Continent, and be assured you cannot recommend yourself more effectually to our friendship. If you could find an opportunity of attacking and taking one of the fleet on their coming out it might be the means of giving us ample intelligence: in such case send all the papers and prisoners here expeditiously.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

Captain Elisha Warner.

ROBERT OGDEN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Elizabeth-Town, 11th November, 1776.

Sir: As I cannot at present, without the greatest difficulty, have access to Colonel Trumbull, Commissary, under whom I act, therefore send my son, the bearer, on purpose to get salt to supply my troops in my department. For particulars refer you to him. The disappointments I have met with in not getting that article, the necessity of an immediate supply, or the troops must suffer, for which reasons I don't doubt but you will give him all the assistance in your power, which will promote the interest of the common cause, and greatly oblige, honourable sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

Robert Ogden.

The Honourable John Hancock.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Lee, November 11, 1776.

Dear General: By Justice Mercereau, of Staten-Island, I am informed that ten thousand troops embarked on board of a number of transports day before yesterday; Lord Dunmore was to command, and that they were bound for South-Carolina. A large number of transports were getting ready to sail for England for stores. Mercereau says that he saw a man from York yesterday, that informed him he had been employed in constructing a number of gondolas to carry one eighteen-pounder; the gondolas are to be employed in fetching hay from Newark Meadows. The Light Horse, he says, are perishing for want of hay.

Mercereau further informs me, by the way of General Williamson, that our prisoners in the city are perishing for want of sustenance, having only half allowance of bread and water. They are reduced to the necessity to beg, and instead of receiving any charity, are called damned Rebels, and told their fare is good enough, and that they had no business to burn the grain on Long-Island.

This moment came to hand a large number of letters from the prisoners of New-York, several to your Excellency. They came out by the way of Mount Washington; the enemy remains quiet there this afternoon.

I am, dear General, your most obedient and very humble servant,

Nath. Greene.

To His Excellency General Washington, at White-Plains.

Head-Quarters, November 13, 1776.—This letter was opened by General Lee. John S. Eustace, A. D. C.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 15th.]

Peekskill, November 11, 1776.

Sir: I have only time to acknowledge the honour of your letter of the 5th instant, and its several enclosures, and to inform you that, agreeable to the resolves of Congress, I shall use every measure in my power that the moving and present confused state of the Army will admit of, for to appoint officers for recruiting. You will have been advised before this of the arrival of Commissioners from the Massachusetts; others have come from Connecticut; but from the present appearance of things, we seem but little if any nearer levying an Army.

I had anticipated the resolve respecting the Militia, by writing to the Eastern States and to the Jersey, by the advice of my General Officers and from a consciousness of the necessity of getting in a number of men if possible to keep up the appearance of an Army. How my applications will succeed the event must determine. I have little or no reason to expect that the Militia now here will remain a day longer than the time they first engaged for. I have recommended their stay, and requested it in general orders. General Lincoln and the Massachusetts Commissioners are using their interest with those from that State; but as far as I can judge we cannot rely on their staying.

I left White-Plains about eleven o'clock yesterday; all peace there. The enemy appeared to be preparing for their expedition to Jersey, according to every information. What their designs are, or whether their present conduct is not a feint, I cannot determine. The Maryland and Virginia troops under Lord Stirling have crossed the river, as have those from the Jersey; the remainder are now embarking. The troops judged necessary to secure the several posts through the Highlands have also got up. I am going to examine the passes, and direct such works as may appear necessary; after which, and making the best disposition I can of things in this quarter, I intend to proceed to Jersey, which I expect to do to-morrow.

The Assemblies of Massachusetts and Connecticut, to induce their men more readily to engage in the service, have voted an advance pay of twenty shillings per month in addition to that allowed by Congress to privates. It may perhaps be the means of their levying the quotas exacted from them sooner than they could otherwise be raised, but I am of opinion a more fatal or mistaken policy could not have entered their counsels, or one more detrimental to the general cause. The influence of the vote will become Continental, and materially affect the other States in making up their levies. If they could do it, I am certain when the troops come to act together, that jealousy, impatience, and mutiny, would necessarily arise. A different pay cannot exist in the same Army. The reasons are obvious, and experience has proved their force in the case of the Eastern and Southern troops last spring. Sensible of this, and of the pernicious consequences that would inevitably result from the advance, I have prevented the Commissioners from proceeding or publishing their terms till they could obtain the sense of Congress upon the subject, and remonstrated against it in a letter to Governour Trumbull. I am not singular in opinion: I have the concurrence of all the General Officers of its fatal tendency.

I congratulate you and Congress upon the news from Ticonderoga, and that General Carleton and his Army have been obliged to return to Canada without attempting any thing.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 7th, 1776.

(Parole, Dedham.) (Countersign, Newbury.)

The Colonels, or commanding officers of regiments, are immediately to parade their men, examine the state of their regiments, and make out their pay abstracts in a careful, correct manner, for the month of September.

General Wadsworth's brigade to be in readiness to remove in a short notice to the ground on which Lord Stirling is posted. Colonel Silliman to take charge of the brigade during General Wadsworth's illness.

The General Officers, Colonels, and commanding officers of regiments, are again called upon to examine the baggage of the troops under marching orders; to take care that the tents and spare arms of the regiment are first put into the wagons, and then the proper baggage of the regiment. No chairs, tables, heavy chests, or lumber of any kind, to be put in, as it will certainly be thrown off and left.

No officer of any rank is to meddle with a wagon or cart appropriated for any other regiment, or publick use, as they wish to avoid confusion, and injuring the service.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 8th, 1776.

(Parole, Philadelphia.) (Countersign, Portsmouth.)

The Court Martial of which General McDougall is President, to sit immediately for the trial of Major Austin, in arrest, upon charge of "burning the houses at White-Plains, contrary to general orders."

Colonel Graham and Captain Gerrish, tried by a Court Martial whereof General McDougall was President, for misbehaviour upon the approach of the enemy, are acquitted.

Captain Poole, of Colonel Cary's regiment, and General Fellows's brigade, tried by the same Court Martial, and convicted of shamefully abandoning his post, ordered to be cashiered.

The General approves each of the above sentences, orders the former to join their regiments, and the latter to depart the Army immediately.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 9th, 1776.

(Parole, ——.) (Countersign, ——.)

The General desires that all Colonels and commanding officers of regiments, will be particularly attentive that no discharged men, or men whose times have, or are about to expire, be suffered to carry off any arms, camp-kettles, utensils, or any other kind of stores, which belong to the publick; but that the whole be carefully delivered to the Quartermaster-General (or his Assistants) or to the Commissary of Stores, as the case may be, taking receipts therefor, in discharge of those they have passed for the delivery, in behalf of the corps they respectively belong to.

Head-Quarters, White-Plains, November 10th, 1776.

(Parole, North-Castle.) (Countersign, Bedford.)

Such officers as have been commissioned by the different States for the new Army, are immediately to set about recruiting from the troops of such State only, upon the following terms: Twenty dollars bounty, a suit of clothes, one hundred acres of land. The same pay and rations as are now given. The service to continue during the present contest with Great Britain.

Such ample encouragement, it is not doubted, will induce every true lover of his country to engage in its defence, to preserve it from the horrours of slavery and the desolation of a cruel and barbarous enemy. No boys (under the idea of waiters or otherwise) or old men to be inlisted; if they are, they will be returned on the hands of the officer, without any allowance for any expense he may be at.

COLONEL H. B. LIVINGSTON TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Fishkills, 11th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Should it be thought proper to honour me with the command of a regiment, in order to its being tolerably well officered I must beg leave to recommend to your notice the following officers, who I am of opinion are qualified for the commissions set opposite their names. If you, gentlemen, should be of the same opinion, I should be happy to see them in those stations: Major Peter Schuyler, Lieutenant-Colonel; Major , fifth Brigade-Major to General Scott, a Major; Captain Sacket, a Captain to Grifin's company; Captain Rosekrans and Captain Davis continued; Lieutenant Jonathan Titus, an old officer, and Lieutenant Israel Smith, Captains in case of vacancies; Lieutenant George Smith, to be a First Lieutenant, a worthy officer of approved resolution; Woolsey, a volunteer in the excursion to Long-Island, a Lieutenant if possible, if not, an Ensign. A Surgeon, an Adjutant, a Quartermaster and Chaplain, will be much wanted, none having been appointed to the regiment I now serve in.

I remain, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON, Lieutenant-Colonel.

To the Gentlemen of the Committee of Arrangement.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 18: Referred to Board of War.]

Albany, November 11th, 1776.

SIR: I am just informed by a letter from General Gates, that on Tuesday, the 4th instant, there was not the least sign of any enemy forty miles north of Crown-Point. That from the information of the inhabitants, who daily resort to Ticonderoga, and other circumstances, there is reason to believe that the enemy have in good earnest retired into winter-quarters. General Gates has sent a flag, with Lieutenant Evans, to Canada, by the return of which he will probably learn what is become of the enemy; and I have desired him, as soon as he has full information that they are gone into winter-quarters, to send our Army to theirs. This distribution I have made, Congress will see in a letter of mine to Messrs. Stockden and Clymer.

General Gates presses me much for money. In my last I mentioned to what our chest was reduced, half of which is ordered to Ticonderoga and the other half will be expended in a very few days.

I am, sir, with every sentiment of respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Albany, November 11, 1776.

DEAR SIR: On Tuesday, the 4th instant, no sign of the enemy was seen forty miles north of Crown-Point. General Gates has sent a flag, with Lieutenant Evans, by the return of which, he will know if the enemy are really gone into winter-quarters; if so we shall do the like. I am in hopes that in three weeks, at farthest, we shall have barracks sufficient for what troops may remain in the service. I propose twenty-five hundred at Ticonderoga and Mount Independence, one hundred at Skenesborough, one hundred at Fort Ann, four hundred at Fort George, one thousand at Saratoga, five hundred in this place, five hundred in Schenectady, about one hundred at Johns-Town, one hundred at Fort Dayton, and four hundred at Fort Schuyler. I hope this disposition of the troops will be agreeable to your Excellency.

Congress has referred to me, for approbation or disapprobation, the proceedings of the Court Martial on Colonel Campbell. General Gates informs me that they are sent to your Excellency. Will you be pleased to order them to be transmitted to me?

I am, dear sir, very affectionately, and with perfect esteem, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

His Excellency General Washington, &c., &c.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Albany, November 11th, 1776.

SIR: We have reason to believe that the enemy will give us no farther trouble, until another campaign takes place, as on Tuesday, the 4th instant, not the sign of any was to be seen on Lake Champlain, forty miles beyond Crown-Point. Measures are taken to know with certainty if they are retired into winter-quarters; and if the intelligence we expect confirms our belief that they are, we shall then immediately do the same, leaving a garrison of twenty-five hundred at Ticonderoga, four hundred at Fort George, one hundred at Skenesborough, one hundred at Fort Ann, four hundred at Fort Edward, one thousand at Saratoga, about four hundred in this place, five hundred at Schenectady, two hundred at Johns-Town, two hundred at Fort Dayton, and four hundred at Fort Schuyler. This disposition of the Army, I hope will meet the approbation of Convention. My reason for keeping them in this quarter is that they will be at hand should the enemy attempt a winter expedition, which it is probable they may do, as they can procure a sufficiency of carriage in Canada to transport their provisions and baggage.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

Honourable President of Convention of New-York.

Hartford, November 11, 1776.

By letters from Mount Independence of a late date, we are informed that on the 28th of October a large body of the enemy appeared in boats coming down the lake, who soon after landed, to the number of about four thousand, on Three-Mile Point, in full view of Mount Independence; soon after which two or three boats came down from the main body, to reconnoitre and view the boom which our people have fixed across the lake from the old French lines to the eastern shore to prevent their shipping from approaching our fortifications; one of which boats came so near as to be within reach of our cannon, when she was so warmly fired upon from one of our redoubts, that she was obliged to quit her station, with the loss of one man killed and several wounded. In the evening after they landed they retired out of our sight, and by a gentleman from Albany, who came to town on Saturday last, we are told that the whole Army under General Burgoyne have left the above place, as well as Crown-Point; but what route they have taken is not known.

M. LOTBINIERE TO DR. FRANKLIN.

Chatain, au Cap Cod, 11 Novembre, 1776.

MONSIEUR: Me voici enfin au comble de mes souhait, puisque depuis deux jours je suis sur votre continent, et à même de pouvoir parvenir jusqu'à vous sous peu à Philadelphie, sans avoir à courir les risques que j'ai couru depuis mon départ de St. Pierre, ainsi que vous le pourrez voir en parcourant la lettre cy-jointe pour mon fils. Je vous aurai, monsieur, la plus grande obligation de vouloir bien la lui faire remettre le plûtost possible, dans la supposition toutefois ou il soit encore dans vos provinces, autrement je vous prierois de vous la réserver jusqu'à ce que j'aie l'honneur de vous voir; et dans le cas où il fut encore avec vous, j'espère que vous aurez la bonté de le faire venir à Philadelphie pour le tems où je pourrai m'y rendre.

J'ai séjourné à Paris et Versailles plus de deux mois, avant de me porter à St. Malo, d'où j'ai pris mon embarquement pour St. Pierre de Miquelon. J'ai eu pendant ce séjour nombre de conférences avec M. de Vergennes, Ministre des Affaires Etrangeres, ainsi qu'avec d'autres personnages importans en France, que m'ont paru prendre constamment le plus vif intérêt à la réussite de vôtre cause. Je puis même vous assurer que la chose alloit au point, qu'il eut semblé qu'elle les affectoit plus que leur propres affaires; mais c'est ce dont nous nous entretiendrons plus au long, pendant mon séjour à Philadelphie.

Je ne vous cache pas, Monsieur, que je désirerois beaucoup le reste de ma famille avec vous à présent, je serois dans le cas d'agir beaucoup plus ouvertement, que je ne le pourrai jusqu'à ce que j'aie tiré Mad^e. de Lotbiniere et ma fille du pais où elles sont au moment; et pour y parvenir plus promtement, mon idée seroit de faire passer de suite mon fils en Canada, moi tenant sa place tant qu'il seroit absent, qui muni des instructions que nous pourrons lui donner, parviendra peut-être à nous les amener promtement: en attendant vous devez croire, par le zéle que vous m'avez connu pour la cause commune, que je ne m'épargnerai pas sur le conseil, d'après les connoissances que j'ai des lieux sur lesquels il me semble que vous devez diriger toutes vos vues, aussitost que vous aurez reduit l'ennemi que vous avez en face à ne pouvoir plus agir offensivement; et comme il vous reste bien peu de tems pour voir finir la campagne, je croirois que vous n'avez rien de mieux à faire avec cet ennemi, que de le resserer le plus que vous le pourrez, mais de n'engager avec lui aucune affaire generale; qui, perdue, diviseroit toute votre armée sans espérance de la pouvoir rassembler à tems, à fui de prévenir la désunion, que je n'apperçois desza que trop dans la colonie actuelement attaquée, par le peu que l'on m'en a dit depuis que je suis ici, sur laquelle je savois des Londres qu'on comptoit pour ne pas dire qu'on en étoit desya certain, et qui je le crois a décidé le projet d'attaque: il vous est necessaire plus que jamais, je le pense, de vous conduire à la Fabius, poussant toujours vos vivres derriere vous, et dévastant le pays que vous abandonné; par ce moyen vous êtes certains de consommer votre ennemi, qui ne pouvant se raffraichir ni se recruter dans votre pais, se réduira dans le cours de l'hiver à un nombre bien peu respectable; et vous savez mieux que moi, qu'il est impossible à l'Angleterre de fournir une seconde armée, à une dépense aussi exhorbitante que celle-ci.

J'aurois bien souhaitté, monsieur, être muni, avant mon départ de Boston, d'ordres assez précis pour voler le plustost possible jusqu'à vous, avec deux domestiques que j'ai, et mes équipages.

J'ai l'honneur d'être, avec l'attachement le plus particulier, et la plus grande consideration, monsieur, votre très humble et très obeissant serviteur,

LOTBINIERE.

To the Hon. Benjamin Franklin, Esq., &c., &c., &c., at Philadelphia.

P. S. De la Baye de Boston, pret à arriver à cette ville ce Mardi, 7 heures du soir, 19 Novembre, 1776.

N'ayant pû trouver ni poste ni occasions certaines pour Boston à Harrwich, où j'ai sejourné malgré moi du Lundi au Samedi de la derniere semaine, non plus qu'à Plymouth, où un vent forcé de nord ouest nous a retenu jusqu'à ce matin, j'ai été réduit à porter moi-même la présente lettre jusqu'ici. Si nous arrivons ce soir à Boston, comme je l'espere, je la ferai passer de suite à la poste ; autrement ce sera demain des le matin, et on m'assure qu'il sera encore tems à 9 heures. Je ne sai combien j'aurai, monsieur, de jours à attendre votre reponse ; je prévois n'être en état de laisser Boston que lorsque je la recevrai, car la goellette qui m'a apporté de St. Pierre à Chatain en est à peine partie, et ma chaise n'en poura sortir que dans 6 ou sept jours pour le plustost, qui sera le tems on vraisemblablement cette goelette y arrivera, devant passer à Well-Fleet (au Cap Cod) où elle doit rester 3 ou quatre jours : ainsi je crois ne rien hazarder, vous annonçant que je ne laisserai cette ville qu'après avoir eu de vos nouvelles. Vous savez, monsieur, combien je vous suis attaché et à quel point je vous considere.

C. L.

Je profiterai du tems que je resterai à Boston pour voir la suite des ouvrages, tant à la ville et au dehors, que dans la baye, s'il m'est possible de parcourir le tout, et s'il m'est permis de le faire. Je vous en dirai mon sentiment, lorsque j'aurai l'honneur de vous voir.

Boston, 20 Novembre, 1776.

J'apprend à l'instant que Monsieur Franklin est parti pour se rendre en France. J'aurai une obligation infini à Monsieur le Président du Congrès, à qui j'ai l'honneur de présenter mon respect, de faire usage de cette lettre comme si elle lui étoit addressée, et de vouloir bien suppléer au defaut de M. Franklin pourtant ce qu'elle contient. J'espere qu'il voudra bien m'honorer d'un mot de résponse.

J'ai l'honneur d'être son très humble serviteur,

L.

Chatham, Cape Cod, November 11th, 1776.

SIR: I am at last arrived at the completion of my desires, being since two days arrived on your Continent, and on my way to join you at Philadelphia soon, without the many dangers I have been exposed to since my departure from St. Pierre, which you may see by perusing my letter to my son. I shall be greatly obliged to you, sir, to deliver it to him as soon as possible, if he is yet in your Province, otherwise I beg you will keep it until I have the honour to see you; and if he is yet in your Province, I beg you will be so kind as to send for him and keep him with you, that I may find him at my arrival.

I have resided at Paris and Versailles above two months before I went to St. Malo, where I embarked for St. Pierre and Miquelon. During my residence at Court, I have had several conferences with Mr. De Vergennes, Minister of Foreign Affairs, as well as with many other important persons in France, who have appeared to me greatly concerned in the success of your cause. I can even assure you that they appeared more concerned about it than of their own affairs. We will talk further on this head when I reach Philadelphia.

I do not conceal from you, sir, that I really wish the rest of my family were now with you; in that case I would act more openly than I shall be able to do until I can get Mrs. De Lotbiniere and my daughter from the country they are now in. And in order to succeed as soon as possible in this, my idea would be to send my son immediately to Canada; and I would fill his place during his absence ; and on the instructions we might give him, he might succeed in bringing them with him. In the mean time I shall not be sparing of my advices, as you know my zeal for the common cause, and the knowledge I have of the places where your views ought to be directed, as soon as you can oblige your enemy to act only on the defensive. And as you have now little time to continue this campaign, I think your best way is to close them in as much as you can, and avoid any general action, which, if lost, would divide your Army without hopes of gathering them in time to prevent the disunion which I perceive but too great in the Colony attacked, and which they depended on so much in London, not to say that they had a certainty of it, and on which I believe they formed their plan of attack. It is this I think necessary more than ever to act like Fabius, keeping your provisions behind, and destroying the country you abandon; by those means you may be sure of destroying your enemy, who, not being able to refresh themselves nor recruit in your country, will be reduced in the course of the winter to a small number; and you know better than I, that England cannot for another year support such an exorbitant expense as that of the last.

I could wish, sir, to be furnished, before I leave Boston, with precise orders to go to you with the greatest diligence, with two servants and my baggage.

I have the honour to be, with the most particular attachment, and the greatest consideration, yours, &c.,

LOTBINIERE.

P. S. At the Bay of Boston, November 19th. Not finding at Harwich either post or opportunity for Boston, nor at Plymouth, I have been obliged to bring this letter myself. I do not know how long I shall be obliged to wait for your answer, but I think I shall not be able to leave Boston before I receive it, for the schooner in which I came from St. Pierre to Chatham is hardly sailed from thence, and my post-chaise will not be here before six or seven days, therefore I can certainly inform you that I shall not leave this until I receive your answer. I shall during my stay at Boston view the works of the city and the bay, if I am permitted, and will tell you my opinion of them.

On the back of the packet is wrote:

Boston, November 20th, 1776.—This instant I am informed that Mr. Franklin is sailed for France. I beg the President of the Congress would make use of this letter, as if directed to him, and supply the place of Dr. Franklin in regard to its contents. I hope he will honour me with an answer.

I have the honour to be, &c.

M. LOTBINIERE TO HIS SON.

Chatham, au Cap Codd, le 10 Novembre, 1776.

Me voici enfin, mon cher fils, à même de vous voir sons peu, non sans avoir couru les risques les plus evidens de ne vous jamais revoir, il y a dix jours, puisque nous avons pensé perir d'un tres gros vent de nord ouest sur la barre de l'est nord est de l'Isle de Sable, à plus de 3 lieues et ½ au large de la pointe de cette isle, et hier ayant échappé comme miraculeusement à un vaisseau de guerre qui nous donnoit chasse vers le soleil couchant, qui a passé à 7 heures ½ tout au plus à ¼ de mille de nous sans nous voir, quoique nous l'apperçussions tout entier et gros comme une montagne, converte de voile n'ayant pû double le Cap Codd pour nous rendre à Well-Fleet qui n'en est qu'à 8 lieues, et delà à Boston dans la goelette qui m'a porté de St. Pierre de Miquelon, nous avons relaché ici pour nous mettre à l'abri du vent du nord, forcé qu'il fait; et ne voulant plus courir les risques, au moment de rejoindre la partie la plus précieuse de ma famille, de m'en voir éloigné peut-être de l'océan entier si j'etois pris, ou au moins de perdre mes equipages qui sont un objet assez considerable, s'il nous falloit jetter encore, je prends mon parti de me rendre d'ici par terre à Boston, avec mes malles, portemanteaux, &c., et mes deux domestiques; il n'y aura pas le moyen que ma chaise de poste, qu'on ne peut dégager de la calle qu'après que la cargaison en sera tiré, qui courra les risques ; et si elle peut échapper, aussitost que la goelette aura joint Boston, je la ferai descendre et me mettrai en route pour New-York et Philadelphie des le lendemain. Je ne vous cache pas mon fils que je serai assez flatté de voir Boston, tous les ouvrages qui y ont été faits de part et d'autres pendant que les Royalistes y étoient, et ce que l'on y a fait depuis pour la mettre à l'abri de toute insulte—ainsi que la baye depuis la tour qui est pour guider parson feu les vaisseaux qui s'y presentent.

Vous avez dû recevoir il y a près d'un mois et ½, par une petite goelette de Nantouket qui partoit de St. Pierre, une lettre de moi qui vous annonçoit mon arrivée prochaine au continent: je vous marquois de faire savoir à votre mère et reste de ma famille mon arrivée à St. Pierre depuis le 5 de Septembre dernier, et la résolution où j'étois de venir le plustost possible à ce continent pour tacher de vous dégager promtement de vôtre captivité: Jussai-je, mon cher fils, n'obtenir vôtre liberté qu'en me livrant pour vous, si elle ne dépend que de cet offre de ma part au Congrès, vous ne languirez pas long tems à la recouvrer. Si vous eussiez voulu me croire aussi prévoyant que je l'étois, et que vous eussiez voulu suivre le conseil que je vous ai donné dans deux ou trois lettres l'année derniere, etant desya convaincu de tout ce qui devoit avoir lieu, vous vous seriez tenu aussi tranquille sur vos biens que je vous marquois de le faire, et auriez retenu ces saillies d'honneur et d'envie de vous faire connoître par la partie militaire, vous reservant pour une meilleure occasion: vous vous fussiez épargné bien de la peine, bien des pertes, et à moi une inquietude mortelle pour vous et le reste de la famille que j'avois confié à vos soins, et que vous avez abandonné à leur triste sort, sans savoir ce qu'elles deviendroient, vous n'y etant plus. Si au lieu de vous livrer à cette bravour folle pour le moment où vous l'avez mise en action, vous vous fussiez rendu en Europe avec votre sœur, comme je vous le marquois, vous vous seriez mis l'un et l'autre bien en sureté, et ne pouviez être exposé à aucuns reproches de certains de nos anciens officiers, qui ont su pousser dans le peril tous nos jeunes gentilshommes, et ont en grand soin de s'en tirer, ou pour mieux dire de ne s'y point exposer: car c'est là j'en suie certain ce qui vous a décidé, et si vous voulez être de bonns foy comme je vous ai toujours vû, vous m'en ferai l'aveu dèz notre premier entrevue sans que j'aie la peine de vous en parler quoiqu'il en soit, après beaucoup d'inquietude, de perils, et de peine, me voici enfin à portée de retrouver sous peu ma famille, et je l'espere dans le même etat où je l'ai laissé. Me voici à même de rendre à ma patrie les services les plus essentiels et les plus grands, si ceux qui l'habitent veulent enfin m'écouter, leur faisant envisager dans ce dernier moment leurs vrais et uniques intérêts, ce que j'ai toujours fait, assurément bien au depens des miens, et malheureusement sans succés jusqu'ici: j'espère cependant cette fois, parceque j'aurai à leur dire de particulier, qu'ils pourront renoncer à un zèle aussi peu raissonné que celui qu'ils ont montré jusqu'ici: ceci je vous prie mon fils pour vous seul ou vous êtes, et qu'aucun de vos amis n'en ait pas le plus petit soupçon, jusqu'à ce que nous ayons dégagé et mis en sureté toute la famille, et c'est ce que je desire que vous fassiez le plustôst que vous le pourrez après m'avoir vû. Mille complimens à vos camarades qui seroient à votre portée, et me croyez, comme certainement vous n'en sauriez douter, votre bon père, et le meilleur de vos amis,

LOTBINIERE.

Je n'ai pas le tems de relire ma lettre, ne sais trop quelle suite elle a, mais vous savez que je suis ici, que je me porte bien, et c'est je le crois de quoi vous contenter.

A Monsieur, Monsieur Lotbiniere fils, &c., &c., &c.

[TRANSLATION.]

Chatham, Cape Cod, November 10th, 1776.

I am, my dear son, in hopes of seeing you soon, not without having been exposed to imminent dangers, &c. [To the 24th line no consequence.] You must have received a letter from me about a month and a half ago, by a Nantucket schooner, which sailed from St. Pierre, which informed you of my near approach to this Continent. I told you to inform your mother and the rest of my family of my arrival at St. Pierre, the 5th of September last, and of my resolution of coming to this Continent as soon as possible, to relieve you from your captivity, even in giving myself for you. And if this offer from me to the Congress is admitted of, you will not languish long in recovering your liberty. If you had believed me, and followed the advice I gave you last year in two or three letters, you would have been convinced of what has happened. You would have remained quiet on your estate, and have restrained those sallies of honour and the desire of distinguishing yourself in a military way, reserving yourself for a fitter opportunity. You would have spared yourself many pains and losses, and me a mortal uneasiness for you and the rest of my family, which I had entrusted to your care, and which you have abandoned to their hard fate, without knowing what might become of them in your absence. If instead of giving yourself up to a bravery, foolish in the case in which you have employed it, you had gone to Europe with your sister, as I wrote to you, who would have been both secure, and not exposed to any reproaches of certain ancient officers, who have had the talent of exposing our young gentlemen to the danger, and keeping themselves out of it, for this is I am sure what induced you; and if you have that good faith I have always found in you, you will confess it to me on our first interview without my having the trouble to speak to you about it. However that be I am now, after many dangers and troubles, near joining with my family, and hope to find them as I left them, and inclined to render my country the greatest and most essential services, if those who inhabit it will at last listen to me, by showing them in this last moment their true and only interest, which I have always done, and certainly at the expense of my own, though heretofore without success. I hope notwithstanding that, at this time by the particular reasons I have to lay before them that they may renounce to so unreasonable a zeal as that they have heretofore shown. This I write for you alone in the place you are in; and let none of your friends have the least suspicion of it, until we have disengaged all our family, and put them in safety, and this what I desire you may do immediately after our interview. My compliments to your comrade; and believe me to be, &c.,

LOTBINIERE.

That each non-commissioned officer and soldier who shall inlist into the Continental service as aforesaid, shall be entitled to receive from the treasury of this State twenty shillings per month, to be paid him or his order every six months during his continuance in the service, in addition to the pay and encouragement already granted by Congress, provided Congress shall not make any addition to their wages on or before the 19th of September last; and in case the Congress shall make an increase of wages less than twenty shillings per month, this State will supply the deficiency, and cause the same to be paid them as aforesaid.

M. F. GRAND TO THE COMMITTEE OF SECRET CORRESPONDENCE.

Amsterdam, 12th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have been ordered by Mr. William Carmichael, who is gone from hence to Hamburgh, to direct a packet of letters for you to Mr. Van Bibber, at St. Eustatia, and to have the honour of writing to you by the same opportunity, to send you the King's speech to his Parliament, which arrived by the post to-day, but which had been forwarded by express.

Notwithstanding the progress of the King's Army, and the conquest of New-York, the English funds are low. You may judge of them by the course, herewith sent, of the 8th and 11th. There are only venders, and not one purchaser; from whence it is that there has been no transfers for three days, which is a thing without example in a season critical like the present.

It has been remarked, that the agents who have sold out most from the funds, or taken the lead for the fall, are those who act for persons in place in England, who are best acquainted with what passes in the Cabinets.

The sudden and forced armaments which is going forward in England of a fleet of observation, is regarded here as a proof of some important discovery; and all sensible men see that the independence of America is an interesting stroke for the House of Bourbon.

I promised Mr. Carmichael to give you all the intelligence which I should think to be deserving of attention, and I shall not neglect any opportunity of doing it. I suppose he gives you accounts of the ideas with which I have furnished him, and at the same time of my earnestness, and that of my house, under the firm of Monneca, Fizeaux & Co., to serve you in every case where you shall honour us with your orders.

I speak and understand English; but I do not write it well enough to venture to correspond with you in that language, and I am persuaded you will comprehend me better in French.

I shall esteem myself happy if I can give you proofs of my zeal, and merit your confidence. If you do me the honour to write to me particularly, my address is, To Sir George Grand, under cover to my house.

I am, with most profound respect, gentlemen, your most humble and most obedient servant,

GRAND.

I send this letter to the owner of a vessel, the Fair Judith, Captain Mathys Hanssen, who sails to-morrow for St. Eustatia, enclosed in a box, to Mr. Van Bibber, from whom he has promised to furnish me with a receipt at his arrival.

To the Secret Committee, &c.

WILLIE JONES TO COLONEL WALKER.

Halifax, N. C., November 12th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I send you herewith some papers from Mr. Galphin, relative to Indian affairs. It appears from them that he has had much difficulty to keep the Creeks quiet hitherto; and it still remains a doubt whether his labours will not prove fruitless at last. Should the Virginians meet with success against the Overhill Cherokees, it may possibly have a proper effect on the Creeks.

Mr. Galphin seems to think it necessary to hold another Congress with these last in the spring. This might answer very well if a supply of goods, sufficient for presents, could be obtained. You will be pleased to forward Mr. Galphin's letter to Congress, that they may see his sentiments on the subject.

I believe I shall resign as Commissioner for Indian affairs, as I have recollected a man who lives two hundred miles nearer to the seat of business than I do, who is very well qualified for that purpose.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

WILLIE JONES.

To Colonel Walker.

---

GEORGE GALPHIN TO WILLIE JONES.

Silver-Bluff, October 26, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I take this opportunity by Captan Alston to acquaint you how our affairs stand here with the Indians. I never had an opportunity to write you since you left Augusta till now. I have been obliged to go four times to Ogeechy since the Congress, to meet Indians there, for they durst not come through the settlements. I am just returned from there. The villains that run off from Georgia tell the Indians so many lies, and our enemies at Pensacola, it distracts them. They were, it is said, very near raising an army to go and cut off the Creeks. They sent down to me to know if it was true. I told the fellows it was all a lie, and they must pay no regard to what our enemies told them, and keep to the talk they had at Augusta.

The people upon the ceded land have killed another Creek since you went away, and say they will kill them wherever they meet them.

Enclosed is a petition and a letter of Doctor Wills. He got all the people in the ceded land of no property to sign it, but it was taken no notice of. If he could get people enough to have joined him the time of the Congress, I was told by a man that was in the plot to have seized all the ammunition, and to have fell upon the Indians and killed them, and declared war with them.

As I could get no white man that would venture himself up to the Creeks with a talk, I keep three or four Indians at my cowpen over Ogeechy, to go up with talks, but I was told some of the people upon the ceded land said they would come down and kill them, for they wanted war. I was obliged to send them home, so you must think I have a hard task to keep the Creeks our friends, when both our enemies and the people that should be our friends want us to be at war with them. Our enemies have plenty of ammunition and every thing else to give them, and we have nothing to give them. They have every temptation to break with us, and yet I think I could keep them peaceable, if it was not for the people upon the ceded land. I think I have settled the killing this last Indian with them, but if they kill any more I do not know how to settle it, but I have sent them word not to come over the Ockones till times is better.

The first talk Stuart sent up for the Creeks to go down to Pensacola, they would not go, for they said he and his beloved men told them nothing but lies, for they brought fifty horse-loads of ammunition in to the Creeks, which they said was to be given to them, and they sent it off to the Cherokees. But he sent again and got the trader in his interest and gave some of the headmen presents before they went down. So I suppose there will four or five hundred go, men and women. I have sent a fellow there, that is to come down as soon as he returns, to acquaint me with all that passes there; got down by this time, I suppose. In about three weeks they will be returned home. Their temptations is so great from that quarter few white men would stand out so well as they do, for the Commissary and Brown gives every fellow ammunition that asks for it.

When the Cherokees broke out with us I knew they would send to the Creeks to join them. I went out to Ogechy, and sent off a fellow with a talk to the headmen not to join them. I sent a long talk, too tedious to mention; but it had the desired effect, for there had one of the headmen of the Cherokees got into the Creeks some days before my messenger, and had prevailed upon a hundred and odd of the young fellows to go with him. They were got a day's march from the town, when the fellow I sent up as soon as he delivered the talk I sent by him to the headmen, they sent runners after them and called them all back again. Just as I got home Captain Williamson, that commanded our army in the Cherokees, wrote me of the Cherokees sending to the Creeks for assistance, and to send off to the Creeks if possible to stop them; but had done that before I received his. He has done every thing in his power in the Cherokees. He has destroyed all their corn, and burned their towns, and marched to the Middle Settlements, where he met the North-Carolina army. Between them they destroyed all the Middle Settlements. If the Virginia army against the Overhills has done their part as well, the Cherokees has paid dear for their breaking out with us.

When Colonel Williamson went to the Middle Settlements he sent word to the Georgians to go and destroy a little town, called Chate, that was in Georgia. About eighty gunmen lived in it. About the same time I had intelligence of Brown setting off from the Creeks with fifty horse-loads of ammunition for the Cherokees. I wrote McRae to send an express to Captain Marberry, to get a party of men to intercept it; but just about that time they had killed the Creek fellow, and Marberry could not get one of these people to go with him that wants to declare war against the Creeks—I may say Chickasaws and Choctaws, that is fifteen thousand men, for they have all made peace. Nor would not go to destroy that little town Chite. Captain Williamson upon his return from the Middle Settlements was obliged to go and destroy it himself. These people that want a Creek war so much now, when the people would run away they would get a great deal of plunder, and afterwards they would run off as they always do at every little alarm in the summer. Brown and two more white men got about two hundred of the disaffected Indians in the Upper towns to come with them against the frontiers. When they came to the Lower towns, they thought to get more there to join them; but the Lower towns' people told them they could not think of going against their friends that had given them such good talk the other day, and desired they might return home again. The young warriors and some others of the headmen told them if they did not, as soon as they raised white people down here they would go to Pensacola and raise white people there, and give them war upon every quarter. And they turned them all back again. If we can but keep them peaceable till the spring, and the gentlemen of the Continental Congress enable us to hold another congress with them in May or April next, I hope we should be able to frustrate the designs of our enemies. We are now just like a parcel of carpenters set to work to build a house without one single tool.

I received a letter the other day from the gentlemen of Congress in Savannah, informing me it was the desire of the gentlemen of the Continental Congress for either McRae or me to carry some of the principal men of the Creeks to Philadelphia; but it is not possible to carry any at this time of the year; but in case we could hold a congress with them in the spring we might carry some of them, and perhaps our offers there would be better then they are at present.

Please to forward what intelligence I have sent you to Mr. Walker, and remember me kindly to him. I should be glad to see you both here in the spring; but we should have our congress at Ogechey. I would be gald to hear from you both if any opportunity offered.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

GEORGE GALPHIN.

This letter imports that the villains who run away from Georgia endeavour to persuade the Creek Indians that the white people are preparing to make war upon them; that the enemy at the Floridas and British King's emmissaries are endeavouring to stir them up against us; that the people who are settled upon the ceded lands in Georgia are desirous of a war with the Creeks, and have killed some Indians, and threaten to kill them wherever they meet them; that this makes it dangerous for the Creeks to come through the settlements, which occasions a difficulty of communication. The writer gives as a reason the desire the people on the ceded land have for an Indian war, that they expect the neighbouring inhabitants would remove in haste and confusion and leave much of their effects behind them, which would fall into the hands of the ceded land settlers. It also imports that the Indians have great temptations to commence hostilities against us, because the enemy give them every thing, while we have nothing to give. That they nevertheless remain peaceable, and not only refused aid to the Cherokees, but threatened them if they persisted in assisting the enemy against us. That the writer is of opinion a congress of Indian commissioners and Indian chiefs should be held in April or May, in order to prevent an Indian war. That the numbers are fifteen thousand men, and that the writer has great difficulty in keeping them quiet. It also imports that the Congress at Savannah had recommended to bring some Indian chiefs to Congress; but that it was impracticable to do it in the winter season.

Ogechey, October 21st.

They say that one Killeresh came up to the Creeks, and told them there was an army coming up to cut off their nation and Pensacola; and William Oats came up shortly after, and confirmed it, and told them that the white people had wounded an Indian and took him into one of their forts and hanged him up and cut him to pieces; that some of the principal men of the Cussitaws was going down to Savannah, and when Oats got as far as the Buzzard-Roost, he told the Indians the army would be up shortly after him, by the full-moon, to cut them off; they, upon hearing this, sent off to the Cussitaws, to the headmen not to go down. Half-breed Tom Gray was at the Cussitaws, and it was told Brown, he brought up a talk from Savannah. Brown set off with a party of men to take him or kill him. When they came to the Cussitaws with their army, the Indians told them they did not understand their coming there in arms; they would not deliver Gray. He got off in the night, and is gone down. Brown, when they came away, could not walk; he had either a boil or an imposthume. It was as big as a man's fist; so it will be some time before he can leave the nation, and we do not believe any of the Lower towns Indians will go with him, except some of the Point people. No white man can leave the Indian country except he runs off. Brown has sent a white man called Savana Jack to the Upper towns, to see if the Indians will come, but we believe there will but few come, except some of the Savannahs. There is a great many of the Indians gone to Pensacola to get presents; and all the traders that is gone down there with their skins is to have twenty-five pounds sterling for every horse back to the nation, to be loaded with presents for the Indians that stay at home. Bailey, a trader that lived at Augusta, said, as soon as he returned from Pensacola he would come down upon the frontiers and carry off negroes and horses, and bring down Indians with him. When Tale and Brown was setting the Indians on to come to war against the white people in Georgia, the handsome fellow of the Oakfuskays said, if the Indians came here to spill white blood, he and his warriors would go to Pensacola and kill white people, and be at war with all the white people. Some made answer that Tale was a beloved man. He said who made him a beloved man? He is nothing but a wood-chopper—meaning he was a carpenter.

An Information of JOSEPH IRONMONGER, upon oath.

Ogechey, October 21st, 1776.

This is eleven days since he left the Lower Creeks, where he see Captain Brown, with about eighteen or twenty men that was with him and ahead of him, and that he heard Brown and some of his men say, that there was some of the Upper Creeks coming down to meet them on Augustine path, below the Lower Creeks. He expected to get some of Lower towns to go with him, but this deponent says he came off to alarm the settlements, so he does not know whether any of the Lower Creeks went off or not. Brown sent after him and catched him at Flint river, but that night he got away and laid two days in a swamp, and in six days got in here. He heard Brown and some of his people say they were going to meet an army from Augustine; and these white men that was with him, was mostly men run away from this Province, and was to pilot the army into the frontiers of Georgia, and drive all before them. He thinks it was at the river St. Mary they were to meet. He heard Brown and three other white men say that was in the battle in the Cherokees, one of the white men said he killed two Liberty men; that Brown returned before he got to the Cherokees, as he found the Indians was drove from their towns, and that it was talked in the nation, that there was a petition going about among the white people to sign, to declare war against the Creeks, and to cut them all off; and he met an Indian fellow and all his family, with his cattle and hogs, at the Oakmulgays, going to the nation. He lived several years at the Oakonies. He left his potatoes undone, and his corn in the corn-house. He asked the Indian what made him leave his place. He told him he had throwed it away. Brown was to meet the Army the latter end of next month. He says he heard one of the traders say that Mr. Stuart had sent up a talk to the Creeks to stay at home, and take care of their wives and children, for the white people from these parts was coming to war against them. He says he heard them three white men that came from the Cherokees say that they took two white men prisoners the day of the battle; one of them they delivered up to the Indians, and they put him to death, and the other got away from them. He heard in the Creeks, that General Lee and his Army was gone back to the northward, and that the King's troops had taken two places to the northward, and that he was sent for in a great hurry. He says he heard Brown say that the Army would be about two thousand or twenty-five hundred men that was to fall upon the frontiers of Georgia, and that Brown offered him two pounds sterling per month to go with him. He says he came in company with Brown from the Upper towns, and there was no Indians with him, and that he brought ten horse-loads of ammunition, which was part of the ammunition he was carrying to the Cherokees.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GOVERNOUR HENRY.

Philadelphia, November 12, 1776.

SIR: The Secret Committee of Congress having chartered and loaded in the State of Virginia the Aurora, on account of the Continent, and the voyage on which she is bound being a most important one, I have it in charge from Congress to request you will give all the assistance in your power to expedite her sailing, by issuing such orders as you shall judge proper for manning and despatching her with the greatest expedition.

I have the honour to be, with the utmost esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

His Excellency Governour Henry, Virginia.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON.

Philadelphia, November 12, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by Congress to transmit you the enclosed resolve, and to request your attention to it. The dangerous intercourse between our enemies in New-York and Staten-Island and the internal enemies of America in different parts of New-Jersey, calls for the immediate interposition of Government to suppress it. You will therefore be pleased, in conjunction with your Council and Assembly, to take such measures for this end as you shall judge most expedient.

I have the honour to be, with the utmost esteem, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

His Excellency Governour Livingston.

PETITION OF JAMES MCCONNAUGHY TO CONGRESS.

[Read in Congress 12th November, 1776: Referred to the Board of War.]

To the honourable the Continental Congress of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

The humble Petition of JAMES MCCONNAUGHY, most humbly showeth:

That your petitioner purchased from Captain William Keith a servant man named John Scollay, who had three years and six months to serve, but found means afterwards to make his escape, much to your petitioner's loss. Your petitioner having reposed too much confidence in him, (he is an artful fellow, and made himself tolerable well acquainted with the country, and a dangerous person to our present cause,) he inlisted in the Twenty-Sixth Regiment of Regulars, then in New-Jersey, was taken prisoner at St. John's, in Canada, and is now confined as a prisoner of war in the barracks at Lancaster. Your petitioner has been already at a considerable expense and loss of time in defence of American liberty. Therefore humbly prays your Honours will be pleased to grant him an order to obtain his servant again. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, will pray.

JAS. MCCONNAUGHY.

COLONEL THORNTON TO MESHECH WEARE.

Philadelphia, November 12, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: The 3d instant we arrived safe in this city, and the 8th inoculated for the small-pox. I have attended the Congress every day yet. The ferries over North River were so obstructed by the enemy, we were obliged to cross at a place called Peekskill, where I saw Colonel Tash, who used me exceeding well.

This day the Congress was informed by his Excellency General Washington that the enemy decamped from White-Plains, and were landing on the Jersey shore; and he was taking every precaution to prevent them from penetrating into the country.

By a letter from General Gates, dated the 31st of October, the enemy a few days before appeared in order of battle, and on his preparing to receive them, returned to their camp.

For better and further information and news, I must refer you to the newspapers, and you won't find more falsehood in them than is passing through this city. Before my arrival the Hon. Colonel Bartlett was sent off, and I had not the pleasure to meet him. The Hon. Colonel Whipple is well. Please to take the trouble to present my compliments to every member of the honourable Council and House, and accept the same from him who has the honour to be your most obedient, humble servant,

MATHEW THORNTON.

To the Hon. Meshech Weare, Esq.

N. B. No danger by this letter.

GENERAL GREENE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Fort Lee, November 12th, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 4th and 5th of this instant came duly to hand. You may depend upon my transmitting to Congress every piece of intelligence that comes to hand that is worthy their notice.

By one Justice Mercereau, a gentleman that fled from Staten-Island, I am informed that there are ten thousand troops embarked for South-Carolina, to be commanded by Lord Dunmore. This intelligence he obtained by a gentleman yesterday from the the city of New-York, a man of credit and truth. Mercereau is a very good friend to the cause, and a sensible man; and he says from several ways this account is confirmed. Perhaps the numbers are not so great as reported. Mercereau further informs that a large fleet are at the watering-place, on Long or Staten-Island, all ready to sail for England. It is reported the fleet consists of one hundred sail.

By several accounts of different people from the city, it appears our prisoners are in a very suffering situation. Humanity requires that something should be done for them. They have only half allowance of bread and water, but this I suppose is exaggerated.

The enemy at Dobbs's Ferry, where they have lain for several days past, decamped this morning, at nine o'clock, and took the road towards King's Bridge. They made an appearance at the ferry as if they intended to cross the river. I believe they are disappointed in their expectations, and at a loss what measures to pursue.

We have had several skirmishes with the Hessians on York-Island, within a few days; killed and wounded, between thirty and forty privates and one officer. Day before yesterday our people had an interview with the Hessians; they acknowledged they were greatly imposed upon by their Prince, and promised to desert that night, but none came over.

A considerable part of the troops on the other side are coming over into the Jerseys, and his Excellency General Washington with them. I expect General Howe will attempt to possess himself of Mount Washington, but very much doubt whether he will succeed in the attempt. Our troops are much fatigued with the amazing duty, but are generally in good spirits. The Hessians say they are on half allowance. The Light-Horse are said to be perishing for want of provender.

I have the honour to be your most obedient and very humble servant,

NATHANAEL GREENE.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, at Philadelphia.

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp at Phillipsburg, November ye 12th, nine o'clock, P. M.

DEAR GENERAL: This instant came express from Colonel Tupper, (stationed opposite to Dobbs's Ferry,) one David Keech. The substance of his intelligence is as follows: That the enemy began their march at nine this morning, down the river, with their baggage, artillery, &c., &c.; that the man-of-war and two store-ships had just set sail, and were making down—I mean those which came up last. The three ships still lie off Tarrytown and Sing-Sing—two at the former, one at the latter. Keech says the whole Army have quitted Dobbs's Ferry, and imagines the rear have by this time reached King's Bridge.

I am far from being satisfied with the conduct of our scouts. I do not think they venture far enough, for they in general bring back very lame, imperfect accounts. But I have projected a plan for breaking in, at least, upon Rogers's party, and believe I shall succeed.

The sentence on Austin is, that he should be reprimanded; but I have ordered a new Court-Martial, with a charge of wanton, barbarous conduct, unbecoming not only an officer, but a human creature.

General Lincoln and the Massachusetts Committee are using their efforts to detain the Militia. Whether they succeed, Heaven only knows. Hitchcock and Varnum do not recollect the recommendation of General Greene; but I have ordered 'em to give me a list of those whom they think ought to be recommended; for it is now too late to refer to Greene, as the Commissioners are expected every hour.

I wish to God you were here, as I am, in a manner, a stranger to their respective merits. When the list is made out, I shall inform myself, (as well as I can,) if their recommendation is impartial, and proceed accordingly.

I am, dear General, yours, most sincerely,

CHARLES LEE.

To his Excellency General Washington.

---

COLONEL HASLET TO GENERAL RODNEY.

November 12, 1776.

I received his Excellency's orders to take possession of the hill [Chatterton's Hill] beyond our lines, and the command of the Militia regiments there posted; which was done. We had not been many minutes on the ground, when the cannonade began, and the second shot wounded a militia-man in the thigh, upon which the whole regiment broke and fled immediately, and were not rallied without much difficulty. Soon after General McDougall's brigade took post behind us. Some of our officers expressed much apprehension from the fire of our friends so posted. On my application to the General, he ordered us to the right, formed his own brigade on the left, and ordered Brooks's Massachusetts Militia still farther to the right, behind a stone fence.

The troops being thus disposed, I went up to the top of the hill, in front of our troops, accompanied by Major McDonough, to reconnoitre the enemy. I plainly perceived them marching to the White-Plain, in eight columns, and stop in the wheat-fields a considerable time. I saw their General Officers on horseback assemble in council, and soon their whole body face about, and in one continued column, march to the hill opposite to our right. I then applied to General McDougall again to vary his disposition, and advised him to order my regiment farther onward, and replace it with Colonel Smallwood's, or order the Colonel forward, for there was no dependence to be placed on the Militia. The latter measure was adopted. On my seeing the enemy's march to the creek begin in a column of their main body, and urging the necessity of bringing our field-pieces immediately forward to bear upon them, the General ordered one, and that so poorly appointed, that myself was forced to assist in dragging it along the rear of the regiment. While so employed, a cannon-ball struck the carriage, and scattered the shot about, a wad of tow blazing in the middle. The artillerymen fled. One alone was prevailed upon to tread out the blaze and collect the shot. The few that returned made not more than two discharges, when they retreated with the field-piece. At this time the Maryland battalion was warmly engaged, and the enemy ascending the hill. The cannonade from twelve or fifteen pieces, well served, kept up a continual peal of reiterated thunder. The Militia regiment behind the fence fled in confusion, without more than a random, scattering fire. Colonel Smallwood in a quarter of an hour afterwards, gave way also. The rest of General McDougall's brigade never came up to the scene of action. Part of the first three Delaware companies also retreated in disorder, but not till after several were wounded and killed. The left of the regiment took post behind a fence on the top of the hill with most of the officers, and twice repulsed the Light Troops and Horse of the enemy; but seeing ourselves deserted on all hands, and the continued column of the enemy advancing, we also retired. Covering the retreat of our party, and forming at the foot of the hill, we marched into camp in the rear of the body sent to reinforce us.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL.

At a General Court-Martial held by order of Major-General Lee, for the trial of Major Austin, Philipsburg, November 12, 1776, Colonel Hitchcock, President.

Members:

|---|---|
| Colonel Read, | Captain Ledyard, |
| Colonel Webb, | Captain Olney, |
| Lieut. Colonel Nixon, | Captain Ball, |
| Lieut. Colonel Wesson, | Captain Bond, |
| Major Angel, | Captain Pelton, |
| Major Brooks, | Captain Jones. |

Captain Andrew Peters, Judge Advocate pro tem.

The Court proceeded to the trial of Major Austin, who was ordered in arrest by the General, charged with wanton, cruel, barbarous treatment of helpless women and children, not only unworthy the character of an officer, but of a human creature.

The prisoner being arraigned before the Court, and demanded whether he was guilty or not guilty of the charge alleged against him, he pleads, Not guilty.

Mrs. Adams being sworn, says, that on the night of the 5th instant, there came a party of men into her house on White-Plains, and immediately set the house on fire. When she went out of the house, some of the men began to carry things out of the house, when she asked them why they took those things. Then Major Austin spake, and told her he should carry them to the General's, and alleged General Sullivan's orders for it. That her sister took Major Austin by the arm crying, and he said to her, What the devil do you take me by the arm for? Because, said she, you are an officer, and can prevent such treatment. Then her mother told Major Austin she hoped he would not burn her house too; on which he told her there was another house above that she might go into; after which Major Austin told his men to go and set the other houses on fire as quick as they could. Mrs. Adams further says, that when they first came to the house, they told her to get her things out of the house as quick as possible; that she attempted to take some things out of a bed-room, when some of the men told her to be gone or they would blow her through; that the party would not suffer her to dress her children, but drove them out of doors naked; that she asked Major Austin why he could not save her house, and burn the others; he replied, Because you are all damned Tories, and there was a damned Tory taken out of your house this night. That after some of her things were carried out of doors, some of the men insulted her with ill language, (in the presence of Major Austin,) such as damned Tories, &c., threatening to blow her through.

Elisha Dunham being sworn, says that on the night of the 5th instant he was on guard, and stood as sentinel at the time the houses were burning, which was at about one hundred rods distance from him; that he heard the crying of women and children as he thought.

William Harrop being sworn, agrees with Elisha Dunham.

The Court then adjourned till nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

November 13th.

The Court met according to adjournment.

Sergeant Churchill being sworn, says, on the night of the 5th instant, that he had been on a scouting party with Major Austin, and on their return the Major ordered him back with five men to the houses which they burnt, and told him to take good care of whatever things he got; to keep them safe, and bring them off to his markee; that when he came to the house, he asked Mrs. Adams what time of night it was; he then asked her for a candle, &c., and told her he must burn the house, and they must get their things and children out of the house, but told them not to be frighted, for he should not hurt them; and before the house was set on fire, he and his party did carry some of the things out of the house, such as bedding, wheat, &c.; that Major Austin told the women they might go to a red house near by, and if they would, his men should carry their things for them; that he heard no ill language towards the women from any of the party, neither in the house or out of doors, during the whole time they were there; that the women cried and seemed to be in great distress, but he told them they should not be hurt.

Tilley How being sworn, says, when they came to Mrs. Adams's house, they asked the people what time of night it was, and asked them for a candle, and told them they must burn the house; that he immediately went to carrying things out of the house; that he waited for the aged woman to get up and dress herself; he then took both feather bed and straw bed on which she lay, and carried them out of doors; that he laid down the straw bed and the feather bed upon it, and told her to lie down on it; that he assisted in carrying things out for about half an hour, as near as he could judge, before the house was set on fire, and then a straw bed was set on fire in the house by some of the men; that during the whole affair he heard no abusive language from any of the party towards the women or children; that a girl seized Major Austin by the arm crying, and held him fast; the Major asked her what the devil she held him by the arm for; she replied, you are an officer and can prevent the house being burnt; the Major then replied he could do nothing as long as she held him by the arm, but if she would let him go, he would set his men to carry her things to another house and make a fire for them. Further says, that what things were tied up in two blankets were carried to the Major's markee, and all the rest were left with the women; that the house the aged woman desired her things might be carried to was on fire when the Major first came to Mrs. Adams's house.

James Linzer being sworn, agrees with the two last witnesses.

Captain Keith being sworn, says he was present with Major Austin through the whole of the time the houses were burning on the night of the 5th instant, and agrees with Sergeant Churchill and Tilley How.

The question being asked Major Austin, whether he had any orders for burning said houses, he confessed he had no orders for it, but alleged as an excuse his being in company with some of the General Officers just before the houses were burnt on the Plains, and heard General Putnam say he thought it would be best to burn all the houses, &c., and finding there was houses burnt on the Plains soon after, he thought it his duty to burn the said houses as he did.

The Court having considered the case of the prisoner, Major Austin, are of opinion that he is guilty of a breach of the twenty-first article in the fourteenth section of the rules for the government of the Forces of the United States of America, and therefore sentence him to be discharged from the service.

Attest: DAN. HITCHCOCK, President.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

Peekskill, November 12th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you will receive a copy of sundry resolutions of Congress, which came to hand since I left the Plains. They will discover to you their opinion as to the necessity of taking the most early measures to levy the new Army. The resolves cannot have any operation but in the instance of the Rhode-Island regiments, Commissioners having come from the States of Massachusetts and Connecticut, and being on the way from Maryland. They will be superseded, too, if any have arrived from Rhode-Island; therefore the resolutions are under that condition.

As it is of the last importance that the recruiting service should be begun, I must request, if the Commissioners are not arrived from Rhode-Island, that you will call upon Colonel Hitchcock, who will inform you of the officers recommended to that State by General Greene, &c., and give orders to them to begin their inlistments immediately, on the terms and conditions allowed by Congress. Such of them as agree to stay, and will undertake the business, will be commissioned according to the rank assigned 'em in that recommendation. I have not got it by me, having sent it away with my papers before I came from Harlem.

In respect to the Militia, you will try your influence to get them to remain; perhaps the requisition from Congress for that purpose may have some effect, though I have but little expectation that it will.

The enclosed letter for Colonel Darby you will please to send in by the first flag.

I cannot conclude without reminding you of the military and other stores about your encampment and at North-Castle, and to press the removal of them above Croton Bridge, or such other places of security as you may judge proper. General Howe having sent no part of his force to Jersey yet, makes the measure more necessary, as he may perhaps turn his views another way, and attempt their destruction.

I have directed Colonel Putnam to examine the passes in the Highlands eastward of this place, and to lay out such works as may be necessary to secure 'em. When you remove your present encampment, you will assign such a number of men to the several posts as you shall deem sufficient for their defence.

I hope the trial of Major Austin for burning the houses will not be forgot; publick justice requires that it should be brought on as soon as it can.

I am, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Lee.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

SIR: The uncertainty with respect to the designs of the enemy renders any disposition of our Army at this time a little unsettled; but, for the present, your division, with such troops as are now at Forts Constitution, Montgomery, and Independence, are to be under your command, and remain in this quarter for the security of the above posts and the passes through the Highlands from this place, and the one on the west side of Hudson's river. Colonel Tash's regiment is meant to be included in this command.

Unnecessary it is for me to say any thing to evince the importance of securing the land and water communication through these passes, or to prove the indispensable necessity of using every exertion in your power to have such works erected for the defence of them as your own judgment, assisted by that of your Brigadiers and the Engineers, may show the expediency of.

To form an accurate judgment of the proper places to fortify, in order effectually to secure the two land passes above-mentioned through the Highlands, requires a considerable degree of attention and knowledge of the roads and ways leading through the hills. These you must get from information and observation, as my stay here will not allow me to give any direction on this head with precision. You will not only keep in view the importance of securing these passes, but the necessity of doing it without delay, not only from the probability of the enemy's attempting to seize them, but from the advanced season, which will not admit of any spade-work after the frost (which may be daily expected) sets in. Lose not a moment's time therefore, in choosing the grounds on the east and west side of the river, on which your intended works are to be erected. Let your men designed for each post be speedily allotted, and by your presence and otherwise do every thing to stimulate the officers (respectively commanding at each) to exert themselves in forwarding them.

The cheapest kind of barracks must be erected, contiguous to these places, where no covering now is for the men. These may, I should think, be built of logs, and made warm at very little cost. In apportioning your men to the different posts (those to be established as well as those already fixed on the river) I advise your keeping the corps as much as possible together, and also desire that in this allotment you will consult your officers and such gentlemen as have it in their power (from their superiour knowledge of the country) to afford you good advice.

Independent of the barracks which may be found necessary for the men at the posts before-mentioned, I should think others ought to be built at such places in this neighbourhood as the Quartermaster-General and Engineer shall point out, as this must, from the nature of it, be considered in an important point of view, and as well adapted for winter quarters for part of the Army as any other place can be. If, contrary to the generally-received opinion, General Howe's remove to Dobbs's Ferry was only intended as a feint, to draw off part of our force from the place which we last occupied, and should make an attempt upon General Lee, you are to give him all the aid you can, taking care at the same time to keep guards in the posts and passes you occupy.

For the speedy and regular punishment of offences, you are hereby authorized and empowered, whilst you remain in a separate camp, to hold General Court-Martials, and carry the judgments of them into execution, in all cases whatsoever.

Be particularly careful of all intrenching tools, tents, (seeing that the bottoms of them are not covered with dirt,) and, above all, take care that no discharged soldiers are suffered to carry away any of the publick arms or accoutrements. Apply to the Commissary of stores for a list of those things furnished to the respective Colonels of Regiments, and see that they account for them before the men are dismissed. In like manner should every thing had of the Quartermaster-General be delivered up.

Keep persons employed in making of cartridges, and be particularly attentive that the stores are taken care of, and the powder kept from receiving damage; also prevent the soldiery from committing any kind of waste and injuries to private or publick property.

The men who composed the detachment under Colonel Lasher are all to join their respective corps.

Given at Head-Quarters, at Peekskill, this 12th day of November, 1776.

Go. Washington.

To Major-General Heath.

ORANGE COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Orange County, November 12th, 1776.

The Supervisors of the County of Orange, at their meeting, do find it necessary that something should be done in order to have the contingent charges of said County settled; and as some difficulties might arise from the former mode, have concluded to submit it to the opinion of the honourable Convention of the State of New-York, for numbers of poor people depend on it for the support of their families. The Supervisors beg the opinion on the same from the honourable House, for which they shall be ever in duty bound.

Tho's Outwater, Clerk.

To the Honourable the Convention of the State of New-York at the Fishkills.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON.

Peekskill, 12th November, 1776.

Dear Sir: Yours of the 9th did not get to hand till this day. Your remarks I think very judicious. I shall communicate them to Mr. Duer, who has a full opportunity of talking the matter over with the General.

I shall refer you to him for our various opinions of the intended operations of the enemy. You will hear them with more satisfaction through him than from, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

Tench Tilghman.

Robert R. Livingston, Esq.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, November 12, 1776.

Dear General: Our affairs below are in a perplexing situation. The enemy have collected their force at Dobbs's Ferry; brought up more ships above Fort Washington, and all their boats. It is imagined they either will attempt to penetrate into New-Jersey, or to make a push to get up Hudson's River: the latter is believed to be their intention. We have not batteaus or any craft to convey our troops from one side of the river to the other. A demand has been made on me, and I shall this day send all I have here. You will not want for flour, for I shall immediately build others.

From the accounts just received from Tryon County, it is probable we shall be attacked in that quarter also. You will, therefore, without any delay, send down such of the Jersey and Pennsylvania battalions whose term of inlistment is expired. These to be sent down the country to assist in opposing the enemy.

I have the fullest confidence that on this alarming occasion the soldiers will most cheerfully continue in the service a few weeks longer, and save their country. Let them come by the way of Fort George; I shall have sloops in readiness here to convey them down to the Highlands. You will also detach one regiment at least (more if they can prudently be spared) to meet the enemy in Tryon County.

Colonel Lewis goes off this instant to convey fifty batteaus out of Lake George into Hudson's river. You will therefore cause more batteaus to be brought into that lake. General St. Clair or General Maxwell to march with the regiments destined for the southward.

I am, dear General, your most obedient, humble servant,

Ph. Schuyler.

General Gates.

GENERAL SCHUYLER'S ORDERS TO COLONEL DEROUSSIE.

Head-Quarters, Albany, November 12th, 1776.

Sir: You will immediately man as many batteaus as are at this post, with such of the Canadian corps as are now in town, and proceed with them without a moment's delay to Fishkill. Upon your arrival at that place you will instantly wait on the President of the Convention of this State and conform to his directions as to your further procedure.

By order of the General:

John Lansing, Jun., A. Sec'y.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Deroussie.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO CAPTAIN WHIPPLE.

Newport, November 12th, 1776.

Sir: Captain Bowden has waited on me here, and says that he is innocent of seducing the people to retake the ship, and I think it would be hard to censure a man for a few dirty fellows that we know to be villains. You therefore have my consent that you give him an order on Mr. Langdon for so much of his adventure as you shall think proper, and I will ratify the same as though I had done it myself.

I am, sir, your humble servant, ESEK HOPKINS.

To Abraham Whipple, Esq., Commander of the ship Providence.

---

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO JOHN BRADFORD.

Newport, November 12th, 1776.

SIR: Captain John Plants, who was a passenger in the Royal Exchange, has two hogsheads of rum on board this brig, Lord Lifford, under your care, and as he will want a sufficiency to bear his charges while here, should be glad you will deliver him the two hogsheads of rum, and it will be agreeable to the officers and men belonging to the fleet, and I make no doubt but it will be agreeable to the Congress.

I am, sir, your humble servant, ESEK HOPKINS.

To John Bradford, Esq., Agent for the Continental Fleet in the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

CAPTAIN J. PAUL JONES TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Alfred, 12th November, 1776,
Off the Coast of Cape Breton.

GENTLEMEN: I had the honour of writing to you from Rhode-Island 30th ultimo, with an account of my late cruise, and copies of my letters down to the 30th of September. I sailed from thence first current, and have met with contrary winds and strong weather for some time past. I have not, however, met with any material disaster. I took the brigantine Active last night, from Liverpool for Halifax, with an assorted cargo on private account, and this morning I fell in with and took the ship Mellish, of three hundred and fifty tons, from London for Quebeck, with a cargo consisting entirely of clothing. This prize is, I believe, the most valuable ship that hath been taken by the American arms. She made some defence, but it was trifling. The Active, by the best accounts I can learn, was worth six thousand pounds sterling when she left England. I found sixty men, women and children on board the Mellish, several of whom are persons of distinction. I have taken them all on board here, and shall now endeavour all I possibly can to effect the principal part of my duty and relieve our ill-treated fellow-citizens at Cape Breton. The loss of the Mellish will distress the enemy more than can be easily imagined, as the clothing on board of her is the last intended to be sent out for Canada this season, and all that hath preceded it is already taken. The situation of Burgoyne's army must soon become insupportable. I will not lose sight of a prize of such importance, but will sink her rather than suffer her to fall again into their hands. I send the Active into port, and she conveys this. There are among the prisoners forty seamen and soldiers, with their officers.

I am, with much esteem and respect, gentlemen, your much obliged, very obedient, and most humble servant,

J. P. JONES.

The Honourable Marine Committee, Philadelphia.

---

CAPTAIN JONES TO LIEUTENANT SPOONER.

Alfred, 12th November, 1776,
Off the Coast of Cape Breton.

SIR: You are hereby appointed commander of our prize the brigantine Active, from Liverpool for Halifax. You are directed to proceed with all possible despatch for the State of North-Carolina, and to deliver your charge (the brigantine Active with my letters) unto Robert Smith, Esq., the agent at Edenton. I request you to be very careful to keep a good look-out to prevent your being surprised or retaken; and you must by no means break bulk, or destroy any part of the cargo or stores except what may be absolutely necessary for your subsistence during the passage. If you find it impossible to reach and get into North-Carolina, you are at liberty to go into any other of the United States of North America. I wish you a safe and speedy passage, and am, sir, your most obedient, very humble servant,

JOHN PAUL JONES.

To Mr. Walter Spooner, Lieutenant of the ship-of-war the Alfred, and Commander of the Alfred's prize the brigantine Active.

N. B. When off the bar of Ockricock you are to hoist a jack or ensign on the under part of your jib-boom as a signal for a pilot, and hoist your ensign union down.

---

CAPTAIN JONES TO ROBERT SMITH.

Alfred, off the Coast of Cape Breton,
12th November, 1776.

SIR: I am happy in this opportunity of acknowledging the great obligation I owe to Mr. Hewes, by addressing my prize, the brigantine Active, to you. I have seen and do esteem yourself; but I knew your brother James well, when I was myself a son of fortune. You will perhaps hear from me again in a short time. Meanwhile you may promulgate that I have taken the last transport with clothing for Canada; no other will come out this season, and all that have been sent before her are taken. This will make Burgoyne "shake a cloth in the wind," and check his progress on the lakes. I have taken a private adventure of Captain Foxe's (in slops) for the use of my seamen, and should he be allowed his private trade, you will please to give him any credit he may occasionally want under fifty pounds sterling, till I write you more particularly on the subject.

I have the honour to be, with much esteem, sir, your most obedient, very humble servant,

JOHN PAUL JONES.

To Robert Smith, Esq., agent for the State of North-Carolina.

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Eustatia, 13th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have this day drawn on you in favour of Mr. John Parrott, for four hundred dollars, for which draft we received specie from him, and flatter ourselves it will be duly honoured. We can assure you Mr. Parrott's cash came very opportunely to our assistance, having more engagements on account of the publick now due than we can conveniently pay.

We are, with much esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

P. S. No mention was made by either of us whether hard specie was to be paid in Maryland or not, but hope you will satisfy the bearer of the bill. V. B. & H.

---

THOMAS SMYTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Annapolis, November 13th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your not getting here this morning before I leave town prevents me from having the pleasure of seeing you.

The sooner you send the salt for curing the one hundred barrels of beef, which you have empowered me to purchase, the better, or the best beef will all be sold; and at the same time it will be necessary to send me about £250.

Permit me to remind your Honours of the application of Mr. Alexander Murray, for the command of the Province schooner now at Mr. Steuart's yard. Should you favour him with the appointment, his brother, Doctor Murray, will immediately inform him thereof; and

I am, with much respect, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

THOMAS SMYTH.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

BENJAMIN RUMSEY TO DANIEL OF ST. THOMAS JENIFER.

Philadelphia, 13th November, 1776.

SIR: Congress have this day given an answer to the resolutions of our State, which being an entire new one, we have despatched to the proper place to be considered. They resolve that the troops may be inlisted for three years, and a bounty of twenty dollars only to be given; or during the war, and one hundred acres of land be added to the bounty. They will not specify where the land lies belonging to the United States.

Our instructions run that they are to be inlisted during the war; of course when our State accedes to it we can proceed. Congress has got rid of the difficulty with respect to the land, and has not closed in with either of the propositions made by our State, nor receded entirely from their own resolution. But if they have escaped, they embarrass us. What can we do with our Regulars? They are inlisted during the war. Must we inlist them again in the service of the State for three years? I imagine our State will not incline to do so; if they do, we ought to have instructions on that head.

King brought only one of the bundles of commissions up; there are not more than enough for four battalions. There are five of the Flying-Camp and two of the Regulars. The German and Rifle companies will make the eighth. Surely, then, you have not sent commissions enough.

I should be obliged to you to send up a copy also of the resolves of Congress relative to the raising the eighty-eight battalions, as we have not got it, and would be as little troublesome as possible to the Congress.

Four thousand of our troops, under General Putnam, have crossed the North River to reinforce General Greene, who has six thousand under his command, to prevent the enemy plundering the Jerseys or penetrating to this place, and I suppose they will be followed by a more considerable number if the enemy pass that river.

Very little of the transactions of Convention have transpired here. You are exceedingly concise on that head. You tell me they are still engaged about the Constitution. I should naturally have concluded they were so. But pray what sort of a Constitution have they framed? How far monarchical, aristocratick, or democratick? how far a mixture? how balanced each power? It is a matter of great importance to a subject of a State that power should be well and equally balanced.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

BENJAMIN RUMSEY.

The Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., Annapolis.

If we stay here much longer the Flying-Camp will come near us, or to us.

BENJAMIN RUMSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 13th, 1776.

SIR: A man who has contracted to furnish Mr. Green, on account of our State, with forty reams of paper, called on me the other day and informed me that they were ready; that Mr. Green had directed him to send them down by water; but reflecting on the orders given by the members of Congress from our State not to hazard a former quantity by water, he was apprehensive that he should do wrong to risk them now, a thought which did not strike him till after the departure of Mr. Green, and that he would on notice send them by wagon. I forgot in my two former despatches to mention it, but informed him he would receive a line from our State relative to it.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

BENJAMIN RUMSEY.

To the Honourable Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esq., Annapolis.

One hundred sail of transports, under sufficient convoy, have sailed from New-York to the southward.

PETITION OF THOMAS LOWRY.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress:

Mr. Wharton and myself being appointed by Colonel Joseph Trumbull, Commissary-General, to purchase and cure beef and pork in the States of New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland, in consequence of which we have purchased a large number of cattle, which are now on hand and must be killed immediately, as there is no pasture for them. Having applied to the Council of Safety of this State for salt for curing the same, they have referred us to Congress for orders to them what proportion of salt, that is already imported, or may be imported, be delivered us for that purpose. As this is the most suitable time for procuring and salting both beef and pork, which, if now neglected, the Army must suffer, therefore request an answer as soon as convenient.

I am, in behalf of Mr. Carpenter Wharton and self, your Honours' most obedient, humble servant,

THOS. LOWRY.

Philadelphia, November 13, 1776.

ADDRESS OF THE GRAND JURY OF BURLINGTON COUNTY, NEW-JERSEY.

To the Honourable SAMUEL TUCKER, Esq., one of the Judges of the Supreme Court for the State of NEW-JERSEY:

The Address of the Grand Jury of the County of BURLINGTON, in the said State:

Having for some time past witnessed an interruption of the free enjoyment of our civil liberties by the hand of British tyranny and usurpation, the Grand Jury for the County of Burlington cannot forbear expressing their unfeigned satisfaction at the opening of the Supreme Court of the State of New-Jersey. The Constitution, as lately formed by the honourable Convention of this State, gives us the utmost satisfaction, and, as we believe, the County we represent. We flatter ourselves that, in due season, under the Divine protection, we shall be enabled to baffle the designs of our cruel enemy, and reap the benefits thereof. Conscious, however, of the goodness of our cause, and the rectitude of our intentions, the Grand Jury for the County of Burlington are determined to do their part for the support and relief of their much-injured country.

We congratulate you, sir, on your appointment as one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of this State. We have no doubt of your integrity and assiduity, and can only wish your country had called you to so important an office in times less perilous and dangerous. But, sir, let the peril and difficulty of the times be a criterion to distinguish who are real friends to their country and who are not.

Signed by order of the Grand Jury:

W. POTTS, Foreman.

November 13, 1776.

---

ANSWER OF JUDGE TUCKER.

GENTLEMEN: I most cordially thank you for your address. Your firmness in the cause of freedom is very agreeable to me, and am happy to find the Grand Jury for the opulent County of Burlington are determined to support their rights as freemen under our new and happy Constitution, in which they may rely on every assistance in my power.

Your good opinion of me affords me sensible pleasure, and hope my future conduct will be such as will meet with the approbation of every freeman in the State of New-Jersey.

SAMUEL TUCKER.

RICHARD DALLAM TO RICHARD PETERS.

[Read 15th, 1776.]

New-Brunswick, November 13th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have just received your favour by return of my express, and in answer inform you that this morning received a letter from Fort Lee by express, to send up there forty thousand dollars immediately, and informing me that a large body of troops were sent over on this side the North River, who would be under the necessity of applying to me for their pay, which I shall not hesitate to do, though not properly under my department, unless forbid by Congress. The Flying-Camp men are for the most part on this side, and a brigade of Virginians, who inform me are in want of pay. Under these circumstances you will know the sum of fifty thousand dollars will be of but little use, and you will therefore order a much larger as soon as possible.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

RICHARD DALLAM, D. Q. M. Gen'l.

HUGH HUGHES TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

[November 13, 1776.]

Sir: By order of General Lee, I am to acquaint you that the enclosed return contains an account of stock brought from below the lines, which the General thought it his indispensable duty to have driven off, lest the enemy might avail themselves of so desirable an opportunity. He desires that you would please to communicate the affair to the Convention of this State in order that proper care may be taken of them.

I have sent this by the Lieutenant, who was a party to driving the cattle, that he might inform more particularly the situation, &c., of them.

I am, with the greatest respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

Hugh Hughes, Ass't Q. M. G.

To the Hon. President of Convention.

COUNCIL OF WAR, NOVEMBER 13TH, 1776.

At a Council of War held at Peekskill, November 13th, 1776, in order to consider the nature and situation of the grounds and different posts in the Highlands, and a proper disposition of the troops to each of them, present: Major-General Heath, Brigadier-Generals James Clinton, George Clinton, John M. Scott, Morriss, Colonel Putnam, Colonel Duer.

What number of troops will be necessary to secure the post on the west side of Hudson river?

The unanimous opinion that four hundred men be posted at or near Sidnum's Bridge, across the Ramerpough.

What number of troops are necessary for the post above Peekskill Landing?

The unanimous opinion that one brigade is necessary for the last-mentioned post.

What number of troops are necessary for the post to the northward of Peekskill Bridge? This post, and the post at the gorge of the mountains, are to be considered as involved in each other.

The unanimous opinion that the remaining troops of the division be posted at the last-mentioned post and their dependencies.

The unanimous opinion of Council that the troops for the west side of the river be taken from General Parsons's division, and that Colonel Huntington and Colonel Tyler's regiments be assigned accordingly.

The unanimous opinion of Council that General Clinton's brigade be posted on the height above Peekskill Landing, and that the three regiments of General Parsons's brigade, viz: Prescott's, Ward's, and Wyllys's, together with General Scott's brigade, take post at the gorge at the south entrance of the mountains.

That a quantity of drugs and medicines which are at the house of Doctor Hickford, be immediately secured.

GENERAL HEATH'S ORDERS TO COLONEL HUNTINGTON.

Sir: You will as soon as possible embark your own regiment and Colonel Tyler's, with their tents and baggage, (and also Captain Bryant's company of artillery,) on board the boats at Peekskill Landing, and proceed to Haverstraw, on the west side of Hudson's river. You are there to procure teams for your tents, baggage, &c., and march the regiments to the entrance of the Highlands, near Sidnum's Bridge, at Rampaaugh river, where you will encamp your men, and with all possible despatch, endeavour to get the troops covered, in the cheapest and best way that you can. I think that log-houses, if timber is plenty, will be best. You are also to turn your attention to the fortifying of the pass. Mr. Kechin, an engineer, will be sent to your assistance for that purpose. Your own good judgment and knowledge of discipline renders it needless for me to say any thing on that head, being confident that you will see that good order is kept. You will take particular care that as soon as the men get covering, the tents are collected and stored.

Given under my hand, at Peekskill, November 13th, 1776.

W. Heath.

To Colonel Huntington.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO ROBERT H. HARRISON.

Albany, November 13th, 1776, nine o'clock at night.

SIR: I am this moment favoured with yours of the 9th by Mr. Bennet. It gives me great pleasure to learn that General Howe encounters so many difficulties. I have great hopes that the sanguine expectations of our enemies will meet with disappointment.

I have sent ten or eleven batteaus to Fishkills, to be forwarded to the Army, which have probably arrived there this day. Six more of a larger size go to-morrow, and yesterday I despatched Colonel Lewis to Lake George to bring fifty from thence, and I leave this at four to-morrow morning to go and expedite them. As the enemy are certainly retired into Canada, I have ordered such of the Pennsylvania and Jersey regiments whose terms of inlistment are expired, from Tyonderoga. They will probably leave it to-morrow; and I make no doubt but that they will cheerfully continue to serve with his Excellency for some time. It is what I have requested of them. I hope these measures will meet with his Excellency's approbation. You will please to convey my best respects to him.

I am, sir, with esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To Robert H. Harrison, Esq., Secretary, &c.

---

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Albany, November 13, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Congress have resolved that Colonel Ogden should complete his regiment. He goes to Ticonderoga to try what men he can recruit there. I think every engine should be set at work in order to engage an Army. The money is daily expected here, and a supply will be sent you as soon as it arrives.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

Hon. General Gates.

ISAAC PARIS TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONVENTION.

Tryon County Committee-Chamber, November 13th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: It is lamentable that we have occasion to inform you that Captain John Winn stands charged with killing one of his men by a push with the muzzle of his gun into his belly. Having examined several witnesses, it seems to appear that he is guilty; in consequence whereof, we have thought proper to commit him to Johnstown jail, to the care of the commanding officer of that post. We therefore pray that you in your wisdom may, as soon as possible, give such directions in the premises as you think proper.

We are, gentlemen, with esteem and respect, your obedient, humble servant,

By order of the Committee: ISAAC PARIS, Ch'n.

To the honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, November 13th, 1776.

SIR: Your favours of the 6th, 7th, and 10th instant, are received, and am much obliged to your Excellency for the early notice given me in that of the 9th, of the supposed embarkation of about three thousand of the enemy, and of their destination.

Yours of the 7th, advising of the approaching dissolution of a large part of our Army is truly alarming, and that season drawing near am sensible will be most critical, and that every method possible ought to be taken in order in some good measure to supply the deficiency which must happen by their dismission: for which purpose, as well as for a reconsideration of the matters referred to in yours of the 10th, has induced me to call the Assembly of this State, to meet at Hartford on Tuesday next. The reasons you have therein given of the great inconvenience which may happen by adding to the wages of the soldiery to be raised in this State beyond the encouragements given by Congress are indeed obvious, and which effectually operated to prevent our Assembly taking such a step until the Committee of the Massachusetts passed New-Haven for the Army, and there gave out to sundry of our members that that State had given the additional encouragement of twenty shillings per month, and that New-Hampshire undoubtedly had done the same. That being the case, we were induced to resume the subject and make the addition, being sensible it would be impossible to raise our quota on terms inferiour to those given by our neighbouring States. Tho' we are apprehensive that it will be attended with much greater difficulty to recede from the additional encouragements than if they had never been given.

The earliest notice shall be given you of the resolutions of our Assembly.

Hope our Army may be established on a firm and united footing.

I am, with great esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JON'TH TRUMBULL.

General Washington.

THOMAS SWORDS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Preston, 13 November, 1776.

SIR: As I have not heard from Albany since I had the pleasure of seeing you, must acquaint you that my mind is much distressed not only on account of my present disagreeable situation, but also on account of my tender and numerous family, which I have not seen for near eight months, nor do I know what situation they are in. Duty and love calls me to them. If I can be permitted to go and see them shall return, upon the faith of a man of honour, according to the rules that may be prescribed, if not further enlarged by the Albany Committee. If this request can be granted, which I hope in God it will, shall most punctually adhere thereto. I am short of clothing for the ensuing season and several other necessaries, not to mention the distresses my family must labour under.

Doctor Downer has paid me the amount of your order, and now in want of a further supply, for which shall give an order on the Paymaster-General of his Britannick Majesty's forces at New-York, or any merchant in the city of Albany. I hope you will take it into consideration and make my case your own.

I am, sir, your most respectful, humble servant,

THOMAS SWORDS.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO CAPTAIN HINMAN.

Newport, November 13th, 1776.

SIR: You are to make all the despatch you can to get to Boston, and get the Cabot fitted for sailing as soon as possible, and get such provisions on board as will last three or four months, if to be had, and join me here as soon as possible. If I should be sailed before you get here, I shall leave directions here for you to follow, and where to join the fleet.

I am your friend and humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To Elisha Hinman, Esq., Commander of the Cabot.

---

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO JOHN BRADFORD.

Newport, November 13th, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Marine Committee to prosecute an expedition in which the Cabot is to be joined. These are therefore to desire you to assist Captain Hinman with a sufficient quantity of provisions, and money sufficient to enable him to get his vessel fit to come round here with all the expedition possible, as the season requires despatch.

I am, with great esteem, sir, your humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To John Bradford, Esq., Agent for the Continental Fleet in the State of Massachusetts, at Boston.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER ON BOARD THE ALFRED, OFF THE COAST OF CAPE BRETON, TO A GENTLEMAN OF DISTINCTION IN THE STATE OF RHODE-ISLAND, DATED NOVEMBER 13, 1776.

We have met with contrary winds and stormy weather for this week past, ever since we passed Halifax. We have, however, taken the brigantine Active, from Liverpool, on a private account for Halifax, a prize worth six thousand pounds sterling prime cost; but we have besides been remarkably successful in taking the ship Mellish, a transport from London for Quebeck, laden entirely with clothing, the last to be sent out this fall. And as all that hath formerly been sent to Canada are taken, this last blow will make Burgoyne shake a cloth in the wind, and check his progress on the lakes. This transport sails very fast; she was lately called the Thunder-Bomb, and is now rebuilt, mounted with guns, and made some little defence. As we think her of too much importance to be lost sight of, we propose to man her well, and keep her with us till our return, which we hope will be very soon. We will sink the Mellish rather than suffer her to fall again into their hands. We have taken in her between sixty and seventy prisoners, several of whom are officers, and people of condition.

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 14th, 1776.

SIRS: I sent you by a vessel yesterday one hundred barrels of bread and eighteen casks of powder, for Colonel Hooe, and a guard with the boat to carry your salt. But she went to the point to take in the salt, as I thought, but went off without taking it, and I fear much to your prejudice. But you may depend it shall come with the next boat. We are going on as well as we can. I hope the Resolution will be with you Sunday next, and the schooner Friendship by the middle of next week. The brig is here done, and ready for flour. The butchers are salting the beef. The sails are making for such as want small sails, and things are going tolerable. But the consumption of cash is great, with so many sundry things doing. Please send a sum of money by the bearer Captain Stone. I will do all I can for you, and remain your humble servant,

JESSE HOLLINGSWORTH.

The Honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

I thought you had staves, but can find none to dunnage the vessels with; am forced to buy them.

---

HUGH LYON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

November 14th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Committee of Observation for Prince George's County having your letter of the 29th October before them, requesting the exchange of Bristol shot for the like quantity of lead, the Committee at present cannot inform you what quantity they have on hand, as part of said shot have already been exchanged for lead. However, an inquiry shall be made, and information given you as soon as may be, if the quantity they have on hand should be worth while sending; and am, for and on behalf of the Committee, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

HUGH LYON.

The right honourable the Council of Safety, Annapolis.

---

ISAAC VAN BIBBER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

November 14th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: There is arrived by Captain Hill, whose vessel comes to the address of Usher and myself, also in Captain Booker, whose vessel comes to my address, two large parcels of powder for the Council of Safety of Maryland, of which parcels I apprehend you are advised by the shippers; part of which powder we have delivered to Mr. Hopkins, your magazine-keeper, and part the country people took out as soon as the vessel came to the wharf, and put in a warehouse at Fell's Point, in order to come at the salt, which powder we want your instructions about. There is ten per cent. on freight due. I have been selling powder consigned to me, for seven shillings and seven shillings six pence.

Please to give me your instructions, and direct where I must apply for the freight, and you will much oblige your humble servant,

ISAAC VAN BIBBER.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland.

Philadelphia, November 14, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed letter from Mr. Searle, a gentleman of honour and a friend to the cause of America, containing the most important intelligence, I am commanded by Congress to forward to you with the utmost expedition. The uncertain destination of the fleet therein mentioned, makes it absolutely necessary that you should be informed of their sailing, that you may make every preparation in your power to defend yourselves in case of an attack.

I most ardently entreat your attention and exertion on the present occasion, and have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Twelve o'clock. }

DEAR SIR: About ten o'clock this morning appeared round the point of Sandy-Hook a number of vessels outward-bound. They are still coming out in great numbers. As I unfortunately have no glass, I cannot as yet distinguish their motions.

I shall detain the express, however, one hour longer, that I may endeavour to form some judgment of their numbers and course.

One o'clock.—I do not think it prudent to detain the bearer any longer. The ships come out but slowly at present. About one hundred sail appear round the Hook, and appear to be standing to the southward, wind at northwest. I observe one or two that appear to be very large. Do me the favour to send word to Mrs. Searle, that I set out for Philadelphia this afternoon, and shall be there on Friday at noon.

Long-Branch, Wednesday morning, 12 o'clock.

DEAR SIR: Your letter to me by the express was delivered about an hour ago. I have despatched Lieutenant Cook, of the Militia quartered here, with two letters enclosed for Tom's river. The commanding officer here immediately upon my application gave direction to Mr. Cooke to proceed down with the letter. Mr. Cook is a very careful young man, and has a brother at Tom's river, (hearty in the cause of freedom,) who will give any assistance that may be necessary. I gave Mr. Cook full direction how to proceed, in order to get the letter conveyed, or rather delivered by himself to the Captains, and have also desired him to get any assistance to the Captains if they should want to forward accounts to Philadelphia.

About ten o'clock this morning appeared round the point of Sandy-Hook a number of vessels outward-bound. They are still coming out in great numbers. As I have unfortunately no glass I cannot as yet distinguish their motions. I shall detain the express one hour longer, that I may endeavour to form some judgment of their number and course.

BOARD OF WAR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

War-Office, November 14th, 1776.

SIR: The Congress having received information that a considerable part of the enemy's fleet had sailed from Sandy-Hook to the southward, and judging that immediate steps were necessary to be taken for the preservation and defence of this city, were pleased to vest us with all their powers to effect this important business. As General Mifflin has a considerable influence in this place, the Board judge it for the interest of the service that he be immediately ordered to this city, where his exertions we doubt not will turn out to the advantage of our cause.

Your Excellency will therefore be pleased to give him directions upon the subject as soon as possible, provided you shall be of opinion that he cannot be more usefully employed in any other place, which we beg leave to submit to you. If the enemy should bend their way to this part of the Continent, we doubt not that your Excellency will yield us every possible assistance.

With every sentiment of esteem, we have the honour to be, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servants,

BENJ. HARRISON,
JAMES WILSON,
E. RUTLEDGE,
FRANCIS LIGHTFOOT LEE.

His Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the United States.

---

BOARD OF WAR TO THE ASSOCIATORS OF PENNSYLVANIA.

War-Office, November 14th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Congress have received intelligence that a fleet of the enemy, consisting of several hundred sail, were yesterday discovered near Sandy-Hook, steering to the southward. It is highly probable that their destination is for Delaware and the city of Philadelphia. It is needless to observe that the utmost vigour and despatch are necessary to counteract the designs of the enemy and defend this city, the preservation of which is of very great importance to the general cause. Congress have directed us to cooperate with the Council of Safety of this State in concerting measures proper on the present emergency, and have invested us with their full power to carry such measures into execution. In discharge of the trust committed to us, we think it our duty to recommend it to you, in the warmest and most earnest manner, immediately to put yourselves in array and march by companies and parts of companies, as you can be ready, with the utmost expedition to this city. Its safety and the interest of the United States point out the necessity of your strongest exertions.

General Washington, at the head of a considerable part of his Army, is advancing southward, but notwithstanding all the despatch he can possibly make, the enemy may arrive before him. If they shall be opposed with proper spirit and sufficient numbers at their first approach, there is the greatest reason to expect that their views will finally be defeated, and they will experience, to their cost and disgrace, that on no part of the Continent they can make an impression. They have been already obliged to abandon Crown-Point and retire into Canada.

It is vain to hope for lenity from your inveterate foes. Their tender mercies are cruelty. The property of those who have acted as their friends is not safer than that of those whom they consider as their enemies. Devastation of every kind marks their footsteps.

Congress will do every thing in their power to strengthen you. Expresses for this purpose are already sent off to the neighbouring States.

Every thing dear to freemen is now at stake. The freemen of Pennsylvania will undoubtedly discover the spirit and zeal which their country expect and their critical situation demands.

Benjamin Harrison,
James Wilson,
Edw'd Rutledge,
Francis Lightfoot Lee.

Attest: Rich'd Peters, Sec'ry.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO JOHN WEREAT.

November 14, 1776.

Sir: By the recommendation of George Walton, Esq., one of your Delegates in Congress, we have appointed you Continental Agent in the State of Georgia. In that station it will fall to your share to supply all Continental cruisers or other vessels in the Continental service with provisions, stores, and necessaries; to assist the Captains and officers in whatever may be needful; to advance them moneys, give them advice, and in all things take care of the interests of the United States. If any prizes are sent into Georgia by the Continental cruisers, you are to receive them, libel and prosecute to condemnation; then make publick sale of vessels, cargoes, and all effects that are condemned; and for your guidance we send you a pamphlet containing the rules and regulations in these respects; and we shall also send you at a future day copies of our official letters to all our agents along the Continent.

You will receive this by an advice boat belonging to the Continent, called the Georgia Packet, intended to be an advice boat between your State and the Congress. She has been loaden this voyage by your Delegates with stores for your State, and we expect you will credit us a handsome freight for the same. We desire you may receive these goods with despatch, and as the Secret Committee of Congress order a cargo back, we hope you will use equal despatch in shipping it. Lieutenant Buck, who commands this schooner, is ordered to put all the letters he carries into the post office; and we desire you will inform the postmaster he is to charge the same postage as if they had come by land, for we expect in this way to raise something towards defraying the expense of these packets in future, although at present the letters will be very few. You will please to advertise for letters back by this packet, and, as soon as you can, despatch this schooner back for this port. You will keep a regular account of your disbursements for this schooner, and if any balance arises in your favour we will pay your drafts on us for the amount.

We hope you will not suffer Captain Buck to lose any time nor stand in need of any assistance that you can afford him.

We are, sir, your humble servants.

John Wereat, Esq., Georgia.

---

MARINE COMMITTEE TO LIEUTENANT BUCK.

November 14, 1776.

Sir: The Continental schooner Georgia Packet, under your command, being now fitted, manned, and ready for sea, you are to proceed with said schooner and cargo for Savannah, in Georgia, and on your arrival there, deliver the cargo put on board said schooner by the Georgia Delegates to such person or persons as they may have directed it to. Any letters you carry are to be put into the post-office. This you must particularly attend to, and deliver none of them to any person but the Postmaster there. You are to apply to John Wereat, Esq., Continental Agent at Savannah, who will load the schooner back with such goods as may be ordered by the Secret Committee of Congress, and you are to receive on board a full loading from him. You are to advertise for letters to be sent back in the schooner, and receive all that shall offer, which are to be put into the post-office here. When the schooner is reloaden at Georgia, and you have received your despatches from Mr. Wereat, you are then to make the best of your way back for this port. We expect diligence and despatch from you, both at sea and in port. You are to be careful of the schooner, her stores, and materials, kind to your officers and men, but attentive to strict discipline and duty. If you have the good fortune to make any prizes, send them into any safe port in the United States, addressed to the Continental Agent, and use your prisoners well. Should you find it impracticable or dangerous to get into Savannah, you may put into any other safe port in the State, and do your business there; and if on your return you find this port shut up by the enemy, you may put into any of the inlets of New-Jersey, and give us notice, that we may direct what is to be done.

Wishing you success, we are, sir, your very humble servants.

To Lieutenant Isaac Buck.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, November 14, 1776, Twelve o'clock, Thursday.

SIR: We have certain intelligence that the enemy has actually sailed from New-York three hundred ships for this city, and that great numbers had got out of the Hook at twelve o'clock yesterday, and were steering towards our Capes. As you value the safety of your country, and all that is dear and valuable to men, we most earnestly solicit your immediate assistance, and that you will march all your battalion to this city without the least delay.

As nothing but the most hasty marching of the Militia will enable us to make a stand, it is hoped that your battalion will manifest their usual spirit, and come forth on this trying occasion with the alacrity that will do them honour. If you can collect any shovels, spades, grubbing-hoes, and pitching-axes, beg you will bring them forward, and the people shall be paid for them a full price. Three or four good wagons to each company will be of service.

By order of Council:

THOMAS WHARTON, Jun., President.

MARYLAND COMMISSIONERS TO MARYLAND CONVENTION.

Philadelphia, November 14th, 1776.

SIR: On receipt of yours of the 10th instant, we waited on the honourable Congress. This morning received a letter and resolutions of Congress—the enclosed are copies. To us new difficulties arise—among others a grand one: Whether our regular troops (who are already engaged during the war) should now be inlisted for three years. As we conceive the subject-matter of these resolves to be new, we wait for further directions from the honourable Convention of our State.

As time grows short, we have sent off the express with the utmost despatch.

We are, honourable sir, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient, humble servants,

JAS. LLOYD CHAMBERLAINE,
THOS. CONTEE,
BENJAMIN RUMSAY,
JOHN HANSON, JR.

The Hon. Matthew Tilghman, Esq., President of the Convention, Maryland.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE COMMISSIONERS FROM MARYLAND.

Philadelphia, November 13, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In consequence of a letter to Congress this day received from the honourable Convention of Maryland, enclosing sundry resolutions of that body relative to the raising their quota of the new levies, I have it in charge to furnish you with the resolutions of Congress, passed yesterday, admitting the new levies to inlist for three years, and at the same time to inform you that if the inhabitants of the State of Maryland will inlist to serve during the continuance of the present war they already have the faith of the United States of America pledged for the land to be granted to such soldiers.

The resolutions referred to you have enclosed, and contain the sense of Congress as to the mode of the new inlistments.

I am, with esteem, gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Honourable Commissioners from Maryland for appointing officers and promoting inlistment in the Army at Camp.

---

IN CONGRESS, November 12th, 1776.

Resolved, as the opinion of this Congress, That if the Soldiers to be raised by the State of Massachusetts-Bay be inlisted on the terms offered to them, which are more advantageous than what are offered to other Soldiers serving in the same Army, it would much retard, if not totally impede, the inlistment of the latter, and produce discontent and murmur, unless Congress should equally increase the pay of these, which it is the opinion of this Congress would universally be reprobated as an immoderate expense, and complained of as a grievous burthen by those who must bear it, and therefore that the Committee from the State of Massachusetts-Bay be desired not to inlist their men on the additional pay offered by the Assembly of that State.

Upon reconsideration, the Resolution of the 16th September last, for raising eighty-eight Battalions to serve during the present war with Great Britain, Congress being of opinion that the readiness of the inhabitants of these States to enter into the service for limited times in defence of their invaluable privileges, on all former occasions, gives good grounds to hope the same zeal for the publick good will appear in future, when necessity calls for their assistance; and, lest the uncertain length of time which forces raised during the continuance of the present war may be compelled to serve, may prevent men from inlisting who would otherwise readily manifest their attachment to the common cause, by engaging for a limited time:

Therefore, Resolved, That all Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers who do not incline to engage their service during the continuance of the present war, and shall inlist to serve three years unless sooner discharged by Congress, shall be entitled to, and receive all such Bounty and Pay as are allowed to those who inlist during the continuance of the present war, except the one hundred acres of land, which land is to be granted to those only who inlist without limitation of time; and each recruiting officer is required to provide two distinct inlisting-rolls, one for such to sign as inlist during the continuance of the war, and the other for such as inlist for three years, if their service shall be so long required.

By order of Congress:

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

GENERAL DE LANCEY'S ORDERS.

Whereas many of the drivers of wagons of the different Counties on Long-Island, who were impressed from time to time into his Majesty's service, are deserted and run away, which occasions many of the horses being lost and neglected, this is, therefore, to inform all masters of such wagons and teams, and their drivers, that if they do not immediately return to take care of their wagons and teams, and do their duty as drivers, that the Quartermaster-General will not be answerable for the loss of any of the wagons or teams.

Dated at General De Lancey's Head-Quarters, at Oyster-Bay, November 14, 1776.

OLIVER DE LANCEY, Brig. Gen.

WILLIAM SHERIFF,
Deputy Quartermaster-General.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

General Greene's Quarters, November 14, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to inform you of my arrival here yesterday, and that the whole of the troops belonging to the States, which lay south of Hudson's river, and which were in New-York Government, have passed over to this side, except the regiment lately Colonel Smallwood's, which I expect is now on their march. That they may be ready to check any incursions the enemy may attempt in this neighbourhood, I intend to quarter them at Brunswick, Amboy, Elizabethtown, New-Ark, and about this place, unless Congress should conceive it necessary for any of them to be stationed at or more contiguous to Philadelphia. In such case they will be pleased to signify their pleasure. There will be very few of them after the departure of those who were engaged for the Flying-Camp, and which is fast approaching. The disposition I have mentioned seems to me well calculated for the end proposed, and also for their accommodation.

The movements and designs of the enemy are not yet understood. Various are the opinions and reports on this head. From every information, the whole have removed from Dobbs's Ferry towards King's Bridge, and it seems to be generally believed on all hands that the investing of Fort

Washington is one object they have in view. But that can employ but a small part of their force. Whether they intend a southern expedition must be determined by time; to me there appears a probability of it, and which seems to be favoured by the advice we have, that many transports are wooding and watering. General Greene's letter would give you the substance of the intelligence brought by Mr. Mersereau from Staten-Island, in this instance, which he returned before it came to me.

Enclosed you have copies of two letters from General Howe, and of my answer to the first of them. The letter alluded to and returned in his last, was one from myself to Mrs. Washington, of the 25th ultimo, from whence I conclude that all the letters which went by the Boston express have come to his possession. You will also perceive that General Howe has requested the return of Peter Jack, a servant to Major Stewart, to which I have consented, as he was not in the military line, and the requisition agreeable to the custom of war. This servant having been sent to Philadelphia with the Waldeckers and other prisoners, I must request the favour of you to have him conveyed to General Greene by the earliest opportunity, in order that he may be returned to his master.

Before I conclude, I beg leave not only to suggest, but to urge the necessity of increasing our field artillery very considerably. Experience has convinced me, as it has every gentleman of discernment in this Army, that while we remain so much inferiour to the enemy in this instance, we must carry on the war under infinite disadvantages, and without the smallest probability of success. It has been peculiarly owing to the situation of the country where their operations have been conducted, and to the rough and strong grounds we possessed ourselves of, and over which they had to pass, that they have not carried their arms, by means of their artillery, to a much greater extent. When these difficulties cease by exchanging the scene of action to a level, champaign country, the worst of consequences are justly to be apprehended. I would, therefore, with the concurrence of all the officers whom I have spoke to upon the subject, submit to the consideration of Congress whether immediate measures ought not to be taken for procuring a respectable train. It is agreed on all hands that each battalion should be furnished at least with two pieces, and that a smaller number than one hundred of three pounds, fifty of six pounds, and fifty of twelve pounds, should not be provided in addition to those we now have. Besides these, if some eighteen and twenty-four pounders are ordered, the train will be more serviceable and complete. The whole should be of brass, for the most obvious reasons: they will be much more portable, not half so liable to burst, and when they do, no damage is occasioned by it, and they may be cast over again. The sizes before described should be particularly attended to; if they are not, there will be great reason to expect mistakes and confusion in the charges in time of action, as it has frequently happened in the best regulated armies. The disparity between those I have mentioned, and such as are of an intermediate size, is difficult to discover. It is also agreed that a regiment of artillerists, with approved and experienced officers, should be obtained if possible, and some engineers of known reputation and abilities. I am sorry to say, too ready an indulgence has been had to several appointments in the latter instance, and that men have been promoted who seem to me to know but little, if any thing, of the business. Perhaps this train, &c., may be looked upon by some as large and expensive. True, it will be so; but when it is considered that the enemy having effected but little in the course of the present campaign, will use their utmost efforts to subjugate us in the next, every consideration of that sort should be disregarded, and every possible preparation made to frustrate their unjust and wicked attempts. How they are to be procured, is to be inquired into. That we cannot provide them among ourselves, or more than a very small proportion, so trifling as not to deserve our notice, is evident; therefore I would advise, with all imaginable deference, that without any abatement of our own internal exertions, application should be immediately made to such persons as can and may be willing to supply them. They cannot be obtained too early, if soon enough, and I am told they may be easily had from France and Holland.

Mr. Trumbull, the Commissary-General, has frequently mentioned to me of late the inadequacy of his pay to his trouble, and the great risk he is subject to on account of the large sums of money which pass through his hands. He has stated his case with a view of laying it before Congress, and obtaining a more adequate compensation. My sentiments upon the subject are already known; but yet I shall take the liberty to add, that I think his complaint to be well founded, and that his pay, considering the important duties and risks of his office, by no means sufficient, and that the footing he seems to think it should be upon himself, appears just and reasonable.

A proposition having been made long since to General Howe, and agreed to by him, for an exchange of prisoners, in consequence of the resolutions of Congress to that effect, I shall be extremely happy if you will give directions to the Committees, and those having the charge of prisoners in the several States south of Jersey, to transmit me proper lists of the names of all the commissioned officers, and of their non-commissioned and privates, and their respective regiments. You will see by his letter, he supposes me to have effected some delay, or to have been unmindful of the proposition I had made.

I propose to stay in this neighbourhood a few days, in which time I expect the designs of the enemy will be more disclosed, and their incursions be made in this quarter, or their investiture of Fort Washington, if they are intended.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

Head-Quarters, 8th November, 1776.

Sir: A servant lately attending upon Major Stuart, of the Forty-Third Regiment of Foot, named Peter Jack, is supposed to have fallen a few days ago into the hands of some of your parties. This man not being in the capacity of a soldier, I hope if found among your prisoners that you will permit him to be returned to his master, as is customary in like cases.

I beg leave to take this opportunity of remonstrating against the delay on your part in the exchange of prisoners, after what has passed on that subject, for the execution of which I must own myself the more anxious, as I understand many officers in your power are still exposed to the confinement of common jails. I am also informed that a few straggling soldiers lately fallen into your hands have been sent into Jersey, instead of being immediately exchanged, which, after your agreement to this measure and the custom of war, I had every reason to expect.

I am, with due regard, sir, your most obedient servant,

W. Howe.

General Washington, &c., &c.

Head-Quarters, November 9th, 1776.

Sir: Yesterday evening I received the favour of your letter of the 8th instant. Major Stewart's servant having never represented himself as a person not inlisted in your Army, he was considered as a prisoner of war, and sent as such to Jersey. But upon your information that he was not in the capacity of a soldier, I will give immediate directions for him to be brought back, that he may return to his master.

This servant was charged with a letter of a private and delicate nature; but Major Stewart may be assured the contents neither were nor shall be permitted to transpire.

I regret that it has not been in my power to effect the proposed exchange of prisoners before this time. As soon as the proposition was agreed to, I wrote to the Governours and Conventions of the different States where the prisoners were, to have them collected and sent to the most convenient places in the neighbourhood of the two armies. Their dispersed situation for their better accommodation has been the reason of the delay; at least I cannot ascribe it to any other cause. It has not arisen, sir, from any design on my part, and I am persuaded the difficulty of drawing them together must be evident to you, especially as it was early suggested in some of my former letters.

As to the charge of your officers being confined in common jails, I had hoped that you were satisfied by my assurances on this head before. It is not my wish that severity should be exercised towards any whom the fortune of war has thrown or shall throw into our hands. On the contrary, it is my desire that the utmost humanity should be shown them. I am convinced that the latter has been the prevailing line of conduct to prisoners. There have been instances in which some have met with less indulgence than could have been wished, owing to a refractory conduct and a disregard of paroles. If there are other instances in which a strict regard to propriety has not been observed, they have not come to my knowledge, and if you will be pleased to point them out, and to particularize the names of the officers, the earliest inquiry shall be made into the complaint, and the cause removed, if any exists.

With respect to the stragglers who have lately fallen into our hands, I cannot, upon the best consideration, discern how the agreement subsisting between us can be affected by sending them to places from whence they may be easily collected upon a general exchange.

That the custom of war requires, or that the interest of our Army would admit of a daily exchange of prisoners, are points on which we are so unhappy as to differ in sentiment. The opportunities of conveying intelligence, and many other consequences flowing from such an intercourse, seem so very obvious, that, upon further reflection, I flatter myself you will think with me on this subject. But if otherwise, it might have been exemplified on your part, in the immediate return of such stragglers from our Army as have fallen into your hands, which would have justified an expectation of a similar conduct from us.

I am, sir, with great respect, &c.,

Go. Washington.

To Lieutenant-General Howe.

---

Head-Quarters, 11th November, 1776.

Sir: The enclosed letter having been intercepted and brought to me, I am happy to return it, without the least attempt being made to discover any part of the contents.

I was yesterday favoured with your answer to my letter of the 8th, and am perfectly satisfied from your assertion that the delay in the exchange of prisoners has not arose from any disregard to the agreement on your part, but from the neglect of those to whose care the arrangement of them has been entrusted. Give me leave at the same time to observe, that this measure, naturally so desirable to the parties concerned, must be in a great degree interrupted if a general exchange should remain an object to the prejudice of prisoners near at hand, who, upon the shortest notice of their ranks or numbers, might be relieved by an equality of those in my possession; and as I cannot foresee any objection to an exchange taking place immediately, so far as may be conveniently effected, and as often afterwards as the prisoners more remote shall arrive, I am willing to hope for your concurrence in promoting the same.

You are pleased to say the usage of war does not allow of an immediate exchange of prisoners; which I can by no means agree to, the contrary being ever the custom of armies, between which an exchange of prisoners has been determined as far as the nature of business may permit. And in respect to stragglers from your Army, since you have been pleased to say I might have set you the example of returning them, I am to inform you that no persons under that description have fallen into my hands. Such men as have lately been taken in arms, as well as those who have been longer in confinement, are safely detained for the arrival of your prisoners, in consequence of assurances received from you on that subject.

I most undoubtedly could point out several instances wherein the King's officers have not been treated with the lenity and humanity they had a right to expect; but I am unwilling to dwell upon a subject of complaint, which I am fully satisfied will, as far as it lays in your power, be removed.

I send, at the request of Major Stuart, the enclosed letter; and am, with due regard, sir, your most obedient servant,

W. Howe.

To General Washington, &c., &c.

MAJOR STEWART TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Sir: I this morning received a note from his Excellency the General, acquainting me that, in consequence of his application, you had ordered my servant to return, and politely promised that the contents of a letter found upon him should not transpire. Give me leave, sir, to return you my most sincere thanks for this favour, which interests and personally obliges your obedient and humble servant,

Charles Stewart.

11 November.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

General Greene's Quarters, November 14th, 1776.

Dear Sir: As an exchange of prisoners is likely to take effect as soon as the nature of the case will admit, and as in the course of the transaction it may possibly happen that an attempt may be made by the enemy to redeem their prisoners by men who were never engaged in our service, I must request you immediately to direct the Colonels or commanders of regiments in your division, to make out an exact list of the particular officers and privates who have been killed, taken prisoners, or are missing, in the respective regiments and companies to which they belong, specifying the names of the whole, and the time when each officer or private was killed, taken prisoner, or missing. This list, as soon as it is completed, you will transmit to Head-Quarters.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

Major-General Lee.

P. S. I now enclose you a copy of the recommendation of the officers for the State of Rhode-Island, which was furnished by General Greene, and transmitted by me to Governour Cooke some time since. If the Commissioners have not yet arrived from thence, you will be pleased to direct the officers therein nominated, who choose to serve, to recruit as fast as possible out of their own regiments, and agreeable to the general orders isued at the White-Plains, before my departure.

[The same to Major-General Heath, except the P. S.]

GENERAL NIXON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Phillips's Manor, 14th November, 1776.

Honoured Sir: The Committee from our State of the Massachusetts-Bay are now waiting for that arrangement of officers which you and I began and got partly through with.

They want an arrangement only to complete seven battalions from this department. And as there is another Committee gone to the Northern department, those officers belonging to the regiments who are included in our arrangement must be struck out; and without your assistance it cannot be done, as I don't know who they be. I mentioned it to General Lee this morning, and he desired me to send off immediately to your Honour to come down as soon as possibly.

Dear sir, I should be extremely glad you would come, the sooner the better, for I look upon it to be a matter of the uttermost importance. If the service would admit of it, I would have waited upon your Honour.

I am, dear sir, with the greatest esteem, your Honour's most humble servant,

Jno. Nixon.

To the Hon. Major-General Heath.

P. S. Mr. Blaney, from Roxbury, I understand, has got a letter for you from your lady. He arrived yesterday.

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Haverstraw, 14th November, 7 o'clock, P. M., 1776.

May it please your Honour: I arrived with the two regiments under my command in two hours after I left Peekskills. Teams were engaged that evening by Colonel Hay, but did not come to us till two o'clock this afternoon, and then only as many as to carry the tents and part of the other baggage. The remainder will go on to-morrow morning. The detachment, including the artificers and rangers, are on their way four miles from the ferry, and will reach the place of our destination to-morrow night. I was told at first I had fifteen miles to march from the Kills; after sailing seven miles down the river, they tell me it is twenty miles. Colonel Hay, who is two miles on the road, says it is twenty. In short it appears like a Jack-with-a-lanthorn, that removes from your approaches. It is with difficulty I can satisfy the people on the road that I have not lost my way, as they perceive me out of the current of the late marching troops. If I must depart from the British enemy, it is some consolation to me that I may come as a barrier to the frontiers against the Indians; but to be serious, (you forgive the digression,) I will do the best to answer your expectations. The Engineer, Machin, was with me this day, and will meet me on the day after to-morrow at the place. Colonel Hay can supply me with beef, but cannot say as to flour. He is going with me as a guide, and thinks he shall be able to procure flour near our post. The men are in good spirits, and I am, with esteem, your Honour's most obedient servant,

JED. HUNTINGTON.

Major-General Heath.

Colonel Hay has been very kind and obliging, and is a hearty friend to our cause.

MEMORIAL OF EBENEZER HAZARD.

[Read November 18: Referred to the Board of War.]

To the honourable the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, in General Congress assembled:

The Memorial of EBENEZER HAZARD, Postmaster for the District of NEW-YORK, respectfully showeth:

That your memorialist was appointed Postmaster for the district aforesaid, by the Postmaster-General of the United States, on the 5th October, 1775, since which time he has sedulously, and, he has reason to think, satisfactorily discharged the duties of the said office.

That by a resolution of Congress an allowance was made the Postmasters for commissions and incidents, of twenty per cent. upon the first one thousand dollars, and of ten per cent. upon the remainder of the sums of money annually received by them for postage.

That in consequence of the want of a foreign trade the allowance upon the money received at your memorialist's office during the year past amounts to no more than £107 19*s.* 3½*d.*, New-York currency.

That as the sum above-mentioned would not admit of your memorialist's employing an assistant, he devoted his whole time to it, and thus was prevented from engaging in some more lucrative employment which required less confinement.

That being obliged to leave the City of New-York, and under a necessity of keeping his office near Head-Quarters, he has been subjected, by the late frequent removals of the Continental Army, to extraordinary expense, difficulties, and fatigues, having paid an exorbitant price for every necessary of life and been obliged for want of a horse, which could not be procured, to follow the Army from place to place on foot.

That your memorialist flatters himself that should your Honours attend to the representation made, it will immediately appear that the sum of £107 19*s.* 3½*d.*, New-York currency, is by no means a compensation for his services; but that, on the contrary, he must be a considerable loser.

That he apprehends it to have been the design of Congress that the Postmaster of so important and capital a district as that of New-York, should not diminish his private property by his assiduity in serving the publick, but that he should receive a decent maintenance from his office.

Your memorialist therefore is induced to state his case to Congress, fully relying upon their justice for such further allowance as to them shall appear to be a compensation for past services, and during the present exigency, as will render the office an object worthy of the same strict attention which has hitherto been paid to it.

And your memorialist, &c.

North-Castle, November 14, 1776.

EBENEZER HAZARD TO REV. JOHN WITHERSPOON.

North-Castle, November 14, 1776.

Reverend and dear Sir: Confiding in your friendship, I make no apology for troubling you with the enclosed; but beg a little of your attention to it, and that you will be kind enough to favour me with your influence in support of an application which appears to me to be reasonable, and which, I doubt not, you will view in the same point of light.

It is difficult to be sufficiently explicit in a memorial without justly incurring the charge of tediousness; I shall therefore be a little more particular now, with respect to such articles as may appear to stand in need of it. An application to Mr. Bache, the Comptroller of the Post-Office, may satisfy Congress respecting the first. He may, perhaps, mention my removal from New-York to Dobbs's Ferry, which I know he disapproved of; but my conduct in this I imagine will be fully vindicated by the following resolutions, viz:

"In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, August 30th, 1776.

"Resolved unanimously, That it is the opinion of the Committee of Safety, that Mr. Hazard, Postmaster for the district of New-York, should immediately remove his office to some convenient place near Dobbs's Ferry, till further orders from the Postmaster-General.

"Signed by order:

"Abm. Yates, Jun., President."

Upon the second article I shall only observe, that the word "incidents" used in our quarterly accounts (I forget whether it is in the resolve of Congress) certainly can mean nothing more than those incidents which are usual in time of peace; such as office rent, firewood, sealing-wax, &c., and cannot justly be construed to include the extraordinary expenses occasioned by the present war, which could not have been foreseen at the time of the institution of a Post-Office by Congress.

My quarterly accounts in the hands of Mr. Bache will prove the third article. The fourth is self-evident; and the Congress will easily see the truth of the fifth. The necessity of keeping the office near Head-Quarters arose from the importance of the General's despatches, and his being near the centre of the Army, who are almost the only persons for whom letters now come per post. The General has doubtless informed Congress of his different removals. In each of these I have followed him; and I am sorry I have reason to say, that so little attention has been paid to me as a gentleman, or respect shown to the Congress's commission with which I am honoured, that I have been obliged to follow him on foot. I do not mean even to hint a reflection upon the General, whom I esteem and respect. Furnishing me with a horse did not belong to his department; but those whose business it was have not treated me genteelly. However, lest it should be said that I was unfaithful in my office, and to convince his Excellency of my readiness to oblige him, and serve the publick, I submitted to this indignity, and the fatigue consequent upon it, although it was not my business, as a Postmaster, to follow the Army like a sutler.

Wherever an Army goes the demand for every article of life is greatly increased and the prices of them rise in proportion. So extravagant is the charge here that I am now at nine shillings expense per diem for my own and my servant's victuals only. Clothes, washing, &c., are distinct charges and proportionably expensive; so that what I have asserted in the sixth article must appear very clear. Indeed those who know the expense of living in a city, will need no more than the bare mention of the sum I have received for the year past to convince them that it would not maintain me even in peaceable times, (the "incidents" then amounted to £11 6*s.*, each quarter, or £45 4*s.*, per annum;) and yet this I must depend upon for a maintenance in these days of terrible extortion, as my whole time is so taken up by the office that I can attend to nothing else. However, I am confident that Congress will not injure the publick service by an ill-judged parsimony, but will support the dignity of their own officers, and by a suitable liberality enable them to attend diligently to their respective offices. This encourages me to lay the matter before them, and to hope for such an allowance as will prevent my being a loser by serving the publick, and at the same time will afford me some compensation for my time and trouble. Should the memorial be referred to a committee of which you are not a member, perhaps it may be proper to furnish them with this letter. However, this I leave to you, and shall be glad to be favoured with a line, informing me what is done or like to be done respecting this matter.

The enemy are retreating towards New-York. Those who were at Crown-Point have gone back, it is said, to Quebeck. We can account for the extraordinary manœuvres only by supposing them to be made in consequence of news from England; but what this is we cannot learn. Britain will derive no great honour from the exploits of her heroes this campaign.

I am, reverend and dear sir, yours affectionately,

Eben. Hazard.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON.

Peekskill, November 14th, 1776.

Dear Sir: Being informed that the honourable Convention of the State of New-York have appointed a committee to receive the recommendations of such officers (now in the Army) as the General Officers of their own State may think best qualified to serve in the Army of the free United States of America in their next Army, from our intimacy for some time, and my constant observation of the conduct of the officers of my division, I flatter myself that you will not take it amiss if I should hint a wish that you would take notice of an officer who, I think, has done great honour to himself, to you, sir, and the State to which he belongs, and great service to the publick—I mean your Brigade-Major Pawling. His modesty, integrity, assiduity in duty, and spirit, so often discovered in my own presence, compel me (from a real regard to a good and faithful officer and the publick cause which stands in need of such gentlemen) to wish his promotion, and it will give me singular pleasure should it happen. You will excuse this, sir, when I assure you that nothing but a desire that merit may be distinguished and the publick cause promoted, that has led me to mention this to you.

I am, dear sir, with esteem, your most humble servant,

W. Heath.

To General George Clinton.

GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON TO WILLIAM DUER.

Peekskill, 14th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Agreeable to promise, I now enclose you a list of the officers of Colonel Dubois's regiment who served under my brother last campaign before Quebeck, and most of the summer in my brigade. Those marked thus * have actually served under me, and I can with great justice recommend them to the Convention as active, brave officers. I imagine should Colonel Dubois's regiment be continued, it would be most agreeable to them to retain their present appointments; if not, it will be a publick loss to leave them out of the service, and, in my opinion, it would be great injustice to such of them as wish to continue in it.

You have also a list of such of Colonel Dubois's officers who were not in the service to the northward last campaign, but have for some time past served under me with propriety and been useful officers. I can't with justice omit recommending my Brigade-Major Pawline, in a special manner, as a most useful, active, brave officer, well deserving the rank he now sustains in the Army. The character you have heard of him from some of our General Officers, particularly from the Major-General of the division in which I have served during the whole campaign, and whose certificate in his favour I now enclose you, will lead you to agree with me that if he can conveniently, he ought to be provided for in such manner as will induce him to continue in the service.

I have many other brave officers in my brigade, who have much merit, and I doubt not but they would be willing to continue in the service of their country in the military line; but as they have not been in the Continental service, I have omitted mentioning their names, as I have been informed Convention means first to provide for such as have; in which case there will not be room left for them in the four regiments to be raised in this State.

I am, yours sincerely, GEORGE CLINTON.

JACOB GARRIGUE TO COLONEL BRASHER.

Peekskill, November 14, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Agreeable to request I have inquired for the sheet-iron to make pipes for stoves, agreeable to General Schuyler's orders, and find there is none to be had here, but understand there is a quantity (say half a ton) at North-Castle, under the care of Mr. Bowen, at North-Castle, where, if you send after, make no doubt you may get it.

I am, sir, your humble servant, JACOB GARRIGUE.

To Colonel Brasher, member of the Convention for the State of New-York, at Fishkill.

November 29, 1776.

By a late letter from the Honourable General Schuyler, he earnestly requests that at least as much of the abovementioned sheet-iron may be forwarded with all possible despatch to Fort Montgomery, and from thence to the Forrest of Deane, as will make the doors for the said stoves, that they may be fixed. He by other means hopes to supply pipes, which is humbly mentioned, for the advancement of the publick service. JOHN MCKESSON.

JONATHAN TRUMBULL, JUN., DEPUTY PAYMASTER-GENERAL, TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Albany, 14th November, 1776.

SIR: Several sums of money presenting, I have taken the liberty, in the present low state of the military chest, to receive them, drawing bills on the Treasury for the same.

Having no instructions therefor, I have presumed on the measure, and beg to know whether the practice in future will be agreeable, that I may not counteract the pleasure of Congress.

I am, with great esteem and sincerity, sir, your most obedient humble servant, JONA. TRUMBULL.

Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Continental Congress.

BRIGADIER PALMER TO JOHN AVERY.

Boston, November 14th, 1776.

SIR: My most respectful compliments attend the honourable Council and House of Representatives for the honour done me in an appointment in the Board of War; but as the honourable House have declined making an establishment for the members of that Board, and as I have spent all my time for several years past, and most of my estate, in support of the cause of liberty, my family now calls for my more particular attention, and therefore I flatter myself that I shall be excused serving in the Committee of War, without the charge of want of patriotism.

I am, sir, your most humble servant, J. PALMER.

Mr. John Avery, Deputy Secretary, Boston.

Boston, November 14, 1776.

Thursday afternoon last came to town, and the same evening was committed to jail, John Dean Whitworth, eldest son of Doctor Miles Whitworth, now at Waltham. He, with a number of others, Tories, under the command of the well-known Major Rogers, were taken prisoners in the late skirmish at White-Plains.

Saturday last arrived here, a prize brig, laden with fish, taken by the Captains Skimmer and Tucker; and Friday last arrived at Marblehead a large prize-ship, having on board forty-eight hundred quintals of fish. She was sent in by Captain Hathorne.

On Sunday arrived here a prize, taken by Captain Daniel Waters, laden with staves, bound from Nova-Scotia for the West-Indies.

We hear that Captain John Lee, of Salem, has taken another ship from London, a very valuable prize, and sent her into a neighbouring State.

Yesterday the Captains Skimmer and Tucker returned here from a cruise, and brought in a brigantine from Erse, in Scotland, bound to New-York, ladened with a valuable cargo of woolens, shoes, &c., &c., said to be worth fifteen thousand sterling.

A SOLDIER TO THE INDEPENDENT SONS OF AMERICA.

Our losses this year are small when compared with the advantages we have gained, and it would be extreme folly, even in the weakest American, to suppose our cause did not continue to rise. The complete triumph of liberty undoubtedly draws nearer every hour. When we review the state of America, and that of our enemy, we behold eminent and growing advantages on the part of our country. The valour and discipline of our troops are constantly improving, as every late action with the enemy testifies; this circumstance, considered with that of our superiour numbers, affords a bright prospect of success. It was always supposed that the enemy would have the greatest advantage in the beginning of the war, and it must be acknowledged, (with gratitude to Heaven,) they have done much less, and our success has been much greater than might have been expected. At this period we have so many experienced men of tried valour, such magazines of warlike stores, such a military system formed, such a disciplined Militia (as no other nation can produce,) and such a union and fervour of spirit in support of the righteous cause of our country, as must damp the murderous spirit of our enemies, and give vigour to every virtuous mind. When we survey our naval departments, such are our preparations, such our amazing progress in fitting out armed vessels, and so wonderful our success in taking the ships, the persons, and the riches of the tyrants, that even our infidel enemies are almost ready to exclaim, "God is on our side!"

Another happy circumstance in our favour is the fruitful season and plentiful harvest with which Heaven hath blessed our country. In truth, so numerous are the favours of Providence, and so encouraging our prospect of success, that we have much greater cause for thanksgiving than for petitioning; and it is unmanly, unchristian, and unworthy of any free mind, to discover the least degree of timidity. Our difficulties and sufferings in supporting the great cause of liberty have been little if compared with what other nations have suffered in defence of their freedom. The Switzers fought sixty battles in defending their liberties, and finally drove all the murdering tyrants out of their country, set up independent States, and have flourished in freedom to this day, in spite of all the tyrants in Europe. They are a striking proof of the superiour virtue and strength of a free people, for their whole country is not larger than the Massachusetts State, nor half so fruitful, nor any ways comparable for happiness of situation and commercial advantages. What, then, may not the United States of America accomplish? We may rationally suppose, upon a survey of the present state of all nations, that these United States will make swifter progress in arts and arms, and in all that adorns and dignifies human society, than any people or nation ever yet have done.

The tyrants of Britain, and the villainous slaves whom they can hire, are all the enemies we have to encounter; the rest of the world will be our friends. As we wish to injure no people, other nations will naturally be our friends, some from interest, and others (whose interest is no ways concerned) from motives of humanity. As America is so very extensive, capable of supporting so many millions of inhabitants more than she has at present, and as the virtuous part of mankind love freedom, they will transplant themselves from the slavish dominions of Europe to this land of liberty, whereby the industry, the virtue, and the wisdom of the world will centre in these free and independent States. Such being our field of hope, such our prospect of happiness, not only for ourselves but for millions of others, by what name shall we call that folly which would abate your ardour and discourage your efforts to maintain the entire independence of America?

A SOLDIER.

Boston, November 14, 1776.

COLONEL HURD TO MESHECH WEARE.

Haverhill, 14 November, 1776.

SIR: Since the receipt of a letter from your Committee to the Committee here who have the direction of the Ranging companies, they have ordered most of the men out upon the publick roads to work on such places as 'twas thought most needed repair, and they are yet so employed, except those who are kept out upon scouts. We had thoughts of sending a number over to Ticonderoga, but by the latest intelligence, it is said the Army there have been so strongly reinforced by the Militia of all the neighbouring Counties, that our men could not be wanted. If they had been, General Gates, who knows of Major Hoisington having two hundred and fifty men under command on New-York side, would certainly have ordered him to march them over, especially as they are inlisted to serve during the war. Whereas the time our men was engaged for is so nearly expired, we thought 'twould answer little purpose to send them; nor did they much incline to go, unless we could assure them of a larger bounty.

The last reports from the lake are, that the regular Army has decamped from Crown-Point, and retreated (supposed) towards St. John's; some imagine they may take a circuit round by the river St. Lawrence to Lake Ontario and Oswego, with intention to come towards Albany by the Mohawk river; yet one would think the season of the year will hardly admit of so long a march. We would rather hope that they have been discouraged from making any attempt upon Ticonderoga, finding it so well fortified, and gone back into Canada to take up their winter quarters. But as General Gates has sent off a large detachment to watch their motions, we may soon know the certainty of this matter. I wish they may not out-general us, as it seems they do at New-York in spite of all our numbers. By a person direct from thence, we hear that they have drove our troops from King's Bridge, got possession of the heights and all the lines with little opposition—all but Fort Washington, which is much in danger. How to account for this we know not, unless it be that General Washington may have instructions from Congress not to hazard a general engagement, lest the event might be fatal to the American cause. In this view 'tis prudent to retreat.

If your Committee should think proper, by the advices you have, to continue any part of the companies here through the winter, 'tis proper the officers should know their minds soon, as the time is nearly expired. For my own part, I think one company may be sufficient, unless we should have any thing alarming from the northward more than at present appears. I hope for the pleasure of seeing you at the ensuing sessions. Pray my respects to the gentlemen of the Committee; and am, sir, your most obedient servant,

J. HURD.

Hon. Meshech Weare, Esq.

P. S. We have no kind of difficulty among the Tory gentry here since the removal of Colonel Porter. Not one of them dare to make any stir.

ORDER TO DISPOSE OF THE NEW-YORK TORIES.

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, } November 14, 1776. }

The Committee, taking into consideration what is necessary to be done with a number of persons sent into this State by order of the State of New-York, and after inquiring of the officers who conducted them, and receiving such information as they could give relating to the crimes charged against them, (the Convention of New-York not having as yet transmitted any thing relative thereto,) have determined that at present, and until some information arrives from the State of New-York, that Silvester Stone, Daniel Doughty, George Doughty, Adam Weaver, Daniel Hoffman, James Parker, Thomas Bullis, George Blanchard, and Timothy Daughty, be committed to the prison in Exeter, having the liberties of the yard in the day time only; and that all the other persons may provide their own lodgings any where within six miles of the State-House in the town of Exeter, except in the town of New-Market, at no time going beyond those limits; and that they strictly observe their conduct relative to political affairs, and by no means endeavour to use words or arguments to people they may converse with tending to hurt the interest of the States of America, or in opposition to the present contest with Great Britain, on pain of immediate imprisonment.

Any of the above persons being of the Society called Quakers, (not of the number ordered to prison,) observing the above caution, may go to the towns of Dover, Hampton-Falls, Seabrook, and Kensington, if they think fit, and take quarters with the people there of said Society. Every person, when he has provided himself with lodgings, is to take care to return his name and the name of his landlord, and in what town he resides, to General Folsom, at Exeter.

M. Weare, Chairman.

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, } November 23, 1776. }

Ordered, That Silvester Stone, Daniel Doughty, George Doughty, and Adam Weaver, persons sent to this State from New-York Convention as enemies to the rights of America, be sent to the town of Nottingham, and David Hoffman, James Parker, Timothy Doughty, and George Blanchard, be sent to the parish of Deerfield, to be put out in such families by the respective Selectmen as will take them to board, or hire them to labour; said persons observing, on pain of imprisonment, not to use words or arguments to people they converse with tending against the measures carrying on by the American States.

OBSERVATIONS ON THE CONTEST WITH AMERICA.

London, November 15, 1776.

When I see friends and foes veering about with every momentary event in publick dangers, I am sure that fixed principles of judgment are wanting. The union of a foreign with a civil war, where the success of each separately would be doubtful, is a period so portentous that I assume that liberty of sentiment which every wise State ought to cultivate. I shall speak, therefore, of our prospects, appealing to history for those events and situations in civil wars in which private experience may seem wanting to us.

I. The probability and issue of the civil war (which I shall first notice) must be first estimated from various considerations.

1. The degree of determination in the insurgents is the first of them. It has appeared, then, to a people, free and wise as ourselves, that without hope of relaxation, we have attempted discretional taxes, standing armies, the subversion of their governments at will, the corruption of justice, and the creation of novel and harassing offices. It has appeared to them that to support these purposes we lay waste their country, destroy their trade and shipping, call in mercenaries, invite the revenge of slaves, and authorize allies who massacre even women and children. It has appeared to them that we now govern by the formidable principle of our fears; checking population, denying privileges, and preparing an enemy of hostile politicks and religion, through contiguous countries, too rich and extensive for the free. Such are the grievances and apprehensions for which we are to calculate the resentments; and since, compared with the people, (I speak advisedly,) the motives fall short of none that ever animated a revolt, in the same measure will be their determination. Though contempt were not shown for their manners and courage, nor threats to their religion, personal passions necessarily complicate with the publick, and the spirit of a people reaches far greater extremities than are ever seen in private strifes.

2. Their courage is the next point. Because a people have been in circumstances too comfortable to feel the inducements which usually fill armies; because a few militia (crowded with European substitutes and used to woods) has seemed at times bashful upon regular service; because farmers and tradesmen have shunned the folly of duels; and their mobs, like other mobs, have dared less than they threatened, the Americans have been called cowards. It is often, that upon high authority, a free nation has been held wanting in spirit, but never have they been proved so. I will believe in history rather than in courtiers, particularly when the mistakes of courtiers have made a part of that history.

3. What, then, is their discipline and skill? I answer, that the business of a soldier is, in general, simple. Idle, even to a proverb, he rarely takes it as a science; and in practice, unless in sieges or in parties, (whatever preparation he may have undergone,) few have been engaged in more than two or three actions. For proof, how quickly does an army renovate itself? How many and how long are the intervals of peace, wounds, sickness, keeping garrison and quarters? And in this profession, experience is got only in proportion to the chance of not surviving it. While the Americans have the same system of war and are free, intelligent, and capable of fatigue, though no revolution could at once make them polite or learned, they may at once be made military. Many are the examples. In fact, never had successful revolt more time to ripen. They have waited eighteen months for their enemy in the field; subordination fast settling itself, and every recruit found a ready-made soldier. They will not advance the less, because they think themselves ignorant; and as no lessons are better taught than those of adversity, the errours (errours not fatal on their side and on their plan) of one campaign will be corrected in the next. Action purging away their bad officers and conduct, and "every nation profiting in that it most intendeth;" like the Dutch, they may at last give new improvements to war. Those who are wise, know that "affairs make men;" and that in times of danger, and in Republicks, merit is always pressed forwards, in preference of alliance or of wealth.

4. Their numbers (admitting apostacy) are still sufficient for their cause. They count a people equal to one fourth of our own, and defend with the whole force in their country; while we attack with only that force which we can support out of it. The miseries of invasive war rest chiefly upon commercial nations. Hercules prevailed not over Antæus, till he kept him aloof from his parent soil. They are near their wives, and we know have increased even in war.

5. But to consider their possible means. The half of any society may provide food enough for the whole; that other half (amounting to at least a million) may supply recruits, arms, clothing, and other necessaries. Their zeal has already made rapid efforts towards this distribution, and every new distress will accelerate it. Nothing is easier than for a people (like the world, or like China) to live from within itself. Making arms is the work of a clumsy Russian or Swede, manufacturing powder the business of an hour's teaching; and if they cannot weave wool enough, they will find warmth enough in the skin. Those who thought that a maritime people, with five hundred leagues of stormy coast, could want these supplies, had never read the history of smuggling or despair. Furor arma ministrat. Giving up their trade and luxuries was a measure of peace; or, in other words, (and to show how little the history of quiet times can assist us,) they began the war with distresses which would have forced any common war to a conclusion. But setting aside the profits drawn from our expenses and solid coin, their privateering brings a clear balance of that gain, which formed the naval power of the Dutch. It is now their only trade; and

6. Their situation commands the richest source of our revenue—our commerce with the West-Indies. Their other advantages of situation are, their being placed three thousand miles distant, across an ocean, with coasts boisterous, foggy, and at times inaccessible; so that a despatch cannot be received from thence under four weeks, nor a fleet returned under ten; making together three months and a half in favourable seasons. Their country is, moreover, fifteen hundred miles long, and of indefinite breadth, filled with woods and passes, having few roads and only one river navigable to the sea* up the richer country. Or in other words, we are doomed to infinite delays, difficult carriage, immense magazines, (with entrepôts, garrisons, and convoys,) perpetual ambuscades, the distant division of our forces, and only a partial application of the regular conduct of war. And all this, without mention of the devouring expense, and the novelty of the climate to the north and to the south!

7. But it is here time to think whether a reconciliation is hopeless. Let me ask, then, shall we resign our supremacy,† our standing army by which to preserve it, or our attempts to make them weaker? If we do not, either of these causes singly is sufficient to confirm a revolt or to renew it. But further, shall we change our Ministers or Parliament, court favourites or counsels? Is it as easy to satisfy them, as formerly; now, when their suspicions are alive and wounds sore; now, Britons have become strangers in the land, and their younger men, instead of affection, are educated in hatred and horrour? Have not too many tasted the sweets of power, and does not its rotation promise it to more? Was there ever a contest that had more pride to animate it? All Europe for spectators, and nations more numerous than those of Europe to take their fate from it; in fine, when in the midst of awful dangers, I see deliberations to encounter greater; when the turns not of war only, but of negotiations were foreseen; and when individuals have effected the necessary revolutions in their families and manners, and deserted their professions for arms; I am sure, that as independence was not lightly taken up, so neither will it be lightly laid down. But our terms; what are they? After tricks and disappointments, and the sword of strife drawn for death, they looked for terms affectionate and specifick. But the ultimatum (its reserve for supremacy excepted) concealed at home; declarations issued with niggardliness abroad; and at last a revisal proffered, which may carry duplicity and exaggeration, as well as relief, have proved that we wish to give nothing; and defer surrender, only that accidents may relieve us. Rumours of peace, like those of war, will be frequent, and the most sincere negotiations may become fruitless; but can such terms amuse them? Yet by the help of them they may chance to amuse us.

8. Well, then, we must conquer them! A whole campaign nearly spent in sending a force from Europe to their frontiers; and two such successful movements of the Howes, producing only a few mixed deserters, are not encouraging circumstances. Two victories, and the war not ended, or rather, not begun! When Hannibal had slain almost half the citizens of Rome, he saw the walls of their city without possessing it. But America has found her Fabius, before she fought her Cannæ. Delay and defence are proved her system. Yet must all our chances be prosperous, because the first drawn are prizes? The Prince of Orange's first Army was first dispersed in the first campaign, and Alva erected a trophy for the rebellion he had quieted. The State's first coin bore a ship without oars or sails, buffeting amidst waves, with the inscription, "Where the Fates will drive us, is unknown." Maurice's first successes in the open field (though full of youth, enterprise, and talents) were not till thirteen years after assuming his first command. Yet, in spite of intermediate jealousies and divisions, in spite of defeat and despair, of murmurs and refused contingents; after subjecting themselves to various foreigners, twice submitting to Philip, and almost annual negotiations; the poorest and least populous provinces sat down in independence and peace, the first nation in the world for their size. If I am told that they had support, I answer that they gave as well as received it; and perhaps, on the whole, (as some have thought,) rather suffered than benefited from allies. And is America (though less needing it) without hope? America, to whom a diversion in Europe becomes relief—cheap, unequivocal, and safe? America is never conquered till she desponds; and when she most desponds, the mere failing of advantage on our side may reanimate her to resistance and hope.

9. But grant them conquered: how shall we maintain them? Setting aside the danger at home, of turning from trade to dominion, and changing the poises of the State; the fatal properties also of mercenaries,* and the risk of distant Generals forming systems for themselves, (I think in one of them we already see a spirit that may warn us,) do we consider the extent of the country we are attempting? An extent, which as it unfits it for general conquest, so it does likewise for general possession. But further: "Who gives the power of blood, gives blood." A rape, an insult, (I carry history along with me,) begets revenge; revenge punished begets fresh revenge; and at length somewhere some successful avenger stands forth the beginner of his country's liberty. And this will not happen the later, because the conquerors are encouraged to hatred and contempt, and feel no obligation to observe the laws either of honour or of war. Yet, again: The country must feed these conquerors; but those who bear taxes for themselves, will not bear from those who, by means of them, are able daily, and in the eyes of all, to exult in their oppression. Here, then, is a new motive to enrage; and were all other pretexts wanting, liberty, says Machiavel, liberty to a nation once free, is always a pretext to revolt. But there is yet a deeper alarm than all behind. At present, on this side the Mississippi, they have one hundred and seventy acres of land per head, where we, in England, have only seven; and marriages amidst plenty becoming general, early and productive, they must soon outgrow our force. Oppression may retard their progress, while it increases their hatred; but grow they must, though a Pharaoh were their despot. Can we destroy (for who can watch a wilderness) their axes and spades, or make the womb barren? Or can we attempt Spartan cruelty in that country, where they may fly from or subdue it? Massacres and extirpations often succeed against victors; but unless partially, gradually, or in small districts, never against a settled people. To transplant the natives, would be taking the lioness from her den. Our faith in the proposed influence of corruption is so natural, that we forget we are to apply it to a community of separate independent individuals, under no general influence, but of their own feelings and opinions. They are neither led by powerful families, nor great officers in church or in State; the governments to be corrupted are not one, but many; and luxury, besides its late proscription, is of slow progress among solitary farmers. And if military Colonies (hitherto tried only on limited countries, or against an inferiour people) are trusted to; I answer, from the changes in Canada, that they keep pace with settlers, only in proportion as they are not military. Should they succeed according to hope, (and retain their courage in that climate, for generations!) how long would soldiers fear the power of Great Britain? But if computed at only an eighth part of the conquered, how immense must be their numbers? And where can such who are worthy of confidence, be collected as suddenly, as they will suddenly be

* Hudson's river. The rest are obstructed by falls or rapids.—See The Topographical Description of America.

† See the King's later speeches, and his answer to the last London petition.

* "As for mercenary forces, all examples show, that whatsoever estate or prince doth rest upon them, he may spread his feathers for a time, but he will mew them soon after."—Bacon's Essay on Empire. Machiavel has said many good things on this subject in the 12th and 13th chapter of his Prince. Hitherto we have used mercenaries under particular circumstances, with safety, but not without inconvenience. We now employ them in their worst form, and must look to the consequence.

wanted?* To know from history the difficulties of their situation, call the natives only Picts, Indians, Tartars, or Banditti; or rather call them Irish; and recollect that Ireland, a compact limited country at our very gates, with a colony six hundred years old, requires twelve thousand land forces chiefly to preserve its internal police. And were all done that is impossible, how should we more benefit the manufactures of England, than by a peaceable trade?

But I return to a subject more popular and better understood.

II. What, then, are the prospects of a foreign war?

1. When I find that France and England have been settled enemies for seven centuries; that each has in turn subdued the other's country; each encouraged the others rebellions and divisions; and that parity of strength and difference of manners have made their jealousy, aversion, and contempt, hereditary; I have events enough before me to mark the general temper of France. And whatever of those national irritations Spain wants towards England,† are made up by the personal resentments of its King. These dispositions are now particularly exasperated by defeats in late wars, and concessions in late treaties; by the recollection of the petty States we have protected from them; and the youth or folly (so liable to that first errour of Princes, the use of power) now seated upon these thrones. What, therefore, will be—

2. The supposed interest and aim of these kingdoms in the present situation of our affairs? Apparently to seize the moment of our weakness, for recovering their losses and their pride. New conquests and new commerce rise to tempt them, together with the destruction of our navy in its sources; and since Britain and America when united, threatened to overwhelm them, they may weaken each by expense, and by the loss of the other's alliance. The anxiety of France for ages back to possess America, shows her sense of its connection with Europe, and with power. If America, a peaceful Republic, is so formidable separately, how dreadful must it be when in continual connection with England!

3. It will now help us if we consider what has been the late conduct of our enemies. Did they not first cajole Britain on one hand by reprobating rebels and professing peace; and on the other hand, supply America with arms and intelligence, encouragement and trade? And now when we seem irrecoverably separated from our Colonies, and cover no longer necessary, we find large armaments every where on foot. They had no other line of policy to pursue, supposing their intentions hostile. An earlier part might have alarmed Britain into concessions, a later part might have disheartened America.

4. If it be objected that our late successes will disconcert their schemes, I reply, that they want those misconceptions which are to magnify them into more than the common fate of war, and seem able enough to distinguish between the primary events there and their consequence. It is enough, perhaps, for the common enemy that the civil war has paired off more than one hundred thousand men from our force, and a still larger proportion of our revenue; and that the privateers and frigates, which distressed their trade in former wars, are now employed in the mutual destruction of our own. At all events, this objection will last no longer than the fact does on which it is founded.

But they are too poor for a war we say. And were not we too poor to lose our Colonies? Was not Philip too poor for England's invasion; Philip, with debts whose interest exceeded the capital, troops mutinying for want of pay, and a civil war in the Low Countries raging beyond his power to suppress? Our enemies are not too poor to do us mischief, however it may distress themselves; and who rests his safety on the chance of wisdom prevailing over passion! Of the same rank is the argument arising from the bad example their interference may have to their own colonies. It ought to prove (contrary to all fact and all rule) that discords are never fomented in rival States; rebels never supported, never countenanced from without. As to France, she possesses none but sugar colonies, whose slaves unfit them for independence. And Spain does not quarrel with England: her rupture is with Portugal, and she pretends old grounds for it. But who ever heard of a war being stopped for want of a reason different from the true one? Well, but Portugal is to be given up. And does France then arm to assist Spain only, or herself? (for Portugal cannot be meaned for France.) What are the East and West-Indies, Hanover, and Holland, Minorca and Gibraltar,* but marks for the ambitious? A war invited by weakness is not put off because cessions increase that weakness. When the Saxons made threatening profitable to the Danes, they encouraged its repetition, and still became the victims of invasion. That we shall have peace, because the Minister protests it, is no proof till Ministers feel themselves obliged to use sincerity with the publick. There is a thousand reasons for the Minister's silence. But armaments are beyond assurances, and ought to make us doubt at home, as he doubts abroad.

5. The events of a foreign war, should it take place, are found in the history of past times; the publick stocks, so insensible to an American war, have learned to anticipate and feel them. A funded debt increasing even in peace; the whole regular force in England inferiour to a garrison, (the garrison General Washington dislodged from Boston;) the Irish troops some thousands below their peace complement; the navy not manned; our militia not imbodied; our distresses in trade now begun; and no compromise with our Colonies. May God protect us! for our danger will be most imminent.

Such, then, is the opinion I have of our country's prospects. When I see how lightly such ideas prevail with others, I am at times inclined to think myself misled; but if this be not prophecy, I mistake if it is not history.

Some readers may suppose me insane; others will recollect me only till the next Gazette victory; but I trust there is here and there a prudent man scattered through the crowd, who will feel himself touched with these arguments amidst the shouts of phrensy, and say with me, Nemo felix dici potest ante obitum.

ARTHUR LEE TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

London, November 15th, 1776.

Dear Sir: The indispensable business of my profession has hitherto prevented me from complying, as I wished, with the desire of your very obliging favours.

You will have seen, by the proceedings of Parliament, how decided the King is in prosecuting the American war. For, in truth, he alone is Minister, and his will governs with absolute sway. At the same time the powers which he has given to Lord Howe appear, from his declaration in America, to be most ample. That, however, I rather attribute to what is deemed the art of government, than to any pacifick or redressing intention. We can never forget the perfidy of making Lord Botetourt declare to the Assembly, that the revenue acts should be repealed, when in fact no such thing was intended or done; and the Secretary of State being ordered to tell the agents of Congress that his Majesty had received their petition very graciously, and from the importance of it would lay it before his two Houses of Parliament, when, at the same time, the same Secretary wrote, by his Majesty's commands, to all the Governours of America, denominating that very Congress an illegal meeting, their grievances pretended, and ordering them to prevent their meeting again. These facts are too decisive to leave a doubt of the credit that is due to the promises of this Court, and, at this very time, they are abusing the Howes for negotiating; the language of Court being, "We sent them to use their hands, and they are employing their heads."

The Rockingham part of the Opposition are determined upon seceding from Parliament, in which Lord Shelburne, Lord Camden, and the Duke of Grafton refuse to accompany them for two reasons: 1st, Because the feelings of the publick are not high enough for so decisive a measure; and,

*New-England alone would require one hundred thousand people. The proportion I have stated is certainly not too great, as we find from the numbers necessary to awe the spiritless and ignorant African in the West-Indies.

†Towards Portugal (England's Province, as it has been called) all of them subsist.

*O si angulus ille—qui nunc denormat agellum.

2dly, Because the others will not agree to make the great fundamental abuse of the Constitution, as well as the temporary misconduct of Government, the groundwork of that secession. In a word, because they will not declare that the object of the measure is to obtain the abolition of corruption, and not merely the change of those who minister it. This schism will, however, reduce opposition so as to leave the Court at perfect ease from that quarter.

I thank you for the magnanimity of your sentiments towards our friends, on the supposition that the late occurrences are events of consequence. I am by no means of that opinion. After the affair of Long-Island, the loss of New-York was inevitable; but is not the successful army still orced and kept at bay, by that over which it is supposed to have obtained these decisive advantages? Could any one expect more from a new-raised army than that it should force the disciplined invaders, almost equal in numbers, and much superiour in equipments, to win its way by inches? Where, then, is the ground for despair, when our friends are looking the enemy in the face, and he does not dare to attack them? Of two things, sir, you may be satisfied, that the advantage on Long-Island was obtained neither by the superiority of the troops nor of the General, but by his having bribed the officer who commanded the first pass, who giving up his post, without suffering a gun to be fired, enabled Clinton to march in the night and take the left wing of the Americans, so as to put them between two fires, from much superiour numbers, with an immense train of artillery. The other fact is, that the officer who brought the last despatches declares that the American lines upon New-York Island cannot be forced, but with a certainty of so much loss as cannot be hazarded. General Howe will therefore try his former art of treachery and corruption, from which alone I am satisfied we have any thing to fear.

The talk of the Congress having sent Deputies to Staten-Island to negotiate with Lord Howe, is not, that I know of, authenticated. Adieu, ARTHUR LEE.

SILAS DEANE TO C. W. F. DUMAS.

DEAR SIR: I am still indebted to you for your favours of the 29th ultimo and the 15th instant, to which I should earlier have replied, but for a slight indisposition, and much chagrin at some unfavourable news. However, I am recovering in health, with which my spirits return, and I keep ever in my mind the motto de Republicâ nil desperandum. I counted the cost when I entered the lists, and balanced private fortune, ease, leisure, the sweets of domestick society, and life itself in vain, against the liberties of my country; the latter instantly predominated, and I have nothing to complain of, though much to grieve at, occasioned by the miscarriage or delay of my full powers for open and publick application. I sent you a memoir on American commerce, and wish to know your sentiments on that subject. The vessel detained at Bilboa has been dismissed, and the Commissary reprimanded for her detention, and ordered to lend the captain every assistance he needed. This is a great point gained. I must suspend saying any thing on the proposals of officers for entering the service of the American States, as also any thing further on the other artists I wrote about, until I receive intelligence, which I hourly have long expected, and which I think cannot possibly be far off, as I despatched a vessel early in September, express, with an account of my situation, and that of affairs here; besides, a war is evidently at hand here in Europe.

Mr. Carmichael warmly described the kind reception you gave him, and your zeal for the interest of the United States, and friendship for me, which he might have spared, as every one of your letters demonstrates the sincerity and disinterestedness of your friendship, as well for my country as for myself; and as you value your being the first plenipotentiary of the American States, I equally value myself on your friendship and correspondence in the part I have the honour of acting with you in this important scene, and am happy to think, that to the present or coming actors in, or spectators of, the foundation and rise of this State in a new world, our correspondence will show that our sentiments ever coincided. Be not discouraged, my dear friend, America must come off in the end triumphant, and under new and unprecedented laws, liberty, and commerce, be the happy asylum for the sons of men in future ages. Whatsoever disappointments I may meet with, I never will despair of my country, for which I shall count it my glory to suffer all things, if it receive any advantage therefrom, and if not, I shall at least enjoy the pleasure, the unalienable pleasure, resulting from a consciousness of having done all in my power for its happiness, and connectedly for the happiness of mankind in general.

The temper of the times is in favour of America, and it is now as fresh and striking an object to Europe as when first discovered and called the New World. It is among my principal mortifications, that I cannot have a few days at least personal conversation with you; but the situation of affairs here will not allow of a moment's absence, which Mr. Carmichael, I doubt not, explained to you. With persons in publick or private, who are friendly, yet equally apprehensive of consequences, willing to aid, yet timid, and at the same time not well acquainted and informed, the task you are sensible is as laborious as delicate, and at a time when events bear down arguments, one cannot be released a moment from the closest attention to every thing rising real or imaginary. Your lady's kind preparations for me, Mr. Carmichael most affectionately mentioned, and I will, life permitting, the moment I can quit Paris, in person acknowledge, as far as words are capable of expressing, how sensible I am of this more than hospitable kindness, since to provide for and receive the stranger on arrival is the duty of hospitality, but here is a work of supererogation, and though no Roman Catholick myself, yet so catholick as not the less to love and esteem generous actions on all occasions. My most respectful and affectionate regards, with my ardent wishes for your mutual felicity, attend you.

I am, &c.,

SILAS DEANE.

P. S. Pray, for what sum per annum can a young man be educated at Leyden, adhering to the strictest economy?

GENERAL LEWIS TO BENJAMIN HARRISON.

Williamsburg, November 15, 1776.

SIR: I take the liberty of enclosing you a copy of a few lines I send to the War Office relative to forage. If it should be denied to the officers which you see listed, it will greatly distress them, or even lay some of them under the necessity of disposing of their horses; and how they are to do their duty on foot, is more than I can devise. I beg you to take the trouble of having the matter put out of doubt and making me acquainted with the determination on that head.

We have no news in this quarter, but what I believe to be forged and propagated by Tories. Yesterday they had General Washington mortally wounded, and twelve thousand of his Army killed.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

AND'W LEWIS, Brig. General.

To Colonel Harrison, Esq., Member of Congress.

GENERAL LEWIS TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Colonel William Finnie, Deputy Quartermaster-General, tells me that the Quartermaster-General informed him, that forage is not to be issued to any, except General Officers. The duty necessary to be performed by the officers abovementioned, lays them under the necessity of using horses, and keeping them constantly in readiness; therefore it's absolutely necessary they be allowed forage.

I wish for the determination of the honourable Congress on this head as soon as possible.

I am, &c., ANDREW LEWIS, Brig. General.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO RICHARD PETERS.

Annapolis, 15 November, 1776.

SIR: We are honoured by your favour of the 8th instant, and upon the strictest inquiry cannot find that any Indians of the Six Nations are detained in Maryland contrary to their inclinations. Two or three strangers came and joined the Nanticoke Indians some time ago, who still remain with them, satisfied and well treated. Therefore the idea cannot be founded in truth, and we are sorry it should create any uneasiness among the Indians.

In compliance with the request of the Board of War, we enclose you a list of the officers of Continental troops raised in this State, with the ranks, dates of commissions, and number of privates, which we hope upon examination will be found right.

We send you enclosed a bill of lading for some powder arrived in Captain Hill, at Baltimore-Town, which we have requested Mr. Isaac Vanbibber to have care taken of till you give orders about it. The bill of lading and letter to Thomas Mumford, Esq., came under cover to us. Please to forward the letter.

We are, your most obedient servants.

To the Board of War, Philadelphia.

DORCHESTER COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE TO THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Committee of Observation, Dorchester County, November 15th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In obedience to an order received from the late Convention, we had several evidences before us, whom we examined concerning certain depredations and outrages committed by Captain Richard Andrew, of Caroline County, and a number of people whom he headed, part of them inhabitants of that County, and others inhabitants of this County; and on evidence it appeared that they searched the dwelling-house and out-houses of Mr. James Sulivane for salt; that finding only five or six bushels there, they took none of that, but proceeded to Colonel James Murray's, on Hunting-Creek, which is also in this County, and there got from Mr. Murray the key of a house in which some salt was, and took from thence, by their account, fourteen and a half bushels of salt, for which they offered to pay Mrs. Murray fourteen and one-half dollars; that she refused to take the money, on which they left that sum in the house, and went off with the salt.

On receiving this information we ordered the evidence to appear again on a certain day, to which day we summoned those of the aforesaid company who reside in this County, and appeared to have been the most active in the outrage, to appear to answer. Some of them appeared agreeably to summons, and behaved orderly, and offered some excuses for the non-attendance of the others; under these circumstances, and as some of the most material witnesses did not attend, we postponed the hearing of the matter till Wednesday next, when we ordered the parties charged and witnesses to attend us, which they promised to do. The parties charged came on Wednesday, but, contrary to our expectation, they came headed by Captain Andrew, and upwards of one hundred armed men to support them; and the company behaved so riotous and disorderly that it was out of our power to proceed in the business, and their coming so unexpectedly it was impossible for us to collect a force sufficient to stop them before they returned in the evening. Many of the men swear they will support what they have done at the hazard of their lives, as it seems they have associated to do, and by their declarations against the present measures of the country, and in favour of the King, show themselves entirely disaffected to our cause.

If these men were all we had to contend with, it is probable our Militia might be sufficient, but from the best information we can obtain, we are of opinion they have a very formidable number to protect them from Caroline, Worcester, and Sussex in Delaware; and as (since these outrages) several companies in this County have taken salt nearly in the same way, which will of course stop them from opposing them, if they do not join them, we are unanimously of the opinion that it is very improbable there can be in General Hooper's brigade a sufficient number of the Militia raised, who would on the present occasion take up arms to suppress and stop the progress of these rioters and their adherents, and bring the offenders to justice; and we therefore think it most prudent to decline making the attempt, as a failure would be very detrimental to our cause, and give strength and spirits to their party and friends. And have sent this by our express hired for the purpose, to inform your Honours of what we have done, and what we apprehend is our real situation; and we would beg leave to submit to your judgment whether it would not be proper, under our present circumstances, to send men to bring these offenders to justice; who, having neither connexions or acquaintance with them, may be relied on, and will probably much better go through the business. It is becoming a matter of great importance, and we are apprehensive if it is not soon checked, will probably go a great way towards destroying the peace and good order of the greatest part of this Shore.

We cannot omit the opportunity (in behalf of those people of our County who have yet remained quiet under their great distress for salt) to inform your Honours that the want of that absolute necessary of life is so great in this County that many families for months past have not had a spoonful of salt. Others have got a quart or a few handfuls by begging from those who could badly spare any.

The people hearing of quantities of salt going to Baltimore, have some of them applied there for relief, but have very few of them got any, it being generally taken for the inhabitants of the Western Shore, before those this way can get there to apply. Under these circumstances they are much distressed, and if these unhappy people find they have no chance of being supplied equally with those on the other Shore, we know not what may be the consequence; perhaps they may at length grow desperate rather than perish. We therefore are moved in pity towards our distressed County men to apply to your Honours for such relief as may be in your power to grant them; and as we hear there has lately arrived vessels at Baltimore with quantities of salt, if your Honours would be pleased to order that a part of that or any other salt that may arrive be bought and sent to us for the relief of the inhabitants of this County, we will engage to be answerable for the price set on it, and will undertake to have it delivered at the same price as far as it will go in small quantities to the distressed people; this being done we are persuaded it will not only be of great advantage to the people, but that they, seeing measures are taken to relieve their wants, will have their minds made easy and will go on much more spirited and cheerful in doing their duty in their respective stations than they now do.

We shall be obliged to your Honours for an answer by the return of our express, and are, with great esteem, gentlemen, your very obedient servants.

Signed by order of the Committee:

JOHN DICKINSON, Chairman.

The honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

JAMES MURRAY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

November 15th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Thomas Sparrow was applying to me about taking a sum of money to deliver out occasionally for such recruits as he should procure. It did not suit me, as I should be out of town most of this fall and winter probably. I applied to Major Thomas Muse, of Cambridge, who said he would take charge of it, and deliver it out agreeable to such directions as your Board should give or send him.

The Major, if a stranger to your Board, is a gentleman of fortune.

I am your very humble servant,

JAMES MURRAY.

Honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

GENERAL HOOPER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Cambridge, 15th November, 1776.

SIR: Some disorders having been committed in this town on Wednesday last, by a number of people assembled together for the purpose of protecting those lately concerned in robbing the inhabitants of this County of their salt, I have judged it necessary, with the advice of the Field Officers of the two battalions in this County, to order out a part of the Militia, of one hundred men, to guard the magazine of ammunition lodged here; out of whom I mean to have fifty of them, most to be depended on, selected for the purpose of guarding the magazine while the present emergency requires it, and I shall continue them on guard, if the necessity should still exist, unless otherwise ordered by your Board.

And as it will he necessary to get some provisions to subsist the guard while stationed here, I must request you will send by the bearer fifty pounds for that purpose, for the expenditure of which I shall account with your Board.

I am, with respect, sir, your most humble servant,

HENRY HOOPER.

To the honourable the President of the Council of Safety of Maryland, at Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE SOUTHERN STATES.

Philadelphia, November 15th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Since despatching the express yesterday, with intelligence that a fleet of above one hundred vessels had left New-York, the Congress have received a letter from General Greene containing further accounts, a copy of which, in obedience to their commands, I now enclose. It appears from this information that Lord Dunmore is to take the command of a fleet bound for the southward, said to be for South-Carolina; but as it is by no means certain against which of the Southern States the expedition is designed, it is highly necessary you should be on your guard. I shall not detain the express only to add that you will make such use of this intelligence as the importance of it requires.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Convention of Maryland.

P. S. Since the foregoing Congress have passed a resolve respecting the disposition of the troops in North-Carolina, which I enclose, and to which I beg leave to refer you, as also to the resolve respecting the inlistment.

[Same to Assembly of Virginia, Convention of North-Carolina, Assembly of South-Carolina.]

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE EASTERN STATES.

Philadelphia, November 15th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In consequence of sundry votes of the Assembly of Massachusetts-Bay being laid before Congress, they have come to the enclosed resolves, wherein you will perceive they have disapproved of the measure of increasing in any one State the bounty given by Congress, on the reinlistment of the troops, as having a manifest tendency to lay the foundation of discontent in the Army. They have, however, upon revising the resolution of the 16th September, agreed to engage for three years such of the soldiers as may decline inlisting during the continuance of the war.

In the present exigency of our affairs every measure should be adopted that will assist in filling up the Army, the completing of which is an object of the utmost importance. The Congress have therefore determined that those troops who will engage for three years shall be entitled to receive the same bounty and pay with those who inlist during the war, except the one hundred acres of land, which are to be given only to those who will inlist without limitation of time.

As the resolves of Congress for raising eighty-eight battalions for the defence of the American States was positive that they should be engaged during the war, General Washington, in a conference with Mr. Partridge, did not think himself at liberty to consent to the troops being inlisted on any other terms until the sense of Congress could be obtained in the matter.

[N. B. The foregoing paragraph was inserted only in the letter to the Massachusetts-Bay.]

It being a matter of the highest importance that you should be informed of the resolves herewith transmitted, as soon as possible, in order that the service may not be injured by any of the soldiers declining to engage during the war who would otherwise be willing to inlist for a limited time, I have forwarded the enclosed by express; and have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Assembly of New-Hampshire.

[The same to Assembly of Massachusetts-Bay, Assembly Rhode-Island, Assembly Connecticut.]

BOARD OF WAR TO LANCASTER (PENN.) COMMITTEE.

War Office, November 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Board of War have directed me to let you know they have received information that many of the British prisoners of war residing in different parts of the United States are not only extremely insolent, but are guilty of practices of a very dangerous tendency. They are not satisfied with procuring and conveying intelligence secretly, but are constantly spreading false rumours with the design of damping the spirit of the friends to their country. This is not only contrary to their parole, but may be attended with consequences fatal to our cause. You will therefore please strictly to inquire into the matter, and confine any British prisoner who is found speaking on any political subject relative to the dispute between Great Britain and the United States, spreading false news, speaking in derogation or otherwise injuring the credit of the Continental currency, or conveying any intelligence whatsoever. Many of the gentlemen have behaved unexceptionably, yet too many hold themselves but slightly bound by any engagements they have entered into.

I am, your very obedient servant,

RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

Committee of Lancaster.

PETITION OF JOSEPH COWPERTHWAITE.

To the Honourable Continental Congress:

Messrs. Lowry and Wharton, Commissaries, having appointed me as agent to take care of all the salt that 's allotted them from the Council of Safety of this State for the use of the Army only, and to cure beef and pork for that use, and all that I have received of them is eight hundred bushels, which has been sent to their different agents in the country for curing provisions for that purpose. I have now on hand between four and five hundred cattle, that they have bought and paid for, and no grass for them. I beg to know from your honourable body what I must do.

From your humble servant,

JOS. COWPERTHWAITE.

Philadelphia, November 15th, 1776.

COUNCIL OF SAFETY OF PENNSYLVANIA TO BOARD OF WAR.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, 15th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Generals, on viewing the ground between this city and Chester, judge it highly necessary to have a number of light cannon, mounted on traveling carriages, provided immediately. If the Board of War shall think proper to give an order for the eight six-pounders belonging to the sloop Hornet, to be delivered to Colonel Mifflin for that purpose, this Board will order them to be mounted as soon as possible.

By order of Council:

THOS. WHARTON, JUN., President.

To the honourable Board of War.

PHILADELPHIA COUNTY COMMITTEE.

Philadelphia, November 15, 1776.

The members of the Committee of the County of Philadelphia are requested to meet at ten o'clock on Friday, the 29th instant, at the Conestogoe Wagon, in Market Street, in order to receive the salt allotted for the said County by the Council of Safety, and to proportion it to the several townships. Those townships where no Committee-men have been chosen, are desired to appoint proper persons to attend at the same time. The townships also that have neglected to apply for their proportions of Fisher and Shewell's salt, are to take notice that unless they make application on the above-mentioned day, they will be excluded from said proportions.

---

JOHN JAMISON TO LANCASTER (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

November 15th, 1776.

SIR: Please to send by the bearer, John Black, the quota of salt coming to the township of Mountjoy, with such directions for the division of it as you think necessary. The said John Black will pay for the salt.

We are, sir, your very humble servants,

JOHN JAMISON,
ABRM. SCOTT.

To William Atlee, Chairman of the Standing Committee for the County of Lancaster.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

General Greene's Quarters, November 15, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: On Wednesday evening I received the favour of your letter of the 8th instant, in consequence of which I stopped the flag that was going in with the ladies you mention, pointing out to them the necessity [of the measure, and recommending them to write to their husbands and connexions, to obtain General Howe's assurances for the release of Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Robinson and her children, with their baggage, as the condition on which they will be permitted to go in themselves. These terms I can only extend to Mrs. Barrow and Mrs. Kempe, who had never obtained my leave. Mrs. Watts had, and my promise that she should go in. The whole, however, were prepared to go, when the letter reached Newark. The mode I have adopted seems most likely, and the only proper one, to procure the enlargement of our ladies, which I wish for much.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To the honourable Board of War.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE BOARD OF WAR.

Hackinsack, November 15th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Having given my promise to General Howe, on his application, that Peter Jack, a servant of Major Stewart, who was sent to Philadelphia with the Waldeckers and other prisoners, and who has nothing to do in the military line, should be returned to his master, agreeable to the usage of war in such cases, I must take the liberty to request the favour of you to have him conveyed to General Greene by the earliest opportunity, that he may be forwarded to his master in compliance with my promise.

I also wish that you would have all the British prisoners collected that you conveniently can, and sent to me as soon as possible, with the Hessian prisoners, that I may exchange them. The return of the latter will, I think, be attended with many salutary consequences; but should it be made without that of a large proportion of other troops, it will carry the marks of design and occasion precautions to be taken to prevent the ends we have in view.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Lee, four o'clock.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed you have a letter from Colonel Magaw; the contents will require your Excellency's attention.

I have directed Colonel Magaw to defend the place until he hears from me.

I have ordered General Heard's brigade to hasten on. I shall go to the Island soon.

I am, dear sir, your Excellency's obedient servant,

N. GREENE.

To his Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters.

Mount Washington, 15th November, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: A flag of truce came out just now from King's Bridge. The Adjutant-General was at the head of it. I sent down Colonel Swoope. The Adjutant-General would hardly give two hours for an alternative between surrendering at discretion, or every man being put to the sword. He waits for an answer. I shall send a proper one. You'll, I dare say, do what is best. We are determined to defend the post or die.

ROB'T MAGAW, Colonel Com'g.

To General Greene.

---

15th November, 1776.

SIR: If I rightly understood the purport of your message from General Howe, communicated to Colonel Swoope, this post is to be immediately surrendered or the garrison put to the sword. I rather think it a mistake than a settled resolution in General Howe to act a part so unworthy of himself and the British nation.

But give me leave to assure his Excellency that, actuated by the most glorious cause that mankind ever fought in, I am determined to defend this post to the very last extremity.

ROB'T MAGAW.

To the Adjutant-General of the British Army.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL.

At a General Court-Martial held near Peekskill by order of Major-General Heath, on the fifteenth day of November, Anno Domini 1776. Colonel Pawling, President.

William Hitchcock, Judge Advocate.

Members:

|---|---|
| Lieut. Colonel Moulton, | Captain Hyet, |
| Major Van Rensselaer, | Captain Folkner, |
| Captain Moor, | Captain Hermans, |
| Captain Allen, | Captain Wood, |
| Captain Scott, | Captain Delavan, |
| Captain Wool, | Captain Swartwout. |

Lieutenant Benjamin Adams, of Captain Pettibone's company, Colonel Willis's regiment, charged by Major Holdridge with having deserted his regiment on the 26th October last, when at Fort Independence: The prisoner on his arraignment pleads Not guilty.

Captain Mills, of said regiment, being duly sworn, deposeth: That the day before they left the fort, at the request of the prisoner, he applied to the Major to obtain liberty for him to go home; that it was refused; that he saw no more of the prisoner after that till he saw him with the regiment in this place; that the prisoner when he asked permission was very unwell, and then upon the sick returns; that General Parsons a few days before had ordered all the sick to go, or be conveyed away; that he informed the prisoner of this order, who said he would not go just then; that he does not know whether the prisoner did or did not go afterwards in consequence of said order, or whether he did or did not obtain leave of absence after the first request; that he has not the least reason to suppose the Lieutenant meant to desert, but that he went to recruit his health, and that he returned voluntarily to the regiment; and lastly, that the said Lieutenant has always maintained the character of a very good soldier, and that he has been the main support of the company.

The Court, after the most mature and full consideration of the evidence, are of opinion that the prisoner is not guilty of the charge alleged against him, and that he be acquitted accordingly. LEVI PAWLING.

Approved: Per W. HEATH, Major-General.

EBENEZER HAZARD TO JOHN MCKESSON.

North-Castle, November 15, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The enemy have got below Dobbs's Ferry; it is said ten thousand have embarked at New-York, and it is supposed they are bound to the West-Indies. A few days ago a few regulars landed a little to the east of Stamford, and stole two cows. A Tory conducted them to his house.

No other news. Your rider never calls upon me now. Enclosed is a paper and Massachusetts Address for Convention. Adieu, EBEN. HAZARD.

To John McKesson, Esq., Fishkill.

General Return of the Forces of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, serving in the Northern Department, under command of the Honourable Major-General GATES.

NATHA'L BUELL, Lieut. Colonel.
JOHN SEDGWICK, Major.

And it is further Resolved, That Walter Scott, Samuel Gardner, Henry Westenhausen, John Duzenbury, Owen Conner, Benjamin Greenman, and Jacob Zimmerman, also have liberty at their own expense to return to their families for the purpose of gaining some sustenance, they first giving their parole to wait on the authority that sent them here for further orders concerning them, and faithfully to return back to Preston within six weeks from this time, unless released by the same authority that ordered their confinement; and also not to do or say any thing against the United States of America during the present war. Not to proceed till the 25th of November instant; to attend on the Governour in their journey; that if any thing happen in the mean time, these orders may be revoked and they returned again to Preston. (Copy given to Benjamin Coit, Esq.)

Voted, To draw on the Pay-Table, in favour of Doctor Joshua Elderkin, for one thousand Pounds, to enable him to purchase Clothing, &c., for this State, and render his account. (Order drawn November 15th, 1776, delivered to Mr. Wales.)

Voted, An approbation of an order drawn by his Honour the Governour, November 9th, 1776, in favour of Captain John Deshon, on the Pay-Table, for two thousand Pounds, and to render his account.

Voted, An approbation of an order drawn by his Honour the Governour, November 9th, 1776, for two thousand Pounds, in favour of Mr. Nathaniel Shaw, Jun., for publick use, and to render his account. (Said order was on the Pay-Table.)

Voted, To approve an order drawn by his Honour the Governour, November 11th, 1776, on Messrs. Elderkin and Wales, in favour of Mr. Nathan Pendleton, for fifty pounds of Powder, at five shillings four pence per pound.

It being represented to this Board, that Mr. John Rapalje, in confinement at Norwich, is destitute of Clothing and necessaries for his support for the approaching season, and that he is desirous of returning to his family to gain the same; and also that he has it in his power to furnish some Connecticut soldiers, imprisoned at New-York, with cash, upon their drawing in his favour on their friends, &c., there, provided he could be suffered to visit his family and estate on Long-Island, which he wishes to do:

Voted and Resolved, That the said Rapalje hath liberty to return to his family on Long-Island, for the purpose above-mentioned, and to remove from thence such of his family as he desires to the town of Norwich, to reside with him, he giving his parole of honour for his faithful return to the Committee of Inspection as soon as he can, within six weeks from the time he goes from Norwich, and that he will not do or say any thing against the United States of America, or give intelligence or advice concerning the affairs or matters of said States, during his absence from Norwich; and he is desired to supply Colonel Samuel Selden, Captain Jonathan Brewster, Lieutenant Nathaniel Gove, Sergeant Roger Coit, Lieutenant Jabez Fitch, and such other prisoners from this State as he can, with cash, &c., upon their friends or some other persons undertaking to answer their bills for the same; he hath also liberty to procure and bring to Judge Jones and others with him in Norwich, such supplies of Clothing and sustenance as they want.

Voted, To give liberty to the Committee of Inspection in Norwich to suffer two Prisoners, residing at Captain Elijah Backus's, to go on their own expense to their respective homes, in the State of New-York, to obtain supplies for their support for the ensuing winter, upon their giving their parole to said Committee not to do or say any thing against the United States of America during the present war, and that they will not give the enemy any intelligence or advice concerning the affairs of said States, or any of them, and that they will return again to the care of the Committee of Norwich within six weeks from this time, unless suffered to remain at home by the same authority who first sent them here.

Voted, To give orders to Colonel Jedediah Elderkin and Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Esq., to go to New-London, and to do every thing in their power to send out the Ship Oliver Cromwell on a cruise, and make report, &c. (Order given November 15th, 1776.)

Voted and Resolved, To appoint Jedediah Elderkin and Nathaniel Wales, Jun., Esquires, to examine into the truth of a representation that Captain Kenedy, of a ship loaded out from New-York with Wheat, bound to France, is manned with captives and prisoners, taken by privateers, and that said Captain Kenedy is of a suspected character, and it is supposed that the said ship and cargo will in all probability fall into the hands of the enemy, said Elderkin and Wales to take such affidavits and other evidence as they think proper and material, and make report to the Governour and Council of Safety, with all convenient speed. (Order given for the above purpose, November 15th, 1776.)

Voted, To give orders to Mr. Brown, of Providence, to deliver to Messrs. Elderkin and Wales what Sulphur they shall want, now in his care, belonging to the Continent, agreeable to the resolve of Congress of the 15th of October in that behalf.

Voted, To give order for a quantity of Cheese, &c., in the hands of Nathan Stedman, said to be engrossed, and to be held, to be proceeded with according to law, against engrossing. (Warrant given November 15th, 1776, directed to the Sheriff of New-London County.)

Doctor Samuel Lee, of Windham, is appointed Surgeon of the Ship Oliver Cromwell, and his two apprentices are appointed second and third Mates under him, in the order of their standing as apprentices, at the wages of three Pounds per month each.

Fonda*, of the State of New-York, has guarded by order of said State (as he says) seventy-four persons, and delivered them into the custody of this Committee, under the character of being unfriendly to the States of America; which persons are for the present disposed of, until some information concerning them may be transmitted to us from the Convention of New-York.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, November 16th, 1776.

Sir: Since my last nothing material has occurred here; nor have I any thing in charge from Congress, except to request that you will negotiate an exchange of the Hessian prisoners at Elizabeth-Town under the care of Mr. Ludwick, as soon as possible. They have been treated in such a manner during their stay in this city, that it is apprehended their going back among their countrymen will be attended with some good consequences.

Your favour of the 11th November came duly to hand, and was laid before Congress.

I have the honour to be, with the most perfect esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

John Hancock, President.

His Excellency General Washington.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM WILLIAM WHIPPLE TO JOHN LANGDON, DATED PHILADELPHIA, 16TH NOVEMBER, 1776.

You have here enclosed the late resolutions of Congress so far as they have gone respecting the Navy. I hope for some further alterations, but you know things of this sort must be done by degrees. The encouragement now given to officers and men in the Navy are, in my opinion, as great as they can possibly expect, and I hope will be to their entire satisfaction. It is impossible to give you an idea of the situation of the armies, they being in perpetual motion. Our people always have the advantage in skirmishes. That being the case, it is undoubtedly for our interest not to come to a general battle, which, in my opinion, will be avoided. A considerable fleet, about one hundred sail, left Sandy-Hook last Wednesday: it's supposed they are empty transports for Europe. A ship arrived from France a few days since with arms and ammunition only; several others were to sail in a few days after her with other articles. God send them safe! Give me leave to congratulate on Carleton's retreat from Crown-Point. What a glorious campaign those boasters have made! I think it will make a grand figure in the annals of Britain.

This goes by an express, who sets off to-morrow morning. I shall keep it open, that if any thing should turn up worth communicating, will give it to you; in the mean time be assured that I am your sincere friend and humble servant.

Council of Safety, Philadelphia, November 16th, 1776.

Sir: The fleet which sailed from New-York, and took its course to the southward with the appearance of a design to enter this river, after keeping that course for some time, suddenly altered it, and are gone to the eastward, so that every reason to apprehend their intending to attack this city is entirely removed, and it is therefore unnecessary for the Associators to march for the present. The Council request you will give this notice to your battalion, and return the thanks of this Board to the officers and men who have exerted themselves on this alarming occasion, by preparing for a march to this city or its neighbourhood, and given such unquestionable proof of their virtue and firm patriotism. The expenses which have occurred in consequence of this alarm will be most cheerfully and readily paid; and you may be assured that the earliest intelligence will be given you of every danger of an attack upon this State, as it is the virtue and firmness of the Associators alone which can preserve us free and independent.

By order of Council:

Thomas Wharton, Jun., President.

GENERAL STEPHEN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 18th.]

Amboy, 16th November, 1776.

Sir: I received the honour of your letter directed to Brigadier-General Mercer, who had left this place before my arrival.

By several different channels I am informed that the fleet which sailed from New-York harbour on Wednesday consists of transports, discharged or sent to Ireland for provisions.

One hundred sail of Dutch, Danish, and English transports have laid at the watering place for upwards of ten days, waiting a convoy. Three ships of war have taken them under their care. It appeared to us here, and to my detached parties in South-Amboy, that the fleet steered no farther to the southward than was necessary to avoid the shoals projecting from Long-Island. We at last observed them to steer east northerly, and are certain that the fleet consisted of upwards of one hundred and forty-three sail.

I acquainted General Greene of their sailing, and had I suspected any danger from them, would have marked with greater attention my advice of it to Mr. Secretary Peters.

The few troops under my command shall be always ready to act occasionally.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

Adam Stephen.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read November 19.]

General Greene's Quarters, 16th November, 1776.

Sir: Since I had the honour of addressing you last, an important event has taken place, of which I wish to give you the earliest intelligence. The preservation of the passage of the North River was an object of so much consequence, that I thought no pains or expense too great for that purpose, and therefore, after sending off all the valuable stores, except such as were necessary for its defence, I determined, agreeable to the advice of most of the General Officers, to risk something to defend the post on the east side, called Mount Washington. When the Army moved up in consequence of General Howe's landing at Frog-Point, Colonel Magaw was left on that command, with about twelve hundred men, and orders given to defend it to the last. Afterwards, reflecting upon the smallness of the garrison, and the difficulty of their holding it, if General Howe should fall down upon it with his whole force, I wrote to General Greene, who had the command on the Jersey shore, directing him to govern himself by circumstances, and to retain or evacuate the post as he should think best, and revoking the absolute order to Colonel Magaw, to defend the post to the last extremity. General Greene, struck with the importance of the post, and the discouragement which our evacuation of posts must necessarily have given, reinforced Colonel Magaw with detachments from several regiments of the Flying-Camp, but chiefly of Pennsylvania, so as to make up the number about two thousand.

In this situation things were yesterday, when General Howe demanded the surrender of the garrison, to which Colonel Magaw returned a spirited refusal.* Immediately upon receiving an account of this transaction, I came from Hackensack to this place, and had partly crossed the North-River, when I met General Putnam and General Greene, who were just returning from thence, and informed me that the troops were in high spirits, and would make a good defence; and, it being late at night, I returned. Early this morning Colonel Magaw posted his troops partly in the lines thrown up by our Army on our first coming thither from New-York, and partly on a commanding hill laying north of Mount Washington, the lines being all to the southward. In this position the attack began about ten o'clock, which our troops stood, and returned the fire in such a manner as gave me great hopes the enemy was entirely repulsed. But at this time a body of troops crossed Harlem river in boats, and landed inside of the second lines, our troops being then engaged in the first. Colonel Cadwalader, who commanded in the lines, sent off a detachment to oppose them; but they, being overpowered by numbers, gave way; upon which Colonel Cadwalader ordered his troops to retreat, in order to gain the fort. It was done with much confusion; and the enemy crossing over came in upon them in such a manner that a number of them surrendered. At this time the Hessians advanced on the north side of the fort in very large bodies. They were received by the troops posted there with proper spirit, and kept back a considerable time. But at length they were also obliged to submit to a superiority of numbers, and retire under the cannon of the fort. The enemy, having advanced thus far, halted, and immediately a flag went in with a repetition of the demand of the fortress, as I suppose. At this time I sent a billet to Colonel Magaw, directing him to hold out, and I would endeavour this evening to bring off the garrison, if the fortress could not be maintained, as I did not expect it could, the enemy being possessed of the adjacent grounds. But before this reached him, he had entered too far into a treaty to retract. After which, Colonel Cadwalader told another messenger who went over, that they had been able to obtain no other terms than to surrender as prisoners of war. In this situation matters now stand. I have stopped General Beall's and General Heard's brigades, to preserve the post and stores here, which, with the other troops, I hope we shall be able to effect. I don't yet know the numbers killed or wounded on either side, but from the heaviness and continuance of fire in some places, I imagine there must have been considerable execution. The loss of such a number of officers and men, many of whom have been trained with more than common attention, will, I fear, be severely felt; but when that of the arms and accoutrements is added, much more so, and must be a further incentive to procure as considerable a supply as possible for the new troops as soon as it can be done.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant.

Go. Washington.

*On the 16th the British made their attack on Fort Washington. General Knyphausen, with a heavy column of Hessians, advanced by King's Bridge. They were discovered by the Americans from the lofty grounds, north of Fort Washington, as the day broke, and cannonaded from the field-pieces placed at this advanced post. The Hessian column divided in two; the right ascending the strong broken ground towards Spitten-Devil Creek; the left nearer to the road, towards the Gorge. The first obtained the ground without much difficulty; but the Americans made a most noble opposition against the latter, and, for a considerable time, kept them from ascending the hill, making a terrible slaughter among them; but the great superiority of the assailants, with an unabating firmness, finally prevailed; their loss was greater here than at any other place. Meanwhile the British crossed Haarlem Creek in two different places, charged and finally routed the Americans on that side, and possessed themselves of the strong post of Laurel Hill, on the other side of the road from Fort Washington, and not very distant from it; Lord Percy at the same time advancing with the troops under his command on the island towards the fort on that side. The Americans, now generally driven from their out-works, retired to the fort, which was crowded full. A single shell now dropping among them must have made dreadful havock.

General Washington was now a spectator of this distressing scene, from the high bank at Fort Lee, on the opposite side of the Hudson; and having a wish to communicate something to Colonel Magaw, the commanding officer at Fort Washington, Captain Gooch, of Boston, a brave and daring man, offered to be the bearer of it. He ran down to the river, jumped into a small boat, pushed over the river, landed under the bank, ran up to the fort, and delivered the message; came out, ran and jumped over the broken ground, dodging the Hessians, some of whom struck at him with their pieces, and others attempted to thrust him with their bayonets; escaping through them, he got to his boat, and returned to Fort Lee. The British had summoned Colonel Magaw to surrender, and were preparing their batteries to play on the fort, when Colonel Magaw thought it best to surrender the post, which he did accordingly, between two and three thousand men becoming prisoners. The loss in killed and wounded on the American side was inconsiderable; but the loss in prisoners was a serious blow indeed. The prisoners were marched to New-York, where, being crowded in sugar-houses, (many of them being militia from the Jersey Flying-Camp, who had been sent over to reinforce the garrison, and were unused to a soldier's life, much less to the poisonous stagnant air of a crowded prison,) they fell sick, and daily died in a most shocking manner. It was common, on a morning, for the car-men to come and take away the bodies for burial, by loads'—Heath.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

General Greene's Quarters, November 16th, 1776.

Dear Sir: You will perceive by the enclosed resolves that Congress have entered into some new regulations respecting the inlistment of the new Army, and reprobating the measures adopted by the State of Massachusetts-Bay for raising their quota of men.

As every possible exertion should be used for recruiting the Army as speedily as may be, I request that you immediately publish, in orders, that an allowance of a dollar and one-third of a dollar will be paid to the officers for every soldier they shall inlist, whether in or out of camp; also, that it will be optional in the soldiers to inlist during the continuance of the war, or for three years, unless sooner discharged by Congress. In the former case, they are to receive all such bounty and pay as have been heretofore mentioned in orders. Those who engage for the latter time, (that of three years,) are not to receive the bounty in land. That no mistakes may be made, you will direct the recruiting officers from your division to provide two distinct inlisting rolls, one for those to sign who engage during the war, the other for those who inlist for three years, if their service shall be so long requested.

I am sorry to inform you that this day, about twelve o'clock, the enemy made a general attack upon our lines about Fort Washington, which, having carried, the garrison retired within the fort. Colonel Magaw, finding there was no prospect of retreating across the river, surrendered the post. We do not know the loss of killed and wounded on either side; but I imagine it must have been pretty considerable, as the engagement at some parts of the lines was of long continuance and heavy; neither do I know the terms of capitulation. The force of the garrison, before the attack, was almost two thousand men.

Before I left Peekskill, I urged to General Heath the necessity of securing the pass through the Highlands next to the river, as well on that as this side, and to the forts above. But as the preserving of those and others which lay more easterly, and which are equally essential, is a matter of the last importance, I must beg you to turn your attention that way, and to have such measures adopted for their defence as your judgment shall suggest to be necessary. I do not mean to advise the abandoning your present post contrary to your own opinion, but only to mention my ideas of the importance of those passes, and that you cannot give too much attention to their security by having works erected in the most advantageous places for that purpose.

I am, dear sir, yours, &c., Go. Washington.

To Brigadier-General Lee.

P. S. The enclosed letter, for Governour Trumbull, you will please to transmit by the first opportunity.

[The same to Major-General Heath.]

In Congress, November 7th, 1776.—Resolved, That the Resolution, passed the 14th of October last, that the allowance to officers of one and one-third of a dollar for inlisting soldiers be not extended or given on the reinlistment of soldiers in camp, be repealed.

November 12, 1776.—Resolved, (as the opinion of this Congress.) That if the soldiers to be raised by the State of Massachusetts-Bay be inlisted on the terms offered to them, (which are more advantageous than what are offered to other soldiers serving in the same Army,) it would much retard if not totally impede the inlistment of the latter, and produce discontent and murmur, unless Congress should equally increase the pay of these; which, it is the opinion of this Congress, would universally be reprobated as an immoderate expense, and complained of as a grievous burden by those who must bear it; and therefore, that the Committee from the State of Massachusetts-Bay be desired not to inlist their men on the additional pay offered by the Assembly of that State.

Upon reconsidering the resolution of the 16th of September last, for raising eighty-eight Battalions to serve during the present war with Great Britain, Congress being of opinion that the readiness of the inhabitants of the States to enter into the service for limited times, in defence of their invaluable privileges, on all former occasions, gives good ground to hope the same zeal for the publick good will appear in future when necessity calls for their assistance; and the uncertain length of time which forces raised during the continuance of the war may be compelled to serve, may prevent many from inlisting who would otherwise readily manifest their attachment to the common cause by engaging for a limited time; Therefore,

Resolved. That all non-commission officers and soldiers, who do not incline to engage their services during the continuance of the present war, and shall inlist to serve three years, unless sooner discharged by Congress, shall be entitled to and receive all such bounty and pay as are allowed to those who inlist during the continuance of the present war, except the one hundred acres of land, which is to be granted to those only who inlist without limitation of time.

And each recruiting officer is required to provide two distinct inlisting rolls; one for such to sign who inlist during the continuance of the war, and the other for such as inlist for three years, if their service shall be so long required.

By order of the Congress:

John Hancock.

Copy: Robert Harrison.

COMMISSARY HUGHES TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

North-Castle, the 16th of November, 1776.

Dear General: By order of General Lee I send forty-five ox-teams to forage at Marroneski, &c., especially at Mr. Jay's, who has requested that it might be taken.

Wherever there is any booty belonging to Tories that have gone to the enemy, they are to take all, but from our friends they are to take but a part. The General desires your Honour would furnish a guard and fatigue party to assist them, as they are to return as soon as possible.

I am, dear General, with great regard, sir, your most obedient,

Hugh Hughes, Assistant Quartermaster-General.

P. S. Please to excuse this hasty scrawl.

TIMOTHY DANIELSON TO TRISTRAM DALTON.

North-Castle, November 16th, 1776.

Sir: Some time since we wrote the Speaker of the House of Representatives respecting the embarrassment we met with from General Washington at our first arrival in camp. That caused our sending Mr. Partridge immediately to Congress. This evening he returned with the enclosed resolves and letter from the President.

The Army, before our coming, were notified of the terms proposed by our Assembly for the inlistment of our quota of troops, and should we now endeavour to inlist them on the Continental plan, appears to us (were it contained in our commission) entirely fruitless. In this unhappy dilemma, we shall wait the determination of the General Assembly, only appointing the officers of seven battalions as soon as we can obtain a recommendation from the General; which, though daily applied for, through his multiplicity of business has not been completed, but expect it to-morrow.

With all the rhetorick we are masters of have earnestly invited the Militia to tarry till the first of March, but could not prevail upon them. They are so determined to return that the General could not obtain the express consent of one half of them to tarry even four days. Yet it is likely the greater part will continue that short time. On the whole, what is best to be done, the wisdom of the General Assembly cannot determine. Had the Massachusetts put this encouragement to their soldiers on some other footing than in addition to monthly pay, it would not have been so exceptionable to the General or Congress.

After we shall have agreed to the recommendation for appointing officers for seven battalions, the Assembly may think proper to call us, (to save a considerable expense, as Connecticut has done,) and intrust the receiving the returns and filling up the commission with the General Officers now in the Army belonging to Massachusetts-Bay.

Colonel Sartell is the bearer of this, and time will pass heavily till we receive the determination of the General Assembly, as we can do but little. Your orders, therefore, will be readily and cheerfully complied with, sirs, by your most obedient very humble servants.

By order of the Committee appointed to inlist men at New-York belonging to this State:

Timo. Danielson, Chairman.

The Hon. Tristram Dalton, Esq., Speaker of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts-Bay.

To ,

You are hereby empowered immediately to inlist a Company, to consist of eighty-six able-bodied and effective men, including non-commissioned officers and privates, as soldiers in the service of and for the defence of the United American States, upon the establishment fixed by the honourable Congress, to continue in that service till the end of the present war, or the term of three years; and that you cause said men, when so inlisted, to pass muster as soon as may be; the non-commissioned officers to be appointed by the captain and subalterns of each respective company.

State of Massachusetts-Bay, October 19, 1776.

The following are extracts from the Resolves of Congress, transmitted to the General Assembly of this State, viz: That twenty Dollars be given as a bounty to each Non-Commissioned Officer and Private Soldier who shall inlist to serve during the present war, or three years, unless sooner discharged by Congress.

That Congress make provision for granting Lands to the Officers and Soldiers who shall engage in the service, and continue therein to the close of the war, or until discharged by Congress; and to the representatives of such Officers and Soldiers as shall be slain by the enemy, viz: To each Non-Commissioned Officer and Soldier, one hundred acres.

That a suit of Clothes be annually given to each Non-Commissioned Officer and Private Soldier; to consist for the present year of two linen hunting-shirts, two pair of overalls, a leathern or woolen waistcoat with sleeves, one pair of breeches, a hat or leathern cap, two shirts, two pair of hose, and two pair of shoes, amounting in the whole to the value of twenty dollars; or that sum to be paid to each soldier who shall procure those articles for himself.

A true extract from the Resolves of Congress:

Philadelphia, 13th November, 1776.

Gentlemen: Agreeable to my promise to Mr. Partridge, I now enclose you the resolutions of Congress in consequence of your application, whereby you will perceive it is their desire that you would not inlist the men on the additional pay offered by the Assembly of Massachusetts; they have, however, agreed that the men be inlisted for three years under the former encouragement, except the one hundred acres of land, which is not to be given to any but those who inlist during the war. I beg leave to refer you to the resolutions enclosed, and hope you will not find much difficulty in obtaining the men. I know your best exertions will not be wanting. I am so exceedingly engaged that I can't add, but that I am, with great esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

John Hancock.

Honourable Commissioners from Massachusetts-Bay.

I shall be exceeding glad to hear of your success in inlisting; and when your leisure will admit, shall be obliged for a line.

I shall be much obliged to you to forward the enclosed letter to General Ward.

The Committee of the General Assembly of the State of Massachusetts-Bay, appointed to repair to the Army at or near New-York, to officer and inlist seven battalions out of the Continental Army there, have attended that service, and report as follows:

That on the 30th day of October last, we arrived at Head-Quarters, near White-Plains. We applied to General Washington to recommend the officers of the State. He referred us to the General Officers of our State. After laying before the Commander-in-Chief our beating orders, he much disapproved of the measure, which caused our sending Mr. Partridge to Congress, as we early informed the Assembly. Immediately applied to Generals Heath and Nixon for the recommendation referred to above. But the Army were so engaged, near three weeks expired before we obtained it, even with every day's application. Our commissions being condemned as ill concerted, by his Excellency and Congress, caused us to doubt of the propriety of proceeding; but considering the necessity of endeavouring to inlist men on the encouragement of Congress, in order to examine that august assembly that the Massachusetts-Bay were fond of raising their quota on Continental terms, caused us to advise with the gentlemen then present (who were members of the General Assembly) what mode to pursue; with whose advice we thought proper to attempt the inlisting soldiers on the terms of Congress, upon which we presumed to dispense with our commission and make the alterations that appear by the enclosed curtailed and interlined beating orders, which made it necessary to make the delineation as in the enclosed inlistment. As the soldiers upon the above terms would be little able to provide his own arms, we soon were persuaded, by conversing with officers of all ranks, that it would by no means answer to form the inlisted men into companies, till the officers that received the beating orders had full opportunity to complete their respective companies, by sending subalterns into the country, or otherwise, for that purpose; therefore concluded to neglect it.

A small number are inlisted on the plan of Congress, but the troops hastening across the North River to reinforce there, the Colonels could not make a return of the numbers. After our return from Peekskill, on the North River, to Quaker Ridge, we sent the remains of the beating orders, inlistments, and some of the commissions, to General Heath, with letters, the copies of which are herewith enclosed. We thought proper, as we proceeded on different encouragement than was expected by the Assembly, to officer but six battalions; the regiment then being small, more cannot be expected to fill up. A list of said six battalions of field-officers is herewith enclosed. We have given the officers and soldiers assurance, that if the State of Massachusetts-Bay made any additions to the soldiers' pay or bounty, those that inlisted on the Continental establishment before that took place, should be allowed the same. We have done all in our power to answer the expectation of the General Assembly respecting us, and have in no case deviated from the tenour of the commission, but when we imagined it absolutely necessary for the general good. We are on our return, supposing we could be no longer serviceable to the State by continuing to rove after the Army; which we hope will meet with the approbation of the General Assembly. All which is humbly submitted.

By the order of the Committee:

TIMO. DANIELSON, Chairman.

In the House of Representatives, December 25, 1776.

Read, with the papers accompanying it, and ordered that the same be committed to Major Goodman, Judge Cushing, and Colonel Metcalf, with such as the honourable Board shall join, to consider and report what is proper to be done relating this matter.

Sent up for concurrence:

Read and concurred, and Artemas Ward and John Whitcomb, Esquires, are joined.

JNO. AVERY, Dep. Secretary.

Hartford, December 9, 1776.

SIR: In this place we met Major Goodman, with his dispatches. After holding a consultation on what we had done, and the matter of his embassy, thought proper to advise him to return with his paper to the General Assembly, as a short delay would not be attended with ill consequences.

The enclosed papers contain our report, and we are, with great respect, your Honour's most obedient, very humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

TIMO. DANIELSON, Chairman.

JOHN McDONALD TO COMMITTEE OF NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Nine Partners' Mine, 16th November, 1776.

SIRS: In compliance with the contract from under your hands, dated October last, respecting the sinking into the lead mine here, twelve feet in depth, and extend the same thirty feet in length and three in breadth, with such directions as I thought best to pursue the veins, &c. When at my entry Mr. Ezra Thompson here measured twenty-four feet in length from the west to the east, which course being and are the inclination of the veins, and perfectly appeared the most promising prospect to work. There wrought and blasted the rocks with the men I employed, until the veins became mixed with different kinds of ugly rocks, which brought to disappear, yielding any quantity worthy of pursuing to advantage, and I therefore prosecuted into several veins going to the southward, cross from the said dimension, and therein digged out about seventy-six weight of ore during the driving, about three feet in length, ten and a half feet in depth, and twelve feet in breadth, and at conclusion of the same, the ore almost disappeared. At my pursuit in the said thirty-four feet length from the west to the east, raised about twenty-six weight of ore, after which spent the half of the time. The nearest estimation of the lead ore, is nine hundred weight.

Gentlemen, I am on the motion to continue working further into, sinking eighteen inches in depth, and drive the same about eighteen feet in length, which may instruct any person having skill in minery to learn the sufficiency and deficiency of the same, and before the performance thereof, I expect an answer of this report from your Honours, letting me know whether or not to proceed any further into the present opening, twenty-four feet in length, above-mentioned. As for my own part, I am already very thoroughly convinced that it will not be so advantageous as to clear the tenth part expense of working. Therefore, with all possible expedition write to me and Mr. Thompson, if you intend that I should make trials elsewhere here or return to the Fishkills. The main trials is driving a level, together with sinking, cross-cutting, raising, &c., which will cost any company of adventurers about six thousand pounds before they could make the complete and proper trials. Money will be very acceptable to pay my workmen's wages and other articles which I stand indebted for. Your orders will be most punctually obeyed.

Ten days hence there will be finished about the half of the bargain.

Sirs, your most obedient and humble servant,

JOHN McDONALD, Miner.

To William Harper, Henry Wisner, Jonth. Landon, Matthew Cantine, and Matthew Adgate, and members of Convention.

P. S. If the trial does not turn out better from the present state it now is, within the 28th of this month, I shall possibly be desired by your Honours to give up the prosecuting into any further trials, without the aforesaid diminution.

The bearer is one Mr. Herrick from this place, who is an honest man, to bring back the return of this. I don't choose that your Honours should sink great sums in improper trials. I adieu,

JOHN McDONALD.

JONATHAN TRUMBULL, JUN., TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Albany, 16th November, 1776.

SIR: I am just informed by the Secretary of the War Office that there is a resolution of Congress directing me to transmit to them, as soon as possible, an account of all moneys passed through my hands, &c.

Agreeable to this information I send an abstract of moneys received and issued by me, so far as I have been able to complete it. This abstract was preparing for settlement with Commissioners of Accounts. Want of returns from Ticonderoga prevent its being complete to this day. I am advised the chest at that post is empty.

Had I been acquainted that it was the expectation of Congress that returns should be made to them, I should readily complied before this. My instructions, so far as I have ever been favoured with any, have only referred me to Major-General Schuyler. In this line I have hitherto conducted myself.

I fear it will be difficult to make complete returns so often as weekly, from this department; it being so scattered, and having no direct mode of conveyance between the posts, we are obliged to make use of such opportunities as present, and are worthy of confidence. This sometimes occasions considerable intermission. In these circumstances perhaps Congress may judge it sufficient to have returns as often as every two or three weeks.

I should be extremely glad to be informed from time to time of the expectations of Congress respecting my duty, that I may in all things conform to their pleasure.

I am, with much esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JONA. TRUMBULL.

Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

GENERAL MAXWELL TO GENERAL GATES.

Ticonderoga, 16th November, 1776.

SIR: The promotion I have been honoured with, has at present abstracted me in some measure from my regiment, with which I thought to go home.

The situation of my private affairs at home, and my health being much impaired for some time, would have justified me asking leave to go down the country some time ago, had not our enemy been hovering about us till lately. I had entered into trade some better than two years before I engaged in the present service. I then threw down every thing I was concerned in, in the most confused manner, and stepped to the relief of my country; I therefore hope the situation of our affairs here now will enable you to give me leave to go down the country to settle them, and you will much oblige, sir, your very humble servant,

WM. MAXWELL.

To the Honourable Major-General Gates.

STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

A Proclamation for a Day of publick Thanksgiving and Prayer.

As it is the duty of individuals who believe their concerns to be under the supreme direction of the greatest and best of Beings, to make due acknowledgments thereof unto Him both by prayer and praise: so it is the duty of such believers, and of Christians more especially, to unite in a publick and solemn manner both in praying to the same Sovereign Disposer of all things to save them from evil, and to bestow on them such things as unerring wisdom sees best and most conducive to their happiness; and also to offer their praises and thanksgiving to Him for the salvations and blessings whereof we are joint partakers:

The paying that acknowledgment to that God whose kingdom ruleth over all, hath been practised by religious societies in all ages, and in particular by the people of this land: In conformity to such laudable examples, and from a deep and grateful sense of the many favours conferred upon this degenerate people, amidst the judgments of war, which are sent in the earth, that the inhabitants thereof may learn righteousness:

We have thought fit, with the advice of the Council, and at the desire of the House of Representatives, to appoint, and hereby do appoint Thursday, the twelfth day of December next, to be kept as a day of publick Thanksgiving and Prayer throughout this State; calling ministers and people of every denomination then to convene, and with grateful devotion to offer solemn praises to the all-gracious Author of every good, for the various invaluable benefits conferred on, and continued to this State in particular, and to the United States of America in general; especially, that whilst British avarice openly claims, and British tyranny vigorously endeavours to wrest from us the free exercise of those rights which Heaven alike bestowed upon all mankind, without which human life is less a favour than the grave, he has given these States a just sense of their worth, and of the impossibility of resigning those rights to man without the guilt of rebellion against God; treason to the present, and treachery to all future generations: That he has united these States in a resolved vindication of those rights, even to the last extremity; has given them a general council of patriots wise to direct; raised Generals, faithful to execute the measures necessary for their defence; and animated so many of the sons of America to grasp the sword, and with a manly cheerfulness endure the fatigues of war, in support of that freedom which is the birthright of all: He led them by the hand from step to step, until we have seen these States compelled through oppression to assert their active right to freedom and independence in an united declaration which the impartial world must justify: Has preserved the Commander-in-Chief of our forces and so many of our officers and soldiers amidst so many and such imminent dangers—has mercifully restored health to our camp—has enabled our armies to make such a stand as has hitherto baffled the effort of our inveterate foes, and, as yet, defeated their main design; hath protected our frontiers from the sword of the wilderness, and our sea-coasts from the depredations of an hostile fleet—and even from the sea, where our visible strength was least, has wafted to our shores most valuable cargoes of warlike and other stores, necessary for our defence and support at the very time when most needed—has returned adventurers on that element generally enriched and victorious—and has detected very dangerous conspiracies when at the crisis of their execution—that he hath compelled the enemy, after having been for many months in possession of our capital, precipitately to evacuate it—that he hath also freed the capital from the contagious and mortal distemper with which it hath been visited; and that there hath been so great a measure of health enjoyed through the land—that he hath caused the earth to yield its increase so plentifully, that we are supplied with the necessaries and comforts of life; and above all, that he hath continued to us the enjoyments of the Gospel, and the religious liberties and privileges we are blessed with, notwithstanding our misimprovement of them. And with these thanksgivings we exhort all ranks to mingle deep humiliation under the calamities we are yet suffering—and genuine repentance for those sins that have brought them upon us. And to add their fervent prayers for the continuance of the mercies we enjoy, and the gift of those we need; especially, that all our publick councils, and the General Congress in particular, may be inspired with the wisdom, unanimity, and firmness necessary for their important departments—that the life and health of our General, his officers and soldiers, may be precious in God's sight—that our brethren every where may be spirited to take the field, when called in so great a cause—that all the movements of our armies may be ordered in Divine mercy—that they may be victorious in every engagement—that our foes may be defeated in all their hostile designs, and driven from our land; and permitted no more, either by bribery or corruption, to sap our civil and religious rights, or by fire and sword to waste and destroy us—that peace may be restored on a just and permanent basis, and the rights and liberties of America secured to the latest generations. That this people may be placed under the wisest and best form of Government: That the Union of the American States may be established by a confederation never to be dissolved—that the spirit of God may be plentifully poured out, and an universal reformation of heart and life may speedily ensue—that the Gospel may be propagated through all nations—and America may ever be peculiarly entitled to the name of Emanuel's Land.

And all servile labour is forbidden on said day.

Given at the Council Chamber in Boston, this sixteenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-six.

CHARLES CUSHING TO SAMUEL FREEMAN.

Pownalborough, November 16th, 1776.

Sir: I here enclose you copies of the records of the Committee of Correspondence, &c., of this town, relating to the Rev. Jacob Bailey, the Episcopal itinerant Missionary here, who is declared an enemy to the rights of America by said Committee, in order that the General Court may take the matter into consideration, and take such effectual measures thereon as the Court in their wisdom shall think proper for discountenancing such dangerous principles and practices as he has been adjudged guilty of by said Committee.

The reason he gave why he would not read the Declaration was, because that he had taken the oath of allegiance in the year 1760 to King George the Second; and he said that the same oath was still binding upon him to pay the same allegiance to George the Third; and he further said that if the King should break his oath, by which he was bound to govern his subjects agreeable to law, yet his subjects who were under the oath of allegiance were still bound by the same, to pay him the same allegiance as though the King had governed his subjects strictly agreeable to law and his oath, and nothing could absolve the subject from their allegiance, let the King's conduct be as bad as possible.

If this doctrine be just, what becomes of all the old officers in the United States that have taken the oaths of allegiance? Have they all incurred the guilt of perjury? If they have, it would have been better to have worn fetters and chains, and endured the greatest tyranny that George the Third, his Ministers, and the devil could impose. But those sentiments are erroneous and false, and have no foundation in truth and righteousness. And I dare say that the General Court will take care that such divinity should not prevail. If they are connived at, the States sapped in their foundation.

Amongst the enclosed are a copy of his reasons which he signed, for not reading the Declaration. But he was not so particular as to say that the oath he was under was made to King George the Second, for which reason I thought proper to observe the same to you as aforesaid, (the oath of allegiance is not to the King and his successor,) together with what he said upon his examination. You will see by the resolves that he was charged with praying for the King. The evidence in support of that was his own confession. Further, he did not duly observe the days of fasting. He had a proclamation last May, two Sabbaths before the fast, but never read it to his people. He met with his people on the day, but what they fasted for, they could not tell, and he did not inform them; and it is certain he did not observe the contents of the proclamation. He never prayed for the success of our arms as therein directed. It was on account of those clauses in the proclamation in favour of our land, that he did not read it, I conclude. He never failed of reading proclamations from the Governour, when they came in season, and proclamations before that from the Congress he treated with contempt. He would not even observe the day. He gave bond agreeable to the third resolve, which bond I here enclose you. Should be glad you would deliver it to the Treasurer, and in case he should not appear agreeable to the last resolve, that then he may be cited to appear agreeable to the conditions of the bond, if the Court should think proper to send for him. Also you have enclosed an account of the Committee leasing out an estate.

The part that Colonel Lithgow and you and I were to take care of, some of them want to be pilled up anew. Should be glad you would consult Colonel Lithgow, and write down orders to Luke Lombard, who lives near to them, to do it.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

Charles Cushing.

At a meeting of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, of the Town of Pownalborough, May 24th, 1776:

Upon the complaint against the Rev. Jacob Bailey, for being unfriendly to the cause of liberty:

Resolved, 1. That the said Jacob Bailey has in divers instances since the year 1774, discovered an undue attachment to the authority claimed by Great Britain over the United Colonies, and thereby has given great reason to believe that he does not wish success to our struggles for freedom.

2. That he has been guilty of a criminal neglect in not reading Proclamations issued by the Continental and Provincial Congresses, for days of publick fasting and prayer, and thereby throwing contempt upon said Congresses, and virtually denying their authority.

3. Therefore, Resolved, That the said Jacob Bailey give bond to the Treasurer of the Colony, in the penal sum of forty pounds, with one or more sureties, conditioned that the said Mr. Bailey appear before the General Court of this Colony, when called thereto by said Court, to answer for said conduct, and in the mean time that he should not aid the despotick measures of our unnatural enemies, or by any ways or means directly or indirectly assist them in their designs of enslaving the said Colonies, or in any measure whatever counteract the good designs of the said Colonies in obtaining their liberty and freedom from the tyrannick measures of Great Britain; and that the said Mr. Bailey shall observe and obey all the orders, resolves, and laws of the said Court, and of the Continental Congress, and in all things behave himself peaceably towards the people and government of this Colony.

At a meeting of the Committee of Correspondence, &c., for the Town of Pownalborough, October 28th, 1776:

The Committee having received information that the Rev. Jacob Bailey had refused to read the Declaration of the right honourable the Continental Congress for independency, and also that the said Jacob still continues upon every Lord's day to pray in publick for George the Third, King of Great Britain, as our King and Governour, according to the Liturgy of the Church of England, they accordingly summoned the said Mr. Bailey to appear before them, and after a full hearing and consideration of the evidence, as also of the defence of the said Bailey, they

Resolved, 1. That the said Jacob Bailey did refuse to read the said Declaration, in contempt of an order of Council for this State requiring him to read the same.

2. Resolved, That the reasons assigned by the said Jacob Bailey for not reading the said Declaration, and which he has filed with the Committee, have a direct tendency to undermine the foundation of the United States of America.

3. Resolved, That it appears to this Committee that the said Jacob Bailey still persists in praying for the King of Great Britain, on every Lord's day, in publick, as the King and Governour of these United States; thereby approving of his tyrannical measures against these States and the bloodshed in which they are involved.

4. Resolved, That the said Jacob Bailey is, in principle and practice, a most inveterate and dangerous enemy to the rights and liberties of these United States.

5. Resolved, That the said Jacob Bailey appear before the General Court of this State, on or before the second Tuesday of the next session of the said Court, to answer for this conduct relating to the crimes afore-mentioned, and to any other matters that may then and there appear against him.

Know all men by these presents, That we, Jacob Bailey, of Pownalborough, in the County of Lincoln, clerk, and David Bailey, of Pownalborough, aforesaid, yeoman, are holden and stand firmly bound and obliged unto the Honourable Henry Gardner, of Stow, in the County of Middlesex, Esq., Treasurer of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, in the sum of forty pounds, to be paid unto the said Henry, Treasurer as aforesaid, or his successors in said office; to the true payment whereof, we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our seals, dated the twenty-eighth day of May, A. D. 1776.

The condition of this present obligation is such, that whereas, on the 24th day of May, A. D. 1776, the Committee of Correspondence, Safety and Inspection, of the town of Pownalborough, aforesaid, did pass three Resolves in the words following, viz:

"1. That the said Jacob Bailey has, in divers instances since the year 1774, discovered an undue attachment to the authority claimed by Great Britain over the United Colonies, and thereby has given great reason to believe that he does not wish success to our struggles for freedom.

"2. That he has been guilty of a criminal neglect in not reading Proclamations issued by the Continental and Provincial Congresses for days of publick fasting and prayer, and thereby throwing contempt upon said Congresses, and virtually denying their authority.

"3. Therefore, Resolved, That the said Mr. Jacob Bailey give bond to the Treasurer of this Colony in the penal sum of forty pounds, with one or more sureties, conditioned that the said Mr. Bailey appear before the General Court of this Colony when called thereto by said Court to answer for said conduct, and in the mean time that he shall not aid the despotick measures of our unnatural enemies, or by any ways or means directly or indirectly assist them in their designs of enslaving the said Colonies, or in any measure whatever counteract the good designs of the said Colonies in obtaining their liberty and freedom from the tyrannick measures of Great Britain; and that the said Mr. Bailey shall observe and obey all the orders, resolves and laws of the said Court and of the Continental Congress, and in all things behave himself peaceably towards the people and Government of this Colony."

Now, if the said Jacob Bailey shall appear before the said General Court of this Colony when called thereto by said Court to answer for said conduct, and in the mean time shall not aid the despotick measures of our unnatural enemies, or by any ways or means directly or indirectly assist them in their designs of enslaving the said Colonies, or in any measure whatever counteract the good designs of the said Colonies in obtaining their liberty and freedom from the tyrannick measures of Great Britain; and further, if he, said Jacob Bailey, shall observe and obey all the orders, resolves and laws of the said Court and of the Continental Congress, and in all things behave himself peaceably towards the people and Government of this Colony, then this obligation to be void, otherwise to remain in full force and virtue.

DAVID BAILEY.

GENTLEMEN: I was very unwilling to give any offence by refusing to read the Declaration for Independency, neither was I desirous of bringing myself into any further trouble. But when I came seriously to examine the solemn oaths I had taken and the nature of my subscriptions, I found I could not comply without offering great violence to my conscience, and incurring, as I apprehend, the guilt of perjury. I concluded that nothing more could be expected in the affair than passive obedience and non-resistance; and if an active compliance was required, I must persist in my neglect and patiently submit to the penalty, resolving, with the Apostle, that it is my duty to obey God rather than man. I would further observe, that my conduct has been agreeable to that of my brother clergymen of the Church, who have all (except Mr. Parker) neglected to read the paper for Independency, and I may add, if rightly informed, several Congregational Ministers have done the same, notwithstanding they were under the like obligations. I have consulted the most eminent writers, and find that both divines and civilians agree with the Psalmist, that an oath ought to be observed as sacred (except the matter of it is unlawful) though a man swear to his hurt, and that rather than break it he should abide by any consequences which may attend his steadfast observance to it. I had the oaths administered to me in the time of divine service on a Sunday, at the church at St. James, in the presence of a multitude of spectators, where I was required to repeat every word, laying my hand at the same time on the Holy Gospels; after which I signed a declaration to the same purpose ex animo, and then was ordered to St. Martin's, the King's Parish Church, where I took the sacrament as a confirmation of my oath.

Gentlemen, a church or place of religious worship ought to be sacred to truth, and no minister ought to publish any thing but what he really believes agreeable to the truth. And if he declares any thing against the conviction of his own mind, let who will be the author or director, he must, I think, be highly dishonest, and disregard any dictate of honour, conscience, and integrity. Now if I firmly believe, as I have solemnly sworn, that no authority has power to absolve me from my oath, and I find the Declaration contains such an absolution, I cannot read it without the grossest dissimulation. I both act directly against my oath and deal deceitfully with the present Government. If after swearing expressly, as I have done, that the Pope, for instance, has no authority to absolve me from my oaths, I should in a place of sacred worship, against my belief, in obedience to any other authority declare that the Pope has absolved me from my oath of allegiance, would not everybody conclude that I had broken my oath? Again: supposing I had taken an oath of fidelity to the Congress and had solemnly renounced all other power that should attempt to subvert their authority, and afterwards the Army, for instance, was to set up in opposition to the Congress and to proclaim their General King of America, and should order me to publish such a proclamation in a place of publick worship, could I honestly comply?

Gentlemen, I have lived a considerable time in the world, and have passed through a variety of scenes without being considered heretofore as a seditious, injurious, revengeful, or malicious person. There are several people in this neighbourhood and this very town, who knew my life and conversation when very young, and I presume if called to give testimony would declare that my general conduct was sober, peaceable, and inoffensive.

At college I was known to two of the gentlemen present, and defy them to charge me with any crime, and I appeal to the college records, from which it will appear I was never punished during my residence there in the space of four years. I afterwards kept a publick school in several places, from each of which I carried ample testimonials of my good behaviour to England, when I went there for an ordination, and besides was fully recommended by a large number of principal gentlemen and near thirty clergymen of different denominations; and since my residence in the eastern country I think none can justly charge me with being treacherous, turbulent, designing, or factious. Who have I knowingly defrauded? Have I studied to injure any one in his lawful business? Have I endeavoured to foment or encourage private quarrels, or officiously intermeddled with the religious, civil, or domestick relations of my neighbours? Have I laboured to create discord in families, or contended with any one in the law, even to recover a just debt? Have I taken any thing from the poor and necessitous, or sought to enrich myself at the expense of others? I can lay my hand upon my heart and declare I never attempted to render a human being miserable, or took pleasure in afflicting an unfortunate fellow-creature.

And pray, gentlemen, what have I done to injure the American cause? Have I taken up arms in favour of Britain? Have I gone into any publick meetings to defend or establish the pretensions of either the King or Parliament? Have I prevented any one from inlisting in the service? Have I by word or writing conveyed any intelligence to the enemy? Have I ever attempted to escape out of the country, even when I had an opportunity, or have I aided, abetted, or assisted the invaders of America? Why, then, am I charged with being an enemy to my country? What is my crime? Is it those connections I cannot dissolve? I am criminal only for acting as every honest man ought to act in the same circumstances, in rather choosing to suffer the penalty (if any such is annexed) to an order of Council, than to feel the eternal reproaches of a guilty conscience. I would observe further, that supposing I was really in my heart unfriendly to the country, (which I absolutely deny,) it is not in my power to injure it. Can any person without money, without influence, without authority, without opportunity, in such a remote corner, do any thing to obstruct the wheels of Government, or to determine the operations of the war? Is it not therefore ungenerous and a little inhuman to render any one uneasy, who has neither power nor inclination to hurt you?

Gentlemen, I sincerely wish to see the prosperity of my country, and am willing to submit to the authority of the present Government in all lawful and indifferent matters; but to declare myself absolved from my former oath of allegiance, I am convinced is neither lawful nor indifferent. I acknowledge that I have not complied with the order of Council, and have neglected to read the paper for Independency; but I assure that refusal proceeded not from any contempt of their authority, but from a principle of conscience, and I am willing to throw myself upon the mercy of those honourable gentlemen, and to submit to whatever punishment they shall be pleased to inflict.

October 28th, 1776.—The aforegoing are submitted to the Committee of Correspondence for the town of Pownalborough, as my reasons for not reading the Declaration for Independency.

JACOB BAILEY.

SIMEON DWIGHT TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Western, November 16th, 1776.

I send you enclosed a letter I received by express from the Committee of Correspondence, &c., &c., of the town of Mendon, wherein your Honours may observe that they inform me that your Honours have informed them by a letter, that you had ordered me to remove the prisoners in Mendon, &c.

I beg leave to inform your Honours that I have received no such order, but shall be ready to obey when I shall receive it.

I am your Honours' obedient and most humble servant,

Mendon, 13th November, 1776.

SIR: The Committee of Correspondence, &c., of the town of Mendon, have received a letter from the honourable Council of this State, informing us that they had ordered your Honour to remove all the prisoners in Mendon to the town of Grafton; and the Committee have been waiting impatiently for their removal for the following reason: that is, that they have got acquainted with all parts of the town, or the people in all parts of it, and some persons in said town seem to favour their cause; and further, persons from different neighbouring towns come lurking round them, for what reason we are not able at this time to assign, but we believe for no good intent. And we think it best for the good and safety of this State that they be removed from this town immediately, to some other town, where they may not be so much acquainted. In so doing you will oblige yours, &c.,

CAPTAIN J. PAUL JONES TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Alfred, off the coast of Cape Breton,
16th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed you have a copy of my last letter from this coast. We have manned the Mellish and mounted her with ten guns. I have given the command to Lieutenant Brown.

We this morning took the snow Kitty, of London, bound from Gaspee for Barbadoes, with oil and fish, &c. By her I understand that the harbours in that district had been frozen up for some time before she sailed. This is by no means an encouraging account to me, as it lays me under the greatest apprehension that the port of my destination may be in the same condition; besides the stormy and contrary winds still prevail, and the Providence and Alfred keep each a pump going. I will, however, pursue the expedition while there is a possibility of success. I have hopes of being in one of our ports by the 10th December; meanwhile I have the honour to be, with much esteem and respect, gentlemen, your very obliged, very obedient, and most humble servant,

J. PAUL JONES.

CONDITION OF THE SLOOP PROVIDENCE.

To HOYSTEED HACKER, Esq., Commander of Sloop PROVIDENCE:

We, the subscribers, take this method to acquaint you of the present situation of our vessel and crew. Since the afternoon of our chasing the brig which we made prize of, we have leaked in such a manner as to oblige us to keep one pump constantly going, owing to our being obliged to carry sail hard, and the wind blowing very fresh, which strained her very much, the last night being obliged to lay to, by reason we could not carry sail, as we kept both pumps constantly going. Should we meet with a severe gale of wind, it is our opinions both pumps would not keep her free unless we scudded. We have a quarter part of our hands sick, and the prizes we have will still reduce our numbers, as they are of great value. Should you think proper to continue us farther to the northward, we are ready and willing to do every thing in our power for the good of the expedition, but we are of opinion it will too much endanger the vessel.

By J. Paul Jones, Captain of the American ship of war the Alfred, senior officer in the original fleet, and commander of the present squadron off the coast of Newfoundland:

SIR: You are hereby appointed commander of our prize the ship Mellish; and as she is now manned, equipped, and armed for war, you are to endeavour to keep company with me and observe and obey all signals made on board here. You receive herewith a copy of signals for your government. Should we fall in with any of the enemy's ships of war, you are directed to give us all possible assistance, and you are to follow all future directions which you may receive from me. Should you unfortunately be separated from the squadron you are to proceed with all possible despatch for the most convenient port within the United States of America. I would advise you to proceed through Nantucket Shoals to Rhode-Island. Your careful attention to these things will secure my regard.

SIR: You are hereby appointed commander of our prize the snow Kitty, late from Gaspee for Barbadoes, with a cargo of fish and oil, &c. You are directed to navigate her with all possible expedition into the most convenient port within the United States of America. I would advise you, if it can be done without much risk, to make Rhode-Island your port. Be very careful with her cargo and stores, and keep a good look-out to prevent her being surprised or retaken.

J. PELLETIER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 17th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As I have been obliged to take four hogsheads of tobacco for the sale of my drugs, you'd infinitely oblige me to let me put it on board of Captain John Martin, of the brig Friendship, as I cannot get payment in any other way. If you, gentlemen, should not approve of my putting it on board the said brig, it will be of great loss to me. Should there be any thing that I can be of service to you in, shall do it with great pleasure.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,

J. PELLETIER.

JOHN MARTIN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 17th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This my second opportunity of informing you of my situation. I am much distressed for sailors. The merchants in this place give from twelve to fifteen pounds per month, and if I don't give as much, I can get no sailors. I am told Captain Stone is going to take the brig. It is a thing that I am unacquainted with, and would be glad of an answer to this letter.

The brig wants an anchor one hundred weight, cable ten inches. She never had any but the old anchors and cables from Captain Stone's sloop. I want two hundred four-pound shot, three hundred three-pound shot, and some swivel balls; some cordage for back stays, &c. I shall advise this morning with Captain Nicholson, and ask him if I must keep the brig till I get an answer from your honourable Board.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

JOHN MARTIN.

MARINE COMMITTEE TO LIVINUS CLARKSON AND JOHN DORSIUS.

November 17, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Upon the recommendation of your friends here, we have appointed you Continental Agents in the State of South-Carolina. As such you are to supply any of the ships or cruisers with whatever provisions, stores, or necessaries they may be in want of, when they put into, or arrive in any of your ports. If repairs are necessary, we depend on you to employ the best tradesmen, and see that the business is done with despatch. You will, in short, do all things in this department that you think will serve the continent and promote the service of the Navy, and you must send us proper certificates, signed by the Captain or principal officer of each ship or vessel, of your expenditure, and your drafts on this Board for the amount will be duly honoured. It is a standing order to all our men-of-war and cruisers, to send their prizes addressed to the Continental Agents at the ports where they arrive. If any such come into South-Carolina, you must receive the same into your charge, prosecute them in the Admiralty to condemnation, make the sale of them at publick vendue, pay all charges justly attending each prize, and credit us for such part as appertains to the continent, agreeable to the rules and regulations, a book of which shall be sent you. The shares belonging to the officers and crews of the captors, you must divide amongst them agreeable to the said rules and regulations; and to this justly and equitably the commanders must furnish you with complete and certified list of the officers and men entitled to a share of each prize, and the share or shares they are respectively entitled to; and you are to pay all persons concerned their shares as soon after sale is made as you possibly can, and return to this Board duplicates of all your accounts and proceedings.

We are, gentlemen, your very humble servants.

Messrs. Livinus Clarkson and John Dorsius.

CLEMENT BIDDLE TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read November 19, 1776.]

Brunswick, 17th November, 1776, eight o'clock, p. m.

SIR: The annexed letter, containing the disagreeable intelligence of the reduction of Fort Washington, arrived this hour. I have it in command from my Lord Stirling, who is now here, to assure you that there are at this place and within a few miles, eight regiments, (exclusive of General Stephens's brigade at Amboy,) who are ready to march where the service may require, or to cover the country from any attempt of the enemy to land on this coast. His Lordship has good information that the fleet which sailed out of the Hook did not exceed one hundred and fifty sail, and that they were empty and bound for England. He will write to Congress fully to-morrow. The four regiments quartered here amount to nineteen hundred, and Colonel Hands's brigade, between Elizabeth-Town and Woodbridge, about twelve hundred.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

CLEMENT BIDDLE.

TENCH TILGHMAN TO ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON.

Head-Quarters, Hackensack, November 17, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 13th found me this day in the neighbourhood of this place, where we are fixed for the present. I wish I had better news to communicate, but we suffered a heavy stroke yesterday in the loss of Fort Washington and its garrison, consisting of about two thousand men, who chiefly were made prisoners of war; what were not, fell in the action. The lines were bravely defended; but what could two thousand men do against General Howe's whole Army, who poured in upon them from every quarter? The loss of the post is nothing compared to the loss of men and arms, and the damp it will strike upon the minds of many. We were in a fair way of finishing the campaign with credit to ourselves, and I think to the disgrace of Mr. Howe, and had the General followed his own opinion, the garrison would have been withdrawn immediately upon the enemy's falling down from Dobbs's Ferry. But General Greene was positive that our forces might at any time be drawn off under the guns of Fort Lee. Fatal experience has evinced the contrary. Whether the enemy will make any other move this season, is matter of speculation. We are posting the Army on this side the river, along from Newark to Amboy, as places easy of communication with each other, and through which the enemy must pass, if Philadelphia or any place southward is their aim. Troops will be left at the passes leading from the North River into Jersey and New-York, to prevent supplies from going to the enemy. We left Mr. Duer at Peekskill. I shall continue to write to you as I find opportunity. I imagine we shall make Brunswick our head-quarters.

I am, dear sir, yours,

TENCH TILGHMAN.

To Robert R. Livingston, Esq., of the Committee of Correspondence.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

General Greene's Quarters, November 17th, 1776.

SIR: With much concern I beg leave to inform you of an unfortunate event that has taken place. Yesterday, about twelve o'clock, the enemy made a general attack upon our lines on Harlem Heights, which having carried, the garrison retired within the fort. Colonel Magaw, who commanded, finding the works invested on every side by a large part of their Army, and that there was but little or no prospect of effecting a retreat across the North River, surrendered the post. We do not know the loss of killed and wounded on either side, but I imagine it is pretty considerable, as the engagement at some parts of the lines was of long continuance and heavy; neither do I know the terms of capitulation. The force of the garrison before the attack was about two thousand men. The importance of the North River, and the sanguine wishes of all to prevent the enemy from possessing it, have been the causes of this unhappy catastrophe.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

P. S. You will be pleased to transmit this intelligence to Governour Cooke, with a requisition to him to send it to the Massachusetts State.

As an exchange of prisoners must be naturally desired by both parties, I shall be glad to know if those in your State are ready, and of your sentiments, by the earliest opportunity, as to the mode, whether it will be best by water or by land. G. W.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM FORT LEE, NOV. 17, 1776.

The true reason of our loss of Fort Washington, I believe, was the extensiveness of our lines. We had too few men to oppose the different attacks, and yet, when collected together, too many to garrison the fort. Captain Gouge, who was the messenger from General Washington, says Fort Washington was so crowded that it was difficult to pass through it, and as the enemy were in possession of the little redoubts around it, they could have poured in such a shower of shells and richochet-balls, as would have destroyed hundreds in a little time. And the flag arriving at this moment with the promise of the preservation of their baggage, and safety to their persons, in case of a surrender, prudence dictated that it should be given up. The fault lay in retiring so soon to the fort, not in surrendering it. I have been computing the number, and can make no more than twenty-two hundred rank and file, besides officers.

The enemy have been busy all day in removing the stores at Fort Washington, and have burnt several houses, for what reason we cannot conjecture. As this post, which was intended to keep the communication open, has now become useless, it will probably be abandoned as soon as the stores can be removed. Whether the Army will move higher up the river or westward into the country I imagine is not yet agreed on.

GENERAL NIXON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp Philipsborough, 17th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I received your favour of this day, together with Colonel Sargeant's return, and shall endeavour to make the alteration in the returns, agreeable to your desire in your letter.

I have, dear sir, the mortification to inform you of the reduction of Fort Washington by the Ministerial troops yesterday, the particulars of which I have not as yet got.

I wish you health and prosperity, and am, with the greatest esteem, your very humble servant,

JNO. NIXON.

Major-General Heath.

CAPTAIN JOHNSON TO ABRAHAM P. LOTT.

Heights at White-Plains, November 17, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I expect in a little time to return to a private life. I should be wanting to my country if I did not recommend objects worthy of your notice, viz: Lieutenant John Johnson as capable of being Captain of marines in one of your ships, being an excellent officer. I will warrant my reputation on his conduct. He will not stay in the regiment if he does not get his rank, being now a first Third Lieutenant, and several officers we expect to be promoted before him. I was an eye-witness to his behaviour in the late action; and to James Barret, our Sergeant-Major, a man worthy of a commission. I would freely give my commission up to have all commissioned officers as good men as he is. It is the first time I have asked a favour of the Congress, except when I offered to serve my country, which I once thought the greatest honour, in their distress, but now have no more than to wish you harmony and success.

Believe me to be, gentlemen, your friend and servant,

JOHN JOHNSON.

To Abraham P. Lott, Esq.

---

WILLIAM PALFREY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Peekskill, 17 November, 1776.

SIR: I would beg leave to acquaint you that, agreeable to your orders, I have fixed my office at this place, and should be extremely glad to be informed whether I am to pay any warrants but what I receive from your Excellency.

General Lee has sent me several, which I have paid, but am afraid the business is not conducted with the regularity it used to be under the inspection of your Secretary.

Major Lee, of Glover's regiment, has drawn pay as Major of brigade, as well as Major of the regiment. This, I think, cannot be right; but as a warrant came from General Lee, I could not refuse the payment. I am told by General Heath's Aid-de-Camp, that as he acts in a separate department, he also has a right to draw warrants. As I would wish to conduct properly, I beg your Excellency's directions on the subject.

When you write again to the Congress, be pleased to inform them that I have now only the last remittance of five hundred thousand dollars on hand. The demand will soon be great, when the troops are dismissed; and Colonel Trumbull informs me that between this and the last of December, he shall want a million of dollars.

I have no directions from your Excellency with respect to the payment of the Militia. You'll be pleased to inform me whether I am to pay them or not.

I am, most respectfully, your Excellency's obedient and humble servant,

WM. PALFREY, P. M. G.

To his Excellency General Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the United States of America, at New-Jersey.

ORDERS TO LIEUTENANT-COLONEL DE ROUSSI.

SIR: You will repair with your detachment and boats to King's Ferry, where you will remain until further orders. You will order your boatmen to ferry over the Hudson river all such officers and soldiers belonging to the Army of the United States of America, as may from time to time have orders or permission to pass the river, and also all horses, wagons, and baggage, belonging to the Army. You are not to permit any soldier belonging to the Army to pass unless he can produce a pass, signed by a proper officer. You will also observe such directions as have been given in charge to the officer whom you relieve.

Given under my hand, at Peekskill, this 17th day of November, 1776.

W. HEATH, M. G.

To Lieutenant-Colonel Regnier De Roussi.

H. GLEN TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Schenectady, 17th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have sent off all the batteaus I had to Albany, according to your request, except a few that was gone to Fort Schuyler with beef, soap, and candles. The barracks goes on finely now; since the Militia has come home, I have plenty of hands.

Since your departure from Albany, it seems Mr. Abraham C. Cuyler, my brother-in-law, is come home from Hartford, when I was sent for in order to acquaint the County Committee therewith, which I accordingly did, with a petition from Mr. Cuyler to the Committee for leave to remain with his family by giving security for his behaviour. But it was rejected by the Committee, and was ordered to go back to the Governour of Connecticut. Mr. Cuyler, being informed of his going back, it seems there is a conclusion for my sister and four small children to go with him; and by a second consideration of the Committee, their resolve is, that Abraham C. Cuyler will be brought down by an officer and a party of men to the New-York Convention at Fishkill, there to have a hearing; and as Mr. Cuyler has a failing most of people are subject to, of being too passionate, I would beg leave for to go down with him, if the General could spare me for about eight days, in order to see if leave could not be obtained for him to remain with his family.

I am unfortunate that I have some near relations differs with me in sentiment about the times, though I am determined to stick to the principle I set out upon to the last, let the consequences be what it will, as I have that humanity and have a feeling for a sister and four young ones. I am of opinion, should it be possible for me to be from home for about eight days, to go with him and get some careful persons to look after the works of the barracks, that I might be of service; that I might persuade Mr. Cuyler to take up with such restrictions or security as may be proposed by our Convention for him to remain with his family, which might be occasion of his family not breaking up. I am in hopes to be back, should I get leave, before the arrival of the troops in winter-quarters. I send the bearer on purpose, and shall expect your answer by him.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

H. GLEN.

To Major-General Schuyler, Saratoga.

MEMORANDUM FOR HON. MAJOR-GENERAL HORATIO GATES.

Camp Ticonderoga, November 17th, 1776.

Whereas Captain John Hulings, of the Second Pennsylvania Regiment Foot, has been in a bad state of health since his coming into Canada, and incapable of doing any duty in the regiment, he obtained before my return to this place, a furlough for two months, and went for Philadelphia. He took with him all his company books and accounts, thereby rendering it impossible for any officer in the regiment to settle with his men, who are now entering complaints against him. The above facts are well known to General St. Clair, who was of opinion he ought not to continue in the service.

Captain John Bresban, of the above regiment, is become extremely disagreeable to the whole corps of officers, by frequently getting drunk with his privates, and in many other instances (disagreeable to mention) has behaved unlike a gentleman and a soldier.

Jos. WOOD, Col. 2d. P. R.

UDNY HAY TO GENERAL GATES.

HONOURABLE SIR: The favours you have bestowed on me on many occasions, that readiness you have always showed to assist every person who you had reason to believe was a true friend to the noble cause in which we were all engaged, induces me to hope you will lay the above account before the honourable the Continental Congress of these States, not as a claim made by me for losses sustained, as every shilling's worth of it originated from acts of my own free will; but rather as a narrative of actual facts, which, should I hereafter be found to deserve it, may induce that honourable body, on some future day, to provide for me in a way which, without being any incumbrance to the publick, may, in some measure, compensate for the heavy loss I have sustained. And that the reality of those losses may appear more clear, must beg leave to give you a short sketch of the manner in which they were occasioned.

The first article in the above account, viz: the three hundred tons of ship timber, was carried down as low as St. Erras, but arrived there too late to be carried over the rapids of Chamblee that spring, owing to General Carleton's having refused me the liberty of getting that assistance, either in men or provisions, which I had provided for that purpose, not for any particular grudge he bore me as an individual, but from my being represented to him as a person too much biased in favour of the general American cause to be trusted, or in any respect assisted; and next fall, when the waters were again sufficiently high, though I offered the best security the city of Quebeck could afford for my good behaviour, was by Lieutenant-Governour Cramahé refused the liberty to go and save my property, which at that time could very easily have been done. The consequence was that this spring the greatest part was drove off by the ice, the rest either fell into the enemy's hands or was destroyed by ourselves. In short, sir, every article I lost in the above account proceeded from my being deprived of that liberty of looking after my own affairs, which a person less suspected than myself could easily have obtained; nor can you be surprised I was watched with a jealous eye, when I acquaint you that the business I followed occasioning me yearly to employ a great number of the lower class of Canadians at and about Quebeck, it was well known I must have a considerable influence over them, and that opinion was strengthened by a leading man of that class in the suburb of St. Rocks, informing the Adjutant-General of the British Militia, at that time very assiduous in raising men for Colonel McLean's regiment, that he and many more were ready to take up arms, provided I would agree to march at their head; this occasioned an immediate application to me on that subject; but I thank my God neither fear of punishment, nor offers of reward, were ever able to prevail on me to sign a paper, appear on the parade, or take up the arm against that cause in which I am determined religiously, zealously, and conscientiously to discharge the duties of whatever station I may be placed in, as far as ever my abilities will permit.

As to the prices of the articles charged, Mr. John Benfield, of Quebeck, merchant, now at Congress, is a very good judge, having had a considerable connection in that branch for several years past.

I hope you will excuse this trouble, and believe me to be, with a just sense of all your favours already conferred on me, and with due respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

UDNY HAY.

Major General Gates.

Endorsed: General Gates recommends Udny Hay to be made Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel and Assistant D. Q. M. General, stationed at Ticonderega.

WILLIAM CLAJON.

RAWLINS LOWNDES TO SOUTH-CAROLINA ASSEMBLY.

Charles-Town, November 18, 1776.

SIR: As I am elected a member of the General Assembly for the Parish of St. Bartholomew, I take the liberty, thus early, to acquaint the House that I decline serving, as I shall be absent when the House meets. I humbly hope this my refusal will be accepted, that so the Parish may have an opportunity of electing another person in my room.

I am, with the greatest respect, sir, your most humble servant,

RAW. LOWNDES.

The Honourable the Speaker.

---

CÆSAR RODNEY TO COLONEL PATTERSON.

Dover, November the 18th, 1776.

SIR: At the request of the members of Council and Assembly, delivered me by Mr. Collins, I sent to the care of Thomas McKean, Esq., in Philadelphia, by John Palmer, shallopman, sixty blankets and all the clothes of any kind whatsoever that could be procured here suitable for the Delaware battalion. They were packed in three hogsheads and accompanied with a letter to Mr. Wheat. But as the collectors of those articles had not then made me their return in proper order, I could not send them the invoice and account of them. I have now enclosed you a general account of them and the charges thereon, all which I have presently charged to this Government as directed by Mr. Collins.

On Monday, the 4th of this month, one George Gibson, who says he is a Captain in the First Virginia Regiment, was sent by the State of Virginia and General Lee on an expedition to New-Orleans, and was passed through here with letters from the Governour of that place to Congress, applied to me to assist him with horses and a small matter of cash. I procured horses to send him a part of the way, let him have six pounds, which was all he asked, and have enclosed you his receipt for it. As the money was advanced for the publick service, I should be obliged to you to procure it again for me. Before I let him have the money, he showed his credentials, signed by Mr. Pendleton and many other gentlemen of note in Virginia.

Yesterday and the day before, I had two letters from General McKenley, with copies of other letters enclosed, informing that a great number of vessels had sailed from New-York; that it was expected that they intended up Delaware, to pay Philadelphia a visit. On the receipt of this piece of intelligence, I immediately issued and sent orders to all the Field Officers in this and Sussex County, to see that their several battalions were immediately prepared, with their arms, accoutrements, &c., to march when and where they should receive orders for that purpose. This I did in discharge of my duty as commanding officer; but between you and I, I no more believe they are coming at this season of the year to attack Philadelphia than I believe they intend besieging the moon.

I am pleased to find by the postscript of Mr. Hancock's letter, that Carleton and his forces have retreated. Whenever you have any thing, either publick or private, worth communicating, and should be fortunate enough to steer clear of those violent lazy fits that sometimes seize you, I should be much obliged to you to let me have it.

I am, with much respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

CÆSAR RODNEY.

BOARD OF WAR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

War Office, 18th November, 1776.

SIR: The Hancock and Adams, loaded from France with military stores and other articles for the use of the Continent, was taken by a Rhode-Island privateer, and carried into the port of Dartmouth, in New-England. The muskets, powder, lead, and gun-flints, are to be delivered by virtue of the enclosed resolution of Congress, to the order of this Board. We have wrote to the Committee of Bedford, in whose district Dartmouth lies, to deliver to your order such of the before-mentioned articles as you shall direct.

We have the honour to be, with great esteem, sir, your very humble servants,

BENJ'N HARRISON,
JAMES WILSON,
FRANCIS LIGHTFOOT LEE.

General Washington.

---

IN CONGRESS, November 15, 1776.—The Secret Committee having reported that the Cargo imported in the Hancock and Adams, which has been carried into the port of Bedford, in Massachusetts-Bay, consisted of the following articles: 72 chests of Arms, 311 barrels Gunpowder, 338 pigs of Lead, 9 casks of Gun-Flints, 1 case of Pins, 133 barrels of Tin-Plates, 5 cases of Iron-Wire, 70 casks of Saltpetre, 10 bales of Merchandise:

MEMORIAL OF ISAAC COX IN BEHALF OF ALEXANDER FRAZER AND OTHER INHABITANTS OF PROVIDENCE.

[Read 18th November, 1776.]

To the honourable the Delegates of the Thirteen UNITED STATES OF NORTH AMERICA, in Congress assembled:

The Memorial of ISAAC COX, of the City of PHILADELPHIA, merchant, in behalf of ALEXANDER FRAZER and of JOHN KEMP and ANTHONY KEMP, of the Island of PROVIDENCE, merchants, respectfully showeth:

That some time in the month of August last two sloops, called the Dragon and Molly, were seized and taken at or near the Island of Providence aforesaid, by Captain Craig and Captain Robeson, commanders of the private sloops of war called the Congress and the Chance, and brought into the port of Philadelphia.

That the said Captains Craig and Robeson also seized and took on board the said two sloops called the Dragon and Molly, twenty negro slaves, and brought them also into the port of Philadelphia. That the said two sloops called the Dragon and the Molly, and the said twenty negro slaves taken and found on board them, are, and at the time of the seizure and capture aforesaid were, the property of the said Alexander Frazer and of the said John and Anthony Kemp. That the said Alexander Frazer and John and Anthony Kemp now are, and at the time of the seizure and capture aforesaid were, inhabitants of the Island of Providence aforesaid.

That the said two private sloops of war belong to and were fitted out by Andrew Caldwell and John Bayard, of the city of Philadelphia aforesaid, merchants, and divers other persons inhabitants of the State of Pennsylvania.

Your memorialist further showeth, that the said two sloops called the Dragon and the Molly, remained in the port of Philadelphia a considerable time, and that no libel was filed or any proceedings whatever were had against them in order to try the legality of the captures aforesaid.

That your memorialist having received a letter from the said Alexander Frazer, one of the owners aforesaid, informing your memorialist of the seizures and captures aforesaid, and of the property of the said sloops and of the said twenty negroes taken and found on board them, applied to the owners of the said two private sloops of war, and requested them to deliver him up the said two sloops called the Dragon and the Molly, and the said twenty negroes, in behalf of their said owners, and to allow and pay reasonable damages for the captures aforesaid and the detention consequent thereto.

That after some little time the owners of the said two private sloops of war agreed with your memorialist to submit the determination of the justice and propriety of the captures aforesaid and the quantum of damages, to referees indifferently chosen; who, having met and considered the proofs and the allegations of the parties, did award, "That the said sloops Dragon and Molly, together with the twenty negroes, be delivered up to the said Isaac Cox, as factor for the owners, and that the said Andrew Caldwell and John Bayard do pay, &c., as by the award of the said referees hereunto annexed may appear."

That the said two sloops called Dragon and Molly were delivered to your memorialist in pursuance of the award aforesaid, and are now fitted and ready to depart the port of Philadelphia aforesaid, and to return to their owners; and as your memorialist apprehends it necessary to obtain some permit or certificate from the honourable the Congress in order to prevent any arrest or molestation from the ships of war in the service of the United States and from private ships of war fitted out by the inhabitants of these States, your memorialist humbly prays your Honours to take this case into consideration, and to grant to the said sloops letters of safe conduct to the port of Providence aforesaid, or such certificate or permit as to your Honours may seem meet, &c.

ISAAC COX.

Philadelphia, November 18th, 1776.

We, the subscribers, arbitrators chosen by Andrew Caldwell and John Bayard, in behalf of themselves and the other owners of the privateer sloops of war Chance and Congress, and Isaac Cox, in behalf of the owners of the sloops Dragon and Molly and twenty negroes taken by the privateers aforesaid, to settle and determine what damages, or if any should be allowed to the owners of the vessels and negroes aforesaid, having heard the allegations of the parties, do award:

That the said sloops Dragon and Molly, together with the twenty negroes, be delivered up to the said Isaac Cox as factor for the owners, and that the said Andrew Caldwell and John Bayard pay to him three hundred and twenty-eight pounds, current money of this State. The vessels to be delivered in like order and condition as when taken, reasonable wear and tear only excepted.

MEMORIAL OF BENJAMIN EYRE.

To the honourable the Continental Congress:

The Memorial of BENJAMIN EYRE, of PHILADELPHIA, shipwright:

Humbly representing, that his petition of the 24th October last, preferred to your Honours, for the payment of certain services by him done, together with his bill of charges for the same services, has been by your order referred to the Board of Treasury. And they, by stating that account upon a postulatum or principle by them for similar cases adopted, have reduced your memorialist's said account to a sum less than half that which he thinks his said services are worth in justice and reason, the difference between his said bill and the taxation thereof made by the Board of Treasury is clearly appearing on the face of the synopsis of both accounts hereunto subjoined.

Your memorialist solemnly disclaims all those vague pretensions and presumptions of artists and tradesmen, in favour of their own knowledge and deserts. He only begs leave to make one or two observations upon the reduction account of the Board of Treasury, and to appeal from their settlement of his account to the wisdom and justice of the Delegates of the States of America.

1. First, and principally, because your memorialist's charge of building row-galleys at a certain price per ton is made agreeable to the usage and custom of shipbuilders in the Old and New World. But your Board of Treasury reduces and confines him to accept of daily wages and rations; which rule of ascertaining the quantum meruit could never be established against the constant custom without a previous contract between the employer and the workmen. And that the resolve of Congress to pay the journeymen carpenters thirteen pounds and the master builders double that sum per month, and to allow them stated rations, was made a month after your memorialist's setting out for New-York, and could have no retrospect to bind him, or fix upon him an express contract, when he, at the desire of Brigadier-General Mifflin, and on his promise that he should be handsomely rewarded, left Philadelphia without making any contract at all.

2. Secondly, because the Board of Treasury have allowed your memorialist rations, which he can in no wise accept of. When he arrived at New-York, he did not choose to live in that great town like as in a camp or barracks; he hired a house, furnished it, and kept regular house, and one horse constantly employed in the publick service, all which in the dearness of time has actually cost him more than fifteen shillings per day: and this he spent the freer as he never expected to be at any charge to the publick for his daily expenses, but to be paid for his work by the ton.

Therefore your memorialist most humbly submits to your Honours whether his charges of twenty-five shillings per ton for three row-galleys finished, and fifteen shillings for the one not finished, are too high? He left his own yard and his work in hand unfinished, by which, if he had staid at home he might well have earned more than what he has charged for his work abroad.

And your memorialist, as in duty, &c.,

BENJAMIN EYRE.

EDWARD SHIPPEN AND OTHERS TO THE COUNCIL OF SAFETY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Lancaster, the 8th November, 1776.

The bearer hereof, Mr. Marcus Young, being desirous of an ensigncy in the German battalion, we, the subscribers, members of Committee for the County of Lancaster, beg leave to mention, that he is of a very reputable and worthy family in the borough of Lancaster; that he served during the last year's campaign in one of the Rifle companies, and accompanied the Militia of Colonel Ross's battalion during their march and stay at the camp in the Jerseys. That from all report he hath behaved like a spirited good soldier, and we hope will prove himself worthy of such command as it may be thought proper to honour him with.

EDW'D SHIPPEN, JOHN WHITMOR, Jun.,
MATHIAS SLOUGH, SEBASTIAN GRAFF,
ADAM REIGART, WILLIAM ATLEE,
ANDREW GRAFF, J. YEATES.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of the State of Pennsylvania.

---

Lancaster, November the 26th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: This will be handed to you by my brother, Marcus Young, who is gone to Philadelphia with a recommendation for an Ensign's commission in the German battalion (of which I informed you heretofore.) He would be very glad of having your name affixed to his recommendation. I would further mention to you that there will be a vacancy in a few days, for a second lieutenancy in Second Battalion; Frederick Geiser, a Second Lieutenant, who a few days ago married John Carpenter's daughter, is going down to resign, and has mentioned to me that Marcus might stand a good chance for getting in as youngest Second Lieutenant, to which I think he is as much entitled as most. Your assistance, which Marcus will ask of you, shall be thankfully acknowledged by, sir, your most humble servant,

SEBASTIAN GRAFF.

To Jasper Yeates, Esq., at Philadelphia.

---

December 2d, 1776.

DEAR SIR: If it is possible to do any thing for this young man, with respect to an ensigncy or lieutenancy in the German battalion, you would do me a particular favour in affording him your assistance. His youth is the only objection against him, but of that he will mend every day.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

J. YEATES.

GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Burlington, 18th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 7th and 14th I have had the honour to receive, and shall pay all possible attention to the requisitions therein contained. Should I be honoured with any other despatches from you during the sitting of our Assembly, which will probably last about a month, you will please to direct to me at Burlington.

With sentiments of the sincerest respect, I am your most humble and most obedient servant,

WILL. LIVINGSTON.

The Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

---

LORD STIRLING TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Brunswick, November 18th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: In consequence of the retreat of the British Army from the White-Plains, General Washington ordered me to march with the van of his Army towards this place. I crossed Hudson's river in the Highlands with eight regiments of foot, three of which I have left at Rahway and the other five I brought to this place yesterday. The loss of Fort Washington will leave the enemy at leisure to think of other movements, and it is not improbable they may attempt to push through this country towards Philadelphia. I shall therefore take every step which may occur to me as necessary to defeat such a design. The reports that have been circulated of their having embarked a body of men on board of a fleet which sailed a few days ago is without foundation. That fleet consisted of about one hundred and fifty sail of empty transports and store ships, under covoy of Admiral Shuldham in the Bristol, with two frigates. These ships are chiefly bound to Ireland for provisions.

I have no particulars of the loss on either side at Fort Washington, but I have no doubt that the enemy have dearly paid for the possession.

With the highest esteem and regard, I am, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Honourable John Hancock.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL PALFREY.

Hackensack, November 18th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I just now received the favour of your letter of the 17th. I confess I did not expect that any warrants would have been presented to you for payment, except those which I signed myself. The inconveniences which might arise, if several persons in the same Army were allowed to draw are obvious, and such as might produce great uneasiness and injustice to the publick. All who applied to me were told that the abstracts were to be deposited with you and sent down in order to be signed by me at once, or that they would be completed by my signature, if brought at different times. I cannot allow double pay to Major Lee or any other officer. It is expressly against the resolves of Congress. The Militia will be paid on making out proper abstracts, and such as are satisfactory to you, as other troops are. You must inform their officers that they should be very particular in not charging for a longer time than the men were in actual service, and the abstracts should be certified by their Brigadiers or Colonels commandant.

As I cannot conceive it will be for the publick good that warrants should be drawn by different officers, and to prevent further mistakes on that account, I request that you will remove your office near my head quarters, and pay no warrants hereafter but such as come from me, giving notice of your removal. I shall mention to Congress the demands that will be on you, desiring that provision may be made for the same.

I am, &c. GO. WASHINGTON.

To Lieutenant-Colonel William Palfrey, Paymaster-General.

Hartford, December 16th, 1776.

Messrs. Mills and Hicks, late printers in Boston, have opened an office in New-York, in company with one Howe, where they print a weekly paper, from one of which the following paragraphs are extracted:

"New-York, November 18.—The ships fitted out from England, for the supply of the Fleet and Army with necessary stores, such as wines, spirits, woolens, and linens, &c., have also supplied the town in great abundance.

"The 9th instant, a fleet of victualers, with five hundred recruits, arrived here from Corke, in eight weeks; they were dogged for several days on this coast by a brig and schooner, supposed to be rebel privateers.

"Tuesday last about one hundred transports sailed from Sandy-Hook for Great Britain, under convoy of his Majesty's ships Fowey and Active. In the former his Excellency Lord Dunmore took his passage for England.

"Last Wednesday a country carter was taken into custody for having in his possession an English horse belonging to the train, and another horse was taken from a gentleman's negro, but the fellow giving a good account of himself, and it appearing that his master had not the knowledge to whom the horse belonged, he was suffered to go home with a reprimand."

GENERAL GREENE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Fort Lee, November 18th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: The much greater part of the enemy marched off from Fort Washington and above King's Bridge this morning. Their route appeared to be towards New-York. One of the train of artillery came across the river last night on a raft. By his account the enemy must have suffered greatly on the north side of Fort Washington. Colonel Rawlings's regiment was posted there, and behaved with great spirit. Colonel Magaw could not get the men to man the lines, otherwise he would not have given up the fort.

I am sending off the stores as fast as I can get wagons. I have sent three expresses to Newark for boats, but can get no return of what boats we may expect from that place. The stores here are large, and the transportation by land will be almost endless. The powder and fixed ammunition I have sent off first by land, as it is an article too valuable to trust upon the water.

Our Bergen guard were alarmed last night, but believe without much reason.

I am, dear sir, your obedient servant,

NATHANAEL GREENE.

To his Excellency General Washington, at Hackensack.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Peekskill, November 18, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: On the 12th instant I called a council to consider and determine upon the posts most important and proper to be occupied by our troops. There were present Brigadier-Generals James and George Clinton and Scott. (General Morris, Colonel Duer, and Colonel Putnam, whom I invited to sit with us.) After deliberation, it was thought best to make the following disposition of the troops at this post for the present, viz: Two regiments to take post on the west side of Hudson's river, at the entrance of the Highlands, near Sidnum's bridge, at Ramapaugh river; one brigade on the heights above Peekskill landing, and the remainder at the gorge of the mountains, beyond Robinson's bridge.

I have sent Colonel Huntington's and Tyler's regiments to Sidnum's bridge; General George Clinton's brigade on the heights above the landing; and the remaining three regiments of General Parsons, viz: Colonel Prescott's, Ward's, and Wyllys's, and General Scott's brigade, to the gorge of the mountains, by Robinson's bridge. Barracks and works are erecting at each of those places.

Yesterday the President of the Convention of the State of New-York directed to me Colonel De Roussi, with his Canadian detachment, who left Albany a few days since, in a number of batteaus; a return of the detachment is with the returns sent to the Adjutant-General. I have ordered the detachment to King's Ferry, to do duty at that place, as they are well acquainted with boats, until I know your Excellency's pleasure as to their destination.

Three Colonels, three Lieutenant-Colonels, three Majors, and about twenty Captains, appointed by the Committee of the State of Connecticut to serve in the new Army, have declined the service; the vacancies are to be filled up on Wednesday next. General Parsons has importuned me for leave to attend the Governour and Council, which I have granted, and hope for your Excellency's approbation.

I have just received by the express from your Excellency the disagreeable news of the loss of Fort Washington, the rumour of which had just before spread here. I much regret the loss of so many brave and good officers as there were in the battalions at that post.

I have been using my utmost endeavours to get a return of the killed, taken, and missing, in the several regiments of my division, but cannot send it completed, as Colonel Lasher, of General Scott's brigade, is as yet unable to ascertain those of his regiment. Such as I have received I have sent; the others shall be transmitted to your Excellency as soon as I can obtain them.

I have taken the liberty to enclose an abstract for three months' pay, and ask the favour that your Excellency would be pleased to sign the warrant.

The Colonels and Paymasters of the regiments here are complaining of the great distance which they are obliged to go to obtain warrants for the payment of their abstracts. I have promised them that I would lay the matter before your Excellency, and solicit some easier expedient if consistent with your Excellency's pleasure.

The chain which has been extended across the river above this place has broke twice. I must confess that from my first hearing of the intention, I expected no real advantage from it.

General Clinton, with some gentlemen from the Convention of the State of New-York, are to explore and sound the river to-morrow.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, your Excellency's most humble servant,

W. HEATH.

To his Excellency General Washington.

---

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL JAMES CLINTON.

Peekskill, November 18, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have just received the disagreeable news of the reduction of Fort Washington the day before yesterday, but have not as yet had the particulars. The enemy will now have the possession of the river below us; and it behooves us to exert every power to render the river impassable at the Highlands. I beg, therefore, that you would endeavour to complete your works and the obstructions in the river as fast as possible.

I am, dear sir, with esteem, your humble servant,

W. HEATH.

To General James Clinton.

---

PETER GARSON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Peekskill, November 18th, 1776.

SIR: Agreeable to your directions I have taken an account of the flour at Peekskill landing, and find four hundred and ninety barrels, weighing about one hundred and ninety pounds apiece, and expends daily about twenty barrels.

I am, sir, yours at command,

PETER GARSON, D. C.

To the Honourable General Heath.

---

DR. MCKNIGHT TO GENERAL HEATH.

Peekskills, November 18, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: Your just sense of the necessity of establishing a part of the General Hospital at the Kills, for the reception and proper accommodation of the sick of your division, has caused me to make inquiry for houses which might be proper for that purpose, but could find none that, in my opinion, would answer that end so well as the churches, which are by no means at present fitted for it, nor will be until fire-places or stoves are provided, previous to the reception of any; and bunks or cribs for them to lie in are absolutely necessary for their comfortable accommodation, which ought to be immediately fitted or made within the churches or any other building should be made choice of. Captain Adams of the mechanicks is the only proper person to see and order the necessary alterations, as also the making of the bunks.

Should this meet with your approbation, you will be pleased to give Captain Adams his orders.

Your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

CHA'S MCKNIGHT, JR.

To Hon. Major-General Heath.

ELIHU MARVIN TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Orange County, November 18, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Whereas complaints were made to the Committee against one Cornelius Thorpe and one Murrice, alias Sanford, for passing Continental bills altered from two to ten dollars and from seven to ten, the Committee sent immediately after them, and found said Murrice in Brunswick jail, then pursued and brought said Thorpe back, who, when examined, confessed he had altered four bills and stole a saddle in Oxford, and that he and said Murrie stole two horses in the Jerseys and sold them in Orange County; whereupon I committed said Thorpe to Goshen jail, and gave orders to the keeper thereof to keep him safely till he was delivered thereupon by the County Committee or some other lawful authority.

I therefore beg for the direction of the honourable Convention what shall be done in the matter. The young man is poor and not able to help himself with necessaries.

I have sent two of the bills to the honourable Convention by Esquire Little, which was passed by said Thorpe and Murrie. The owners of the said bills are Besaleel Seely and Joshua Miller, who beg to be made whole, for the bills stand them in ten dollars each.

For further information inquire of Esquire Little.

I am, gentlemen, with great esteem, your very humble servant,

ELIHU MARVIN, Chairman.

To the honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

---

This is to certify, to all whom it may concern, that Joshua Miller personally appeared before us, and on oath did declare that he received a two dollar bill from William Sanford which was altered to a ten dollar bill, and that said Sanford had passed a seven dollar bill to one Besaleel Sealy which was altered to a ten dollar bill. Said Sanford being present was asked concerning the above charge, confessed the whole to be true.

JNO. LLOYD, Justice.

To the Committee of Oxford, Orange County.

PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT TO ROBERT BOYD.

Fishkill, November 18, 1776.

SIR: It gives the members of the Convention very great concern to be informed that some of the soldiers who are discharged and returning from the northward, after serving their country with fidelity, are treated inhospitably and refused accommodations, though they are sick and unable to travel. Beside the inhumanity of such ungenerous usage, nothing can more effectually injure the publick service, as it must discourage at this critical time the inlistment of the Army, on which the preservation of America, next to Divine power, ever depends. We beg, therefore, that you will immediately give orders that these and all other soldiers, under the like circumstances, be treated with kindness and hospitality, and assisted to the places of their residence.

I am, in the name of the members of the Convention, sir, your most humble servant,

P. VAN CORTLANDT, Vice-President.

To Robert Boyd, Esq., Chairman of the Committee at New-Windsor.

P. S. The charge of such soldiers as are unable to pay will be advanced by the Convention.

---

ROBERT BOYD, JUN., TO PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT.

New-Windsor, November 18th, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Your kind favour of this day, per Mr. Cooper, just now came to hand, and note the contents. Am much afraid there is too much reason for the complaints you mention, which I am extremely sorry for. The people of New-Windsor have always appeared extremely friendly to the American cause, but fear they are now catching the spirit of the times, taking every opportunity to get money, even though to the disadvantage of the grand cause in which we are embarked. Yesterday morning I was applied to by some of Colonel Winds's regiment, who are sick, in order to be forwarded to Elizabeth-Town. I immediately went over, and as wagons are very scarce in our neighbourhood, thought the most eligible way would be to transport them by water to Haverstraw; and for that purpose engaged a small boat and two young men to work her, in order to convey them, as I was going some distance in the country. After my departure, some misunderstanding took place between the persons that was to go in the boat in order to work her, which prevented their going; and this morning the boatman, who is unwell and unable to go in her, unrigged her and laid her up for the winter. I heard nothing of the matter till this evening, some of the people came to me with complaints. As it was then too late, put the matter off until morning, when I was resolved to see the people righted some way or other. In the interim I have received your letter, which in future shall be a rule for my conduct, and you may depend that every thing in my power shall be done agreeable to your request.

I am, sir, with all respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

ROBERT BOYD.

Colonel Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq.

JOHANNES SLEIGHT TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Committee Chamber, Kingston, November 18th, 1776.

SIR: The inhabitants of this County, till within a few days, have been distinguished for their firmness and attachment to the resolves of Congresses and Committees; in short, have been as peaceable, we flatter ourselves, as any people in this State; but it is with regret that we are under the disagreeable necessity to inform you that we are daily alarmed, and our streets filled with mobs from different parts of the County, breaking of doors and committing of outrages, to the disturbance of the peace and of the good people of this town, owing, as we have reason to believe, to the misfortune of having that detestable article called tea stowed here, which is taken by them and divided or distributed in such manner as they think fit. We have heretofore assured the good people that your Congress would pass a resolve for the disposal of that article lodged here; and it is asserted, (by what authority we know not,) that your Congress had passed a resolve to that purpose, but that before the publication thereof repealed or made void the same, which the people whom we have had before us assign in justification of their conduct in the premises. We now entreat you to advise us how and in what manner we shall suppress these disturbances. We will not presume to dictate to your honourable House, but are well assured that if a resolve was to be passed establishing a price and ordering a disposal thereof, would tend to the interest of the proprietors and the peace of the good people of this State.

We are, sir, with great respect, your very humble and obedient servant.

By order of the Committee:

JOHANNES SLEIGHT, Chairman.

The President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

A SPEECH OF OJISTARALE, THE GRASSHOPPER, AN ONEIDA CHIEF, TO COLONEL ELMORE, COMMANDANT OF FORT SCHUYLER.

BROTHER: I informed General Schuyler some time ago that I was going to Niagara on publick business, and upon my return he should hear from me. I have been no further than Cayogon; I am just now returned from my journey. I was advised by the sachems there to proceed no further, as the principal business I had in view when I set out from home was in a great measure answered by the intelligence I received at Cayogon. I was there informed by Indians, who came from Niagara, that the several tribes of Indians, particularly the Chippewas, Ottawas, and Cherokees, who had been convened at that post, were all dismissed and gone to their respective homes; that Colonel Butler had invited them to return and improve the season for hunting, for he should not proceed to Albany the ensuing winter, the season being too far advanced—should take up winter quarters at Niagara, and also that the commanding officer at that post had for some time been dangerously sick and his life despaired of; that Colonel Butler had also sent to all the Seneka's villages to repair to Niagara, and such as needed should receive powder for their fall hunt, but no other of the Confederacy east of the Senekas were invited to receive the King's bounty, and this reason given for it: "they had countenanced the Bostonians and wished them to succeed." These Indians also informed me that Colonel

Butler had been very much alarmed with a report that General Schuyler was on his march with a vast body of troops to that post, on which account he had agreed with a party of Indians to escort him to Detroit in case Niagara should be attacked, and the Governour of Canada could not send timely relief. The Indians say they had not two hundred regular soldiers in the garrison exclusive of Tory deserters who had fled there for refuge.

"Tis my opinion that you will have no trouble from the enemy this way till the next spring. I desire you will send this intelligence to General Schuyler as soon as may be, as I promised him, upon my return, he should hear from me. The Chiefs join in this petition. You may also let General Schuyler know that it is my opinion the Senekas have all agreed to side with the King of Great Britain; but the Cayogas and Onondagoes (except a few) are friendly to the Americans, and regard the treaty at Albany and German-Flatts. One thing I have to acquaint you with: that some of us sachems and warriours of Oneida have severely reprimanded the Mohauk warriour (called Karahkontes) and his party for killing one of Colonel Dayton's scouts on this side Oswego, and taken another prisoner. We should have interposed had we known their design when one of Karahkontes's party passed through Kanogdarage, and our friendly disposition was manifested in what we did a few weeks after this happened. When Tchonasgweakte, the Onondago chief, sent us word that Karahkonte and his party were on their way to Oncida to take our minister and the gunsmith, two of our sachems and three warriours set out instantly for Kanahsorage, and there met the before-mentioned Mohawk, and forbid his coming into Oneida or any of his party.

We have not yet seen the other Indians who took two of Colonel Dayton's men that were fishing at Fort Bull. The Senekas and Onondagoes told us that William, a son of the late Sir William, commanded the party, one Seneka, called Onuhsoekle, one Onondago, called Kanehsaron, and two others, said to be Messesages. We were sorry for the loss of these men, but it was not in our power to prevent it. I hope General Schuyler will find us Oneidas to be fast to our covenants; our belt of union is strong. You will give my compliments to General Schuyler and the thirteen United States.

OJISTALARE—GRASSHOPPER.

Interpreted by

SAMUEL KIRKLAND, Missionary.

N. B. Sent to Mr. Trumbull, P. M. G. for the Northern Department, for his perusal.

Fort Schuyler, 18th November, 1776.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Saw-Pitts, 18th November, 1776.

SIR: This will be handed your Honour by my son, who is at present one of my Aid-de-Camps, and as such entitled to the rank of Major, but as he is desirous of serving in the standing Army, requests that he may be appointed first or second Captain in Colonel Chester's regiment, if there is room, or in some other regiment belonging to the State of Connecticut.

I have at present about five hundred men out of the Tenth, Thirteenth, and Sixteenth Regiments, whereas I ought to have two thousand, for it is very certain that the enemy have it in their power to send men sufficient to take or drive us off the ground any day, as they are but three hours' march from us; therefore it is very necessary that some effectual measures be taken to call out the Militia when ordered.

I am, sir, with due regard, your Honour's most obedient and very humble servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

To the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

---

WORCESTER COUNTY (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

In Committee Chamber, Worcester, November 18, 1776.

As expedients are no longer wise, prudent, and politick, than the reasons on which they are founded exist, and effects are reversed by a mutation of causes; as the demands of our country are continually variating, and the complexion of publick affairs incessantly altering; as our dangers and our fears subside by the approach of the enemy, and their arts of division have produced unanimity; as the resolve of the State on the 8th of May, 1775, was a temporary provision, and has had its operation; as the resolution of our predecessors in office, disarming and consigning to this town a number of its inhabitants, was expressly to prevent their joining our avowed enemies, and to deprive them of the means of obstructing measures adopted for the common defence; as the suffering, servile, spurned attendance on a passing camp, the fate of parricides, who have joined the adversary, must deter all but the mad from repeating the experiment; and the recent epistolary lamentations of disappointed refugees* extorts the poet's cry, "Ye gods! if there be a man I hate, let attendance and dependance be his fate:" as this day's spectacle† of wretched deluded objects, the ruined exiled grovelings, spued out from a sister State, is a serious warning to persons sporting with the feelings of an whole continent, be they whom, where, or what they may, and the Worcester jail filled with the same engaging geniuses, will remain a standing memento of future dangers to the unfriendly; as the Congress for the continent have supposed that there were some from weakness deceived, others from apprehensions that British power was irresistible, frightened into opposition, and have recommended such as subjects for kindness, reason, and reformation; as the privilege of repenting is one of the most precious indulgences incident to erring mortals, and when attended with an amendment of principle and practice is happy for the man, useful to society, and pleasing to Heaven; as some of the suspected are loud in proclaiming their affection for their country, their grievances from a disarmed confinement, and their readiness for exertions in the general struggle; as early in the dispute, when the expediency of measures was the topick of the day, possibly a mere difference in opinion was the too slender grounds of some hasty suspicions, and a subsequent change of sentiment and conduct may have laid the foundations for forgiveness and friendship, which are equally Christian and political duties; as an Army, potent enough to have made all Europe tremble, and a fleet sufficiently fiery to have set the seas on flames, have been able in a summer's campaign only to effect the possession of lines deserted from policy, a few evacuated towns, the retreat of a picket guard, and the rout of an advanced detachment, or a rambling party, by the weight of solid columns and heavy artillery, the timorous and the doubting must have become courageous and resolved: As the disaffected from principle have not now to learn, from the enemy's not attacking our main Army, or effecting a progress into the country, from their hugging the borders of the ocean under the cover of their hostile arks, that the conquest of America is an event never to be expected: As under such circumstances, joining the regulars would be perpetual exile, poverty, slavery, and death, and coöperating with freemen, with Americans, would be rational, manly, triumph, freedom, and glory: As the present struggle is bottomed on such principles as ought to make every man a party, and the times is hastening when there can be no neuters, no drones in the hives: As the restraining an Englishman to a single town is in derogation of common right, depriving him of his arms, an infraction on liberty, and recording him a Tory, stamping him with infamy, and cannot be justified but upon principles of publick necessity: As a preparation for war is a duty enforced by the laws of our being, and the weapons of death are necessary for the preservation of our own and the lives of our neighbours, that the deceiver and the deceived, the timorous and the obstinate, the dissembler and the undersigning, the abusive and the well-meaning, the ambiguous and the honest, may all have a full, fair, and ample opportunity of giving full, fair, and ample assurances of their friendship to independency, and their readiness to assist and join their countrymen in opposition to both open and secret enemies: That the discontented may be disarmed of every objection, that every barrier to their duty may be removed, and suitable encouragement tendered; and finally, as more effectual provision is made, and now making, both for the restraint and punishment of him who dares to be a dangerous man, and makes war upon the rights and interest of rising States,

* Vide the late letters from England.

† This day above one hundred Tories passed through this town under a military guard on their way to Exeter.

either by avowed exertions or concealed machinations; and as no good reason can be given for continuing the mere existence of the resolve made by our predecessors aforesaid:

Therefore Resolved, That it is inexpedient that the resolution of the late Committee of this town, disarming and confining a number of its inhabitants, be any longer in force; that such persons once more be put upon a standing with the rest of their fellow-countrymen; that they be allowed the privileges of Englishmen, of friends to their country, of passing where and when they please; until they evidence by their conduct and behaviour a different character; and that such as have arms in the possession of the Committee may receive the same by making application to Mr. Baldwin, their Chairman.

2dly. Resolved, That it be recommended to all true, firm, and tried friends to their country, to endeavour to convince persons of every degree, character, and complexion, that the cause we are engaged in is of too much dignity to be sullied by rashness, too important, too seriously important, to be weakened by tumult, divisions, and party strife; that liberty receives strength and vigour from prudence and consideration; that justice, equity, regularity, and, in some instances, moderation are her closest friends; that she courts virtue as her bosom companion, and shuns vice as her dangerous enemy; and therefore equally avoiding feverish fits of political heat and cold, banishing from their breast all personal prejudices, private piques, narrow opinions, illiberal distinctions, and unbecoming jealousies; displaying a magnanimity proportional to the importance and danger of the struggle, cultivating harmony of sentiment and unanimity of councils; and carefully distinguishing between the friend and the foe: that it is wisdom (acting discreetly, firmly, unitedly, and spiritedly) to receive all such to their favour, friendship, and confidence, who will give ample and satisfactory assurances of their readiness to join in the defence of their much-injured country, and their steady persevering attachment to her glorious cause, at the same time to exercise a vigilant attention to those who continue notoriously in opposition; those who secretly influence under the principles of an affected neutrality, and those who may labour to conceal themselves under the despicable cloak of a cunning duplicity, if any such there be.

3rdly. Resolved, That it be recommended to the good people of this town that they use their utmost endeavours immediately to equip themselves with every implement of war, as the necessary means of defence from a foreign attack, or an internal insurrection.

Per order of the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety, of Worcester.

SAMUEL DEXTER TO THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Woodstock, November 18th, 1776.

SIR: I hope I shall not be thought chargeable with neglect of the trust reposed in me, first by what was then called the Provincial Congress, and afterwards by the General Court, although I am not at present possessed of any of the letters or other papers of the late Governour Hutchinson, and consequently am unable to comply with the order of the honourable House of the 4th instant, forwarded to me by Jonathan Metcalf, Esq.

When I came to this town, to visit my family, whom, at their irresistible importunity, I consented should remove hither, it was not my determination to remain so long in this unsettled situation; but Providence so ordered it that the bodily disorders which forbade my taking a seat in the House of Representatives last year, increased upon me to that degree that I ventured abroad but very little during the greatest part of the following winter.

Before I came to this place I committed all the books and papers with which I had been intrusted to the care of the Rev. William Gordon, of Roxbury, whom their Honours of the House well know to be a gentleman trustworthy and patriotick. He still has them in keeping, and I purposed they should remain with him till my return to Dedham, with my family, which I had made preparation for, and should, with submission to Providence, have effected some time in this month, had I not been prevented by the prevalency of the small-pox, which I judged myself an unfit subject for, under my present complaints.

My expectation is that I shall return soon; but in the mean time Mr. Gordon will cheerfully obey the direction of the honourable House, if applied to, by their order, for any papers that may be wanted. I have not at this distance of time a perfect recollection of my seeing among them letters from Colonel Israel Williams to Mr. Hutchinson; although

I am inclined to think I did. One from the latter to the former I well remember to have seen in one of the books, wherein he mentions "the Dedham Councillor" as writing "nonsense in the Evening Post," (so he was pleased to call it,) with a view to confute the reasoning in his long speech of January, 1773. Whether he was right in his conjecture or not, he knew I detested his principles of Government. Alas that I ever should have been so much mistaken as to entertain, though so long before that period, and but for a short time, a favourable opinion of a man whom all America are bound to execrate.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

SAMUEL DEXTER.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE TO EXAMINE TWO TRUNKS AT COLONEL TAYLOR'S.

The Committee appointed to examine two trunks said to be at Colonel Taylor's, at Milton, belonging to the late Governour Hutchinson, and to take the same into their safe-keeping if any thing should be found therein whereby the interest of this Colony may be in any wise affected, have waited on Colonel Taylor, who informed your Committee that he had several trunks in his possession brought from the late Governour Hutchinson's house. He was willing to open them, and that their contents should be fully examined, but added, that a few days past a Committee from the House had been there on the same errand, and had taken out of his possession every paper which in their opinion in any wise affect the interest of this Colony. That being the case, your Committee thought it quite needless to inspect them.

B. LINCOLN. Per order.

IN COUNCIL, September 11th, 1775—Read and accepted.

P. MORTON, Deputy Secretary.

IN COUNCIL, September 6, 1775—Ordered, That Colonel Lincoln and Colonel Palmer be a Committee to examine two Trunks, said to be at Colonel Taylor's, at Milton, belonging to the late Governour Hutchinson; and if they shall find therein any papers or other things whereby the interests of this Colony may be in any wise affected, they are to take the same into their safe-keeping until the further order of this Board.

PEREZ MORTON, Deputy Secretary.

ABM. VAN BIBBER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Eustatia, 19th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have this day wrote you fully, and only mean by this to advise you that I have this day drawn on you, in favour of Captain Thomas Dalling, payable at sight, for four hundred dollars, which draft I flatter myself will be punctually honoured; and I am, with much esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

ABM. VAN BIBBER.

The honourable the Council of Safety for the State of Maryland.

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Eustatia, 19th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have by different opportunities lately advised you of the change and turn that has taken place here by Government in favour of the American States. Now our flag flies current every day in the road.

The merchants here are always complaining of Government, until they would give as much protection and indulgence here to us as the French and Spaniards do. The orders from the States and great West-India Company to this Governour, for the prohibition of the export of powder, and other warlike stores, expires the 28th instant. It's made publick, and the Governour is daily expressing the greatest desire and intention to protect a trade with us here. Indeed, they begin to discover their mistake, and are now very jealous of the French's running away with all their trade. All kinds of goods and warlike stores are very plenty here, and much more reasonable than they are at the French Islands, and all your goods purchased here, and at a very great expense and risk too, they are up to Martinique, to be reshipped to Maryland in your vessels as they all arrive here.

Your flour, bread, and tobacco, is all sent down here to be sold, as this is always the best market for your produce, especially tobacco, which this is the only market for. All these goods are burthened with a very heavy freight from Martinique here, and never fail to suffer great abuses on the way; hogsheads broken all to pieces, and the tobacco, hove loose ashore, &c., &c. Indeed, its lessened in value, fifty per cent. All this I have often mentioned in sundry of my last letters to your honourable House.

I have enclosed all my own private accounts by three different vessels. I hope you have received some of them, and flatter myself they will be approved of, as I must assure you I never omitted doing any thing that has ever been in my power that could serve my country.

Sirs, on Mr. Crockett's arrival here, I intended to have returned home, and left him to settle my affairs here, but my circumstances are such that our creditors would not consent to my leaving this place until our debts are discharged. I shall endeavour to content myself until it may suit you to enable us to wind up what we have done for our State here, and will render every service in my power during my stay; though I must inform you that I dislike my station, and would be happy if it was to be in my power to leave it very soon. I have endeavoured always to encourage all the trade and speculations that was possible to any part of the Continent, and particularly to our State, as perhaps you have observed, and I have engaged into some concerns very largely in order to induce others to speculate to our State, viz: in particular in two ships ordered to be purchased in Baltimore, and load out from there; one of them I engaged to be a fifth, and the other a fourth concerned. This was purely to serve my country, and my engagements otherwise will scarcely admit of my being concerned. This I inform you of with an expectation that you would take the risk, profit or loss, off my hands. The plans of the voyages are good, and we will attend to and see them well managed, &c.

Mr. John Crockett is to return, and is the bearer of this. He is well acquainted with all matters here that you may wish to be advised of, and to him please to be referred. Should he at any time want a sum of money to execute any orders he may receive, I hope you will not hesitate to let him have it, as I assure you, gentlemen, that he will not call upon you for it, unless it is to execute orders that he may receive from me or through my recommendation, &c. I shall in future send my letters under cover to Mr. Crockett, who will immediately wait on whomsoever you may direct him to with them.

Our Mr. R. H. is at Martinique, and has lately despatched several of your vessels with very valuable cargoes, &c.

I am doing all I can to send home salt, and have borrowed many large sums of money in order to join with merchants here to hold part of their vessels and cargoes, to induce them to send in salt. We never had any orders to join your honourable House into partnership, or perhaps we should have chose to interested you before ourselves. Indeed, as the saying is, we are making one nail drive another, and shoeing the horse, for when we were able to pay off one debt it gave us credit for twice as much, which credit we always modestly made use of.

Captain Robertson, of the Continental brig Andrew Doria, arrived here three days ago, and saluted the fort with eleven guns. The salute was returned from the fort with eighteen-pounders, and the Captain most graciously received by his Honour the Governour, and all ranks of people. It's esteemed here by the first gentlemen a favour and honour to be introduced to Captain Robertson. All American vessels here now wear the Congress colours. Tories sneak and shrink before the honest and brave Americans here. Robertson and his officers and crew make so good an appearance in every respect, and such good order observed, that it gives the greatest pleasure to the friends of our States, and strikes the Tories with terrour and confusion.

Gentlemen, we have the honour to be, respectfully, your very humble servants,

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON.

The honourable the Council of Safety for the State of Maryland.

PATRICK HENRY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Williamsburg, November 19th, 1776.

SIR: Enclosed is a bond from Major Simms and his securities, who are sufficiently able for duly accounting for the recruiting money necessary to raise one battalion, of which he is appointed Major.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

P. HENRY, President.

The Hon. Mr. Hancock.

---

Know all men by these presents, that we, Charles Simms, of the County of Yohogania, James Wood, of the County of Frederick, and Abraham Hite, of the County of Hampshire, are held and firmly bound unto the Honourable John Hancock, President of the American Congress, to and for the use of the American States, in the sum of twenty-nine thousand six hundred dollars, to the which payment well and truly to be made to the said John Hancock, his executors, administrators, or assigns, in trust to and for the use of the said States, we bind ourselves, our heirs, executors, and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents. Sealed with our seals, and dated this eighteenth day of November, Anno Domini 1776.

The condition of the above obligation is such, that whereas the said Charles Simms hath received a letter from the Governour of Virginia to the Virginia Delegates in Congress, recommending to Congress to advance to him, the said Charles Simms, fourteen thousand eight hundred dollars, for bounty money of one of the six additional battalions to be raised in Virginia: If, therefore, the said Charles Simms shall receive the said money, or any part thereof, and shall render a just account of what of the said money he shall disburse in the aforesaid service according to order of the Congress, and refund any surplus that may remain in his hands, then the above obligation to be void, or else to remain in full force.

CHARLES SIMMS,
JAMES WOOD,
ABR'M HITE.

Sealed and delivered in the presence of ARCH'D BLAIR, Chairman.

ARCHER & HARRIS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Harford County, November 19th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have sent to Baltimore town amount of eight hundred and sixty-five and three-eighths yards of hemp linen, and deposited it with Mr. John Smith for your order. Before it should be used agreeable to our engagement with the honourable Convention, we hope you will order it to be valued. Enclosed we send you a bill of what it cost us in manufacturing per yard, with the cost of sending it to Baltimore, without a farthing profit. Mr. Smith will send it to you at Annapolis, should you require it.

We are, gentlemen, with the greatest respect, you most obedient and very humble servants,

ARCHER & HARRIS.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

---

JAMES TILGHMAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Colonel Tilghman's, November 19th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 14th instant, notifying my reappointment, and desiring that I would join the Board as soon as possible, I received only this morning. Had it reached me sooner I should have taken the earliest opportunity of answering it, to obviate any inconveniences which might arise from the want of your full complement of members.

The repeated honours I have experienced from the Convention merit my warmest acknowledgments, and afford agreeable testimonials of their approbation of my conduct as a member of the Council; and I could wish it were still in my power, without making too great a sacrifice, to remain of that body, as the fullness of my gratitude would, perhaps, be better manifested by a continuance in that department than any professions I can make; but as that cannot be effected unless under such circumstances as scarcely leave it optional to act or not, and in my opinion will justify a temporary retirement with one who has been so long and constantly engaged in the service of the publick as I have, I am obliged, however reluctantly, to decline a further continuance, and to request you to accept this as my resignation. When I was last in company with the President of the Convention, I desired that he would do me the favour to signify to them the impracticability of my remaining longer at your Board, and to request for me that I might not be in the nomination; but I presume, as I am in, it escaped his memory from the hurry of business, and was not intimated to them. I am persuaded if it had been they would have dispensed with my acting any longer in that station, and cheerfully indulged me with the recess, which I am now constrained to take.

I have the honour to be, most respectfully, gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,

JAS. TILGHMAN.

The honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

BOARD OF WAR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

War Office, November 19th, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Board of War to inform your Excellency that they have given orders for the immediate collection of all the prisoners in New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, and those in the more southern States. They are to be sent to Fort Lee, agreeable to your Excellency's desire; but a considerable time will elapse before the whole can possibly arrive. There are a great number in Virginia, whose journey will be long. But perhaps it may be better that their arrivals at Fort Lee should happen at different times, lest their too great numbers might be disadvantageous.

It would be much better if your Excellency could be furnished with lists of all the prisoners, that you might at one view be enabled to settle the arrangement of the exchange; but although frequent attempts have been made by the Board to obtain such lists from the several States, their endeavours have hitherto been for the most part ineffectual. Such accounts of prisoners as are in the possession of the Board shall be sent, imperfect as they are.

Measures are taken to restore Major Stewart's servant, Peter Jack. He was permitted to go to Princetown with Doctor Witherspoon, who has been wrote to on the subject and desired to send the man to your Excellency at Hackensack. Many prisoners have been desirous to inlist, and some have been accepted in our service. Is it your opinion that these people should return? or will it not be dangerous for them so to do? The enemy have inlisted great numbers of our people, who were prisoners, and it is but justice that we should retaliate. Offers, however, from prisoners to engage in our service have in general been refused.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your very obedient and most humble servant,

RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. An officer from camp informs that Fort Lee is about being evacuated; if so your Excellency will no doubt alter the place of destination of the prisoners.

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 19th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I arrived here yesterday afternoon. I have seen our Commissioners. Congress, in answer to the three propositions from our State for raising our quota, have given a copy of a resolve, relative to the Massachusetts-Bay, who has, I am informed, offered thirty shillings a month extra for the privates, in which Congress agrees to give twenty dollars bounty to each soldier who will inlist for three years. Our Commissioners are much distressed.

On Saturday last General Howe with his whole Army surrounded Fort Washington. We had two thousand men in the fort. There were two lines outside of the fort. A large body of our men marched out to the further lines, and sustained the attack with great bravery, until a party of the enemy enclosed them within the first lines on the back of our troops. Our forces then retreated into the fort, and soon afterwards surrendered. It seems agreed here, that the fort was injudiciously defended, and not with the bravery that might have been expected from the officer, Colonel Magaw, who commanded, and the troops, which consisted of Magaw's and Cadwalader's battalions, and a party of the Flying-Camp, chiefly Pennsylvanians. If the fort had held out till the morning, General Washington had expectations of bringing off the men. However, two thousand men could not, I suppose, withstand an army of at least five times their numbers. Thus we have lost two thousand of our best troops, and some of our best officers, with provisions and stores for four months.

Be pleased to send us the form of Government when published. I write this in Congress.

Your obedient servant,

SAMUEL CHASE.

The honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

---

RICHARD PETERS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

War Office, Philadelphia, 19th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: An exchange of prisoners having been long agreed upon, but prevented from taking effect by the General's being constantly employed in counteracting the designs of the enemy, it is now desired that no longer delay may be used.

General Washington writes very pressingly for all prisoners of war to be sent to Fort Lee, in New-Jersey, addressed to the care of General Greene, commanding officer there. You will therefore be pleased immediately to collect all the British prisoners in the State of Maryland, and have them properly escorted to Fort Lee, that an equal number of our suffering countrymen may be relieved from imprisonment and distress.

By order of the Board of War.

I have the honour to be, your very obedient servant,

RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

Honourable Council of Safety, Maryland.

Be so good as to send lists of the prisoners to the War Office, with an account of all expenses incurred by your State on the score of prisoners. Please to have the officers conveyed separate from the privates, and let both take a route by which their coming through Philadelphia may be avoided.

[Same to honourable President and Council, Delaware.]

MEMORIAL OF MAJOR LAMB.

[Read November 23, 1776. The General directed to include him in the next exchange of prisoners.]

To the honourable Congress of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

GENTLEMEN: Although the enemy have, contrary to my expectations, liberated me from the dreary horrours of a prison, and suffered me to return to my family and friends, I am still subject to their power and control, liable to be called upon to surrender myself a prisoner whenever they please, and restrained by the sacred ties of honour from drawing my sword again in defence of my country till exchanged for some officer of equal rank. Extremely anxious to be relieved from this truly painful and disagreeable situation, I waited on General Washington immediately after my arrival from Quebeck, earnestly soliciting his interest with your Honours for that purpose; but as I have not yet heard that such an event has taken place, owing, I imagine, to the critical situation of the two armies, I take the liberty to address your Honours on that subject, humbly requesting that I may be included in the next exchange of prisoners. And as I have unfortunately been prevented by the fate of war from taking up arms again this campaign in support of the freedom and independence of the American States, and being conscious of having done no more than my duty in my former exertions for the publick good, I can have no claim to your Honours' particular attention; yet as I have been formerly honoured with your approbation of my conduct, and a singular mark of your confidence by an appointment to the chief command of the Artillery in the Northern Department, I flatter myself that I have not been neglected by your Honours in the new arrangement of the corps of Artillery.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of gratitude, duty, and respect, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN LAMB.

Philadelphia, 19 November, 1776.

E. BIDDLE TO WILLIAM ATLEE.

Reading, November 19, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I take the liberty of troubling you in hopes of rendering a service to some gentlemen prisoners here, who by their unexceptionable conduct have acquired the good will of the inhabitants here.

You will readily think that so great a number of prisoners as are crowded in so small a place as this must subject them to many inconveniences, especially as they almost all are at housekeeping and must furnish themselves. Two families are particularly in want of servants, and unless it is inconsistent with some instructions to or rule of your committee, I should take it as a favour if you would use your influence for John Linoch and John Fallis, (two soldiers,) with their wives, to be sent here. Captain Anstruther applies for the former, Dr. Gill and Lieutenant Scholts for the latter. They find it difficult to get even wood cut, and the two latter are obliged to cook for themselves.

I have given myself and you this trouble from no motive but that of humanity.

I am, sir, with great regard, your most obedient servant,

E. BIDDLE.

To William Atlee, Esq., Lancaster.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 23d.]

Hackensack, November 19th, 1776.

SIR: I have not been yet able to obtain a particular account of the unhappy affair of the 16th, nor of the terms on which the garrison surrendered. The intelligence that has come to hand is not so full and accurate as I could wish. One of the artillery, and whose information is the most direct, who escaped on Sunday night, says the enemy's loss was very considerable, especially in the attack made above the fort by the division of Hessians that marched from King's Bridge, and where Lieutenant-Colonel Rawlings, of the late Colonel Stevenson's regiment, was posted. They burnt yesterday one or two houses on the heights and contiguous to the fort, and appeared, by advices from General Greene, to be moving in the evening their main body down towards the city. Whether they will close the campaign without attempting something more, or make an incursion into Jersey, must be determined by the events themselves.

As Fort Lee was always considered as only necessary in conjunction with that on the east side of the river, to preserve the communication across and to prevent the enemy from a free navigation, it has become of no importance by the loss of the other, or not so material as to employ a force for its defence. Being viewed in this light, and apprehending that the stores there would be precariously situated, their removal has been determined on to Boundbrook, above Brunswick, Princetown, Springfield, and Acquaykinac bridge, as places that will not be subject to sudden danger in case the enemy should pass the river, and which have been thought proper as repositories for some of our stores of provision and forage.

The troops belonging to the Flying-Camp, under Generals Hand and Beal, with what remains of General Erwin's brigade, are now at Fort Lee, where they will continue until the stores are got away. By the time that is effected their term of inlistment will be near expiring; and if the enemy should make a push in this quarter, the only troops that there will be to oppose 'em will be Hand's, Haslet's, the regiments from Virginia, and that lately Smallwood's, the latter greatly reduced by the losses it sustained on Long-Island, &c., and sickness. Nor are the rest by any means complete. In addition to these, I am told there are a few of the Militia of this State which have been called in by Governour Livingston. I shall make such a disposition of the whole at Brunswick, and at the intermediate posts, as shall seem most likely to guard against the designs of the enemy, and to prevent them making an irruption or foraging with detached parties.

The enclosed letter from Colonels Miles and Atlee will show Congress the distressed situation of our prisoners in New-York, and will become greater every day by the cold inclement season that is approaching. It will be happy if some expedient can be adopted, by which they may be furnished with necessary blankets and clothing. Humanity and the good of the service require it. I think the mode suggested by these gentlemen for establishing a credit appears as likely to succeed, and as eligible as any that occurs to me. It is probable that many articles that may be wanted can be obtained there, and upon better terms than elsewhere. In respect to provisions, their allowance perhaps is as good as the situation of General Howe's stores will admit of. It has been said of late by deserters and others, that they were rather scant.

By a letter from the Paymaster-General, of the 7th, he says there will be a necessity that large and early remittances should be made him. The demands when the troops now in service are dismissed will be extremely great. Besides, the bounty to recruits will require a large supply; and he adds, that the Commissary-General has informed him that between this and the last of December, he shall have occasion for a million of dollars.

21st.—The unhappy affair of the 16th has been succeeded by further misfortunes. Yesterday morning a large body of the enemy landed between Dobbs's Ferry and Fort Lee. Their object was evidently to enclose the whole of our troops and stores that lay between the North and Hackensack rivers, which form a very narrow neck of land. For this purpose they formed, and marched as soon as they had ascended the high grounds, towards the fort. Upon the first information of their having landed and of their movements, our men were ordered to meet them; but finding their numbers greatly superiour, and that they were extending themselves to seize on the passes over the river, it was thought prudent to withdraw our men, which was effected, and their retreat secured.

We lost the whole of the cannon that was at the fort, except two twelve-pounders, and a great deal of baggage, between two and three hundred tents, about a thousand barrels of flour and other stores in the Quartermaster's department. This loss was inevitable. As many of the stores had been removed as circumstances and time would admit of. The ammunition had been happily got away. Our present situation between Hackensack and Passaick rivers being exactly similar to our late one, and our force here by no means adequate to an opposition that will promise the smallest probability of success, we are taking measures to retire over the waters of the latter, when the best disposition will be formed that circumstances will admit of.

By Colonel Cadwalader, who has been permitted by General Howe to return to his friends, I am informed the surrender of the garrison on the 16th was on the common terms as prisoners of war. The loss of the Hessians about three hundred privates and twenty-seven officers killed and wounded; about forty of the British troops, and two or three officers. The loss on our side but inconsiderable. I beg leave to refer you to him for a more particular account, and also for his relation of the distresses of our prisoners. Colonels Miles and Atlee's letter, mentioned above, upon this subject, was through mistake sent from hence yesterday evening. The mode of relief proposed by them was a credit or supply of cash, through the means of Mr. Franks. This seems to be doubtful, as he is said to be in confinement by Colonel Cadwalader, provided it would have been otherwise practicable.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

Go. Washington.

P. S. Your favour of the 16th was duly received. My letter to the Board of War on the subject of the return of the Waldeckers, I presume you will have soon.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON.

Hackensack, 19 November, 1776.

Dear Brother: At the White-Plains the enemy advanced a second time upon us, as if they meant a general attack; but finding us ready to receive them, and upon such ground as they could not approach without loss, they filed off and returned towards New-York. As it was conceived that this manœuvre was made with a design to attack Fort Washington, or to throw a body of troops into the Jerseys, or, what might be still worse, aim a stroke at Philadelphia, I hastened over to this side, with about five thousand men, by a circuitous march of about sixty-five miles, which we were obliged to take, on account of the shipping that opposed the passage at all the lower ferries. But I did not arrive in time to take measures to save Fort Washington, though here myself a day or two before it surrendered, which happened on the 16th instant, after making a defence of about four or five hours only. We have no particular account of the loss on either side, or of the circumstances attending this matter. The whole garrison, after being driven from the outer lines, and returning within the fort, surrendered themselves prisoners of war, but have given me no account of the terms. By a letter which I have just received from General Greene at Fort Lee, I am informed that "one of the train of artillery came across the river last night on a raft. By his account, the enemy have suffered greatly on the north side of Fort Washington. Colonel Rawlings's regiment (late Hugh Stephenson's) was posted there, and behaved with great spirit. Colonel Magaw could not get the men to man the lines, otherwise he would not have given up the fort."

This is a most unfortunate affair, and has given me great mortification; as we have lost not only two thousand men that were there, but a good deal of artillery, and some of the best arms we had. And what adds to my mortification is, that this post, after the last ships went past it, was held contrary to my wishes and opinion, as I conceived it to be a hazardous one; but, it having been determined on by a full council of General Officers, and a resolution of Congress having been received strongly expressive of their desire that the channel of the river, which we had been labouring to stop for a long time at that place, might be obstructed, if possible, and knowing that this could not be done unless there were batteries to protect the obstruction, I did not care to give an absolute order for withdrawing the garrison, till I could get round and see the situation of things, and then it became too late, as the fort was invested. Upon the passing of the last ships, I had given it as my opinion to General Greene, under whose care it was, that it would be best to evacuate the place; but, as the order was discretionary, and his opinion differed from mine, it unhappily was delayed too long, to my great grief; as I think General Howe, considering his army and ours, would have had but a poor tale to tell without it, and would have found it difficult, unless some southern expedition may prove successful, to reconcile the people of England to the conquest of a few pitiful islands, none of which were defensible, considering the great number of their ships, and the power they have by sea to surround and render them unapproachable.

It is a matter of great grief and surprise to me to find the different States so slow and inattentive to that essential business of levying their quotas of men. In ten days from this date, there will not be above two thousand men, if that number, of the fixed established regiments on this side of Hudson's river to oppose Howe's whole army, and very little more on the other to secure the Eastern Colonies and the important passes leading through the Highlands to Albany and the country about the lakes. In short, it is impossible for me in the compass of a letter to give you any idea of our situation, of my difficulties, and of the constant perplexities and mortifications I meet with, derived from the unhappy policy of short inlistments, and delaying them too long. Last fall or winter, before the Army, which was then to be raised, was set about, I represented in clear and explicit terms the evils which would arise from short inlistments, the expense which must attend the raising an army every year, the futility of such an army when raised; and, if I had spoken with a prophetick spirit, I could not have foretold the evils with more accuracy than I did. All the year since, I have been pressing Congress to delay no time in engaging men upon such terms as would insure success, telling them that the longer it was delayed the more difficult it would prove. But the measure was not commenced till it was too late to be effected, and then in such a manner as to bid adieu to every hope of getting an army, from which any services are to be expected; the different States, without regard to the qualifications of an officer, quarrelling about the appointments, and nominating such as are not fit to be shoe-blacks, from the local attachments of this or that member of Assembly.

I am wearied almost to death with the retrograde motion of things, and I solemnly protest that a pecuniary reward of twenty thousand pounds a year would not induce me to undergo what I do; and after all, perhaps, to lose my character, as it is impossible, under such a variety of distressing circumstances, to conduct matters agreeably to publick expectation, or even to the expectation of those who employ me, as they will not make proper allowances for the difficulties their own errors have occasioned.

I am glad to find by your last letter that your family are tolerably well recovered from the indisposition they laboured under. God grant you all health and happiness. Nothing in this world would contribute so much to mine as to be once more fixed among you in the peaceable enjoyment of my own vine and fig-tree. Adieu, my dear sir; remember me affectionately to my sister and the children, and give my compliments to those who inquire after your sincerely affectionate brother.

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp, November 19th, 1776.

Dear General: The recommendation of Gen. Greene which you transmitted to me, threw the officers to whom I communicated it into so great a flame of discontent, that I ventured, notwithstanding your orders, to hesitate. They accused him of partiality to his connexions and townsmen, to the prejudice of men of manifestly superiour merit; indeed, it appears from the concurrent testimony of unbiased persons, that some of the subjects he recommended were wretched; in short, I was so stunned with their clamour that I delayed till the arrival of the Committee, for which I ought to ask your pardon, but at the same time think the delay has been salutary.

My objections to moving from our present post are, as I observed before, that it would give us the air of being frightened; it would expose a fine fertile country to their ravages; and, I must add, that we are as secure as we could be in any position whatever. We are pretty well disencumbered of our impediments, which I propose depositing on or about Crumb Pond, which, (though I confess I have not reconnoitered the place,) from its situation, must be full as safe, and is much more centrical than Peekskill. If on further examination it has any material disadvantages, we can easily move from thence. As to ourselves, (light as we are,) several retreats present themselves. In short, if we keep a good look out, we are in no danger; but I must entreat your Excellency to enjoin the officers posted at Fort Lee to give us the quickest intelligence if they observe any embarkations of troops in the North River.

Our scouts are of late grown more vigilant, and make prisoners. The Militia, according to their laudable custom, would not stay a moment beyond their usual time. Oh, General, why would you be over-persuaded by men of inferiour judgment to your own? It was a cursed affair.

Yours, most affectionately,

Charles Lee.

To His Excellency General Washington, Hackensack.

P. S. The returns of the soldiers of the different regiments, now in the hands of the enemy, according to the mode you require, are not yet made out, but will soon, and shall be sent.

GENERAL GEORGE CLINTON TO ROBERT YATES.

Peekskill, November 19th, 1776.

Dear Sir: I am favoured with yours of yesterday, in answer to which I can only say that the two lists of officers, to wit: that of Colonel Dubois's regiment, which I enclosed to Mr. Duer, and the one which your Secretary copied yesterday, contain the names of all the officers under the degree of Field-Officers in my brigade, who I can at present recommend for the standing army, and I believe many of them, were they appointed, would not accept.

I have no Ensigns in my brigade. I have some good Sergeants, but how well qualified for a higher office I can't answer, nor do I know whether they would incline to continue in the service. I hope I have no officer now above a Second Lieutenant who would accept of a second lieutenancy in the standing forces. If I am so unhappy as to have recommended any such, be assured I have been deceived in the men. Do, if there are any such, be good enough to strike them out of my list. There is a certain young Mr. Samuel Hunt, son of Captain Hunt, near New-Rochelle, who I have had occasion to employ on Long-Island this summer. He is very sensible, active, faithful, and well educated; I believe he would accept of a second lieutenancy, and I wish it offered him.

James Duboys, son of Matthew Duboys, of New-Windsor, was named as a Second Lieutenant in Duboys's regiment. He had a brother a Captain in the service last year, who behaved well and is since dead. I believe it would answer to appoint him. The men who were with his brother would incline to inlist with him. Many other young fellows in the country may be found who will answer, and incline to serve, but I don't at present recollect their names.

I am your most obedient servant,

Geo. Clinton.

To Robert Yates, Esq.

Since writing the above, Colonel Graham and Swarthoudt have furnished me with the following names of persons for Second Lieutenant, to wit: Quartermaster George Morehouse; Second Lieutenant Ebenezer Mott; Second Lieutenant Benjamin Bogardus; Second Lieutenant Lawrence; Second Lieutenant Ostrander; Second Lieutenant William Bunshooten; Second Lieutenant, Horton.

I can't conclude without mentioning, as my opinion, as well as that of most of our principal officers, that the acceptance of the officers I have recommended, should they be appointed, as well as the raising of men out of my brigade, will much depend on the Field-Officers who may be appointed; and from Colonel Dubois's being annexed to my brigade, and having served with many of them last year, I am convinced they have strong attachments toward him, and believe him to be a good officer.

JOHN S. EUSTACE TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Head-Quarters, North-Castle, 19th November, 1776.

Sir: I am directed by General Lee to request (as he is going this morning to the Saw-Pits) that you will act in his stead till he returns, and give the necessary orders for your division.

In any thing respecting Tories, that you will act according to your own discretion.

I am, sir, respectfully, yours,

Jno. S. Eustace, A. D. Camp.

Major-General Sullivan.

COLONEL RUFUS PUTNAM TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Peekskill, November 19th, 1776.

Sir: Since your Excellency left this place I have been to Anthony's Nose, and I believe there is no danger of the enemy's attempting to possess it, nor will it be necessary we should occupy it. I have also been a tour up Peekskill Hollow, about eleven miles northeastward, then through the Highlands into the Fishkill country and down to the North River, then returned by the post road, which I found to be good; but the pass I went up in for ten miles no carriage can possibly get through; and a few men in a short time will make it impassable for a horse. About four miles further east is another pass through the mountains, but I am informed by good authority it is much worse than the last-mentioned one. I am told there is another pass about twenty miles from the Peekskill landing, leading from Bedford through the Highlands, which is said to be a good road. I mean to see it as soon as possible. I am fully convinced your Excellency will find it necessary to keep a post at Croton's bridge, which if you design, some care should be taken of building barrack and store there. I mean to get a general knowledge of the country as far east as Horse-Neck, and northward through the Highlands, a draft of which, as soon as possible, I shall forward, not waiting for an actual survey, as that will take up much time.

I am your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

Rufus Putnam.

To his Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL HEATH TO COLONEL VAN CORTLANDT.

Peekskill, November 19th, 1776.

Dear Sir: A safe repository for a considerable quantity of military stores is much wanted at or near Fishkill. If you can find such an one, and put Colonel Cheever, the Commissary of Artillery Stores, in possession of it, you will greatly serve the publick cause, and oblige your most obedient, and very humble servant,

W. Heath.

Colonel Van Cortlandt.

GENERAL HEATH TO DR. MORGAN.

Peekskill, November 19th, 1776.

SIR: There are at this three brigades of troops, besides the garrisons of the forts Montgomery and Constitution, making in the whole upwards of five thousand men, and neither general hospital, or surgeon belonging to the general hospital, at the post. The morning that his Excellency General Washington left this place, I mentioned to him the case of the sick. His Excellency replied that he intended to have mentioned the sick, but that it had slipped his memory, and that I must apply to you.

The daily complaints from the Colonels of the several regiments in the division, of the sufferings and distresses of their sick, renders it my indispensable duty to apply to you for assistance and relief, which I desire you would afford immediately, as the neglect of the sick will prove very prejudicial to the inlistment of a new army.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately,

W. HEATH.

Doctor Morgan.

GENERAL COURT MARTIAL.

At a General Court Martial, held near Peekskill, in the State of New-York, by order of Major-General Heath, on the nineteenth day of November, Anno Dom. 1776, Colonel Pawling President, William Willcocks Judge-Advocate.

Members.

|---|---|
| Lieut. Colonel Moulton, | Captain Hyet, |
| Major Van Renselaer, | Captain Hyet, |
| Captain Darby, | Captain Hermanse, |
| Captain Barns, | Captain Wood, |
| Captain Scott, | Captain Delavan, |
| Captain Wool, | Captain Swartwout. |

John Rinchart, of Captain Smith's company, Colonel Swartwout's regiment, charged by Captain Little with having abused the General (General Clinton meaning) at his door.

Captain Little testifies that he saw the prisoner in at Mandevil's; that he was very drunk; that he was very pressing for liquor, and seemed to give entertainment to the company. That he afterwards saw him at the door pawing the General, as though he wanted to speak to him; that the General pushed him down and ordered him under guard.

The Court adjudge the prisoner not guilty of any abuse.

David Brown, John Hussey, Justice Waistcot, and John Elliot, of Captain Cronk's company, Colonel Thomas's regiment, charged with desertion.

The prisoners on their arraignment severally plead Not guilty.

Captain Cronk, being duly sworn, deposeth, that the prisoners went away without leave. That they were all unwell at the time; that they returned voluntarily to the regiment; that they have always been particularly staunch friends to the cause of America, and that they are very good soldiers.

Roger Bussell, for Justice Waistcot and John Hussey, testifies that they were unwell and unfit for duty during the whole time of their absence; and that he had been sent for to attend Brown, but did not go.

The Court adjudge the prisoners guilty of having left their company without permission. But considering that they appear to have been very good soldiers, and closely attached to the interests of this country, only sentence them severally to forfeit one half a month's pay; said moneys to be applied as directed in and by the fourth article of war, sixth section.

William Bantly, of Captain King's company, of the Twenty-First Regiment, charged with desertion.

The prisoner on his arraignment pleads Not guilty.

Lieutenant Albert, of Captain King's company, testifies, that the prisoner had been in the wagon service by permission; that he was dismissed from it; that he did not join his company till a month afterwards.

The prisoner, on his defence, confessed that he had deserted from Captain King's company.

The Court find the prisoner guilty. The Court sentence the prisoner to receive thirty-nine lashes on the bare back.

LEVI PAWLING.

I do approve of the foregoing sentences.

W. HEATH, Major-General.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 28th.]

Saratoga, November 19th, 1776.

SIR: I am this moment honoured with your favour of the 9th, continued to the 18th instant, enclosing sundry resolutions of Congress.

I am greatly obliged by the leave Congress has granted me to repair to Philadelphia. I shall however not make use of it until every matter in this department that may require my intervention is completely settled.

The Legislature of the Massachusetts-Bay doubtless meant to promote the service when they made so capital an addition to the pay of the men to be reinlisted. It has, however, unfortunately already had a contrary effect, and almost altogether prevented recruiting on the Continental allowance. The Committee for that State have already been at Ticonderoga, and I am informed by gentlemen from thence that the arrangement of officers is already made, and many men engaged on the terms they offered. I am nevertheless in hopes that the resolution of the 12th instant, permitting inlistments for three years only, will in a great measure prevent all the bad consequences of that unhappy measure.

The Militia, besides the great quantity of provisions they consumed whilst they were to the northward, distressed us still more by bringing away with them every carriage employed in transporting provisions from Fort Edward to Fort George and Fort Ann, so that our troops have been one day without flour, although we had it in great quantities at Fort Edward, from whence I returned last night. I hope by Sunday next to have near two thousand barrels of flour at the north end of Lake George and Ticonderoga.

The Pennsylvania and New-Jersey regiments, whose terms of inlistment was expired, are on the way to Albany, from whence they will go down in sloops, and, if necessary, remain some time with General Washington. Colonel Stark's and Colonel Poor's regiments, with that lately belonging to Brigadier Reech, (the three amount to about five hundred men,) came across Lake George yesterday. They were sent for to march into Tryon County, in consequence of some information I had from two Indians who had left General Carleton's Army, which I afterwards discovered to be without foundation. Two of the regiments I have left at Fort George, to forward on the provisions, and the third will take up their quarters in the barracks here, until every possibility of the enemy's returning to Ticonderoga is vanished, after which I shall be under a necessity of permitting them to return to their respective Colonies, without which the officers declare they will not be able to complete their regiments.

I think it would be well if Congress was to order the different States to send up the new-raised men the soonest possible, that Ticonderoga and the other parts might be relieved before the term of inlistment expires of those troops that are to garrison them, and that we may have a body of troops at hand should the enemy attempt an expedition in the winter.

Enclose you a copy of an intercepted letter from a Mohawk, at Niagara, to his brother in the Mohawk country.

I shall order to the value of about fifteen hundred pounds, in Indian goods, to Fort Stanwix, to be there disposed of at such a price as to give no umbrage to the Indians, and that the States may not lose above four hundred pounds upon them; and I hope this will do as well as making them a direct present, which would probably amount to treble that sum, besides the enormous expense of maintaining them at Albany.

General Gates is momently expected here. On his arrival I shall do myself the honour to advise you what troops are left to garrison the different posts.

I am, with the most respectful sentiments, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

A true copy of a Letter wrote by AARON KANONARON, a MOHAWK Chief from NIAGARA, to his brother DAVID, residing in the lower MOHAWK village.

I write this day, 28th October, 1776. You shall now be informed of our situation this way; for which purpose we send back Kargah (a young Mohawk so called) from Niagara, and I wish we might be certified what you are doing your way. Our eyes are fixed upon Canada. The command of the Governour there determines our conduct, but we are assured he is well disposed. He will not punish such as are behindhand of others in coming in or joining them, and although you reside in the midst of Bostonians you are loved by all the Britains and by all the different nations of Indians. It is only expected of you that you do not take an active part with the Bostonians while you reside in the midst of them. The only reason why they don't arise this way and destroy all around you, is your situation, viz: residing in the midst of Bostonians. The Indians universally are firmly united with you on the King's side. The Cherokees are of your sentiment. Let this strengthen your minds with the disposition of the Governour of Canada. He purposes in the first place to take possession of Ticonderoga and this way, and then New-York. They are to meet in Albany; then the Indians, one and all, are to proceed and make their way thither. I hope no misfortune will befall you in the mean time. These are all the important matters I have now to communicate. Let these sentiments possess your minds, my younger brothers, and be assured of their taking place. I must however observe, at our grand meeting at Niagara, consisting of Ottawas, Chippawes, and others, with some of the Six Nations, many of the Indians were discouraged by disappointments. They were eager to rise and fall upon the frontiers, but the commander would not consent to it, solely on account of your situation, being surrounded by Bostonians. In this God has mercifully spared us, especially my country (the Mohawks.) This conduct of our commander I attribute to the Divine disposal. Let Colonel Butler receive many thanks from you for his friendly administration. He is well, and the one that is with him. [The Indian does not specify whether the one here mentioned be the commander or some other.]

Let no offence be taken that I don't return as soon as expected. The commander will not part with me. I am of great service to him.

AARON KANORRARON.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT.

Saratoga, November 19th, 1776.

SIR: I am honoured with your favour of the 8th instant, and am greatly obliged by the measures taken to furnish the stoves. Should no sheet-iron be sent to Mr. Patrick, in consequence of your application to the commanding officer at Peekskill, I wish him to be directed to make the doorhinges and latch, as I can have them completed here, expecting a sufficiency of sheet-iron from New-Jersey, both for that and for the pipes.

I am just advised that Colonel Wigglesworth, who went with a flag to General Carleton, is returned, and he brings assurances that the enemy are retired into winter quarters; we are doing the same.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

COLONEL WOOD TO GENERAL GATES.

Ticonderoga, November 19, 1776.

SIR: This will be delivered you by Captain Bayard, who has command of the recruiting party. Him you will please to supply with what money you shall think necessary for his purpose. Should be glad you would send me an order on the Paymaster for money, to recruit at this place.

Your Secretary, Mr. Clajon, has the papers relative to Captains Breslau and Huling, mentioning their being unfit for the service.

I should be much obliged to you for leave of absence, in writing.

I shall not think of leaving this place until matters are settled with respect to the enemy's coming, and my regiment provided for. Then should be glad to join the recruiting parties at Philadelphia, to provide the recruits with necessaries. We are all quiet here. If any thing material occurs I shall not fail to communicate it. Interim, remain, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOS. WOOD.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Providence, November 19th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I enclose you a copy of a letter from Major-General Lee, which I received last night. As the contents are very important, I have no doubt of your paying the greatest attention to it. I have to request your Honours to give the necessary orders to the Militia in the southern part of your State to march to our assistance, in case of an attack, with all possible expedition, and for giving such other aid as shall be necessary.

This letter will be delivered you by Captain Topham, one of those brave men who were taken prisoners at Quebeck.

I am, with every sentiment of esteem and respect, your Honours' most obedient and humble servant,

NICH'S COOKE.

General Court Massachusetts-Bay.

Camp North-Castle, November 14th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: There is no doubt of a considerable force being embarked or about to embark in Staten-Island. They give out that South-Carolina is their place of destination; but as it is not impossible or improbable that they have some designs against Rhode-Island, either on a pillaging scheme or perhaps with a view of establishing winter-quarters for a part of their troops, as they find themselves straitened at New-York, I think it my duty to apprise your Honour of their preparations, that you may be upon your guard, either by removing your stock, fortifying yourselves, or in short by taking such measures as your wisdom shall dictate for the welfare of America and your particular security.

I beg my respects to the gentlemen of your Council, to the Province at large, and that you will personally be assured, that I am, dear sir, with the greatest truth, your most obedient, humble servant,

CHARLES LEE.

JOHN AVERY TO MESHECH WEARE.

Boston, November 19, 1776.

SIR: I am directed to transmit an authenticated copy of a resolve relative to a Convention of the several States, respecting further emissions of paper currency, and for supporting the credit thereof.

I am, sir, with great respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN AVERY, Deputy Secretary.

Hon. Meshech Weare.

In the House of Representatives, November 16, 1776.

Resolved, That the Honourable Tristram Dalton and Aaron Orne, Esquires, with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to meet Committees from the General Assemblies of the States of Connecticut, New-Hampshire, and Rhode-Island, at Providence, in Rhode-Island, the tenth day of December next, provided said Assemblies think proper to appoint such Committees, then and there to hold a conference respecting further emissions of Paper Currency on the credit of any of said States; also on measures necessary for supporting the credit of the publick Currencies thereof: And the said Committee (if the Committees of the other States so met agree thereto) be empowered to communicate to the other United States of America the intention of their Convention, and urge that some measures be taken by them to the same purpose, and to give like information to the honourable the Continental Congress, and propose to them whether the regulation of the Currencies is not an object of necessary attention, and to report as soon as may be.

And it is Ordered, That the Secretary immediately transmit authenticated copies of the Resolve to the General Assemblies of the several States aforementioned.

Sent up for concurrence:

J. WARREN, Speaker.

IN COUNCIL, November 16, 1776: Read and concurred, and Thomas Cushing joined on the part of the Board.

Consented to by the major part of the Board.

JOHN AVERY, Dep. Sec'y.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WARD.

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, at Exeter, November 19, 1776.

SIR: You will find by the enclosed copy of a vote of our General Assembly, No. 1, that on the 11th June last it was determined to raise a battalion on the Continental establishment, agreeable to a resolve of the Continental Congress, and would then have pursued the measure had not a requisition immediately followed to raise two battalions of Militia to recruit the Canada Army, therefore postponed that matter until the Canada recruits were raised. In September the affair was again taken up, as you will see by the vote No. 2, and officers were appointed to inlist the men, about four hundred of which have been raised and on duty at our lines about two months. By hurry of business in raising troops for New-York, and many other contingencies, the sending the names of the proposed persons for field-officers to Congress has been omitted until now.

In behalf of the Committee, I am your humble servant,

MESHECH WEARE, Chairman.

---

COLONEL LONG TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Portsmouth, November 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am exceedingly sorry to be obliged to entreat your Honours to take into consideration the distresses of the soldiers inlisted in the regiment under my command. Before this time they expected to have received some money to lay in their stores for the winter, &c.; and I really expected to have got them some of the Paymaster for the Eastern department, to whom I sent, who said he could not pay any unless ordered by General Ward. But upon application made to him, the messenger was answered that he had no knowledge of us, therefore could not comply with the request. If they cannot get any it is impossible for me to get requisite duty done, I having repeatedly told them they would not be neglected.

I am, with due respect, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

PIERCE LONG.

Honourable Committee.

ORDER IN COUNCIL, (ENGLAND.)

At the Court at St. James's, the 20th day of November, 1776. Present, the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas the time limited by His Majesty's order in Council of the 21st of August last, for prohibiting the exporting out of this Kingdom, or carrying coastwise, Gunpowder, Saltpetre, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition, will expire on the 23d of this instant November: And whereas it is judged expedient that the said prohibition should be continued for some time longer, except in those cases where (for the benefit and advantage of trade, and for the use and defence of ships trading to foreign parts, and of the transports and victualling vessels employed in his Majesty's service) his Majesty, by his several orders in Council of the 13th and 27th of October, and of the 6th and 22d of November, 1775, of the 5th and 19th of February, and the 23d of August, and 25th of September last, has thought proper to permit and allow the exportation of, and carrying coastwise, Gunpowder, Saltpetre, Arms and Ammunition, under certain conditions and restrictions mentioned in the said orders; his Majesty doth therefore, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, hereby order, require, prohibit, and command that no person or persons whomsoever (except the Master-General, Lieutenant-General, or principal officers of the Ordnance for his Majesty's service) do, at any time during the space of three months, to commence from the said 23d day of this instant November, presume to transport into any parts out of this Kingdom, or carry coastwise any Gunpowder, Saltpetre, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition, or ship or lade any Gunpowder, Saltpetre, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition, on board any ship or vessel, in order to transporting the same beyond the seas, or carrying the same coastwise, except in the cases comprised within the aforementioned orders in Council of the 13th and 27th of October, and the 6th and 22d of November, 1775, of the 5th and 19th of February, and the 23d of August, and 25th of September last, without leave or permission in that behalf first obtained from his Majesty or his Privy Council, upon pain of incurring and suffering the respective forfeitures and penalties inflicted by an act passed in the twenty-ninth year of his late Majesty's reign, entitled "An act to empower his Majesty to prohibit the exportation of Saltpetre, and to enforce the law for empowering his Majesty to prohibit the exportation of Gunpowder, or any sort of Arms and Ammunition, and also to empower his Majesty to restrain the carrying coastwise of Saltpetre, Gunpowder, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition." And the Lords Commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, the Master-General of the Ordnance, and his Majesty's Secretary at War, are to give the necessary directions herein, as to them may respectively appertain.

STEPH. COTTRELL.

CHARLES GRAHAM TO STEPHEN STEWARD.

Lower-Marlbro', 21st November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Forbes was at court. He says he can engage ten to twenty thousand pounds of beef, at the prices you mention, three to three and a half pence, but it must be for next week, as the people who have it will not feed it, and without feeding the beef will fall away now. He cannot engage to cure it. You must send salt and casks to take it away. There is a good deal of pork in that neighbourhood; some ask three shillings, others say they will take market price. If you will give directions he will engage that too. He has no one to assist in looking after the curing of meat, and therefore any commission on the purchase will not make it worth his while to undertake that part of the business.

T. King carried your letter and the cash to Kinsey on Tuesday night. Mr. Forbes had no inclination to go to Virginia. I shall be glad to hear from you, and you must give Mr. Forbes notice to engage the beef.

Dear sir, your ready servant, CHARLES GRAHAM.

Mr. Stephen Steward, West River.

MAJOR DEAKINS TO RICHARD RIDGELY.

Montgomery County, 2 November, 1776.

SIR: Samuel Wade Magruder, Captain, and James Wallace, First Lieutenant, of a Militia company in the Twenty-Ninth Battalion, having resigned their commissions, or rather declining to act, the said company met and appointed John Johnson Captain, Jesse Wilcoxon (who was before their Second Lieutenant) First Lieutenant, and Abraham Young Second Lieutenant. You will therefore please make out their commissions, and send them per first opportunity.

CAPTAIN STONE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, 21st November, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIRS: Last time I had the honour to attend your body, I took the liberty to represent the great hardships I should be under if my vessel should fall into the hands of the enemy, or be lost by any casualty or stress of weather in her passage to the West-Indies, or back. As I am in no manner secured, and as your Honours would not give any security or satisfaction in case of loss, I was constrained to apply to Baltimore County Court for a writ of replevin, to endeavour to secure some indemnification. The writ of replevin was delivered to the Sheriff of this County to serve; in consequence of which he went to the Point where my brig lay, with intention to execute the writ, accompanied by the appraisers and myself; when the Sheriff was most violently opposed by Captain Martin, the crew, and others he had collected for the purpose, threatening to shoot, wound, or destroy him or any other person who should come on board, although the Sheriff acquainted Captain Martin that he was not to come on board in any illegal manner, but that he had a proper writ of replevin issued forth of Baltimore County Court. After the Sheriff had delivered the vessel to me, by laying his hands on the gunwale, (which was the only manner he could make delivery,) Captain Martin with some others cast the vessel loose from the wharf, and carried her into the stream, at such a distance as put her out of my reach, and still forcibly detains her. I therefore have thought proper to inform your Honours of the whole proceeding, and to request you will permit no person immediately under you to so grossly violate the civil authority, which you have declared should be held sacred and unviolated. As Captain Martin has in this instance in a most daring manner opposed and put at defiance the civil authority, I hope your Honours will give the most immediate and positive orders to him to deliver the vessel to me, or not suffer him to depart the Province with her without my consent until the matter is settled; and not in a manner under your own sanction countenance a proceeding of so dangerous a nature. I repeat again that it much distresses me to have taken this course, and nothing but a view of securing myself should ever have compelled me, as I saw no other remedy, to secure myself in case of accident.

In hopes of your speedy and favourable answer, I have the honour to be, with greatest respect, sirs, your most obedient, humble servant, WILLIAM STONE.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of the State of Maryland, Annapolis.

P. S. Had I not been much indisposed I would have done myself the honour to have attended you myself.

---

CAPTAIN NICHOLSON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 21st, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received yours of the 17th yesterday, and have now to inform you that Mr. Turnbull returned four days since from the Eastern-Shore, where he has been detained by sickness. He thinks he will have the accounts ready by Sunday or Monday next, when I shall certainly come down to Annapolis with him to endeavour a settlement. Mr. Turnbull left Purser Morris very ill behind him. Was he here should bring him likewise; but as your suspicions have alarmed me, I shall lose no time in endeavouring to convince you I do not intend wronging the Province.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant, JAMES NICHOLSON.

The honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

CUMBERLAND DUGAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Thursday, November 21st, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Captain Kelty, waits on you for some canvas to make a foresail for the schooner Ninety-Two, which sail we now find wanting. It is a very great misfortune for us all that this sail should be wanting, as it will cause a detention of two days longer to the vessel, and no longer, as the sailmaker says he'll engage to complete it after he gets the canvas in less than two days.

The reason of this sail being now out of the way is owing to the ship Defence, who took all the Ninety-Two's sails a considerable time ago, on some occasion of putting them with many other sails into her gratings, and this sail is somewhere mislaid that nobody can tell where. I hope this stoppage will not do much damage, being in hopes that a new foresail for this vessel, whose other sails are all old, will answer some good purposes; however am willing to make an allowance for it that you may think just and reasonable.

The last of the Ninety-Two's cargo left me last Monday, being now entirely full. Her cargo is six hundred and twenty barrels of flour, two hundred barrels bread, one hundred and forty-six kegs fine bread, twenty hogsheads tobacco, and about three thousand of your hogshead and barrel staves, invoice and bill of lading of which shall render you as soon as I get this foresail and the vessel away from here. Captain Kelty has shipped some people, and I have put in a man for mate, that should not a better man offer send as master. This is a man whose family lives here, well attached to the cause, but do wish for a more active smart man; however, Captain Kelty says he seems to behave exceeding well.

I am, gentlemen, in great haste, as the bearer waits while I write, your most obedient servant, C. DUGAN.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

HENRY HOLLINGSWORTH TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Head of Elk, 20th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By Captain Norris I have sent you a parcel of arms. As 'tis now a long time since I have heard from Mr. Winters, I have made so free as to trouble your Honours with them. Have sent the bill enclosed. I should have been down to Annapolis long since, had not the service, (which my whole time has lately been spent in) obliged my stay here; but I hope in a few days to be so much at liberty as to have the honour of waiting on your Honours, and flatter myself of giving satisfaction, and also to receive more full instructions relative to the large wall-pieces. Your Honours will observe that I have had two of them stocked; one I thought fit to rifle, in order that you might form a judgment which would answer your purpose best. The musket-barrels are such as the last fifty I sent to Mr. Winters, which he acknowledges are excellent. The bayonets are as good as I can get made, after many changes and much expense and trouble. The finishing of them has been entirely out of my power, as it would require several filers and an overlooker to be with them, which I am by no means equal to, as I have had half a dozen finished by a young man who offers to undertake some, and have sent them for your Honours' inspection among the two hundred. If they will do, suppose I can have some finished. Am going on as usual with the large and musket-barrels and such bayonets as those now sent.

And have the honour to be your Honours' most obedient, humble servant, H. HOLLINGSWORTH.

To the honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

P. S. The arms are left at Mr. Rook's store.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 20th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have it in charge from Congress to transmit you the enclosed resolve, and to request your attention to it. From the great importance of it in carrying on the war against our enemies, I am persuaded you will take immediate measures for complying with it in the most effectual manner.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant, JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Honourable Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

N. B. The vote of Congress was sent to the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania at the same time.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO NEW-YORK AND NEW-JERSEY.

Philadelphia, November 20th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have it in charge from Congress to forward the enclosed vote, and to request your attention to it. You will perceive therein the sense of Congress on the necessity of pursuing the most immediate and vigorous measures for furnishing the troops as soon as possible for the new Army. As our enemies will no doubt take the field early in the spring it becomes us to be prepared to meet them, and for this end, to exert ourselves the approaching winter to complete the Army agreeably to the new establishment. I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant, JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Honourable Convention of New-York.

[Same to honourable Assembly of New-Jersey.]

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO THE STATES.

Philadelphia, November 20th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I have it in charge from Congress to forward the enclosed resolves, and to request your attention to them. From their great importance in carrying on the war against our enemies, I am persuaded you will take immediate measures for complying with them in the most effectual manner.

You will perceive from the vote of Congress, herewith transmitted, the sense of that body with regard to the necessity of furnishing the troops for the new Army as soon as possible. As our enemies no doubt will take the field early in the spring it becomes us to be prepared to meet them, and for this end, to exert ourselves the approaching winter to complete the Army agreeably to the new establishment.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the States of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Rhode-Island, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North-Carolina, South-Carolina, Georgia.

---

IN CONGRESS, November 19, 1776.—Resolved, That Letters be immediately sent to Councils of Safety, Conventions, or Legislatures of Pennsylvania and the States to the southward thereof, desiring them forthwith to lay up magazines of Military Stores, Ammunition, and Salt Provisions, in the safest and most convenient places in the said States respectively, for the use of such Continental Troops and Militia as it may be necessary to bring into the field in the ensuing winter for the defence of these States.

Congress deem it necessary, upon every principle of propriety, to remind the several States how indispensable it is to the common safety that they pursue the most immediate and vigorous measures to furnish their respective quotas of Troops for the new Army, as the time of service for which the present Army was inlisted is so near expiring that the country may be left in a condition in a great measure defenceless unless supplied by new levies.

IN CONGRESS, November 21, 1776.—As the necessity of obtaining an Army immediately to oppose the designs of the enemy is so evident and pressing as to render it proper to give all possible facility to that business:

Resolved, That each State be at liberty to direct their Recruiting Officers to inlist their men either for the war or for three years, upon the respective bounties offered by Congress, without presenting inlisting rolls for both terms, according to a former resolution, keeping it always in view that in the opinion of Congress the publick service will be best promoted by inlistments for the war, if the recruiting business is not retarded thereby.

By order of Congress:

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, November 20th, 1776.

Agreeable to request from the honourable Congress, the Council have inquired into the affair respecting the escape of prisoners from the jail, and find nothing material, except some information from Mrs. Conolly, wife of Dr. Conolly, of an intended escape of her husband. Upon examination no person appears concerned with him.

The Council represent that Mrs. Conolly, in consequence of revealing her husband's intentions, has been so ill used by him as makes it impossible to live with him but on the worst of terms, and therefore begs permission to go to her family at Pittsburgh.

This Board apprehend such liberty will not be attended with ill consequences, and recommend her case to the honourable Congress.

By order of Council:

THOS. WHARTON, Jun., President.

To the honourable Congress.

---

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, November 20, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed is a copy of a letter from the Board of War respecting the prisoners of war in this State, to the contents of which the Council request your immediate attention, by forwarding them agreeable to the directions, as soon as possible, and make such provision for them on the road as the Congress have allowed. After they are gone you are desired to transmit an exact account of what expenses have been incurred during their residence in your County, in order that they may be settled.

By order of the Council:

THOS. WHARTON, Jun., President.

To the Committee of Inspection for Lancaster County, at Lancaster.

---

War Office, November 19, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: General Washington having very pressingly requested Congress that all British prisoners of war should be collected and sent to Fort Lee, in New-Jersey, to be exchanged, you will be pleased immediately to give directions that all such prisoners in this State be forthwith sent under proper escorts to General Greene, commanding at that fort. The officers should go separately from the privates. Those prisoners who were captivated in North-Carolina are not meant to be included. They should take the route directly from their respective places of residence to Fort Lee, and should not be suffered to pass Philadelphia. You will be pleased to direct the Committees to furnish you with accounts of all expenses disbursed for prisoners, which with those laid out by you and the late Committee of Safety of this State, you will transmit to the Board of War, by whose order I write on this subject. The Board would most earnestly recommend the most speedy compliance with their request, but are conscious that motives of publick concern as well as private humanity will induce you to fall upon immediate measures to relieve our distressed fellow-citizens from bondage, and restore them to their country and friends.

I have the honour to be your most obedient servant,

RICHARD PETERS, Secretary.

Honourable the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania.

GENERAL MERCER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 22d.]

Elizabeth-Town, 20th November, 1776.

SIR: Intelligence was brought me last night by a person who has been some time in New-York, but commonly resides on Staten-Island, that the enemy intend to reduce Fort Lee, and then to march through the Jerseys to attack the city of Philadelphia.

All the transports that draw the least water are preparing to take in troops. Their destination was only conjectured to be against Philadelphia or South-Carolina. The transports carry fascines on their quarters. Houses are taken up in New-York to barrack ten thousand men; but it is given out, and firmly believed in the Army, that they will not go into winter-quarters, before another attempt is made to reduce some part of the coast.

The person who brought me the above intelligence is engaged to return to New-York. I hope to see him in two days, and be able then to give fuller information. One expedition is said to be intended to the northward and the other to the southward.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most humble servant,

HUGH MERCER.

The Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of Congress.

WILLIAM GRAYSON TO GENERAL LEE.

Hackensack, November 20th, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency has directed me to write to you, and acquaint you with the late movements of the enemy. They landed this morning between Dobbs's Ferry and Fort Lee, as it is imagined, at a place called Closter Dock, nearly opposite to Philips's house, and (as the General has been informed) in great numbers, and an advanced party of them have proceeded as far as a hill two miles above the liberty pole, about a mile and an half above General Greene's quarters, where I left his Excellency. The road leading from thence to the bridge above Hackensack, as well as the bridge, is open for our troops to retreat; and from present appearances, it is expected they may be got off without the loss of many of them. What their object is cannot at present be clearly ascertained; but it is imagined the getting possession of Fort Lee is one part of their design; however, it is possible, and perhaps probable, they may have other and more capital views.

His Excellency thinks it would be advisable in you to remove the troops under your command on this side of the North River, and there wait for further orders.

I am, sir, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant,

W. GRAYSON.

To Major-General Lee.

---

COLONEL HARRISON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Hacensec, November the 20th, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: His Excellency received your favour of the 18th this morning. He doubts not but the disposition you have determined to make of the troops has been maturely weighed, and will be well adapted to the important purposes you have in view and the general security. I would submit it to you, whether the pass through the Highlands, on this side the river, should not be instantly secured. You will readily suggest the reason on reading the conclusion of my letter. Your own discretion must direct the mode of employing Colonel De Roussi and his detachment till you receive further orders on the subject. As General Parsons is a very judicious and good officer, and his presence may have a happy influence in the appointment of good officers. I can almost assure you the liberty you have granted him will be approved by his Excellency.

The particulars of the unhappy affair of the 16th, nor the terms of surrender, have not been yet obtained. One of the train who escaped on Sunday night says the enemy sustained a great loss in killed and wounded, especially among the Hessians. Lieutenant-Colonel Rawlings, who was posted on the pass above the fort leading from King's Bridge, maintained his ground for a long time, (he said between two or three hours,) keeping up a close and heavy fire during that time. God grant it may have been a dear-bought victory.

You will receive the warrants. The complaint of the officers about their abstracts cannot be helped; none but one person can with any propriety draw warrants in the same army. Nor would the trouble be great if several were lodged with the Paymaster and went down to be signed at one time. If that mode is not pursued, it can only take a trusty agent two days to complete the business. We cannot have things as we wish; we must take them as they are found. Circumstances must govern always.

An express arrived this morning just as your letter came to hand, advising that a great number of the enemy had landed between Dobbs's Ferry and Fort Lee. The fact is true, as is confidently believed. Their advanced party is said to be within five or six miles from this place. Their immediate object is most probably to shut in our troops, &c., between the North and Heckenseck rivers. I trust they will be disappointed. His Excellency has been gone ever since the advice came, which has left me in the dark how to write you. I must be done. I believe I have mentioned in short terms what he would have said himself. He hinted as much.

I am, dear General, in haste, yours,

ROB'T H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Heath.

---

WILLIAM GRAYSON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Hackensack, November 20th, 1776.

SIR: His Excellency has directed me to write to you, and acquaint you of the late movements of the enemy. They landed this morning between Dobbs's Ferry and Fort Lee, (as the General has been informed,) in great numbers, and an advanced party of them proceeded as far as a hill two miles above the liberty pole, at the cross roads, where I left his Excellency. The road leading from thence to Hackensack bridge, as well as the bridge, is open for our people to retreat, and, from present appearances, it is expected they may be got off without loss of many of them. What their object is cannot at present be clearly ascertained, but it is imagined the getting possession of Fort Lee is one part of their designs; however, it is possible they may have other and more capital views.

You will be pleased to hold yourself in readiness to march at a moment's warning, and to forward this letter to Lord Stirling and General Stephen, who are to make the same preparation.

I am, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

W. GRAYSON, A. D. C.

To Brigadier-General Mercer.

---

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Hackensack, November 20th, 1776—10 o'clock.

SIR: I this morning received the honour of your letter of the 13th instant by Mr. Bennet. The contents I communicated to his Excellency, and have to inform you that there is no necessity for the batteaus you mention coming to Fishkills, all the troops belonging to the States south of Hudson's river, and which were in the Army under his immediate command, having already crossed, and there being a sufficient number of vessels there to answer such further transportation as may be necessary at this time. As the enemy have returned to Canada, his Excellency hopes no inconveniences will result from the return of the Pennsylvania and Jersey regiments; at the same time he would have been more happy to have heard of their inlisting again, and continuing in the service. He fears a similar conduct will be observed by the rest. As the term of their inlistment is expired, they had a right to claim their dismission; and he does not apprehend that an attempt to restrain or continue 'em against their inclinations, would have been attended with any valuable consequences. They may be here of some service; from the present appearance of things their aid may be extremely seasonable, if they will give it.

In respect to the disposition you propose for quartering the troops, his Excellency doubts not but that it is perfectly good, and such as will be well adapted to their accommodation and the general security.

The proceedings of the Court Martial upon Colonel Campbell were transmitted to Congress, and never returned to his Excellency. All we have heard of the matter since is that, by a resolve of the 16th ultimo, the commander in the northern department is desired to affirm or reject the sentence, as he shall judge proper upon mature deliberation.

Before this reaches you, you will have heard of the loss of Fort Washington, and of the captivity of the troops who garrisoned it—about two thousand. The particulars respecting this unhappy affair, or the terms of surrender, we have not yet obtained. I can only inform you that on Saturday, the 16th, about eleven o'clock, the enemy made a general attack upon the lines on the heights, which having carried, our men retired within the fort; it being invested on all all sides, was surrendered that evening. The loss sustained on either side is uncertain; but we know the lines were warmly disputed in some parts, particularly on the pass above the fort leading from King's Bridge. In that quarter the engagement was of long continuance and heavy, and by the information of one of the train who escaped on Monday night, attended with a considerable slaughter of Hessians. The firing there lasted, it is said, and was incessant, from two-and-a-half to three hours. The artillerist adds, that Lieutenant-Colonel Rawlings, who was posted in that part, maintained his ground a long time within three or four rods of the enemy, and at length was obliged to give way on account of their infinitely superiour number and a constant succession of troops. His Major, Otho Williams, Esq., is reported to have fallen. Our loss in killed is supposed to be inconsiderable.

Ten o'clock.—This minute an express from Orange-Town advises that some of the enemy have landed below Dobbs's Ferry. A smart firing is also heard below Fort Lee, towards Bergen. It is probable the immediate object they have in view is to shut in such of our troops and stores as lay between Hackensack and Hudson's river. I trust they will be disappointed. They seem determined to push matters, and the weather is most favourable for 'em.

I am, sir, &c.,

R. H. Harrison.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

GENERAL HEATH TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, November 20, 1776, 7 o'clock in the evening.

Dear Sir: I have just received intelligence from Tapan, by express, that a body of the enemy have landed on the west side of Hudson's river, nearly opposite to Colonel Philips's house.

If General George Clinton or General Scott are at Fishkill with the honourable Convention or their Committee, beg the favour that you would acquaint them with this, and desire them to repair to this place without a moment's loss of time.

I am, sir, with esteem, your most obedient and very humble servant,

W. Heath.

Colonel Van Cortlandt, President of the honourable Convention of the State of New-York.

---

DR. MORGAN TO GENERAL HEATH.

Peekskill, November 20, 1776.

Doctor Morgan proposes to General Heath the quarters be fitted up immediately for a General Hospital for the reception of the sick at Peekskill.

To be omitted { They ought to be floored above, so as to make two stories each, and to have a stack of chimneys carried up in the middle.

If convenient quarters are not provided for the sick, and they cannot be obtained unless the Commander-in-Chief of the division gives orders and enforces them effectually, every attempt to establish an hospital will prove ineffectual.

To call for the establishment of a General Hospital for Surgeons to attend, and take care of the sick, and not to strengthen their hands, so as to enable them to do their duty, is the certain way of plunging them into insuperable difficulties, which must bring reflections on them, which it is not in their power to wipe off, but by showing the defect lies not at their door.

Wherever a General Hospital is established, it is necessary that the Commissary in that department furnish the necessary hospital stores, in sufficient abundance, so that the Surgeon on drawing for them be immediately provided with flour or bread, fresh-meat, salt, vinegar, rum, soap, candles, vegetables, Indian-meal, oatmeal, barley, rice, chocolate, coffee, tea, sugar, wine, butter, &c.

It is also necessary where other attendants cannot be had, as nurses, waiters, labourers and cooks, out of the Army, that fatigue men be appointed by the commander in sufficient number.

It is further required that bed-bunks be made, and straw always in readiness, for the sick, and a carpenter or two be employed solely in the business of the General Hospital, in making coffins, tables, and utensils of various kinds.

From the Quartermaster-General's store should be provided blankets, bed-sacks, platters, kettles, spoons, knives and forks, and other articles of the like kind.

Besides these several requisites, which depend not on the Director-General or Superintendent of an hospital, it is necessary for the better management of the hospital, that all the Regimental Surgeons and Mates be kept to their posts, attend their regiment, and make weekly returns of their sick to the Director-General, when present, and in his absence to the Surgeon of the General Hospital, that provision be always made in time for the sick; to do which, it is necessary that the state of the sick be constantly known.

It is further necessary that all the Surgeons of regiments be informed that the Congress have resolved, whenever the sick require any further provision than their rations, they are to be reported immediately to the General Hospital and received into it, and that no issuing store will be opened to supply the sick remaining under their care with provisions from the General Hospital.

The weekly returns of the Regimental Surgeons to be in the form already given out to them; and if any Surgeon neglect being punctual in giving in his weekly returns, he should be reported to the commanding officer.

That it may be known who are deficient therein, the Director-General or Surgeon of the General Hospital, should be furnished by order of the commandant with a list of the regiments, and the names of the Surgeons in that division.

With every sick the Regimental Surgeon sends to the General Hospital, there should be a report, joined with the application for admission, addressed to the Surgeon of the General Hospital, signed by the Surgeon or Mate of the regiment, and by some commissioned officer belonging to the company or regiment, specifying when the sick was taken ill, and what was done; specifying, also, what blankets, clothes, &c., are sent with the sick.

When this regularity is observed it will be seen and known who do their duty, and who not, so that when complaints are made of the sick being neglected it may be known at whose door the fault lies.

Agreeable to General Heath's desire, these things are pointed out, and a Surgeon with three or four Mates shall be ordered to Peekskill to improve and take care of the General Hospital.

John Morgan.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, Fishkill, November 20, 1776.

Sir: I have the honour to enclose you resolutions of the Committee of Safety, respecting the more effectual obstruction of Hudson river. No object appears to them of more importance, when they consider either the safety of this State, the supply of the Continental Army, or the preservation of the communication between the Southern and Eastern States. Experience has evinced that if the navigation had been rendered impassable opposite to Fort Washington, it must have been attended with infinite advantage; among which, even the security of the garrison, and military stores at that fort is not the most considerable; indeed, it is no presumption to suppose that after the fruitless attempt of the British Army to penetrate the country through the White-Plains, they must have closed the campaign, at least in this quarter, with disappointment and disgrace. Their success in reducing the fort revived their spirits; and the evacuation of Fort Lee in consequence of it opened a passage for them into the defenceless parts of New-Jersey.

In projecting the obstruction between Anthony's Nose, on the eastern shore, and Fort Montgomery, we endeavoured to avail ourselves of the model of that which had proved effectual in the river Delaware, and were assisted by the advice and experience of Captain Hazelwood. But the great length of the chain, being upwards of eighteen hundred feet, the bulk of the logs which were necessary to support it, the immense weight of water which it accumulated, and the rapidity of the tide, having baffled all our efforts, it separated twice after holding only a few hours; and we have too much reason to despair of its ever fully answering the important purpose for which it was constructed. A like disappointment, we are informed, happened at Portsmouth; the chain intended to obstruct the navigation of that harbour proved equally ineffectual.

These considerations have induced us to explore the depth of the river throughout the Highlands, in which a Committee of Convention have been assisted by General George Clinton. The distance and depth of water at the north entrance, which, on this experiment, is found to be the fittest place, will be seen by the enclosed plan. It is proposed, with the approbation of the honourable Congress, to obstruct the navigation in this part by caissons, which it is conceived will be very practicable. The Convention wish on account of General Washington's distance from this place, and the multiplicity of business with which he is encumbered, that the direction of this work may be committed to Major-General Schuyler, who we believe every way qualified to ensure its success. Timber and stone can be conveniently procured; and when the campaign terminates, the troops cantoned in this part of the country may be employed in rotation to assist in the work. But no time is to be lost in preparing the materials, and we shall wait with anxiety for the determination of the honourable Congress on a subject which, in the opinion of the Committee, is of the utmost moment to the United States. If the enemy persevere in their plan of subjugating these States to the yoke of Great Britain, they must, in proportion to their knowledge of the country, be more and more convinced of the necessity of their becoming masters of Hudson's river; which will give them the entire command of the water communication with the Indian nations, effectually prevent all intercourse between the Eastern and Southern Confederates, divide our strength, and enfeeble every effort for our common preservation and security. That this was their original plan, and that General Carleton and General Howe flattered themselves with the delusive hopes of uniting their forces at Albany, every intelligence confirms; and it appears to the Committee that they will not give up this grand object until they shall finally relinquish the project of enslaving America. The Committee take the liberty to submit these reflections to the honourable Congress. If they are well founded, an early and vigorous preparation to oppose the progress of the enemy in this quarter must be indispensable, and the defence and security of Hudson's river, the principal object of that preparation.

We are informed that some merchants in the Eastern States are pursuing the scheme of transporting flaxseed to France, to be shipped, as it is apprehended, from thence to Ireland. If it is necessary to make Great Britain feel the distresses of the war, by obstructing the manufacture of linen, this project will demand the attention of Congress; and, in the opinion of this Committee, nothing less than the entire prohibition of the exportation of flaxseed will afford an adequate remedy. Another very important advantage must arise from such a measure—it will encourage the linen manufacture in these States, to which, of all others, they are the most competent. However severe the sudden reverse of fortune which we have lately experienced, however melancholy the loss of our metropolis, sea-coast, and four of our counties, and the aspect of that part of our State which has been plundered and desolated by a retreating enemy—barbarous beyond all description—and however great the number of our ruined friends who are left naked and destitute in an inclement season, a country without commerce, or the means of affording them clothing,—I have the satisfaction to assure you that the fortitude of this State, and their zeal for the glorious cause in which we are engaged, is not abated; on the contrary, we are prepared to meet even severer misfortunes, with a spirit and firmness becoming the generous advocates for liberty. Unhappy am I to add, that amidst all our suffering the Army employed for the protection of America have not refrained from embittering even the calamities of war. At a time when the utmost resources of this State were laid open to their wants, and the members of Convention personally submitted to the labour and fatigue which were necessary on a sudden emergency, and after frequent losses of provisions and barracks, to supply two numerous armies, augmented by the Militia, with every article which they required, the court-house and the remains of the village at the White-Plains, which had been spared on the retreat of our forces, was, after the enemy had in their turn retired, wantonly destroyed, without the orders and to the infinite regret of our worthy General. Besides, in spite of all his Excellency's efforts, wherever our troops have marched, or been stationed, they have done infinite damage to the possessions and farms, and pilfered the property of the people. I am directed, sir, to submit it to the honourable Congress, whether some effectual remedy ought not to be provided against such disorderly and disgraceful proceedings. The soldier who plunders the country he is employed to protect is no better than a robber, and ought to be treated accordingly; and a severe example ought, in the opinion of the Committee, to be made of the officer who, without any necessity, or his General's permission, set fire to the court-house and other buildings at the White-Plains. He is guilty of the crime of arson, and if he cannot be punished by the articles of war, ought to be given up to the laws of the land. If so glaring a violation of every sentiment of humanity should be passed over in silence, if the Army is not seasonably restrained from such acts of barbarity, the consequence must be fatal to the cause of a people whose exalted glory it is to be advocates for the rights of mankind against the tyranny and oppression of lawless power. The resolutions which the Committee of Safety have passed upon this subject are herewith transmitted.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant.

By order:

PIERRE VAN CORTLANDT, President.

The Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, President of the Congress of the United States of America.

PASS FOR GYSBERT OSTERHOUT.

Gysbert Osterhout, the bearer hereof, is hereby appointed one of the subalterns of the party sent to work at the Barracks at Fishkill, according to resolution of Committee of Safety for the State of New-York, of the 6th November, instant.

Dated 20th November, 1776.

COLONEL JACOB BAYLEY TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Newbury, November 20th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am sensible that the intent of raising the Rangers in this State was not only to secure the frontiers, but, on any emergence, might be called to any post to assist and defend, &c. Now, if our rangers have not what was engaged them, viz: bounty, six months' pay, and billeting, we have no right to command them, and if that payment is not made we must not expect them on any duty; and if General Gates, who doubtless stands in need of them, should call for them, he must be disappointed. Where the blame lays I can't say; however, it is my opinion, that the Major be paid according to his rolls, if authentick; afterward he may be called to account, if he has been faulty, otherwise the whole had better now be dropped; better now than when one or two months more time is spent to no purpose.

Excuse me for this, and give me leave to inscribe myself the publick's and your very humble servant,

JACOB BAYLEY.

RICHARD STOCKTON AND GEORGE CLYMER (COMMITTEE) TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Albany, November 20th, 1776.

SIR: We did ourselves the honour of writing you on the 26th of last month from Saratoga; and after waiting in vain a few days, in expectation of advice from General Gates, agreeable to his letter to us of the 24th, we thought it our duty nevertheless to proceed on to Ticonderoga. We continued there during the first two days, in hourly expectation of sharing in the glory of our Army in a successful opposition to the attack of General Carleton, but we were disappointed, and instead thereof, had the pleasure of knowing that he had totally evacuated Crown-Point. Of this great event you will have received authentick accounts before this can reach you. We returned here the evening before the last, and this morning we received from General Gates the enclosed letter, together with some despatches for ourselves.

The letter he requested might be immediately forwarded to you by express. We are acquainted with the contents of it, and had a conference with the Commissioners from the Massachusetts-Bay, in company with General Gates, before we left Ticonderoga. We did not fail to represent to them in the strongest terms our apprehensions of the fatal consequences of the measure adopted by their General Court, and advised them by all means to suspend the declaration of their powers until Congress should be advised of this extraordinary step. We left them apparently undetermined, and as to what has followed, General Gates's letter will fully inform you.

Having gone through the business committed to us by Congress, as far as it has been in our power, we propose to set out to-morrow on our return, if the weather shall permit; in the mean time, with the greatest respect, we have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient and most humble servants,

RICHARD STOCKTON,
GEORGE CLYMER.

To Mr. President Hancock.

P. S. This moment fresh accounts from General Gates inform us that he had sent boats forty miles down Lake Champlain, and no appearance of the enemy.

COLONEL WAYNE TO GENERAL GATES.

Ticonderoga, 20 November, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: We shall be hard pushed for time and materials, to put this place in any tolerable state of defence; however, nothing will be wanting on my part to render it tenable. I have this morning prevailed on the commanding officers of the regiments (who can't get batteaus immediately) to turn out the whole of their men to assist in fixing the pickets, whilst those from the garrison are employed in procuring provender, boards, bricks, &c.

We have little to fear when once we get into the works, by keeping a good look-out, provided we are properly supplied with provisions, clothing, soap, &c., &c., articles which you know are much wanted. I need say no more on this head.

Colonel White has given his honour not to challenge or offer any violence to Captain Varick, until their friends have had an opportunity of settling the affair in an honourable way.

I wait impatiently for your orders how to proceed, which you may rely on being punctually observed, by your most obedient and very humble servant,

ANT'Y WAYNE.

☞ You'll try to relieve us as soon as possible. Colonel White is on his way across the lake, and liberated, according to your orders.

SUMMONS OF THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE AMERICANS TO THE GOVERNOUR OF FORT CUMBERLAND.

To JOSEPH GORHAM, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel Commandant of the Royal Fencible Americans, commanding at FORT CUMBERLAND:

The already too plentiful effusion of human blood in the unhappy contest between Great Britain and her Colonies calls on every one engaged on either side to use the utmost efforts to prevent the unnatural carnage; but the importance of the cause on the side of America has made war necessary, and its consequences, though in some cases shocking, are yet unavoidable. But to evidence that the virtues of humanity are carefully attended to, to temper the fortitude of a soldier, I have to summon you, in the name of the United Colonies, to surrender the fort now under your command to the army sent under me by the States of America. I do promise that if you surrender yourselves as prisoners of war, you may depend upon being treated with the utmost civility and kindness; if you refuse, I am determined to storm the fort, and you must abide the consequences. An answer is expected in four hours after you receive this, and the flag to return safe.

I am your humble servant,

JONATHAN EDDY, Commanding Officer.

Head-Quarters, November 20, 1776.

---

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL GORHAM'S ANSWER TO THE ABOVE SUMMONS.

Fort Cumberland, November 20, 1776.

I acknowledge the receipt of a letter signed Jonathan Eddy, commanding officer, expressing a concern of the unhappy contest at present subsisting between Great Britain and the Colonies, and recommending those engaged on either side to use their endeavours to prevent the too plentiful effusion of human blood, and further summoning the commanding officer to surrender this garrison.

From the commencement of these unhappy contests I have felt for my deluded fellow-subjects and countrymen of America, and for the many innocent people they have involuntarily involved in the horrours of an unnatural rebellion, and entertain every humane principle and aversion to the unnecessary effusion of Christian blood; therefore command you, in his Majesty's name, to disarm, and recommend your surrendering self and party to the King's mercy; and further desire you would communicate the enclosed manifesto to as many of the inhabitants as you can, and as speedily as possible, to prevent their involving themselves in the same dangerous and unhappy dilemma.

Be assured, sir, I shall never dishonour the character of a soldier by surrendering my command to any power but that of my Sovereign, from whence it originated.

I am you humble servant,

JOSEPH GORHAM.

To Jonathan Eddy.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

In Council of Safety, November 21st, 1776.

SIR: Your favour of the 15th, by express, we only received this forenoon, and immediately sent off a fresh express to Virginia.

Despatches have been sent to the Militia officers throughout this State to hold their different corps in readiness to march upon the shortest notice.

It gives us concern to find, from information just now received from Dorset and Caroline Counties, on the East Shores, that there are likely to be disturbances in those Counties, for want of salt, it is said, of a serious nature. The progress the disaffected have made we have not time to transmit by this opportunity without detaining your messenger, but we shall send duplicates of the information we received to our Delegates by to-morrow's post, who probably will arrive in Philadelphia almost as soon as this bearer.

For, and on behalf of the Council, I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

DAN. OF S. THO's JENIFER, President.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, November 21st, 1776.

SIR: I have the honour to transmit the enclosed resolves in obedience to the commands of Congress. They are so explicit that I shall only request your attention to them.

You will perceive from the vote of Congress the sense of that body with regard to the necessity of furnishing the troops for the new army as soon as possible, a copy of which I have forwarded to the respective States agreeably to the orders of Congress. I have also written to the States southward of Pennsylvania, inclusively, urging them to lay up magazines of military stores and salt provision, for the use of the Army and Militia, in case it should be necessary to call them into the field the approaching winter. As our enemies will doubtless open the campaign early in the spring, it is absolutely necessary we should prepare for them, and exert ourselves to fill up the Army agreeably to the new establishment.

The Congress, to remove every objection, and in hopes of forwarding the recruiting service, have resolved that the troops may be engaged for three years, without presenting inlisting rolls, both for that term and during the continuance of the war, as ordered by a former resolution.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem and regard, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

His Excellency General Washington.

The enclosed letter from Mrs. Graydon for her son I should esteem a favour you would order to be conveyed, if any opportunity.

---

JOHN GIBSON, JUN., TO COUNCIL OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Treasury Office, Philadelphia, November 21, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: The Commissioners for adjusting the accounts of the Army at New-York and the Jerseys under the command of General Washington, are now engaged in executing that business, and are in immediate want of all the accounts of advances made by the several States for paying and subsisting the said Army. I am therefore to request you to order an account of such advances by your State to be forthwith transmitted to the Commissioners, that the proper stoppages may be made and the State reimbursed accordingly.

When the accounts are prepared you will please to order them to William Denning, Thomas Smith, and James Stephenson, Esquires, or either of them, at Head-Quarters at New-York, or the Jerseys.

I have the honour to be, in the name of the Superintendent of the Treasury, honourable gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN GIBSON, Jun., Auditor-General.

To the honourable the President and Council of the State of New-Hampshire.

[Same to the President and Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.]

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 21st, 1776—Thursday evening.

GENTLEMEN: Congress have not received any further particulars of the loss of Fort Washington than the account published November 19th. Captain Ramsey arrived here this afternoon. I am informed by Doctor Rush that he relates the affair in this manner, from Colonel Cadwalader, who is released by the enemy without any parole, on the request of General Prescott, for the civilities and attendance of his father (the Doctor) on the General when a prisoner in this city: That Fort Washington could not contain any thing near the number of our troops ordered for its defence. That there were two lines thrown up, the first at a considerable distance from the fort; that the second (and by far the strongest and capable of holding all the garrison) much nearer to the fort. Our troops were posted chiefly in the first lines, and were there attacked by the British troops. At this time a large body of Hessians crossed Harlem river and landed within the second lines, there not being any lines, breastwork, or forces, to oppose them. As soon as this movement of the enemy was discovered, a body was sent to oppose them. Of the British troops, there were only forty privates and one Captain killed; of the Hessians there were two hundred privates killed, and twenty-seven officers killed and wounded. Of our troops only thirty privates, and a Colonel Baxter, and a Captain Miller, of Pennsylvania, killed. Twenty-two hundred of our troops are prisoners.

The fort was victualled for three months, and amply supplied with cannon and all military stores. If this account be true, we have again blundered. Our loss is certainly very great. Doctor Rush says that General Washington is abandoning Fort Lee. '

All is well at Ticonderoga. I have this evening received an exact account of the enemy's naval force on Lake Champlain: One ship, 16 guns; one snow, 16 do.; one schooner, 14 do.; one do., 12 do.; one do., 12 do.; one sloop, 10 do.; bomb-ketch; one large floating battery, 24 10-pounders; twenty gondolas, of one gun each, 12 and 10-pounders; fifteen batteaus for boarding, one gun in each, 3-pounders; manned with one thousand men.

I have seen your opinion to our Commissioners, that they should proceed and inlist our troops for three years. I am apprehensive you do not see the opinion and object of Congress in its fullest extent. The Congress will agree that Maryland may raise her troops for three years, but have declared, and now hold, our State bound to contribute her proportion of the expense attending the procuring of lands for the officers and soldiers furnished by other States for the war.

We have proposed and urged on Congress that the question as to the procuring lands at the expense of the United States, and our claim that the back lands acquired from the Crown of Great Britain in the present war, should be a common stock for the benefit of the United States, and should remain open for the determination of some future Congress.

We have proposed that any State which may raise its quota for the war and give a bounty in lieu of land should indemnify the United States from any claim from their officers and soldiers who received an allowance in lieu of land, and that such State should not be chargeable to the United States for any part of the expense attending the procuring of lands for the officers and soldiers of the other States who shall furnish troops for the war. Both these propositions have been rejected. This day a resolve passed that each State be at liberty to inlist for the war or three years. What our Commissioners will do I know not, nor can I advise them. I am amazed at the obstinacy of Congress.

The paper for our money is shipped this day. Mr. Paca arrived this morning, so that we are now represented; but if Mr. Rumsey should go to camp, we shall soon be without a representation.

I am, gentlemen, with respect and regard, your most obedient servant,

SAM'L CHASE.

To the honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

DOCTOR WITHERSPOON TO RICHARD STOCKTON.

Princeton, November 21, 1776.

SIR: I beg the favour of you when at Philadelphia to lose as little time as possible in getting some orders given about the sick. In passing through this town I spoke to John Hill two days ago, who promised to take care of them, provided some money was sent up for the necessary expense. I gave him reason to think that would be done, and perhaps it would be best to give some money into Mr. Kelsey's hands to supply John Hill as it is needed. Whether it should be done in this way, or the appointment immediately of a Deputy Quartermaster to stay here, I leave to you; but the case is clamant and affecting, and very well known to you. I have left some little affairs to finish in Philadelphia, for which I may perhaps be in a day or two next week, but cannot be certain.

There was sent to me this day the enclosed list of medicines ordered for tending the sick, which, if they are furnished, it seems Doctor Bainbridge, whom I did not see, has offered his assistance. You may do in this as you think best; but nursing and attendance and shelter to them are absolutely necessary.

Wishing you a good journey, I am, dear sir, your obedient, humble servant,

JNO. WITHERSPOON.

To the Hon. Richard Stockton, Esq.

LORD STIRLING TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Brunswick, November 21st, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have this moment received a letter from Colonel Grayson, informing that General Washington had received information that the enemy had landed a large body of men on the west side of Hudson's river, about four miles above Fort Lee; in consequence of which I am putting all the troops in this State in readiness to march at a moment's warning. But from what Major Mentges, the bearer hereof, informs me, I think there is room to doubt whether the intelligence be well founded; however a few hours will determine whether it be so or not.

I am, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

STIRLING.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

Hackensack, November 21st, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: It must be painful to you, as well as to us, to have no news to send you but of a melancholy nature. Yesterday morning the enemy landed a large body of troops below Dobbs's Ferry, and advanced very rapidly to the fort called by your name. I immediately went over, and as the fort was not tenable on this side, and we in a narrow neck of land, the passes out of which the enemy were attempting to seize, directed the troops, consisting of Beall's, Heard's, the remainder of Ewing's brigades, and some other parts of broken regiments, to move over to the west side of Hackensack river. A considerable quantity of stores and some artillery have fallen into their hands. We have no account of their movements this morning; but as this country is almost a dead flat, we have not an intrenching tool, and not above three thousand men, and they much broken and dispirited, not only with our ill success, but the loss of their tents and baggage, I have resolved to avoid any attack, though by so doing I must leave a very fine country open to their ravages, or a plentiful store-house, from which they will draw voluntary supplies.

Your favour of the 19th is just come to hand. I approve of your step with respect to the Rhode-Island officers. As I am unacquainted with their merits, I was obliged to leave the determination of the matter much to General Greene, hoping, I confess, that he would make an arrangement acceptable to his countrymen. However, I am well satisfied with what you have done, and must leave it upon that footing.

With respect to your situation, I am very much at a loss what now to determine. There is such a change of circumstances since the date of your letter, as seem to call for a change of measures. Your post undoubtedly will answer some important purposes; but whether so many or so great as your removal, is well worthy of consideration. You observe, it prevents a fine fertile country affording them supplies; but now they have one much more so and more contiguous. They have already traversed a part of that country, leaving little behind them. Is it probable they will return? If not, the distance must be too great in winter time to render it effectually serviceable. Upon the whole, therefore, I am of opinion, and the gentlemen about me concur in it, that the publick interest requires your coming over to this side, with the Continental troops, leaving Fellows's and Wadsworth's brigades to take care of the stores during their short stay, at the expiration of which I suppose they will set out home.

My reasons for this measure, and which I think must have weight with you, are, that the enemy are evidently changing the seat of war to this side of the North River; that this country, therefore, will expect the Continental Army to give what support they can, and, failing in this, will cease to depend upon or support a force from which no protection is given to them. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that at least an appearance of force should be made to keep this Province in the connection with the others. If that should not continue, it is much to be feared that its influence on Pennsylvania would be very considerable, and more and more endanger our publick interest. Unless, therefore, some new event should occur, or some more cogent reason present itself, I would have you move over by the easiest and best passage. I am sensible your numbers will not be large, and that, perhaps, it may not be agreeable to the troops. As to the first, report will exaggerate them, and preserve an appearance of an army, which will at least have an effect to encourage the desponding here; and as to the other, you will doubtless represent to them, that in duty and gratitude, their service is due wherever the enemy make the greatest impression or seem to intend so to do.

The stores at North-Castle, Croton Bridge, and King's Ferry, are to be removed to Peekskill, so as to be under General Heath's eye. This, we hope, there will be time and means to do.

Colonel Putnam, who has been surveying the country, thinks the bridge at Croton river a very important place, and that troops would be necessary there. You will please to regard it accordingly, by leaving or ordering one regiment there.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Lee.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON.

Aquackenonk Bridge, 21st November, 1776.

SIR: I have this moment arrived at this place with General Beall's and General Heard's brigades from Maryland and Jersey, and part of General Ewing's from Pennsylvania. Three other regiments, left to guard the passes upon Hackensack river and to serve as covering parties, are expected up this evening.

After the unfortunate loss of Fort Washington, it was determined to evacuate Fort Lee in a great measure, as it was in a manner useless in obstructing the passage of the North River without the assistance of Fort Washington. The ammunition and some other stores were accordingly removed; but before we could effect our purpose, the enemy landed yesterday morning, in very considerable numbers, about six miles above the fort. Their intent evidently was, to form a line across from the place of their landing to Hackensack bridge, and thereby hem in the whole garrison between the North and Hackensack rivers. However, we were lucky enough to gain the bridge before them, by which means we saved all our men, but were obliged to leave some hundred barrels of flour, most of our cannon, and a considerable parcel of tents and baggage. Finding we were in the same danger of being pent up between Hackensack and Passaic rivers that we had been between the North and Hackensack, and also finding the country, from its levelness and openness, unfit for making a stand, it was determined to draw the whole of our force over this side of the river, where we can watch the operations of the enemy without danger of their surrounding us, or making a lodgment in our rear. But as our numbers are still very inadequate to that of the enemy, I imagine I shall be obliged to fall down towards Brunswick, and form a junction with troops already in that quarter under the command of Lord Stirling.

As the term of the inlistment of the Flying-Camp, belonging to Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland, is near expiring, it will occasion so great a diminution of my Army that I submit it to your judgment whether it would not be proper for you to call together such a number of Militia as, in conjunction with the troops I shall have left, will serve to cover the country, and stop the progress of the enemy if they should still attempt to penetrate. If the weather continues favourable, I am apprehensive they will attempt to make amends for the slowness of their operations the beginning of the campaign.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Livingston, New-Jersey.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL ATLEE.

Head-Quarters, November 21st, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with yours of the 9th instant. I can so well conceive the desire that persons in captivity must feel for releasement and a return to their friends, that I do not wonder at your anxious endeavours to procure your own. If Mr. Thomas Irving, Receiver-General of South-Carolina, (who I do not look upon in the military line,) can receive any assurance from General Howe that he will exchange you for him, I certainly can have no objection. This proposition cannot with propriety go from me to General Howe, because by the terms of our cartel, exchanges can only be proposed between officers of equal rank; but either side may deviate from the rule if they please, as was the case of Governour Brown for Brigadier Lord Stirling. If, therefore, you and Mr. Irving can obtain General Howe's consent for your reciprocal exchange, I will, immediately upon receiving his approbation of the measure, send for Mr. Irving, from Connecticut.

In consequence of a joint letter from you and Colonel Miles, respecting the deplorable condition of our prisoners in New-York, for want of clothes and other necessaries, I have laid the matter before Congress, and have recommended it to them to provide a proper fund for their support. As to the scanty allowance of provisions, I would hope that it proceeded from the state of General Howe's stores, and not from any desire in him to add famine to the misfortune of captivity.

I am, sir, &c.,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Samuel J. Atlee, Pennsylvania Militia, prisoner.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GENERAL LEE TO COLONEL REED, DATED NOVEMBER 21, 1776.

I have just received your letter dated Hackensack, by Cornelius Cooper. His Excellency recommends me to move with the troops under my command to the other side of the river. I apprehend that this advice is founded on the presumption that we have the means of crossing at or near Dobbs's Ferry, or that my corps is moved up the country near to King's Ferry. There are no means of passing Dobbs's Ferry; and as we remain where you left us, the round by King's Ferry would be so great that we could not be there in time to answer any purpose. I have therefore ordered General Heath, who is close to the only ferry which can be passed, to detach two thousand men, to apprise his Excellency, and await his further orders, a mode which I flatter myself will answer better what I conceive to be the spirit of the orders than should I move the corps from hence. Withdrawing our troops from hence would be attended with some very serious consequences, which at present would be tedious to enumerate. As to myself I hope to set out to-morrow.

JOSEPH REED, ADJUTANT-GENERAL, TO GENERAL LEE.

Hackensack, November 21st, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: The letter you will receive with this contains my sentiments with respect to your present station; but besides this, I have some reasons for most earnestly wishing to have you where the principal scene of action is laid. I do not mean to flatter nor praise you at the expense of any other, but, I confess, I do think that it is entirely owing to you that this Army and the liberties of America, so far as they are dependent on it, are not totally cut off. You have decision, a quality often wanting in minds otherwise valuable; and I ascribe to this our escape from York-Island, from King's Bridge, and the Plains; and I have no doubt, had you been here, the garrison of Mount Washington would now have composed a part of this Army: and from all these circumstances, I confess I ardently wish to see you removed from a place where I think there will be little call for your judgment and experience, to the place where they are likely to be so necessary. Nor am I singular in my opinion: every gentleman of the family, the officers and soldiers, generally, have a confidence in you. The enemy constantly inquire where you are, and seem to be less confident when you are present.

Colonel Cadwalader, through a special indulgence on account of some civilities shown by his family to General Prescott, has been liberated from New-York without any parole. He informs that the enemy have a southern expedition in view; that they hold us very cheap in consequence of the late affair at Mount Washington, where both the plan of defence and execution were contemptible. If a real defence of the lines was intended, the number was too few; if the fort only, the garrison was too numerous by half. General Washington's own judgment, seconded by representations from us, would, I believe, have saved the men and their arms; but unluckily, General Greene's judgment was contrary. This kept the General's mind in a state of suspense till the stroke was struck. Oh, General! an indecisive mind is one of the greatest misfortunes that can befall an army: how often have I lamented it this campaign!

All circumstances considered, we are in a very awful, alarming state, one that requires the utmost wisdom and firmness of mind. As soon as the season will admit, I think yourself and some others should go to Congress, and form the plan of the new army, point out their defects to them, and, if possible, prevail on them to bend their whole attention to this great object, even to the exclusion of every other. If they will not, or cannot do this, I fear all our exertions will be vain in this part of the world. Foreign assistance is soliciting, but we cannot expect they will fight the whole battle.

I intended to have said more, but the express is waiting, and I must conclude with my clear and explicit opinion that your presence is of the last importance.

I am, with very much affection and regard, your very affectionate, humble servant,

JOSEPH REED, Adjut. Gen.

Major-General Lee, at the White-Plains.

COLONEL E. HUNTINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF LITCHFIELD, CONNECTICUT.

Peekskill, 21st November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By General Heath's order, I have sent to your care one Sergeant McClowl, who is a prisoner of war; was taken on the 17th instant, nigh the enemy's camp. You will please to have him so taken care of that whenever a change of prisoners shall take place he may be had.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your obedient and humble servant,

E. HUNTINGTON, Assistant Adjutant-General.

To the Committee of Safety of Litchfield.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM COLONEL JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON TO HIS SON, DATED CAMP, 21ST NOVEMBER, 1776.

I am now at Sidman's bridge, on Ramapough river, in the Precinct of Haverstraw, Orange County, New-York, twenty miles in a southwesterly direction from Peekskill, on Hudson's river, twenty miles from Hackensack town, which lies on the river of that name, that empties itself into Newark Bay, about ten miles below Hackensack town. We hear to-day that the enemy are at Hackensack new bridge, two miles below the town, and that our Army have taken up the bridge to prevent their passing. I expect to be stationed at this place all winter. Have orders to build barracks for my men, which I am doing with logs. They make homely but very warm habitations. Your uncle David was glad to sleep in them in his journey to Susquehanna. I am in good health.

GENERAL LEE TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Camp at Philipsburg, November 21st, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Before the unfortunate affair of Fort Washington, it was my opinion that the two armies—that on the east and that on the west side of North River—must rest each on its own bottom; that the idea of detaching and reinforcing from one side to the other, on every motion of the enemy, was chimerical; but to harbour such a thought in our present circumstances is absolute insanity. In this invasion, should the enemy alter the present direction of their operations, and attempt to open the passage of the Highlands, or enter New-England, I should never entertain a thought of being succoured from the western army. I know it is impossible. We must therefore depend upon ourselves. To Connecticut and Massachusetts, I shall look for assistance. The time of service of the men who compose the little corps under my command is near expiring. The enemy's troops are well clad for a winter campaign. Should they attempt when the winter sets in to open the communication of the Highlands, or enter New-England, I know not what we have to oppose 'em. Some means must be devised to raise your regular battalions, for as to your Militia, they are grown more detestable than ever, not from the bad quality of the men, for they are certainly good, but from the wretched character of the officers, particularly the lower sort, who want every attribute of soldiers and citizens. They want spirit, patience, constitution, integrity, and publick virtue of course. If your men run away you may be assured that the way is led by the officers. There are, notwithstanding, some worthy subjects amongst 'em, but the bad preponderates so enormously that little confidence can be placed in your Militia. I must repeat, therefore, that I hope not only the legislative body, but the whole gentlemen of the New-England Provinces, will exert themselves to forward the completion of the Continental regiments. For Heaven's sake, sir, contrive to send us some blankets, otherwise we must dissolve away before the time of our natural death. I hope the cursed job of Fort Washington will occasion no dejection: the place itself was of no value. For my own part I am persuaded that if we only act with common sense, spirit, and decision, the day must be our own.

Adieu, dear sir, and believe me to be, most respectfully, yours,

CHARLES LEE.

To the President of the Council of Massachusetts.

WILLIAM BRADFORD TO MESHECH WEARE.

General Lee's Quarters, November 21, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Hurry of business at present prevents the General from writing himself. He has desired me to apologize for the same, and to inform your Excellency that there is the greatest probability of the enemy's paying you a visit very soon, a deserter having just come from the enemy, who declares 'twas in orders they should embark this day. Their design is, we imagine, to obtain secure winter quarters for themselves and shipping. Yesterday they landed, by the best intelligence we can get, about five thousand, in the Jerseys, four miles from Dobbs's Ferry. The particulars, since they landed, we have not learned. This manœuvre don't look like embarking, but the deserter appears so confident in his assertion that the General thought proper to acquaint your Excellency of it immediately,

I am, sir, with respect, your obedient, humble servant,

WILLIAM BRADFORD,
Aid-de-Camp to General Lee.

By General Lee's orders.

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp Philipsburg, November 21st, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I yesterday received your note, for which I thank you; but had before received the intelligence of the enemy's having landed in the Jersey. Colonel Reed has written me a short billet that I do not well understand.* I shall be obliged to you for some account of the condition and progress of your barracks, and what number of men they are or will be capable of lodging, and what is the state of your defences, should you be attacked; as of likewise your numbers, and how they are stationed. If you have any sketch of the country, be so kind as to favour me with it; and am, dear General, yours most sincerely,

CHARLES LEE.

General Heath, Peekskill.

---

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp, November 21st, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have just received a recommendation—not a positive order—from the General to move the corps under my command to the other side the river. This recommendation was, I imagine, on the presumption that I had already moved nearer the Peekskills. There is no possibility of crossing over Dobbs's Ferry, or at any place lower than King's Ferry, which to us would be such an immense round that we could never answer any purpose. I must therefore desire and request that you will order two thousand of your corps, under a Brigadier-General, to cross the river, apprise the General, and wait his further orders.† As soon as we have finished a necessary job I will replace this number from hence, which job will, I believe, be finished to-morrow.

I am, dear General, yours,

CHARLES LEE.

General Heath.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL LEE.

Peekskill, November 21st, 1776—10 o'clock at night.

DEAR GENERAL: I am now to acknowledge the receipt of your favours of this day's date, the former of which I had answered early in the evening. With respect to the latter, upon having recourse to my instructions, I find they are such as not to admit of moving any part of the troops from the posts assigned to me, unless it be by express orders from his Excellency or to support you in case you are attacked. My instructions, among other things, are as follows:

"Your division, with such troops as are now at Forts Montgomery, Independence, and Constitution, are to be under your command, and remain in this quarter, for the security of the above posts and the passes through the Highlands from this place and the one on the west side of Hudson's river. Unnecessary it is for me to say any thing to evince the importance of securing the land and water communication through these passes, or to prove the indispensable necessity of using every exertion in your power to have such works erected for the defence of them as your own judgment, assisted by that of your Brigadiers and Engineer, may show the expediency of. You will not only keep in view the importance of securing these passes, but the necessity of doing it without delay, not only from the probability of the enemy's attempting to seize them, but from the advanced season, which will not admit of any spade-work after the frost (which may be daily expected) sets in. Lose not a moment therefore in choosing the grounds on the east and west side of the river, on which your intended works are to be erected. Let your men for each post be speedily allotted," &c.

After instructions so positive and pressing, you will readily agree, that it would be very improper in me to order any of the troops from posts to which they are so expressly assigned, and from business which in his Excellency's view is so very important. Add to this, their present disposition is such, that to collect any thing near the number you mention would occasion as great delay, and cause many of them to march nearly as far, as if sent immediately from your quarter.

I am, dear General, with esteem, yours respectfully,

W. HEATH.

General Lee.

HENRY OUTHOUDT TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Catskill, November 21, 1776.

SIR: By a resolution passed the 9th October last, we find that we and others are appointed to purchase at the cheapest rate, in the County of Albany, sundry articles mentioned in said resolution, for the use of the Army. We have, although we lately received the notice of our appointment, made all the inquiry in our power whether we could purchase any of the said articles, and find that we can get the following, to wit: shoes at the rate of twenty shillings per pair; woolen hose from ten to twelve shillings per pair; felt hats from ten to twelve shillings each; mittens from three shillings and six pence to five shillings and six pence; check from thirty-two to forty shillings per shirt, beside the making; coarse woolen cloth, linsey-woolsey, and blankets, not to be had in our district.

As the prices of the above articles are much above the common price, we have not engaged any except a few pair of mittens, until such time as we could receive advice from the Convention.

If any of the above articles will suit at the rates mentioned, we suppose we can purchase for the value of five hundred pounds, and have them ready to be delivered to any person appointed for said purpose within a short time. Should the honourable Convention resolve to order us to purchase for any sum, we should be glad to have the money sent to us by the first safe opportunity, with directions of Convention in the premises.

With due esteem, remain, sir, your humble servants,

HENRY OUTHOUDT,
ANTHONY VAN BERGEN.

To the President of the Convention of the State of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 7th December.]

Saratoga, November 21st, 1776.

SIR: Generals Gates, Arnold, and Bricket, arrived here yesterday. Being informed that very few of the men would reëngage unless they had furloughs granted them to return home, and that the greater part would not engage at all before they got into the States from whence they came, and apprehensive that the garrisons to the northward would with difficulty be detained after the expiration of the term for which they were inlisted, I called a council of General Officers on the subject, the determination of which I do myself the honour to enclose, together with copy of my orders in consequence thereof. But as I am still apprehensive that a sufficient number of troops will not reach Ticonderoga by the last of December, without some other spur, I could wish that Congress would order the different States to hasten their troops up to such places as I have directed.

Colonel Wigglesworth, who went with the flag, is returned. Enclose you a copy of a scandalous paper delivered him. He brought with him Sergeant Younglove, of Dayton's, who was taken near Oswego in August last. Younglove says the enemy are certainly gone into winter-quarters; that he saw Sir John Johnson at Montreal a few weeks ago; that he was afterwards informed that Sir John had sailed for New-York.

*November 20th.—Just at evening an express, which General Heath had sent down to General Washington before he had any knowledge of what had happened, returned with a most alarming account of what he had seen with his own eyes, viz: that the Americans were rapidly retreating, and the British as rapidly pursuing. The Adjutant-General [Reed] wished to write to General Lee, but he had neither pen, ink, or paper, with him. The Light-Horseman had a rough piece of wrapping paper in his pocket, and the Adjutant-General had an old pencil. Bringing these two together, he wrote to General Lee: "Dear General, we are flying before the British. I pray"—and the pencil broke. He then told the Light-Horeman to carry the paper to General Lee and tell him that he was verbally ordered to add, after I pray, "you push and join us." The Light-Horseman, when he arrived at General Heath's was both fatigued and wet. He requested that one of his brother horsemen might proceed to General Lee; but he was told that no other could discharge the duty enjoined on him by the Adjutant-General, and that General Lee might wish to make many inquiries of him. He was therefore refreshed and pushed on. General Lee, instead of moving his division, or any part of it, wrote General Heath by the returning express, the following letter.—Heath.

†Upon receiving this letter from General Lee, (for General Heath did not receive the least hint from General Washington to move any part of the troops under his command by the express who brought the order to Lee,) he took up his instructions from General Washington to see if he might dare to make any detachment; upon which he wrote General Lee the following answer to his letter.—Heath.

November 24th.—Colonel Warner was with me some months ago, and showed me a copy of a resolution of Congress appointing him Colonel of a regiment to be raised, and applied to me for money to recruit. As I had not the least information from Congress that such a regiment was to be raised, I declined giving him a warrant until I should receive orders from Congress. Mr. Sherman waited upon me some time after, as Paymaster to the regiment, to whom I gave the same answer; and this morning Colonel Warner and Mr. Sherman again called upon me on the same business. As Congress have not sent me any orders on that head, and as I do not know that the State of New-York has appointed him to one of the four regiments to be raised therein, I have again declined to order him money until I receive the resolution of Congress through the proper channel.

Notwithstanding the resolution of the Board of General Officers mentioned in the former part of this letter, I have ordered General Gates to detain the troops at Albany until I receive information from General Washington of his situation, as it may be necessary to send the troops down there. I wish, however, there may be no occasion, as it will greatly retard the recruiting for the new Army.

As I cannot without the consent of Congress leave this department without a General Officer, I have ordered General Gates to remain at Albany, the others being already gone down.

Enclose you two papers put into my hands by the Paymaster-General of this department. I really think there is reason in the observations made in them, and it is beyond doubt that his duty is much more than that of the Paymaster at New-York; and as he is a gentleman of strict honour and delicate feelings, I think the publick should not lose him, and therefore hope for something in his favour.

25th.—I have this moment received the account of the loss of Fort Washington, and shall send the troops that are passed and passing, to the Commander-in-Chief, as he may stand in need of them.

I am, sir, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

At a Council of War, held at Saratoga, the 21st November, 1776: Present, the Honourable Major-General Schuyler, Major-General Gates, Brigadier-General Arnold, Brigadier-General Bricket.

Resolved, unanimously, That there is great reason to believe that very few of the soldiers now in service will reëngage, either during the war or for three years, unless they are permitted first to return to the different States in which they were inlisted; and that as the term for which the troops now in service are engaged will expire on the last day of December next, that it will be prudent and of the greatest advantage to the publick service that all, except such a number as is sufficient to garrison the fortresses in the northern department, should be immediately sent to their respective States, with orders to recruit with all expedition, agreeable to the resolutions of the honourable Continental Congress; and to send all the recruits so to be raised, under proper officers of the respective corps they may belong to, in such time as to arrive at the places to be assigned for their quarters on or before the first of January next, to relieve such as may remain, and whose term of inlistment will then expire.

PHILIP SCHUYLER,
HORATIO GATES,
B. ARNOLD.

J. LANSING, Jun., Secretary.

GENERAL SCHUYLER'S ORDERS.

Saratoga, November 21st, 1776.

SIR: As the term for which most of the troops now in garrison at Ticonderoga, and other posts above, will expire on the last day of December next, and it would be extremely imprudent to leave any of the upper posts with less troops than are now assigned to them, you will march your regiment (whose term of inlistment also expires on the last day of December) to the State of New-Hampshire, and there recruit the same with the utmost expedition. Whatever number you may have recruited about the latter end of December, you will order to march under one of your field-officers in such time as that they may reach Ticonderoga if possible by the first of January, to relieve part of the garrison of that place. You will please send me returns every fortnight of the state of your regiment, that I may be enabled to take measures for sending other troops to the northward in case there should be a deficiency from your quarter.

I am, &c.,

PH. SCHUYLER.

GENERAL PHILIPS'S ORDERS RELATIVE TO FLAGS OF TRUCE.

The boat from Ticonderoga, called a flag of truce, may be sent back with the persons who came in it. It is unnecessary to say more to these people than to repeat that his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief does not permit flags of truce, or any communication with the American Rebels, unless coming to implore the King's mercy. The allowing these Rebels in this boat to return, and not made prisoners, is an instance of the clemency of his Majesty's officers to these unfortunate people, but it is recommended to them to be careful how they venture within the posts of the Army, as they will be treated as spies.

Camp at St. John's, November 15th, 1776.

W. PHILIPS, M. General.

To Captain Schanks, commanding the Naval department at St. John's, to be sent by him to Lieutenant Longcroft; and a copy of this may be given to the Rebels.

GENERAL HERCHKEIMER TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS.

Canajoharie, November 21, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I recommend Captain John Eisenlord, of Colonel Van Dyke's regiment, as a well qualified gentleman for his rank and station, and would be glad if he would be nominated and appointed as a Captain in the new arrangement during war, by your Honours' choice and authority. I am convinced that he will behave further satisfactory to the States in general, as well as to our County in particular.

I am, respectfully, honourable gentlemen, your obedient, humble servant,

NICHOLAS HERCHKEIMER.

To the honourable Committee of Convention for the new arrangement of Continental service, in the State of New-York.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM QUEBECK, DATED NOVEMBER 21, 1776.

On Friday night last General Carleton arrived here from the Army, and on Monday he was waited on with the following Address by a committee of gentlemen appointed for that purpose by their fellow-citizens:

To his Excellency Sir GUY CARLETON, Knight of the Bath, Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Provinces of QUEBECK, General and Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's Forces, &c., &c., &c.:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We, his Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects, the gentlemen, merchants, and citizens residing in Quebeck, most sincerely congratulate your Excellency on the signal victory obtained by the forces under your command over the Rebel fleet on Lake Champlain.

Impressed with a just and lively sense of the excellence of our glorious Constitution, we are determined under all circumstances to preserve it inviolate. Firmly attached to our most gracious Sovereign, and truly sensible of the inestimable blessings we enjoy under the protection of his Government, we behold with sorrow and indignation the mad attempts of factious men on either side the Atlantick, by whose diabolical machinations the greatest part of this Continent is plunged into the horrours of a civil war.

With grateful hearts we acknowledge that the peace and tranquillity we now enjoy is owing (under Providence) to the determined resolution, steady perseverance, and unshaken constancy, which, during the tedious siege of this city, shone in every part of your Excellency's conduct. If we, on our parts, have been in any degree conducive to the preservation of the garrison, we are happy in the reflection of having done an act of duty to our King and country.

We take the liberty to request your Excellency will assure our most gracious Sovereign, that we will, to the utmost of our power, on every occasion, with our lives and fortunes, protect, maintain, and support his Royal person, his family, and Government.

Permit us also to add our gratulations on your safe return to this city, where we truly wish you may enjoy, without interruption, those endearing and domestick blessings of which you have been so long deprived, by the duties inseparably annexed to your publick character.

[To this Address, which was signed by those, and those only, who assisted in the defence of the garrison last winter, his Excellency returned the following Answer:]

Gentlemen: I return you thanks for this dutiful and affectionate Address. You may assure yourselves it will not be less agreeable to me to represent, than it must be grateful to our Sovereign to know, the loyalty and firm attachment of subjects whose actions have so well evinced the sincerity of their professions.

I have no doubt that you will on every occasion exert the same ardour and spirit in the cause of the King and Government, as was so manifest in the trial to which you were so lately put.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO JOHN LANGDON.

Newport, November 21st, 1776.

Sir: I wrote you a letter some time ago, acquainting you that it appeared to a Court-Martial that Captain Bowden, of the brig Royal Exchange, had some hand in forwarding a mutiny on board, and for you to stop his adventure until that matter was cleared up. Since the Captain has been here, and declares his innocence, and I wrote to him by Captain Whipple, that whatever he gave him an order to receive should be satisfactory to me; but on seeing Captain Whipple and the officers belonging to the fleet, they do not seem satisfied with giving him money; however, should think it but humanity for you to supply him with three or four hundred dollars, to enable him to subsist while here, and it will be agreeable to me; and I do not think the Congress or the people of the Navy will take it amiss. I am now almost ready, and expect to sail in a few days; in the mean time, I am, with great respect, sir, your humble servant,

Esek Hopkins.

To John Langdon, Esq., Agent for the Continental Fleet in the State of New-Hampshire.

ABISHA WASHBURN TO HUGH ORR.

Salisbury, November 21st, 1776.

Sir: Agreeable to your request I have been to Sheffield, and viewed the situation that is proposed for the building of a furnace for the making of cannon there. I think the place will answer for that purpose, and that a furnace convenient for the same may be built on the spot that I have viewed. Wood is very near and plenty, and I imagine the water will never fail. These are essential articles, and the encouragement for being well supplied with them there is great.

If it is determined by your State to go on with this undertaking, I should think that some preparation this winter would much forward the business next season. My compliments attend yourself and family.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

Abisha Washburn.

REPRESENTATION OF JOHN ALLEN, OF NOVA-SCOTIA, TO MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL, RELATIVE TO THE MICKMAC AND ST. JOHN'S TRIBE OF INDIANS.

The honourable Council Board for the Massachusetts State, America:

May it please your Honours: The Micmac Indians having empowered me to represent to your Honours their situation, their reasons for not complying with the treaty entered into by some of their young men, and your Honours desiring it might be done in writing, I shall endeavour, from the different minutes I have taken, to state the different movements, which I presume may be further satisfactory, their reasons for not assenting to the said treaty, and their present situation, as accurately and intelligible as my time and hurry of mind will permit.

After hostilities were commenced between America and Britain, they appeared very sullen in their form and behaviour. This created much anxiety in the minds of the people of Nova-Scotia; both sides seemed jealous of their intentions; even the Acadians, their most intimate friends, were strangers to their designs. They did not, as usual, frequent the different towns, but kept close to their respective villages, only now and then particular ones from the several tribes meeting to consult.

In the summer, 1775, the General Assembly of Nova-Scotia passed an act to prevent powder going coastwise without a special license from Government. This restriction occasioned ammunition to be very scarce in the different settlements. It affected none more than the Indians, whose subsistence depended on this commodity. The Indians were greatly enraged at the proceeding, and all the art and the insinuations of our politicians could not for some time satisfy them. Several persons belonging to Government, observing how highly the Indians resented the matter, and no doubt dreading the consequences of affronting them, made it known to Governour Legge, who immediately (with advice of Council) issued out, in a private manner, a kind of citation, desiring all the chiefs to attend near Halifax, in order for a conference, promising at the same time to furnish them with sufficient ammunition for the winter. Most of them attended at one time, and the rest soon after, on hearing of the treatment of the first set. Mr. Legge, at the conference, endeavoured to stigmatize the Americans as much as possible, calling them the most scurrilous names, stated the matter as much as he could in favour of Britain, requested them to take up arms and oppose the Rebels, and harass their back settlements, mentioning those particularly adjacent to Nova-Scotia. What the result of this conference was I never could particularly learn. The Indians have since said they utterly refused, notwithstanding it was very certain they received ammunition, provision, and clothing; and it was obvious to every person who saw them after, was well satisfied with the business they had transacted. This conference occasioned great alarms through the country; that is, those who were well-wishers to America. Reports were daily propagated to amuse the inhabitants, that the Indians were to be embodied in the spring, and distributed through the Province to keep in awe the disaffected.

The inhabitants in general being well-affected to the cause of America, occasioned the powers of Government to exert their authority in curbing (as they said) the progress of rebellion, passed several severe acts against American principles. The House of Assembly being so modeled they could get no help or redress from them.

The County of Cumberland and the settlement of Cobequide, perceiving the intention of Government, and being for some time considering how to join with the Continent, began to consult for immediate safety. Cumberland in particular seemed most assiduous, determined if there were any way practicable, to throw off the grievous yoke of Britain, which had so galled them since their first settlement, and form under the banner of America. These proceedings procured them most inveterate enemies. Messengers were despatched incog. among them, (the Indians,) to urge them to come and destroy us; and, indeed, some of them seemed very well pleased with the scheme During this, the hurry of business was such, and my indisposition, being lately recovered from the small-pox, I could not myself get among the Indians, I sent some French to hear what they intended doing. I had the happiness of receiving such satisfactory answers that I had no reason to expect any difficulty would happen from thence at the present, intending early in the spring to pay them a visit. But in the month of March we were again alarmed, that there had been a general meeting of all the tribes from Bay of Cheleur to Cape Sable, for what end we could not learn. Soon after I heard that some were coming to Cumberland, authorized by the whole, in order to do something. This prevented my intended journey. Soon after the arrival of the British troops at Fort Cumberland advice came to me that a number of Indians had been at the garrison, had a conference with Colonel Goreham, and were returned loaded with provisions, clothing, and ammunition. I immediately proceeded with all expedition to Bay Verte, where I only found one of the chiefs, just setting off. I had a great deal of conversation with him, but could not understand what his business was with Goreham. He was very precise in his behaviour sometimes, and cross, which did not a little surprise me, from the intimacy which always subsisted between us. These movements created great fear among the country people, so much so that despondency seemed to take the place with some.

In June three chiefs came to my house one morning, who acquainted me they had come to converse on the state of affairs, and consult what method was best to take, presenting me at the same time a letter from General Washington. They further said that Goreham had invited them to come and see him, which they intended doing, asking my advice how they should behave when at the garrison; and finding by their conversation, their well wish to America, and their determination to go in, I advised them to go at once, so that I might have an opportunity at their returning to hear what had passed. I took from them General Washington's letter, to keep till they came back. They also delivered me a letter from one Carte, at Merimicke, to Colonel Goreham, which I opened, and mentioning to them of Mr. Washington's letter, and something of their situation, they snatched it out of my hand and burnt it. They refused drinking any thing till their return from the garrison.

In the evening they returned very sober, told me that Goreham had asked them several questions about the state of Canada—if they did not think the Rebels of America were bad men? whether they would not take up arms to oppose them? He told them they should have every thing they wanted, such as good clothing, provisions, money, and ammunition, and desired them to consider of the affair among themselves; but if they would not take up arms in favour of the King, he expected they would not take up arms against him. Goreham dismissed them after giving ammunition and provision.

Next morning we conversed pretty largely on matters; they said General Washington's letter had given universal satisfaction. They adored him as a saint, for the reason that though he was harassed with war himself, still he tells us (says they) "to be at peace, and if we want help he will grant it and defend us. That for this their incessant prayers were for his success." They further told me that they had turned out one of their chiefs because he spoke disrespectfully of General Washington. They expected a truck-house would soon be erected on their shore, and that they had sent John Baptist and Mantua to answer the letter, and tell their good wishes towards their brothers the Boston men. But (say they) "we do not comprehend what all this quarreling is about. How comes it that Old England and New should quarrel and come to blows? The father and son to fight is terrible. Old France and Canada did not do so; we cannot think of fighting ourselves until we know who is right and who is wrong." In answer, I told them that I intended to have gone among them to have a conference respecting these matters; but on hearing of their coming I postponed it, and that I was now ready to instruct them in any thing I knew; and, in a brief manner, acquainted them with the nature of the dispute; which apparently gave them much satisfaction. They said it was very well, but I must go and explain it to the whole, who would assemble for that purpose any where I pleased to meet them. I told them I had wrote to New-England a state of the Province; had particularly mentioned their situation, and that when an answer came, I should attend at Coquen, twenty-five leagues from Bay Varte, but would be glad they would send word when ready themselves, intending at that time to persuade them to a treaty, take up the French Commissioners, and procure them others from the States.

Soon after the courier, which I sent to Machias, returned; instead of receiving any satisfactory answer, as I was in daily expectation of, they told that the man who had been entrusted with the packet to the General Court of the

We take the liberty to request your Excellency will assure our most gracious Sovereign, that we will, to the utmost of our power, on every occasion, with our lives and fortunes, protect, maintain, and support his Royal person, his family, and Government.

Permit us also to add our gratulations on your safe return to this city, where we truly wish you may enjoy, without interruption, those endearing and domestick blessings of which you have been so long deprived, by the duties inseparably annexed to your publick character.

[To this Address, which was signed by those, and those only, who assisted in the defence of the garrison last winter, his Excellency returned the following Answer:]

Gentlemen: I return you thanks for this dutiful and affectionate Address. You may assure yourselves it will not be less agreeable to me to represent, than it must be grateful to our Sovereign to know, the loyalty and firm attachment of subjects whose actions have so well evinced the sincerity of their professions.

I have no doubt that you will on every occasion exert the same ardour and spirit in the cause of the King and Government, as was so manifest in the trial to which you were so lately put.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO JOHN LANGDON.

Newport, November 21st, 1776.

Sir: I wrote you a letter some time ago, acquainting you that it appeared to a Court-Martial that Captain Bowden, of the brig Royal Exchange, had some hand in forwarding a mutiny on board, and for you to stop his adventure until that matter was cleared up. Since the Captain has been here, and declares his innocence, and I wrote to him by Captain Whipple, that whatever he gave him an order to receive should be satisfactory to me; but on seeing Captain Whipple and the officers belonging to the fleet, they do not seem satisfied with giving him money: however, should think it but humanity for you to supply him with three or four hundred dollars, to enable him to subsist while here, and it will be agreeable to me; and I do not think the Congress or the people of the Navy will take it amiss. I am now almost ready, and expect to sail in a few days; in the mean time, I am, with great respect, sir, your humble servant,

Soon after the courier, which I sent to Machias, returned; instead of receiving any satisfactory answer, as I was in daily expectation of, they told that the man who had been entrusted with the packet to the General Court of the Massachusetts State, was landed from a man-of-war at St. John's, was thrown overboard, by which I was not only frustrated in my plan for reducing the Province, but at a loss what to say to the Indians, and perform my promise to them. We were also during this period attacked on every side by various false reports, to excite the inhabitants to keep peaceable, or to fright them to compliances with the mandates of Government. A scene of trouble and confusion seemed impending over the country. The few straggling Indians who appeared in the settlements gave great attention, and it appeared obvious their minds were too fluctuating to put any real dependence on their fidelity.

I found my situation too precarious to continue in the country, and rather detrimental to the peace of the community, as several express orders had come to apprehend me, and by the advice of my friends determined to take shelter in these new States.

I was very anxious to have a conference with the Indians before I left the country, but found it very difficult, as the different roads and avenues were guarded to the place I promised to meet the Indians; nor was I certain of meeting them, and how they stood affected at the time. I waited some time longer, when two Indians arrived for me. I immediately took some Frenchmen who were pilots, through the woods, and set off the next day for Coquen, distance by land about twenty leagues. I was somewhat detained in my journey by a tree falling in the night, when one of my Frenchmen received such a wound I imagine is since dead. It took him four days to get to inhabitants. Before my arrival at Coquen, I met some young Indians, who were coming to meet me. They informed that John Baptist and Matua had returned, and had a great packet with them, but that it much displeased the chiefs, and asked me if I was not come to request them to take up the hatchet; I answered no; which seemed to please them much. This somewhat surprised me. I waived saying any thing more to them.

On my arrival I was received very kindly by the different Indians, but perceived gloomy countenances. After telling them some news which they seemed anxious to know, I desired to meet next day, at ten o'clock. The Frenchmen where I lodged understood the language well; acquainted me that John Baptist and Matua had been to New-England, and had entered into a treaty; that it very much displeased the chiefs, even so much that Baptist and Mantua, from fear, (as he supposed,) told them that they were imposed on, and had signed things that were not read to them, and that he understood from their different conversations, they were determined not to agree to the treaty.

They all assembled the day after, twenty-one in number; and asked them if there were any more of the chiefs expected. They answered that they appeared there in behalf of the whole Mickmac tribe, at the desire and by the authority of the absent chiefs, as well as in behalf of their own particular tribes. I then addressed them, that agreeable to promise made Joseph Sapscruort, I had come to have a conference, not with any authority from the United States, but as a member of the same community with themselves, to determine upon something for our safety and welfare, and that I expected soon to be on the continent, where I intended making known their situation. They were very glad (they answered) that I appeared as one of themselves, and would be glad to know of things, but that they were very angry and uneasy about some proceedings of John Baptist and Mantua. I told them we would not enter upon that till we had discussed some other affairs about the dispute with America and Britain. They desired me to proceed. I accordingly gave a short historical account of matters from the beginning of the settlement of America, the reasons of the first emigrants leaving Europe, the different charters of the Colonies, the unjust demand of Britain, and breach of faith, the usurped authority claimed by Britain, the different steps taken by the Americans for redress, and finally the design of establishing civil and religious liberty, their power and strength. They listened with the greatest attention, and at the end of every sentence gave their assent.

As I presume it may appear more intelligible to your Honours, I shall write it down, as the conversation happened, by way of dialogue.

An. You have now heard the nature and rise of the dispute: do you think Great Britain had a right to treat America in such a manner?

In. If it is as you set forth, No.

An. Do you justify the Americans in their opposition?

In. Yes.

An. Then what objections have you against the treaty signed by some of your own tribe; why would you not join with them in defence of that liberty wherein you are concerned yourself?

In. Because we never authorized those persons to do such a thing. Some of it we cannot perform. Our situation is such that it must be of fatal consequences to families should it (even if we were willing) be known; and these men say they were imposed on, and we are determined to return it.

An. I cannot allow that your men were imposed on, for I know the gentlemen who made the treaty were different kind of persons. I desire that John Baptist and Matua may be examined before me.

Jno. Baptist. I don't believe they intended to impose upon us, but as I was the only interpreter, I believe we did not understand one another.

An. You hear this; and I expect that reports of being imposed on, be not propagated. What do you intend to do with the treaty?

In. We intend to carry it to Fort Cumberland or Halifax, and show it, and let them know we intend to send it back, for fear they will send their big vessels in our rivers and prevent us from fowling and fishing.

An. This will be very wrong. You may affront a power that is far superiour—the New-England men. If you are determined to send it back, I will take it, and deliver it to the governours of the Massachusetts.

In. This we would be very glad of.

An. Since this is your determination concerning the treaty, I would ask some questions.

In. Very well.

An. Would you be willing, if in your power, without distressing your families, to help your brothers the New-England men?

In. We are afraid to tell you what we would do in that case. We receive our present support from Old England. We want not to molest any, but to keep in friendship with all.

An. Would you screen any person who should flee for safety among you who might be drove form their dwellings by the Britons?

In. We would not hurt them.

An. Do you incline to help Briton against our countrymen the Americans?

In. No.

An. Would you rather traffick with the United States than Britain?

In. Yes, very much; but we have been greatly imposed on by the traders and fishermen from New-England.

An. Would you incline to assist the other inhabitants if they join with the United States?

In. When we see a sufficient power in this country we will tell you what we will do. We know nothing certain about things. We know we must submit to the strongest power. They then presented General Washington's letter, saying "There is what we will stand to. George Washington wrote that we might continue in peace if we pleased, for which he must be a good man. We will pray for him; and if our messengers had acted as they ought, and what we had instructed them with, we should now have been happy, and not have given any suspicion to our brethren in New-England."

An. Would you have all these matters made known to the governours of the Massachusetts State?

In. Yes, certainly.

Matua. I think there should be a copy of this conference, that we might show it to the Englishmen, that they may be convinced we don't want to quarrel.

Ins. Very good.

An. I think Matua has a great deal of impudence to make such a proposal. After putting us into such confusion, I cannot be of your opinion, nor think it expedient such a thing should be done. I told you before that I came not with authority from the States, but only as one of yourselves, and that what we talked upon there should be kept secret. And I promise you that I will communicate sufficient to prevent any hurt coming on you by the Englishmen for any thing done here; and I expect from you that you will not give them any encouragement by having a correspondence with them, but keep them at a distance.

In. We understand all this, and think it very good. We will take your advice, and trust you will do what you can to help us, and not have us destroyed by the Old Englishmen nor be thought enemies by the New-Englandmen.

An. I think you do right to be at peace in your situation, and am sure your brothers the New-Englandmen want you should. Their young men acted foolishly, but forgive them. Be quiet and easy; you will by and by see what great things God will do for you and us. Have you any thing more to say?

In. Yes, we would be glad you would write a letter to the governours of New-England, which we will sign.

An. Please choose some person among you to dictate.

Joseph Sapscruort was chosen. He dictated what is wrote in their letter, as exact as the style of their language would any way admit.

An. Have you any thing more to mention?

They recapitulated over the contents of the letter again, with this addition: "You may tell them that we will send two chiefs in the spring. Are obliged to our brothers for their good offers, particularly the truck-house at Machias; but tell them it is no service to us, even should we have things for nothing, the distance is so great. We give our love to all our brothers in New-England, and particular to our good friend and brother George Washington. We wish you a good voyage, and that God will take care of you and bring you back safe."

I distributed among them about twenty weight of tobacco, being all I could bring. After smoking a pipe together, they very affectionately took leave of me, and departed for their different settlements the same evening.

From this conversation your Honours might reasonably suppose the Indians were very sincere; but from their different manœuvres and behaviour, which I have seen by many, I have the greatest reason to suspect their fidelity. They think among themselves it is a great qualification to use deception in these affairs, and are led thereby to practise dissimulation, and use every art to gain their ends. Where they perceive an opportunity to get something, they will exert every faculty to obtain it, although they are endued with some good properties and capable of improvement. The French and English, and I am sorry to say the latter in particular, have greatly inculcated (within my remembrance) every vice and immorality, and impaired any virtue they were possessed of. The great respect shown them from time to time from different sides, emulates a spirit of ambition. They think that they are of so much importance that many events depends upon them. I doubt not but your Honours are well acquainted with the nature of Indians in general, but the Mickmacs of Nova-Scotia are somewhat different from most others. Their living altogether on the sea-coast, and that being of considerable extent, mostly settled by English, the Indians are generally actuated according to the importance of the person or influence any one has who lives amongst them. The greatest number of these persons are zealous Government men, so called in that Province; and, indeed, I know not one in trade but the Frenchmen settled at Coquen, but what are enemies to America. Some of these merchants are men of great property, and supported also in these times by Government, who use every means to gain them over. I have received repeated intelligence of their persuading the Indians to take up arms, propagating every kind of news in favour of Britain and detrimental to America. The Indians, who are credulous to a degree, will listen to every report, and generally believe it, and think every thing true that is told them.

I would take the liberty to inform your Honours that a plan has been formed (though not made publick) to raise a body of light troops from Newfoundland, Cape-Breton, and Nova-Scotia, who, with the Indians they expect to raise in Cheulieur-Bay and confines of Canada, to penetrate in conjunction with others from Canada, by the river St. John's, into the easterly parts of this State, to prevent and stop the lumber trade. The personal knowledge I have of their ways, (though acknowledged by them as a friend,) I think them to be a most dangerous set of neighbours, and liable to do great damage if there is not some step taken with them. They are pernicious either as friends or foes in these times; though not brave, are capable to take advantages and commit the greatest cruelties. There is some few merits esteem, as honest, upright men, but there being no government among them, they are only as ciphers in point of authority. But, notwithstanding all their bad qualities, there is a method to win them. Any one acquainted with their disposition, and having fortitude and perseverance to put up with their foibles, and use such arguments necessary as they think their minds are proper to receive it, showing a good example, any thing in reason may be done with them. These circumstances (should it not be expedient to reduce that Province at present) I would recommend to your Honours, as my humble opinion, that some person acquainted with them as beforementioned should be employed as a superintendent, or some other dignified office, and to keep as constant as possible among them, acquainting them from time to time with the different news, and how things passes; by this, their different movements may be known; to have a truck-house erected in the most suitable place that he thinks for the benefit of the States and agreeable to the Indians. This would be the means of keeping them quiet or from assisting Great Britain.

I would observe to your Honours that something of trade with the Mickmacs would turn to considerable account, there being great quantities of furs collected there; more particular as the staple commodities might be procured in Nova-Scotia, which consequently would not be so expensive as transporting every thing from the Continent. I would beg liberty further to observe to your Honours, that a plan might be very easily laid to procure from Nova-Scotia great quantities of goods, which, at this time, to the clothing the Army, &c.

Your Honours may by this time think me lengthy, and find fault at my troubling you at this busy time with such a detail of things, and the many repetitions used, but presumed it might appear more clear in forming a judgment of the Indians' instability.

Should it be approved of, or any part of it satisfactory, it would be esteemed a pleasure; if otherwise, your Honours will please indulge me so far as to attribute it to a heart warmly attached to the liberties of America, and ever ambitious when thought to be performing the least atom which might have a tendency of promoting its happiness and prosperity.

I am, with the most profound duty and respect, your Honours' most obedient and devoted humble servant,

JNO. ALLAN.

FRIENDS, BROTHERS, AND COUNTRYMEN: In the spring of the year we received, with joy and gladness, a very kind letter from our friend and brother his Excellency George Washington.

What he said therein gave us great satisfaction, and determined we were to continue in that friendship, with the same faith as he possessed towards us, and to keep the chain bright forever.

A few days ago an alarm was spread among us that another paper was come to require us to take up the hatchet. We met thereupon, and found that some of our young men had been with you in the character of chiefs, and made a treaty to go to war contrary to our desire. And, as we understand from them, was not rightly understood.

Our situation and circumstances being such at present, our natural inclinations being peace, only accustomed to hunt for the subsistence of our families, we could not comply with the terms; our number being not sufficient among other objections. And as it was not done by our authority and consent of the different tribes, we are necessitated to return it.

Still depending upon the promise of our brother Washington, and relying upon the friendship of all our brothers and friends your way, we hope and trust no offence in sending it back, and protesting at the same time that the chain of friendship is still subsisting between us on our side, and that we hope forever. A further account of our situation will in our name be delivered by our brother and countryman, John Allan, Esq., bearer of this. Our love and friendship be with you all.

INDIAN PETITION.

To the honourable Council and House of Representatives of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY:

We, the petitioners, humble showeth, we being inhabitants to the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, and friends to the United States of America, did on the 25th day of October, set out on our hunting business, in order to support ourself and family, on the branches of Union river, where we use to hunt for our support. At our arrival at the branches we found all the hunting grounds taken up by Englishmen from Deer-Island and Bagaduse, which is great disappointment to us; having no other way to support ourself and family, we beg your Honours would take our circumstances into consideration, and do something to prevent the Englishmen from hunting, or we and our family will suffer, as we are afraid to go back in the limits of Canada as we use to do.

Gentlemen, your attentions to the above will oblige your friend and humble servant,

A SHORT STATE OF THE INCONVENIENCES TO WHICH THE TROOPS ON THE EASTERN SHORE OF VIRGINIA ARE PARTICULARLY SUBJECT.

[Read in Congress November 22d, 1776. Referred to Board of War.]

The publick store in Williamsburg has never been sufficiently furnished with goods to supply all the troops. Those on this station have in a great measure been deprived of the benefit of it, as the most necessary are constantly engrossed by the soldiers more immediately on the spot. The establishing a store to supply the troops on this station would certainly be a wise measure, as it would not only be a great relief to the soldiers, but might be attended with considerable profit to the Continent, which at present is enjoyed by petty adventurers, who almost ruin the soldiers by supplying them with worthless articles at most exorbitant price.

Without the advantage of sending the sick to the general hospital, (which is evidently our case,) the provision made for that of a regiment is entirely insufficient, their allowance of medicines being by no means adequate to our necessities, and proper attendance and many essential necessaries being entirely unprovided for.

The regulations of Congress in respect to their officers and soldiers receiving cash instead of their rations is a particular hardship on the troops here. Since they have not, nor can they be, supplied with Continental rations, the articles not being at present to be had, it is but just and reasonable they should receive an equivalent.

The situation of this country makes it absolutely necessary that the troops should occupy eight or nine posts, some of which are between eighty and ninety miles apart, and although the Field Officers of the regiment are under the necessity of frequently visiting these stations they are not allowed so much as forage for their horses.

---

ORDER OF THE COUNCIL OF VIRGINIA.

In Council, Williamsburg, November 22d, 1776.

Colonel Aylett, the Deputy Commissary of the Continental Army, having represented to the Board the impracticability of supplying the troops with such rations as are prescribed by Congress, which besides, if they could be procured, would not be likely to give that satisfaction to the troops here which may be expected from the rations which have been usual, and which it is supposed may be furnished as cheap as the former:

Ordered, That the Governour be requested to write to our Delegates in Congress stating the substance of the above representations, enclosing an account of the rations allowed by this State, and recommending the adoption thereof for the Continental troops serving in this country.

RESOLVES OF THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES OF VIRGINIA TRANSMITTED TO THEIR DELEGATES.

November 20th, 1776.

VIRGINIA Sess.

Resolved, That it be an instruction to our Delegates in Congress that they use their endeavours to oblige all persons who now are, or hereafter may be, entrusted with any sum or sums of money under the appointment of the General Congress, to give sufficient security for the performance of their several trusts and faithfully accounting for the same.

Resolved, That instructions be sent to our Delegates in General Congress to propose to Congress the taking into Continental pay so many of the troops of Horse raised in this Commonwealth as shall consent thereto, and to agree that the expenses already incurred thereby shall be a Continental charge.

Resolved, That instructions be sent to our Delegates in General Congress to propose to Congress the defraying out of the Continental Treasury the expenses of the expedition against the southern Indians—an expedition which it is conceived should be a Continental charge, and to procure necessary supplies of money to be sent hither for that purpose.

Resolved, That instructions be given to our Delegates in General Congress, to propose to Congress that two of the six additional battalions of Infantry lately ordered to be raised in this Commonwealth for the Continental defence, may be stationed on the western frontiers for the defence thereof, and that the said two battalions may be of those consisting of men to be raised in that part of the country.

ADDRESS OF THE OFFICERS OF THE SEVENTH VIRGINIA REGIMENT TO COLONEL WILLIAM CRAWFORD.

We beg leave to take this method of expressing our sense of the warmest attachment to you, and at the same time our sorrow in the loss of a commander who has always been influenced by motives that deservedly gain the unfeigned esteem and respect of all those who have the honour of serving under them. Both officers and soldiers retain the strongest remembrance of the regard and affection you have ever discovered towards them; but as we are well assured that you have the best interest of your country ever in view, we should not regret, however sensibly we may feel the loss of you, that you have chosen another field for the display of your military talents. Permit us, therefore, to express our most cordial wish, that you may ever find a regiment no less attached to you than the Seventh, and that your services may ever be productive of benefit to your country and honour to yourself.

COLONEL CRAWFORD'S ANSWER.

GENTLEMEN: Your very affectionate and polite Address demands my warmest acknowledgments, which I beg leave to return to you in the strongest terms of gratitude and affection. Be assured the officers of the Seventh Regiment will ever share my tender regard; and I have great hopes that they will continue to merit the highest esteem of their insulted and injured country. My kind wishes will ever attend the lowest soldier in the regiment.

My own abilities are small, but I have this serious satisfaction, that they have been, and shall continue to be, exerted to the utmost in defence of American liberty, justice, and the rights of humanity.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most humble servant, W. CRAWFORD.

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 22d, 1776—Friday morning.

GENTLEMEN: I received from Major Gist the enclosed return of the Independent companies and Smallwood's battalion.

I have seen Captain Ramsey, who relates the particulars of the surrender of Fort Washington, in the manner I communicated to you in my letter of yesterday evening. Of the Maryland troops, Colonel Rawlings, Colonel Williams, and about two hundred of that battalion are prisoners. Williams was wounded. With their men they defended a pass against the Hessians for two hours, and killed two hundred of them, and not, as I mentioned, after they landed across Harlem river. Of General Beall's brigade one hundred and sixty are prisoners, and Captain Ling's company, he being sick in the Jerseys. Captain Hardman, of Frederick, and his company, are prisoners. In all the troops raised in our State above four hundred are prisoners.

It is reported General Howe meditates an attack on this city.

I am, gentlemen, with respect and regard, your obedient servant, SAMUEL CHASE.

The honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

ADDRESS OF PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

In Council of Safety, November 22, 1776.

To the Freemen of the City and Liberties of PHILADELPHIA:

FELLOW-CITIZENS: It is our duty to inform you that our enemies are advancing upon us, and that the most vigorous measures alone can save this city from falling into their hands. Consider your situation, and determine what part you will take. There is no time for delay; and by your conduct the Continent will be influenced. We therefore entreat you, by the most sacred of all bonds—the love of virtue, of liberty, and of your country—to forget every distinction, and unite as one man in this time of extreme danger. Let us defend ourselves like men determined to be free.

And we do most earnestly request that you will meet your fellow-citizens at the State-House to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock, there publickly to determine what measures we shall pursue. The bells will be ordered to ring, and the most publick notice possible will be given of this meeting.

By order of Council:

DAVID RITTENHOUSE, Vice President.

LANCASTER (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation, Inspection, and Correspondence, for the County of Lancaster, at the house of Adam Reigart, the 22d November, 1776, present, William Atlee, William Bowsman, Mathias Slough, Edward Shippen, George Moore, Henry DeHuff, Sebastian Graff, Adam Reigart, Andrew Graff, Christopher Crawford, Lodwick Lowman. William Atlee in the chair.

Mr. Lowman mentions that lately in Philadelphia he received from the Committee of Safety sixty bushels of Salt, for the use of this County; that he gave orders there for hogsheads to be purchased for it, and for sending it up, and that a wagon with three hogsheads of it is now arrived, and requesting the price may be fixed, a store provided, and a person appointed to measure it out.

Upon consideration the expenses attending the same are settled as follows, viz:

|---|---|
| Hogsheads, per bushel, - - - - - - - | 0*s.* 6*d.* |
| Carriage at 2*s.* per bushel, - - - - - - | 2 0 |
| Wastage, 1 bushel in 15, per bushel, - - - | 1 0 |
| Storage, measuring, &c., per bushel, - - - | 1 0 |
| | 4 6 |
| To which add the prime cost of the Salt, - | 15 0 |
| | 19 0 |

So that 19 0 is fixed as the price to be paid here for the Salt per bushel, it being supposed the hogshead will sell for as much as will pay their porterage and cooperage; and Mr. Christopher Crawford agrees to provide a store for it, and measure it out, and is to receive for it at the above rate; and when all delivered out, is to settle his accounts with the Committee.

Mr. Crawford is requested to exercise his own judgment in the delivering it out, having respect to the families of those who apply, but is not to deliver to any one housekeeper above half a bushel, and is to keep an alphabetical list of those who receive Salt from him, as more is expected, and the same person should not receive twice.

Ordered, That Mr. Atlee, out of the publick Continental Moneys in his hands, pay to Mr. Lowman £4 7*s.*, for his expenses in his journey to Philadelphia, at the request of the Committee in August last, to negotiate business with the Congress, &c.

Ordered, That Mr. Atlee pay Lewis Peter and George Lindeberger, for one hundred and thirty one thousand one hundred bricks furnished by them for the barracks and works carrying on there, out of the Continental moneys in his hands.

In Committee, Lancaster, the 22d November, 1776.

The honourable the Council of Safety of this State having, agreeable to the request of the Board of War, directed that the prisoners of war should be collected and forwarded under proper escorts to a place appointed by his Excellency General Washington for their reception, to be exchanged, and the Committee of this County being desirous to carry the said order, so far as respects the prisoners in their charge, into execution as expeditiously as possible: Therefore all prisoners of war who have left and are absent from the barracks in Lancaster are required immediately to repair there; and all members of Committee in the County, officers of the Militia, and others who are desirous to release their distressed fellow-citizens from bondage, and restore them to their country and friends, are desired to be active in forwarding in the prisoners of war who may be in their districts, townships, and neighbourhoods, immediately to Lancaster, that they may be conducted to their place of destination for exchange without delay; and all such as shall venture to harbour or conceal any of the prisoners of war after this notice and request, will be marched with them to Head-Quarters, to be disposed of as the General shall direct.

COMMITTEE OF READING (PENN.) TO LANCASTER COMMITTEE.

Reading, November 22, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: The Committee here desire that when you send the prisoners of war from Lancaster to Fort Lee, you would not send them through this town, or (if you must send them this way) that you send them in parties or companies not exceeding one hundred at a time. We also desire you would provide wagons and other things necessary for the conveying the prisoners now with you all the way to Fort Lee, as we cannot take upon us to do any thing but for those who are now in this town.

It being ordered that officers and privates go separately, it is apprehended that if prisoners with you come this way this order cannot be strictly executed.

By order of Committee.

I am, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

JAMES READ, Chairman.

Committee Lancaster.

P. S. We wish you would forward the substance of this letter to York and Carlisle, that we may have nothing to provide here but for the prisoners we send off, for we will not provide for more.

ALLEN McDONALD (PRISONER) TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Reading, November 22d, 1776.

HONOURABLE SIR: By the order to Mr. Read, Chairman of the Committee here, about the exchange of prisoners, it seems the gentlemen from North-Carolina are excepted. I and my son are the only prisoners here from that quarter, and are both in the regular service, the one a Captain, and the other a Lieutenant, in the Emigrants. I entered the King's service in the year 1745, as my commission will attest, and have been in the service of my King and country in different capacity since, so that I look on myself and son in a different light from the North-Carolina militia. Therefore believe we are entitled to be arranged in the class of regular officers. This I submit to your better judgment, and beg you will forgive this freedom and trouble from, honourable sir, your very humble servant,

ALLEN McDONALD.

P. S. The allowance of five dollars per week to me, my son, and servant, would be serviceable in clearing off our small debts here, as we cannot do so without receiving it, being ten weeks Monday next, being paid to the 17th September.

ALLEN McDONALD.

---

JOHN GIBSON TO THE COUNCIL OF DELAWARE.

Treasury Office, Philadelphia, November 21, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: The Commissioners for adjusting the accounts of the Army at New-York and the Jerseys, under the command of General Washington, are now engaged in executing that business, and are in immediate want of all the accounts of advances made by the several States for paying or subsisting said Army.

I am therefore to request you to order an account of such advances by your State to be forthwith transmitted to the Commissioners, that the proper stoppages may be made, and the State reimbursed accordingly.

When the accounts are prepared you will please to order them to William Denning, Thomas Smith, and James Stephenson, Esqs., or either of them, at Head-Quarters at New-York or the Jerseys.

I have the honour to be, in the name of the Superintendents of the Treasury, honourable gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JOHN GIBSON, Auditor-General.

To the Hon. George Read, Esq., New-Castle.

GENERAL LEE TO THE PRESIDENT OF MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL.

Camp near Phillipsbourg, 22d November, 1776.

SIR: Indecision bids fair for tumbling down the goodly fabrick of American freedom, and, with it, the rights of mankind. 'Twas indecision of Congress prevented our having a noble army, and on an excellent footing. 'Twas indecision in our military councils which cost us the garrison of Fort Washington, the consequence of which must be fatal, unless remedied in time by a contrary spirit. Enclosed I send you an extract of a letter from the General, on which you will make your comments; and I have no doubt but that you will concur with me in the necessity of raising immediately an army to save us from perdition. Affairs appear in so important a crisis, that I think even the resolves of the Congress must no longer too nicely weigh with us. We must save the community in spite of the ordinances of the Legislature. There are times when we must commit treason against the laws of the State for the salvation of the State. The present crisis demands this brave, virtuous kind of treason. For my own part, (and I flatter myself that my way of thinking is congenial with that of Mr. Boidoin's,) I will stake my head and reputation on the propriety of the measure. To come to the point: I request and conjure you, therefore, to waive all formalities, and devise some means of completing not only your regiments prescribed to the Province, but add, if possible, four companies to each regiment. We must not only have a force sufficient to cover your Province and these fertile districts from the insults and irruptions of the tyrant's troops, but sufficient to drive 'em out of all their quarters in the Jerseys, or all is lost. Disaffection is daily increasing in Pennsylvania, which must be checked by a tremendous superiority. In the mean time send up a formidable body of Militia to supply the place of the Continental troops, which I am ordered to convey over the river. Let your people be well supplied with blankets and warm clothes, as I am determined by the help of God to unnest 'em even in the dead of winter. Let me hear from you soon.

Yours most affectionately and respectfully,

CHARLES LEE.

For Heaven's sake lose no time in sending up the Militia, and a number of shoes, stockings, and blankets, for the Army. If Massachusetts and Connecticut do not now exert themselves, they must, and indeed ought to be, enslaved; but if they act with the necessary vigour and virtue, I will answer for their success.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR-GENERAL LEE, DATED HACKENSACK, NOVEMBER 21, 1776.

It must be painful to you as well as to us, to have no news to send you but of a melancholy nature. Yesterday morning the enemy landed a large body of troops below Dobbs's Ferry, and advanced very rapidly to the fort called by your name. I immediately went over, and as the fort was not tenable on this side, and we in a narrow neck of land, the passes out of which the enemy were attempting to seize, I directed the troops, consisting of Beall's, Heard's, the remainder of Ewing's brigade, and some other parts of broken regiments, to move over to the west side of Hackensack river. A considerable quantity of stores, and some artillery, have fallen into their hands. We have no accounts of their movements this morning. As this country is almost a dead flat, and we have not an intrenching tool, and not above three thousand men, and they much broken and dispirited, not only with our ill success, but the loss of their tents and baggage, I have resolved to avoid any attack, though by so doing I must leave a very fine country open to their ravages, or a plentiful storehouse from which they will draw voluntary supplies.

SOUNDINGS OF HUDSON RIVER, IN THE HIGHLANDS.

In consequence of a letter received by us, the subscribers, members of the Secret Committee, from the Committee of Safety, dated the day of November instant, when we were at Fort Montgomery fixing the chain across the river, enclosing an extract from a letter of General Schuyler's, requesting the Convention to have the river sounded in different places in the Highlands, we have sounded the river, beginning between Verplank and Stoney-Point, thence northward through the Highland to Pollapel's Island, and find no part of the river in that distance less than eighty feet deep in the main channel, till within a short distance of the Island. From the Island to the western shore, found by measurement the distance to be fifty-three chains. The channel near the middle of the river at that place is about eight chains broad and fifty feet deep; from the channel the water shoals gradually on both sides to the flats, which are about eight or ten chains broad, reckoning both sides. This above-described place is the only one, in our opinion, that it is possible for an obstruction to be made by docking, effectually to impede the navigation of Hudson's river, at any place above the south part of the Highlands.

GILBERT LIVINGSTON.

AUGUSTUS LAWRENCE AND SAMUEL TUDOR TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Poughkeepsie, 22d November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed we send you an order to us from the Marine Committee of Philadelphia, which order we conceive to be of the utmost importance; and as they have heretofore directed us to advise with your honourable House in matters of consequence, request your advice in the premises. Beg you would return the order, as we have not had time to take a copy.

We are, gentlemen, with great respect, your most obedient, humble servants,

AUGUSTUS LAWRENCE,
SAMUEL TUDOR.

The honourable the Convention of the State of New-York.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE OFFICERS APPOINTED TO RECRUIT IN NEW-YORK FOR THE SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

The honourable Continental Congress having reconsidered the resolution of the 16th September last, for raising eighty-eight battalions to serve during the present war with Great Britain, and being of opinion that the readiness of the inhabitants of the States to enter into the service for limited times, in defence of their invaluable privileges on all former occasions, gives good ground to hope that the same zeal for the publick good will appear in future, when necessity calls for their assistance, and the uncertain length of time which forces raised during the continuance of the war may be compelled to serve, may prevent many from inlisting who would otherwise readily manifest their attachment to the common cause by engaging for a limited time, have therefore, on the 7th instant, resolved to admit into their service non-commissioned officers and soldiers for the space of three years. The encouragement you are to offer is so great as will, it is hoped, give you a choice of men and insure you success, to wit: A bounty of ten dollars in money to every non-commissioned officer and soldier already inlisted for three years, and who has received the Continental bounty of ten dollars, and to every other recruit a bounty of twenty dollars; and also, to each a suit of clothes yearly, to consist for the present year of two linen hunting-shirts, two pair of hose, two pair of overalls, a leathern or woolen waistcoat with sleeves, one pair of breeches, one hat or leathern cap, two pair of shoes, amounting in the whole to the value of twenty dollars more. But each non-commissioned officer or soldier who shall procure those articles for himself, and produce to the Paymaster of the regiment a certificate thereof from the Captain of the company to which he shall belong, shall be entitled to receive the twenty dollars in money; besides which, every non-commissioned officer and soldier who shall inlist during the war is to receive at the end of the war one hundred acres of land as a further encouragement.

2dly. You are to be careful to inlist none but healthy, able-bodied men, who shall engage to serve in the Army of the United States of America during the present war, or for the term of three years, unless sooner discharged by Congress.

3dly. You are required to provide two distinct inlisting rolls, one to be subscribed by such who shall inlist during the continuance of the war, and the other by such as shall inlist for three years if their services shall so long be required.

4thly. You shall take the age, size, complexion, colour of hair and eyes, and natural or accidental mark of every recruit, with an account of the place of his birth and occupation.

5thly. You shall embrace all opportunities to have the recruits drilled and disciplined, and for that purpose you shall despatch them without delay to such station or place of rendezvous as shall be appointed for that purpose.

6thly. To every recruit at the time of inlistment you shall administer the oath prescribed by the articles of war published by the Continental Congress.

7thly. You shall appoint four active and capable recruiting Sergeants to assist you in this service.

8thly. If you shall reinlist for the war or for three years any non-commissioned officer or soldier who is at present in actual service for a shorter time, you are to give in his name and description to the Captain to whose company he shall then belong, who is to take particular charge of him, that he be delivered over to his proper officer at the end of the service for which he may so be preëngaged, or sooner if required.

9thly. You are to have your men mustered by the Commissary of Musters the first opportunity after inlistment, in order that they may receive their full bounty, five dollars of which only you shall pay to each recruit as an encouragement at the time of inlistment.

10thly. For this purpose you shall receive from the Treasury of the State of New-York the necessary sums, of the expenditure of which you shall keep a regular account, and transmit it to the Treasurer at Fishkill.

After the articles of war are read to the non-commissioned officer or soldier inlisted by the inlisting officer or the commanding officer of the troop or company, the following oath (or affirmation, if the recruit is conscientiously scrupulous) shall be administered to him before the next Justice of the Peace or Chief Magistrate of any city or town corporate, not being an officer of the Army, or, where recourse cannot be had to a Magistrate, before the Judge Advocate:

"I swear (or affirm as the case may be) to be true to the United States of America, and to serve them honestly and faithfully against all their enemies or opposers whatsoever; and to observe and obey the orders of the Continental Congress, and the orders of the General and officers set over me by them."

By order of the Committee of Arrangement:

ROBERT HARPER, Chairman p. t.

To Brinton Payne, Esq., Captain.

CAPTAIN COPP TO GILBERT LIVINGSTON.

Johnston-Hall, November 22d, 1776.

SIR: Being informed that the regiment in which I now serve is shortly to be disbanded, and probably I may be out of office unless the interposition of my friends may prevent it, and as I hear there are four regiments to be raised for the State of New-York, in consequence therefore of the good opinion you was pleased to entertain of me while I had the honour of boarding with you at Mr. Scott's, in New-York, and of your willingness to promote my interest, I now take the liberty of requesting the favour of you to use your influence with the Convention in my behalf for an office in one of the above regiments. Of my military character, Colonel Weisenfels, and others with whom I had the honour to serve, can give you a particular account. In other respects I flatter myself I am not altogether unknown to several of the members of the Convention.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

JNO. COPP.

RECOMMENDATION OF CAPTAIN EISENLORD.

Fort Dayton, November 29th, 1776.

I do certify that Captain John Eisenlord, in Colonel Van Dyk's regiment, has behaved himself in his station as a gentleman becoming to his rank, and as a good soldier, very capable for the service, agreeable to his present appointment during my command at the fort above-mentioned.

ROB'T COCHRAN, Major.

MAJOR FONDA TO ROBERT YATES.

Cahnawaga, 22d November, 1776.

I have been considering about persons proper for officers, according to your desire, and am of opinion (without any private view or interest) that Captain McKeen and Ebenezer French, now his Lieutenant, Albert Van Dewark his Second Lieutenant, and Garrit Pottman and Major Robert Cochran, who is an active good soldier—those persons I know are good men and true to the cause, and will make good officers as any that I know of, and if they had warrants would soon be able to raise a quantity of men. Major Cochran would choose to be in the Rangers, as he is well used to that business, and understands the woods as well as any man.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

JELLIS FONDA.

R. Yates, Esq.

NATHANIEL GRISWOLD TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Lyme, November 22d, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: By direction from Governour Trumbull, at the request of the Committee of Inspection for the town of Lyme, in the State of Connecticut, have to acquaint you that about the 1st of October last, five cows with fifteen yearling cattle were, by order of Colonel H. B. Livingston, brought from Shelter-Island to Saybrook, and by order of the Committee of Inspection for that town, carried over the river and landed at Lyme, with direction to be kept there till further orders. Those cattle are said to have belonged to W. Nichols, Esq., of Long-Island. They cannot be kept in the place where they now are during the winter; indeed, it is supposed to keep them longer would be a loss to the owner, or those to whom the avails belong. It is therefore desired you would please without loss of time to give orders relative to the sale and disposal of said cattle, to account for the avails, &c. A line directed to the Committee of Inspection of the town of Lyme, in the State of Connecticut, will undoubtedly answer the purpose. If it were superscribed to my care will faithfully endeavour to see your orders fully executed.

I am, with great esteem, gentlemen, your most obedient, humble servant,

MATTH'W GRISWOLD.

To the gentlemen of the Convention of the State of New-York.

DECLARATION OF MILES DELWOOD.

New-Melford, November 22d, 1776.

The declaration of Miles Delwood, before the Committee of this town: The beginning of my being inimical to my country was when Major Skeens first came to my house, November 5th, 1775, about eight o'clock at evening, in company with one Mark Prindle. I went up stairs with Skeens to light him to bed, when he opened his business to me as follows: He asked me if I was not a mind to save my estate? My answer to him was, By all means, but how shall I do it? Said Skeens then made me take an oath not to inform where he was before he should get out of the country. I swore I would not. Then he told me he was young Major Skeens, and hoped I was friendly to the King, and for my promise in keeping him secure in so critical a moment he would save my estate, for there would be two hundred thousand Regulars here in the spring, and that one half the country was on the King's side, and that he, said Skeens, had connection with one Robberson, over in the Pasture, in the State of New-York. Said Miles saith he has not seen the above Skeens or Prindle since.

March, 1776, one Levi Rich, who belonged on board one of the King's ships, came to said Miles's house, directed to him by the above Skeens. Said Rich told him Major Skeens sent his love to him, and still remembered him. Said Rich told him all loyal subjects to the King would save their estates, and that he had been in all the towns round about and had been an actor in sundry combinations in seeking Tories, and he told him (said Miles) that Fairchild, of Reading, had a Captain's commission, which he got on board one of the King's ships, and that Theophilus Stebbins and Josiah Stebbins, of Buckfield, had been on board said ships sundry times.

November 21st, 1776, in the morning, a man came from Dover, his name not known, to the above Miles, and desired him to take in at a late hour of night twenty men, who were going to the eastward, but said Miles denied him.

GENERAL WARD TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Boston, November 22d, 1776.

SIR: The Continental regiment stationed in New-Hampshire, I have ordered to Ticonderoga, agreeable to General Gates's request, which is contained in the enclosed letter. I should not have ordered that regiment to march without first receiving directions from the Congress, or from General Washington, but from the necessity of the case, which did not appear to admit of delay; and being also informed it would be agreeable to that State.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

P. S. November 23d. This moment I received your favour of the 8th instant, enclosing a resolve of Congress, for which I am to acknowledge my obligation.

---

Ticonderoga, November 9th, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: The Deputies from the State of New-Hampshire have informed me that there is a Continental regiment raised in that State, under the command of Colonel Pierce Long, stationed at Portsmouth. As the regiments from that State, now at this post, have suffered exceedingly by defeat, disease, and fatigue, it would most certainly be for the immediate benefit of the service that Colonel Long's regiment should be ordered to march directly to this place, and the three regiments commanded by Stark, Poor, and Reed, shall, upon their arrival, march to Portsmouth, where they can not only be recruited, but recovered and refreshed, after the almost unspeakable fatigues and distresses they have undergone. I beg you to determine upon this matter without referring it to any one but the General Court of your State, as it would defeat every good intention to delay it longer.

I am, &c., HORATIO GATES.

To Major-General Ward.

---

GENERAL WARD TO MESHECH WEARE.

Head-Quarters, Boston, 22 November, 1776.

SIR: I am favoured with your letter of the 19th November. In consequence of your informations respecting Colonel Long's regiment, together with a request from General Gates, that the regiment might be sent to Ticonderoga, I have ordered Colonel Long to march his regiment to that post with the utmost expedition. He is directed to apply to your State for such assistance as is necessary for his march.

I am, sir, your obedient, humble servant,

ARTEMAS WARD.

Honourable Meshech Weare, Esq.

---

JOHN AVERY TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Council Chamber, Boston, November 22d, 1776.

SIR: I am directed to acquaint the President of the honourable Congress of the sums advanced to the Sieur Gaiault, Chevalier, and Sieur Conleaux, on account of the Congress; which you'll perceive by the enclosed resolves that I have now the honour to transmit to you.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,

JOHN AVERY, Dep. Sec'y.

The Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

---

LORD HOWE TO MR. STEPHENS, SECRETARY TO THE ADMIRALTY.

Eagle, off New-York, November 23, 1776.

SIR: The General thinking fit to move with a large part of the Army to the right of the Rebel forces, who were preparing to establish themselves for the winter on the heights above King's Bridge, as well as on the north part of York-Island, the embarkation of the troops in the flat-boats and small vessels provided, was made from Kep's Bay in the night of the 11th of last month, under the direction of Commodore Hotham, with the Captains of the ships from which the boats were manned, as in the former instances, and the troops were landed in the morning on the peninsula of Frog's Neck, in the Sound, about ten miles eastward from New-York, without opposition.

A thick fog prevailing when the boats entered the dangerous passage through Hell-Gate, every ill consequence was to be apprehended; but it fortunately happened that no other injury was sustained besides the oversetting of an artillery boat, by which accident two field-pieces and three men were lost.

It had been some time before resolved, in order to prevent the enemy from receiving supplies by the North River, to send a detachment of ships above their works at Jeffery's Hook, on York-Island, and the opposite shore of Jersey, between which they had been lately making fresh attempts to block the channel. Captain Parker, in the Phœnix, was again chosen for this service, with the Roebuck and Tartar. The wind did not permit the ships to pass the enemy's works until the 9th. By the accounts I have a few days since received from Captain Parker, I find the ships had suffered much in their masts and rigging; the loss of men, as in the enclosed return, was less considerable. Of four of the enemy's galleys chased from their stations behind the lines of sunken frames and vessels placed to obstruct the passage of the river, two were taken; one mounting a thirty-two-pounder with swivels, the other two nine-pounders and two four-pounders. The two remaining galleys, with some small vessels, being favoured by the tide and weather, escaped the ships in shoal water, where they had sufficient protection from the shore, which was in the enemy's possession.

The General judging it necessary to make a second movement with the troops he conducted further to the eastward of Frog's Neck, the Light-Infantry, Grenadiers, and other corps of the first embarkation, were again taken into the flat-bottomed boats, and landed the 18th on Pell's Neck, separated from Frog's Neck by Hutchinson's River. The rest of the Army, which had only that narrow stream to pass, were conveyed over with the artillery and baggage a few hours after, and the second division of the Hessians, that came under convoy of the Diamond the 19th, were carried up in the flat-boats, and landed the 23d on Myer's Neck, the post of communication with the fleet last established nearer to New-Rochelle. This position of the Army requiring further provision to be made for keeping the intercourse open by water with York-Island, the Rose and Senegal were added to the frigates and small armed vessels before stationed in the Sound for that purpose.

It is incumbent on me to represent to your Lordships on this occasion, and I cannot too pointedly express the unabating perseverance and alacrity with which the several classes of officers and seamen of the ships-of-war and transports have supported a long attendance and unusual degree of fatigue consequent of these different movements of the Army. Captain Phipps, and the detachment of seamen under his command, who were further appointed to assist in the service of the artillery upon an emergency, have acquired much credit by their spirited conduct on that day.

The enemy, retreating on every occasion as the Army advanced, were forced from the White-Plains (where they seemed prepared to make some stand) into the North-Castle district, and have finally retired with the greatest part of their forces behind the Croton River, whereby the communication was open from York-Island with the continent by King's Bridge.

On the 16th instant the General directed an attack to be made on their lines adjacent to Fort Washington, a regular work constructed upon the high grounds above Jeffery's Hook. It was appointed to be carried on from the side of New-York, off King's Bridge, and two separate embarkations from the continent across the East River. Thirty flat-boats were ordered up to King's Bridge by the North River the night of the 14th, under the direction of Captain Wilkinson, (who has distinguished himself very much in the different parts of this and the subsequent operation,) assisted by Captain Molloy. The batteaus, mostly manned from transports, were commanded by Lieutenant Botham, of the Brune, Lieutenant Loggie, of the Mercury, and the Agent, Lieutenant Henry.

The troops embarked in the boats had a considerable fire to sustain from the enemy in their passage across the East River, and at their landing; but having surmounted every obstacle, under the further disadvantage of a very steep ascent, to gain the flank of the enemy's lines, and the other attacks succeeding at the same time, the fort was completely invested in the evening. The Rebels, in number about two thousand seven hundred, were thereupon induced to surrender prisoners of war, and several pieces of cannon, with a considerable proportion of military stores, were taken in the fort and outworks.

Captain Wilkinson's presence being deemed most material with the flat-boats, the Pearl was left under the direction of the First Lieutenant, Scot, to be placed for covering the march of the Hessian troops, and to flank the enemy's lines on the side of the North River, in which service his behaviour was much approved. The same commendation is due to the officers and seamen in the boats; only one of the last was killed, and five wounded, the loss of men at the landing having happened chiefly amongst the troops.

Twenty more flat-boats which were sent up the North River under Captain Phipps, passed the enemy's forts undiscovered in the night of the 18th, and a detachment from the Army, commanded by Lord Cornwallis, being landed on the Jersey shore the 20th, in the morning, above the enemy's redoubts, opposite to Jeffery's Hook, and unperceived by the Rebels for some time, they soon became possessed of the redoubts without loss. Some few of the enemy were killed, and about seventy taken, with many pieces of artillery and a large quantity of ammunition and stores.

The sudden effect of these two unexpected attacks seems to have made great impression upon them.

In my report to their Lordships upon these several transactions, particular notice is due to the ability testified in the direction and conduct of many difficult and very fatiguing services which Captain Fergusone, of the Brune, was charged with preparatory to, and in the progress of, the various movements of the Army, from the time of the first descent on York-Island to this period. Lieutenant Botham of the same ship, and the agents, Lieutenants Knowles and Henry, (the last more especially,) having had a considerable share in the arrangement as well as execution of such services, are likewise entitled to a particular distinction on this occasion; and the unwearied spirit of the seamen, from the transports as well as ships-of-war, in dragging the artillery up the difficult heights for sustaining the Infantry on their landings can never be exceeded.

I have thought it necessary for the speedy conveyance of the General's despatches on the present occasion to appoint the Tamar for that purpose, having had the sloop cleaned and refitted here for her passage to Europe, in the best manner that the materials to be provided in our present circumstances would permit. Captain Mason is directed to the port he can first most conveniently gain in England, and to wait to receive their Lordships' commands for his further proceedings.

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

St. Pierre, November 23d, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We wrote you on the 2d instant, by Captain Conway, who sailed the 4th, with a cargo consisting of muskets, powder, woolens, linens and salt, to the amount of £3.944 19*s.* 10*d.*, this currency, which we hope are all or will be soon safe in store with you. We have received your favour of the 29th ultimo by Captain Patterson, who we have supplied with sundry necessaries for his vessel, amounting to £72 18*s.* 3*d.* per receipt.

We are glad to find you were loading out some vessels for us. Our creditors are growing importunate, and unless paid off soon, will be exceedingly clamorous and troublesome. We can with truth affirm that no men can be more desirous to serve their country than we have been and still are; and we would immediately ship to the amount of the £25,000 in such articles as we could get, was there a possibility of raising money of bills, but there is not the least chance of procuring a penny that way. Every man who has money here knows too well the advantage of sending it home in goods.

This being the case, our sole dependence must be on remittances from you, which we doubt not of your disposition to forward as quickly as possible. So soon as our old scores are rubbed out we can with more confidence and facility dip a little farther for you, though it would be greatly for your advantage to get beforehand.

Linens are in great abundance. Powder we are quite overstocked with, and some small-arms may be bought. But we know of no brass cannon or howitzers, and woolens are yet scarce.

We have just received a parcel of goods from Bordeaux, from Mr. McCreary, among which are some woolens. We would willingly forward them to you by Captain Patterson, but he being lumbered and bound on a cruise, cannot take them. They shall go by the next opportunity that we like.

The Elizabeth, Captain Sangier, got safe into Charlestown, and sold your powder there with the cargo, and has since arrived here with a fine parcel of rice and indigo. It has been determined by the opinion of some merchants, that we should take an interest in the expedition in proportion to the amount of the powder, and we are in hopes of getting fourteen or fifteen hundred pounds for you if a ship arrives that was purchased and loaded with rice in part of the returns. At any rate we expect to save the capital, and you'll please to make a blank charge of it against us until the voyage is settled.

Tobacco is raising fast in St. Eustatia, where several ships are loading with it for Holland, and begins to sell well here. But flour and corn are very low, and will keep down towards the spring. Such a cargo as Captain Conway brought us last, will generally answer best, especially if the quality of the tobacco was to be more large, black, and thin. We hope soon to be advised of the arrival of Martin and Conway; and are, very sincerely, sirs, your very obedient servants,

VAN BIBBER & HARRISON.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of the State of Maryland.

---

ST. PIERRE, MARTINIQUE, November 24th, 1776.—Received of Van Bibber & Harrison seventy two pounds eighteen shillings and three pence, this currency, for the use of the schooner Dolphin, belonging to the State of Maryland. This being one of three receipts for the same.

WILLIAM PATTERSON.

De Baltimore, le 23e 9bre, 1776.

MONSIEUR: J'ai eu l'honneur de vous apprendre par ma précédente l'état de mes affaires, et l'embarras où je me trouve pour avoir des batiments. Etant persuadé, monsieur, que vous m'honorez de votre protection, j'espere que vous m'accorderez la permission d'embarquer vingt-cinq barrils farine, sur le brigantin l'Amitié, Capitaine Martin, com. J'ai eu l'honneur de vous écrire par ma précédente. Soyez persuadé que je vous en serai reconnoissant tante ma vie. En attendant cette faveur, j'ai l'honneur d'être très respectueusement, votre très humble et très obéissant serviteur,

[TRANSLATION.]

Baltimore, 23d November, 1776.

SIR: I have had the honour to inform you in my last, of the state of my business, and of the embarrassment in which I find myself in procuring vessels. Being persuaded, sir, that you honour me with your favour, I hope that you will grant me permission to ship twenty-five barrels of flour on board the brig l'Amitie, [Friendship,] Captain Martin commander. I have had the honour to write you by my preceding [opportunity.] Be assured I shall be grateful to you for it all my life.

In expectation of this favour, I have the honour to be, very respectfully, your very humble and very obedient servant,

AUDIE.

To the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, &c., honourable Council of Safety.

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 23d, 1776—Saturday.

GENTLEMEN: Since I wrote you on yesterday I saw a letter from General Mifflin, from Elizabeth-Town, dated the 21st instant, in which he writes that the enemy crossed the North River, below Dobbs's Ferry, in four hundred boats, and stole a march to Fort Lee, which the garrison evacuated, leaving all their artillery, cannon, stores, provisions, and their baggage.

We have not heard from the Army since the General's letter of the 19th. The alarm of a fleet sailing from New-York with troops is without foundation. About one hundred and fifty transports and store-ships sailed under convoy of Commodore Shuldham, in the Bristol and two frigates, and are supposed to be bound to Ireland for provisions. This information comes from General Howe.

On yesterday I procured a statement of our treasury as a few days ago: Emitted, $20,000,000; expended, $16,817,737;—in treasury, $3,182,263. This is for your private information and not to be made publick.

The Congress have resolved to increase their Navy. Two frigates, of thirty-six guns, are to be built in our State.

Many of the Congress, some true friends, are uneasy at the powers of the Delegates of Maryland. They are apprehensive if made known, they will reach Lord Howe and encourage him; and if the Courts of Europe should see them, it would prevent a foreign alliance. Some reasons are given to counteract this opinion. I do not see why they should not be published in the journal. The powers relate to peace and war, and can be of no service to the publick. I wish you would consider this subject.

In eight days the inlistment of the far greater part of our Army expires. I greatly doubt if we shall be able to prevail upon the troops to enter into the service. I have some hopes of obtaining our wish from Congress. Our commissioners will proceed on to-morrow, I believe; however, whether they do or not is a secret.

I am, gentlemen, with respect and regard, your obedient servant,

SAM'L CHASE.

To the honourable the Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

BOARD OF WAR TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

War Office, Philadelphia, November 23d, 1776.

SIR: I am directed by the Board of War to acquaint your Excellency that, agreeable to your request, directions were given to those who had the charge of prisoners, immediately to march them in companies to Fort Lee. But having received information that that post has been evacuated, they have countermanded the orders, and directed that they be sent to Brunswick, of which I beg leave to advise your Excellency; and have the honour to be your very obedient and most humble servant,

RICHARD PETERS, Sec'y.

His Excellency General Washington, Head-Quarters, New-Jersey.

---

THOMAS WHARTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, 23d November, 1776.

SIR: The uncertain intelligence which we have received respecting the movements of General Howe's Army and the evacuation of Fort Lee, renders it absolutely necessary for us to apply to your Excellency for further and more perfect information concerning these movements; and we earnestly request your Excellency will inform this Board if it is your judgment that he intends for this State; and such other matters relating to this great object as you may think proper to communicate. The vast importance of this inquiry will excuse the trouble we give your Excellency at this critical and interesting moment.

We are, with the utmost respect, your Excellency's most obedient, and very humble servants.

By order of the Council:

THOS. WHARTON, Jun., President.

To his Excellency General Washington.

P. S. The bearer hereof, Mr. John Dunlap, is a citizen of character, and in whom the utmost confidence can be placed; it is on that account that we have applied to this gentleman to undertake this business, as your Excellency may communicate very freely, either by letter or verbally, any information you think may be useful for us to know.

T. W.

WILLIAM GOODRICH TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

State-Prison, 23d November, 1776.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: I now have to inform you that I received a sum of money from Mr. Duffield, who owed me the same upwards of two years ago, which has been taken from me by order of the honourable Council of Safety, who has since said they have nothing to do with the same, which obliges me to trouble your Honours, humbly begging you will order the money to be delivered to me again, as I am in want of it, partly to send to my father and mother, who is in the back country, and I do suppose are in distress for the want of many necessaries that they have not been used to do without; the remainder I wanted to purchase many necessaries that my brother and self is in want of at present, such as winter clothes, as we had nothing but summer clothing with us when taken. The compliance with this request will much oblige, gentlemen, yours, &c.,

WILLIAM GOODRICH.

To the honourable Continental Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA TO HIS FRIEND IN BALTIMORE, DATED NOVEMBER 23, 1776.

A letter from General Mifflin arrived last night by express, which gives us an account that Fort Lee was evacuated by our people and taken possession of by the enemy last Wednesday evening. Our troops brought off all their stores, arms, ammunition, &c. Colonel Cadwalader, in a letter to his father, says that between thirty and forty of our men were killed in the engagement in the lines before Mount Washington. There are two affidavits and letters in town which give an account that the enemy's loss was sixteen hundred killed on the field, and twice that number wounded, many of which mortally; so that Howe, with his Hessians, &c., bought Fort Washington at a dear price.

Yesterday came into port a fine large well-built Guinea ship. Her cargo consists of gold dust, rum, sugar, &c., &c., last from Jamaica, bound to England, taken by the Montgomery privateer, commanded by James Montgomery, Esq., belonging to this State.

Same day arrived five vessels from St. Martin's, loaded with salt, fruit, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read the 25th.]

Newark, November 23d, 1776.

SIR: I have not yet heard that any provision is making to supply the place of the troops composing the Flying-Camp, whose departure is now at hand. The situation of our affairs is truly critical and such as requires uncommon exertions on our part. From the movements of the enemy and the information we have received, they certainly will make a push to possess themselves of this part of Jersey. In order that you may be fully apprised of our weakness and of the necessity there is of our obtaining early succours, I have, by the advice of the General Officers here, directed General Mifflin to wait on you. He is intimately acquainted with our circumstances, and will represent them better than my hurried state will allow. I have wrote to General Lee to come over with the Continental regiments immediately under his command. Those with General Heath I have ordered to secure the passes through the Highlands. I have also wrote to Governour Livingston, requesting of him such aid as may be in his power, and would submit it to the consideration of Congress whether the application should not be made for part of the Pennsylvania Militia to step forth at this pressing time.

Before I conclude, I would mention, if an early and immediate supply of money could be sent to Mr. Dalham, to pay the Flying-Camp troops, it might have a happy effect. They would subsist themselves comfortably on their return, provide many necessaries, of which they are in great want; and moreover, it might be the means of inducing many, after seeing their friends, to engage again.

I expected on coming here to have met with many of the Militia, but find from inquiry that there are not more than from four to five hundred on the different posts.

I have the honour to be, sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR LIVINGSTON.

Head-Quarters, Newark, 23d November, 1776.

SIR: The critical situation of our affairs, and the movements of the enemy, make some further and immediate exertions absolutely necessary. In order that you may have the fullest representation, and form a perfect idea of what is now necessary, I have desired Colonel Reed to wait on you, and must refer you to him for particulars.

I am, with great respect and regard, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Governour Livingston, New-Jersey.

---

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp Ramapaugh, 23d November, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I expect to be here the 1st of January without any men, unless something more is done to encourage the new inlistment. Some would engage now if they could have furloughs. Will it not be best to let some go home now, that they may be returned by the time the others go, for go they will as soon as the term expires?

I shall not be able to do more than complete a musketry line this season; the barracks will take up the rest of the time. Three or four pieces of small artillery may by and by be advantageously planted at this pass.

A considerable number of troops, sick and well, are come up this way from our army below, and are gone to Fishkills. They have no passes. I should think of stopping them if I had covering or provisions for them.

I beg leave to repeat my wishes that some officers and men may go home on furlough immediately.

I am, with esteem and respect, your most obedient,

JED. HUNTINGTON.

Major-General Heath.

---

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp, November 23d, 1776.

SIR: By your mode of reasoning, the General's injunctions are so binding that not a tittle must be broke through for the salvation of the General and the Army. I have ordered Glover's brigade to march up towards the Peekskills to put the passage of the Highlands out of danger; but I intended to take two thousand from your division with me into the Jerseys; so I must desire that you will have that number in readiness by the day after to-morrow, when I shall be with you early in the forenoon; and am, sir, your most obedient servant,

CHARLES LEE.

Major-General Heath.

---

GENERAL HEATH TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, November 23, 1776.

SIR: If you have on the file of the honourable Convention a copy of the encouragement offered by the honourable Continental Congress to such as shall engage to serve in their next Army, I should be much obliged to you for a copy thereof.

I am, sir, with respect and esteem, your most obedient and humble servant,

W. Heath.

Honourable Pierre Van Cortlandt.

EXAMINATION OF SEVERAL PRISONERS.

Peekskill, 23d November, 1776.

John McLeon formerly lived in Harford County, Maryland, a soldier in Captain Peter Codains's company, First Battalion of that State; was taken on Long-Island the day Lord Stirling was defeated, and was put on board one of the enemy's sloops; was compelled to inlist in Colonel Rogers's Rangers, with whom he has been till last Saturday night, when he deserted from them at Williams's tavern, at West-Chester, came to Rye, and was taken up by General Wooster's Militia, without arms, and sent to General Lee, and by him sent forward to Croton, and by General Fellows from thence to this place. Three other persons, who say they were also taken at Long-Island, at the same time, came off with him, having previously agreed to do so the first opportunity. He did not know them before he joined Rogers, though he has reason to believe they were in the American Army and taken at the same time he was. Many others intend deserting.

Michael Quin formerly lived in Pennsylvania, in Cumberland County, a soldier in Captain Miller's company, Colonel Hand's regiment; was taken the same time abovementioned and disposed of in the same manner. Was ill-treated, and inlisted with Captain Williams, in Rogers's Rangers, with intent to desert. That he agreed to desert with the three others who came in with him, and did so at the time and in the manner above-mentioned. Did not know any of his comrades before he met with them in Rogers's Rangers, but believes they were taken the same day he was. Nearly the whole company he belonged to in the Rangers intend deserting as soon as they can. He was confined for buying paper money, as was also his comrades. They purchased fourteen dollars in paper, for one silver dollar.

Luke Kearn formerly lived in Philadelphia, came to see his brother, who was in the York Militia, on Long-Island; joined Captain Craige's company, Colonel Hand's regiment; though not inlisted was taken at the time abovementioned, and in every other part of his account agrees with the other two before examined.

James Brown formerly lived in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, formerly belonged to Colonel Hand's regiment, but the time of his inlistment being expired, inlisted in Captain Lane's company of new levies, on Long-Island; was taken the time above-mentioned. Agrees in his account as to every other particular with the other three persons before examined.

The prisoners appear to be very candid and honest in their account of matters; and it is my opinion they ought to be sent forward towards their respective companies or homes.

Geo. Clinton.

COLONEL HARDENBERGH TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Camp near Peek's Kill, November 23.

Sir: I have some time last summer received a parcel of arms, cartouch-boxes, and belts for the use of my regiment as part of General Scott's brigade, in the service of the United States, belonging to the State of New-York. And as the time of my engagement, agreeable to resolves of your honourable House, is now nearly expired, I would be glad to know in whose hands to deliver said arms, so that I may be released of them. I would beg your Honour to appoint a person near the place to receive it, and let me know by a line, and you will very much oblige yours, &c.,

John Hardenbergh, Colonel.

To the President of the State of New-York.

Providence, November 23, 1776.

Captain John Tillinghast, in the privateer sloop Independence, belonging to this place, has taken and carried into a safe port a ship of three hundred tons, mounting sixteen carriage guns, three and four pounders, eight swivels, and having on board thirty men, among them a Sergeant, Corporal, and eleven private soldiers. She was bound from Cork to the Army at New-York, laden with a valuable cargo of provisions, &c. Captain Tillinghast engaged her about twenty minutes and then boarded her, when the men were soon drove from their quarters, leaving the Captain alone to defend the ship. Captain Tillinghast was shot through the body by a musket-ball, but is recovered. Three of his men were likewise wounded, and two killed. On board the prize the Sergeant and two soldiers were killed, and the Captain and six men wounded. Another ship of fourteen guns, and a brig mounting eight swivels, were in company. Captain Tillinghast exchanged a few broadsides with the former, after securing his prize, when they thought proper to sheer off. The cargo of the prize consists of 11,970 weight of beef, 47,880 weight of pork, 14,625 weight of butter, 48,750 weight of oatmeal, 140,280 weight of flour, 44,800 weight of bread, 1,200 bushels of peas, one ton of powder, a quantity of cannon-ball, six tons of cordage, &c. A large number of provision ships were to leave Cork soon after the above vessels sailed, most of them armed, and to sail ten or twelve in company.

Thursday, Captain Avery, in a schooner, arrived here from Nantz, in France, laden with woolens, &c., on account of the United States. He left Nantz the 11th of October, and informs that the Empress of Russia had agreed to furnish Great Britain with a body of troops to serve against America. And that a great naval armament was preparing at Brest, said to be destined to intercept the Russian fleet in the Baltic.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

State of New-Hampshire, in Committee of Safety, November 23, 1776.

SIR: By two different guards, viz: Captain Fonda and Captain Robinson, from the State of New-York, has been delivered into the care of this Committee about two hundred persons, sent by the Committee appointed for inquiring into and detecting conspiracies against your State; also the votes and resolves of said Committee relative to the confinement and care of said persons.

Pursuant to said resolutions we have ordered sixty-seven of said persons to be confined in several prisons in this State, and the remainder have liberty to provide their own lodgings and support themselves by labour, or otherways, in several towns allotted to them, under cautions and restrictions for their behaviour.

We must acknowledge the civil and polite behaviour of the gentlemen from New-York who had the care of the prisoners, in particular Mr. Benson, in whom appeared the gentleman and generous disinterested supporter of American liberty.

The persons committed to our care, we shall proceed with according to the resolves of your Committee until further information.

---

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, November 24th, 1776.

SIR: You will perceive from the enclosed resolve the steps which Congress have thought proper to take in the present critical state of our affairs.

In order to give you all possible assistance in keeping the Army together at this juncture, the Congress have appointed a Committee to repair to Head-Quarters to coöperate with you in the business. They will set out to-morrow morning; at which time the blank commissions, ordered to be sent by the enclosed resolve, shall be forwarded.

You will please to order from the Northern department such of the troops as were raised in Pennsylvania and New-Jersey, to join the Army immediately under your command. Should there be a necessity for supplying their places, the Eastern States are to be applied to for that purpose.

The Congress being desirous of exchanging Mr. Franklin for General Thompson, you will please to propose the matter to General Howe, agreeably to the enclosed resolve.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

Your favour of the 21st is received and laid before Congress.

The Committee appointed to devise measures for reinforcing you, have taken sundry steps for that end, of which the Committee that sets out to-morrow will inform you, and make you fully acquainted with particulars.

The bearer hereof will proceed immediately to General Schuyler, with despatches, and will convey any commands from you to the Northern department.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

EDWARD RUTLEDGE TO JOHN JAY.

Philadelphia, November 24, 1776.

MY DEAR JAY: I expected long ere this to have been seated quietly at home; but the progress which the enemy had made, and seemed likely to make, into your country induced me to suspend my resolution which I came to several months ago, and assist with the whole of my power (little enough, God knows) a State which appeared to be marked for destruction. The storm, however, has passed away; and though I have reason to dread its bursting upon the heads of my countrymen, I cannot but most sincerely congratulate you upon the event. I wish you may improve the time, and if you can concur with me in sentiment, it will be improved in the following manner. Let Schuyler, whose reputation has been deeply wounded by the malevolence of party spirit, immediately repair to Congress, and after establishing himself in the good opinion of his countrymen, by a fair and open inquiry into his conduct, concert with the House such a plan as he shall think will effectually secure all the upper country against the attacks of the enemy; which plan being agreed to by the House, give him full power to effect it, and send him off with all possible despatch to carry it into execution. Let steps be taken to place real obstructions in the North River, at least in that part of it which can be commanded by Fort Montgomery, and the other fort in the Highlands. If these things be done, and that soon, your country, I think, will be safe, provided you establish a good Government, with a strong Executive. A pure democracy may possibly do, when patriotism is the ruling passion; but when the State abounds with rascals, as is the case with too many at this day, you must suppress a little of that popular spirit. Vest the Executive powers of Government in an individual, that they may have vigour, and let them be as ample as is consistent with the great outlines of freedom. As several of the reasons which operated against you or Livingston's leaving the State are now removed, I think you would be of vast service in Congress. You know that body possesses its share of human weakness; and that it is not impossible for the members of that House to have their attention engrossed by subjects which might as well be postponed for the present, while such as require despatch have been—I had almost said—neglected. This may be the case with the measures which should be taken for the defence of your State. It is therefore your interest and your duty, if you are not prevented by some superiour publick concern, to attend the House, and that soon; you have a right to demand their attention, and I trust they will give you early assistance.

Every intelligence from New-York for the last ten days convincing me that the enemy are preparing to attack the State with a large body of troops, I shall take the wings of the morning and hasten to my native home; where I shall endeavour to render my country more service in the field than I have been able to render her in the cabinet. I have therefore little time to write, and none to lengthen this letter. I could not, however, think of quitting this part of the continent without writing you what appeared to me to be of consequence; especially when I consider that it is probable, at least possible, that this may be the last time I may have it in my power to give you any evidence of my affection. I shall add no more than that you have my best wishes for your happiness, and that if I fall in the defence of my country it will alleviate my misfortune to think that it is in the support of the best of causes, and that I am esteemed by the best of men. God bless you. Adieu, my friend.

Yours sincerely, E. RUTLEDGE.

---

RICHARD HENRY LEE TO SAMUEL PURVIANCE, JR.

Philadelphia, 24th November, 1776.

DEAR SIR: You have imputed to the right cause my not answering your former letter sooner; it was indeed multiplicity of business.

Very long before your recommendation of Mr. Plunket came to hand, a Captain Disney had been appointed Captain of Marines on board the Virginia, upon the recommendation of Mr. Stone. The Congress have determined to build in Maryland two frigates of thirty-six guns each, and I make no doubt but that one at least of these will be built at Baltimore. I suppose when the committee meets on Tuesday next, that directions concerning the building the new ships will issue to the respective States. Not a word has been yet said in Congress touching a quarrel with Portugal, nor will any such thing happen, I imagine, unless they should confiscate any of our vessels.

It will give us much pleasure to learn that Captain Nicholson is ready for sea, and I think we can furnish him from hence with one such anchor as you mention. Captain

Biddle's frigate, Randolph, of thirty-two guns, is now completely ready, except that she wants men, which we hope hope to remedy when the vessels daily expected arrive. The Virginia and the Randolph cruising together might bring us in some of the enemy's scattering frigates that now go about very badly manned, in juring our trade extremely. I wish, therefore, that every effort were strained to get the Virginia ready. Our enemy's Army has been pretty busy since they retreated from the White-Plains. Already they have got possession both of Mount Washington and Fort Lee, and they talk, or the Tories talk for them, strongly of their aiming at this city. I fancy they will find some difficulty and not a little danger in the accomplishment of this part of their plan.

My compliments, if you please, to the Rev. Mr. Allison and my other friends in Baltimore.

If the Tories do not mend their manners, be more modest, and less noisy, they will shortly be hauled over the coals in such a manner as will make the country too hot to hold them.

I am, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

RICHARD HENRY LEE.

List of new ships to be immediately undertaken: New-Hampshire, one ship of seventy-four guns; Massachusetts, one ship of seventy-four guns and one of thirty-six guns; Pennsylvania, one ship of seventy-four guns and one of eighteen guns; Maryland, two ships of thirty-six guns; Virginia, two ships of thirty-six guns.

To Samuel Purviance, Jr., Esq., Baltimore.

P. S. November 25, 1776.—I thank you for your favour of the 22d, with its enclosures, and will answer your letter by next post, not being able now to do it with proper effect. I know we want vessels, both on charter and to purchase, in Virginia and Maryland. But more of this hereafter. General Howe seems intent on this city. R. H. LEE.

BENJAMIN RUMSEY TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 24th, 1776.
(Wrote in the midst of company.)

SIR: We have continued in this place until this day, in which we shall set off for the camp, not being able to proceed before, neither under the letter nor spirit of our commission.

Our Convention had certainly two capital objects in view: that as the Congress had engaged the faith of the United States to furnish the soldiery with the bounty of lands, which they were to purchase, it followed by implication that the United States had none belonging to them in common, but must purchase of particular States, who claimed a monopoly in them, and of course might ruin those States who had none. Her view then was to have those lands declared a common stock, as being purchased (if ever purchased) by the joint blood and treasure of the Confederacy, or find no land, to her ruin. The first satisfaction she received on this head was that she might inlist for three years, and give the twenty dollars bounty, but must give the soldiers the alternative to inlist during the war on the first conditions—opening two rolls for the purpose. This not pleasing, they resolved again that the Commissioners may proceed to inlist for three years upon one roll alone, keeping it always in view that it was better to inlist during the war, if it did not retard the service.

This resolution keeping up the first bone of contention, the land, and by implication that the States had none still not answering expectation, the Congress further resolved that any resolutions that had passed should neither operate to weaken or strengthen the claim of the United States, or any of them, to any back land, by which this point, that has given such uneasiness in our Province, will be saved, and be discussed hereafter in our future Confederacy.

The second point they had in view was the point of taxation, which they thought unequal, being rated on slaves as well as whites.

This has been expressly named as the mode as to six millions of dollars. As to fourteen more, the same declaration is made as in the article of land, that the proportion of sinking it shall be adjusted hereafter on each State, and that nothing heretofore done shall strengthen or weaken such inquiry or question.

Our Province having in some measure obtained a satisfaction on these two heads, nothing now remains to consider whether, the Convention having empowered us to proceed and inlist for and during the war on the twenty dollars, we can go on the terms of three years, and the same bounty being for a less term; and in this point we are pretty generally agreed to depart from the letter to preserve the spirit.

Fort Lee has followed the same fate as Fort Washington, except that our powder and men, with two twelve-pounders, escaped. We lost one thousand barrels of flour and three hundred tents. Better than four hundred of the Maryland troops were taken in and about Fort Washington, where Major Price, writes our brethren Commissioners, fell as well as Colonel Williams of the Rifle battalion, bravely fighting in his country's cause.

I am greatly surprised that these Britons are so bent on surprising, and that we should be so often so surprised on Long-Island, York-Island, White-Plains, Fort Washington, and now Fort Lee. Though the enemy crossed at Dobbs's Ferry they became not visible till within sight of the fort; in short, there are so many of them that I shall be all wonder and surprise, or learn, in the poet's phrase, nil admirari. I am afraid you have not sent commissions enough.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

BENJAMIN RUMSEY.

The Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esquire, at Annapolis.

RESOLUTIONS OF COMMITTEE FOR REINFORCING GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Congress, November 23, 1776.

Resolved, That a Committee of five be appointed, with full powers to devise and execute measures for effectually reinforcing General Washington, and obstructing the progress of General Howe's Army; and that they proceed immediately on this business.

The Members chosen: Mr. Wilson, Mr. Smith, Mr. Chase, Mr. Clymer, and Mr. Stockton.

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

---

The Committee before-mentioned have come to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Commanding Officers of the several Battalions of Associators in Pennsylvania immediately to call together the Battalions respectively under their command, and to select out of each Battalion one Company, or, if possible, two Companies of Volunteers.

That each Company consist of seventy-six Privates, one Drummer, one Fifer, four Corporals, and four Sergeants, under the command of a Captain, two Lieutenants, and one Ensign.

That the Field Officer of each Battalion, or such of them as shall be present, with the approbation and concurrence of the Volunteers appoint the Commissioned and Non-Commissioned Officers of each Company.

That the Companies be engaged in the service of the United States till the tenth day of March next, unless sooner discharged by Congress, and be entitled to a pair of shoes and stockings, and to the same rations and the same monthly pay with the other Troops on the Continental establishment, to commence from the time of their enrollment.

That the form of the enrollment be as follows: "I hereby promise and engage to enter into the service of the United States, and to serve them till the tenth day of March next, unless sooner discharged by Congress, and to observe and obey the orders of Congress, and the orders of the Generals and the officers set over me by them."

That in order to supply the Companies with arms, accoutrements, and other necessaries, the Field Officers of each Battalion, or any of them, be empowered and directed to purchase, and if they cannot purchase, to impress, arms, cartouch-boxes, blankets, shoes, stockings, and other necessaries for the use of the said Companies.

That the articles impressed be appraised by persons to be appointed by the Field Officers, or any of them, for that purpose.

That the Field Officers, or any of them, give certificates of the value of the articles so purchased or appraised, which certificates shall be deemed sufficient vouchers to the persons to whom they shall be given, or to their assigns, for the respective sums therein mentioned, and shall be paid at the Continental Treasury.

That the Captains march their Companies with the utmost expedition, and join the Army under General Washington.

That the Council of Safety of Pennsylvania be empowered and directed to form the said Companies into Battalions; and to adopt such further measures as they may find necessary for the march and equipment of the said companies; and particularly to collect in the city of Philadelphia and its neighbourhood, blankets and other necessaries for their use, and to seize such articles, paying the value of them, if they cannot otherwise be procured.

That one month's pay be advanced to each volunteer upon his enrollment; and that the Council of Safety be supplied with money for this purpose.

That the Council of Safety be requested to forward by express the foregoing Resolutions to the Commanding Officers of the several Battalions of the State of Pennsylvania.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL OF SAFETY TO COMMANDERS OF BATTALIONS.

In Council of Safety, Philadelphia, November 24, 1776.

SIR: General Howe, after having reduced Fort Washington, and obtained possession of Fort Lee, is now directing his operations against New-Jersey. There is much reason to believe that his views extend to the city of Philadelphia. The forces in New-Jersey may be insufficient to oppose his progress. It is therefore indispensably requisite, for the preservation of this State, and the support of the general cause, that troops be immediately raised to reinforce General Washington. The measures adopted for this purpose you will learn from the resolutions enclosed. In this time of danger it is unnecessary to use arguments with freemen, who are determined never to lose that character but with their lives. We have entire confidence that you, and the battalion under your command, will, upon this occasion, give the strongest proofs of vigour and patriotism.

A judicious choice of the officers will do honour to the volunteers, and produce essential advantages to the service, for it is our opinion that the volunteers ought to have the election of them; and we recommend to you the utmost circumspection and care, not only in the persons you may recommend to them, but also in the manner of doing it. As this Council can only have in view the interest of the whole, you may safely assure the people of our care and attention in the appointment of the Field Officers, so as at the same time to forward the service and as much as possible to give satisfaction to the people.

A Paymaster will be appointed for each battalion, and the volunteers may depend on having their pay regularly. The Colonel or commanding officer ought to muster each company, and send a certificate thereof to this Board.

Money is forwarded to in order to advance the month's pay; to him you will please to apply for what money will be necessary in your battalion for that purpose.

By order of the Council:

DAVID RITTENHOUSE, Vice President.

To the Colonel or commanding officer of the Battalion of .

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

Newark, November 24th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: By the negligent and infamous conduct of the post rider, the eastern mail of Friday was brought to Hackensack and there stopped to fall into the hands of the enemy. Of this event I have thought it proper to give you the earliest notice, supposing the mail may have contained some letters from you of a publick nature, that you may guard against any advantages the enemy may expect to derive from this accident.

From your letter to Colonel Reed, you seem to have mistaken my views entirely, in ordering troops from General Heath to cross Hudson's river to this side. The importance of the posts and passes through the Highlands is so infinitely great that I never thought there should be the least possible risk of losing 'em. Colonel Reed's second letter will have sufficiently explained my intention upon this subject, and pointed out to you that it was your division I want to have over. As the enemy have possessed themselves of the usual route by Dobbs's Ferry and Hackensack, it will be necessary that you should be careful in choosing some back way, in which you and your troops may come secure. I doubt not but they will take measures to intercept you, and therefore am induced to request your caution; I also wish you to send me frequent expresses on your march, that I may know how to direct it, and how to provide for the same.

I am, dear sir, &c., GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Lee.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL LEE.

Newark, November 24th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I wrote you this morning of the probability that some of your letters to me had fallen with the mail into the enemy's hands. My apprehensions on that head have been since confirmed by direct intelligence from their camp. I am informed that a letter from you is confidently said to have come to their hands, and that measures are taken to intercept your march. To prevent them from effecting this object, I have judged it proper to acquaint you of this accident, and of their design; at the same time I must request that you will take every precaution to come by a safe and secure route. I am told by those who have an intimate knowledge of the country, that after you leave Haverstraw the western road by Kakiate will be proper for you to take. But I will not undertake to prescribe any one in particular, only observing, that you will by all means keep between the enemy and the mountains.

Before I conclude, I would wish you to leave under the care of General Heath, the two twelve-pounders on traveling carriages. They will be safe with him at Peekskill. The brass twenty-four I would have you bring, provided it can be done without great inconvenience.

I need not urge the necessity of your gaining intelligence of the enemy's situation in the course of your march; I will be silent on that head; nor need I mention the propriety of your sending frequent expresses, to advise of your approaches. Hoping and trusting that your arrival will be safe and happy, I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

GO. WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Lee.

P. S. The expresses should come by the western road otherwise they may fall in with the enemy. Enclosed you will receive a copy of sundry resolves of Congress, which you will publish in orders.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL FORMAN.

SIR: Having received information that there is danger of an insurrection of Tories in the County of Monmouth, and it being highly necessary that the most speedy check should be given to a measure of so pernicious a tendency, you are hereby ordered to march with the regiment under your command into the said County of Monmouth, and on your arrival there, you are authorized to apprehend all such persons as, from good information, appear to be concerned in any plot or design against the liberty or safety of the United States. And you are further authorized immediately to attack any body of men whom you may find actually assembled or in arms for the purpose aforesaid; and if you should find their numbers superiour to your force, you have full authority to call in and take the command of such a number of Militia of the State of New-Jersey as you may judge sufficient. I would recommend to you to be cautious in proceeding against any but such as you have the fullest grounds of suspicion, and not suffer your men to give the least molestation to the property of any in the course of your march. If you find any stock of cattle or provision that you may judge in danger of falling into the hands of the enemy you are first to desire the inhabitants to remove them; and upon their refusal you are to have it done yourself, giving the owners certificates of the quantity, that they may, if they please, call upon the Quartermaster or Commissary-General for pay.

Given under my hand at Head-Quarters, at Newark, this 24th day of November, 1776.

Go. Washington.

To Colonel David Forman, New-Jersey Militia.

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp, November 24, 1776.

Dear General: I have received your orders, and shall endeavour to put them in execution; but question much whether I shall be able to carry with me any considerable number; not so much from a want of zeal in the men, as from their wretched condition with respect to shoes, stockings, and blankets, which the present bad weather renders more intolerable. I sent Heath orders to transport two thousand men across the river, apprise the General, and wait for further orders; but that great man (as I might have expected) intrenched himself within the letter of his instructions, and refused to part with a single file, though I undertook to replace them with a part of my own. I should march this day with Glover's brigade, but have just received intelligence that Rogers's corps, a part of the Light-Horse, and another brigade, lie in so exposed a situation as to present us the fairest opportunity of carrying them off. If we succeed it will have a great effect, and amply compensate for two days' delay.

I am, dear General, yours most sincerely,

Charles Lee.

GENERAL LEE TO COLONEL REED.

Camp, November 24th, 1776.

My dear Reed: I received your most obliging, flattering letter; lament with you that fatal indecision of mind which in war is a much greater disqualification than stupidity, or even want of personal courage: accident may put a decisive blunderer in the right, but eternal defeat and miscarriage must attend the man of the best parts if cursed with indecision. The General recommends in so pressing a manner as almost to amount to an order, to bring over the Continental troops under my command, which recommendation or order throws me into the greatest dilemma from several considerations. Part of the troops are so ill furnished with shoes and stockings, blankets, &c., that they must inevitably perish in this wretched weather. Part of them are to be dismissed on Saturday, and this part is the best accoutred for service. What shelter we are to find on the other side of the river is a serious consideration. But these considerations should not sway me. My reason for not having marched already is, that we have just received intelligence that Rogers's corps, the Light-Horse, part of the Highlanders, and another brigade, lie in so exposed a situation as to give the fairest opportunity of being carried. I should have attempted it last night, but the rain was too violent, and when our pieces are wet you know our troops are hors du combat. This night I hope will be better. If we succeed we shall be well compensated for the delay; we shall likewise be able on our return to clear the country of all the articles wanted by the enemy. In every view, therefore, the expedition must answer.

I have just received a most flattering letter from Don Luis Venzaga, Governour of New-Orleans. He gives me the title of "General de los Estados Unidos Americanos," which is a tolerable step towards declaring himself our ally in positive terms. The substance is, that he is sensible of the vast advantages which must result from the separation to his master and nation; that he cannot positively enter into a regular system without consulting his master, but in the mean time he will render us all the service in his power. I only wait myself for this business of Rogers and company being over. I shall then fly to you; for to confess a truth, I really think our Chief will do better with me than without me.

I am, dear Reed, yours most sincerely,

CHARLES LEE.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL LEE.

Peekskill, November 24th, 1776.

SIR: Be my mode of reasoning as it may, I conceive it to be my duty to obey my instructions, especially those which are positive and poignant; and that to deviate from them, even in extreme cases, would be an errour; though perhaps an errour on the right side. I can assure you, sir, that I have the salvation of the General and Army so much at heart that the least recommendation from him to march my division, or any part of them, over the river should have been instantly obeyed, without waiting for a positive order.

My conduct must be approved or censured as I adhere to, or depart from, my orders; and as it is my duty I shall strictly abide by them, until they are countermanded in such manner as will justify a deviation from them to him who instructed me and to the world.

I shall be happy in being honoured with your company to-morrow; and am, with respect and esteem, your obedient, humble servant,

W. HEATH.

General Lee.

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp Ramapough, November 24th, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: I am credibly informed that great numbers of the inhabitants between this and Hackensack have been to the enemy and obtained letters of protection, particularly one Christyam Andrew Zabriskie, who says that an express from General Lee to General Washington has been lately intercepted by the enemy, who had information of it from the Tories. By the best information the greatest part of the people between this and the enemy's camp are friendly to them and will do them all the service in their power.

If I had men to spare I should send a strong party to inspect their conduct. I just now hear that General Lee is making that way, which I hope is true.

I am your most obedient and humble servant,

JED. HUNTINGTON.

General Heath.

P. S. Have just had six men taken up by the guards for endeavouring to inveigle a soldier by giving him money.

GENERAL SCOTT TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Camp near Peekskill, November 24, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: When I consider the misfortunes of the Rev. Mr. Tetard, I can not refrain from recommending him to your Committee, as I flatter myself you will pay some attention to his case, in forming of the staff of the New-York brigade. Our Provincial Congress were pleased to appoint him to the offices of Chaplain and Interpreter, with the rank of Major, in the Canada service. He will produce to you General Arnold's certificate, as a testimony of his good conduct. The losses he has met with since his return merit, in my opinion, no small attention. His house in the city, which rented for seventy pounds per annum, with some valuable furniture in it, has been reduced to ashes; his farm in the country entirely destroyed by our own troops, and thirteen slaves most probably captivated by the enemy. He is therefore reduced to abject poverty. As to his political sentiments, collected not only from private conversation, but from his preaching, he appears to be a zealous friend to the American cause. I must therefore, in justice to him, take the liberty earnestly to recommend him for Chaplain in the New-York brigade.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JNO. MORIN SCOTT.

To the honourable Committee of Arrangement.

P. S. Mr. Corne has met with the accident of a breach in his mill-dam, the repair of which will require his presence. He has therefore requested me to interpose my good offices for continuing his stay on parole a week longer than was originally intended.

Yours, &c., J. M. S.

COLONEL LIVINGSTON TO COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Peekskill, 24th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am just informed that Lieutenant-Colonel Hulbert has gone to Long-Island, and that it is very improbable that he will accept of his commission. Should this be the case, I must beg leave to recommend Major Fish as the most eligible person I can think of as Major to the regiment. He is a young man of spirit and abilities. Three Captains, Sacket, Jackson, and Smith, accept, and are now recruiting. As we are at a loss for a Chaplain, it may not be improper to acquaint you that one Mr. Peter Tetter, a clergyman and gentleman who formerly made one of General Montgomery's family as Interpreter in Canada, has now lost his all, (it being in the hands of the enemy, at King's Bridge,) is very desirous of being appointed Chaplain to one of the four regiments now raising to serve during the war. The goodness of his disposition, and his attachment to General Montgomery, induce me to solicit his appointment. Ensign Joshua Drake resigns.

I remain, gentlemen, with respect and esteem, your most obedient, humble servant,

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON,
Colonel 4th New-York Regiment Continental Troops.

To the Committee of Arrangement for the State of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL GATES.

Saratoga, November 24, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: As it is more than probable that I should be exceedingly blamed if I left this department without a General Officer to command it in my absence, and all having left it except you, I am under the necessity of detaining you until the return of some other General Officer. You will therefore remain at Albany until further orders.

Please inform Colonel Lewis that more carriages are wanting on the portage between Fort Edward and Lake George, and that he is to send up thirty immediately. Order him to send up fifty bars of iron, proper for shoeing what are commonly called log-sleds, which are making here to transport cannon with in winter.

I am, dear General, sincerely, your most obedient, humble servant,

PH. SCHUYLER.

The Hon. General Gates.

COLONEL WILLETT TO ROBERT YATES.

Danbury, November 24, 1776.

SIR: I have received your account of my appointment by the Committee of Arrangement for the State of New-York, who you inform me have been pleased to take notice of my former rank and services. I can by no means think of refusing to attend to the voice of my country at so critical and important a period as this. I shall therefore with cheerfulness receive the appointment with which I am honoured, nor shall my best endeavours be wanting to render to my country every service I am capable of.

Some business I have undertaken for the Quartermaster-General of the Continental Army has engaged my attendance at North-Castle to-morrow, after which I shall immediately attend the Committee of Arrangement at the Fishkill. And am, in the mean time, with sincere respect, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

MARINUS WILLETT.

To Robert Yates, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Arrangement for the State of New-York, at the Fishkill.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL TO COLONEL PICKERING.

State of Massachusetts Bay, Council Chamber, November, 1776.

To TIMOTHY PICKERING, Colonel:

In pursuance of a resolve of General Court of this State, you are hereby ordered forthwith to discharge the officers and men belonging to Captain Benjamin Ward's company, stationed at Salem, and to deliver all the ammunition and military stores of every kind which have been improved by said company, belonging to this State, to Richard Ward, Commissary, who is hereby directed to receive the same and make return thereof to this Board, as soon as may be.

CAPTAIN MARTIN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Baltimore, November 25th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received yours of the 21st, and as you did not write to me concerning the sailors' wages, I thought it my duty to acquaint your honourable Board, that the few vessels now fitting out in this place gives from eleven to twelve pounds per month for common hands, and officers' wages is what they please to ask; Mates have fifteen pounds per month. As I shall have but few seamen this passage, I think it requisite to have an officer of Marines. It is much wanting in a harbour; and at sea they serve to work the guns. If you think it proper, I shall be glad Mr. Bond may have the preference.

I can't ship a sailor for want of articles, and then, as I agree with them, I can make them sign, and be on the sure side. When I get the articles, I can get men in great plenty, by telling them I shall have a commission; and I hope, as I had the promise last voyage, and as I sail for low wages, and refused good offers in vessels that have made fortunes, this voyage I hope according to promise to have a commission, and do some good for myself and country.

Captain Stone came the 18th instant, with the bailiff and a parcel of men to take the brig, but I defended her with four men, and still keep possession, though the Sheriff put his hands on the side, and said he delivered her as Captain Stone's property. Something strange that, a man to deliver a thing he can't get possession of.

I am, gentlemen, your humble servant,

JOHN MARTIN.

To the honourable Council of Safety, Annapolis.

JOHN HAAS AND OTHERS TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

November 25th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: We have been applied to by the guard who have the prisoners from Carolina now in charge, for their pay. Mr. Harrison, in whose hands money was lodged, is from home, and the gentleman who he left to transact business in his absence, has paid away all the money Mr. Harrison left in his hands. The guard in general are men in low circumstances, and we think are, and must in little time be much distressed, unless you will be kind enough to pay them. Private gentlemen have already advanced money to support the prisoners. You will undoubtedly be of opinion that it is necessary to send some money to pay for the victualling of them.

We are, gentlemen, with great respect, your obedient servants,

JAMES TILGHMAN TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Colonel Tilghman's, November 25th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I received the enclosed letter from Doctor Pine, by yesterday's post, and as it greatly concerns our soldiery, have thought proper to lay it before your Board. The Doctor is a man of veracity, and what he advances may be relied on. A discrimination of that nature among soldiers cannot be submitted to, and is enough to check the ardour of the bravest man upon earth.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant,

JA. TILGHMAN.

The honourable Council of Safety of Maryland.

---

Camp at White-Plains, November 7th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I arrived here on Monday, the 28th of last month, about four in the afternoon, while our people were engaged in a very hot battle, the particulars of which I suppose you'll hear before this comes to hand. Colonel Smallwood's battalion suffered a good deal; the Colonel himself wounded in two places; the number of killed and wounded, as the report is in the camp, amounts only to about ninety, but from the wounded I saw myself in the hospital and adjacent houses, there must at least be an hundred and twenty or thirty wounded; the number of killed I don't know.

The day after I came here I waited on Doctor Morgan, Director-General of the hospitals here, for medicines, &c. He told me he had nothing to say to the Maryland troops, and that it was not his business to supply the Regimental Surgeons with medicines, and that it must have been a mistake of the Convention or Council of Safety of Maryland, to send their Surgeons here without them and think they were to be supplied here. Upon this, I went to Colonel Smallwood, who is about fifteen miles from this, near the hospital, and told him the case, and what condition I found the sick in, both the Regular and Flying-Camp, Maryland troops, without the least morsel of physick of any sort, although a great many of them in a very pitiable condition, upon which the Colonel gave me a letter to Doctor Morgan. The Doctor then told me I might have some few things, if I could go to New-York for them, which is about eighty miles from this. I told him by the time I went there and got back, that the time of most of the Maryland troops would be expired. He told me he could not help it, and that medicines were very hard to be got. I should be glad this matter was communicated to the Council of Safety. Since I came here I have been of what service I could to the Maryland troops; all their Surgeons are over in the Jerseys with their sick, and a great number are still sick here.

The companies to which I was appointed are not yet come here, nor can I hear any thing of them. I am just now with Colonel Smallwood's battalion and Independent companies. I go up to-day to the Flying-Camp, who are about sixteen miles from this, to inquire into the state of their sick, and see if I can, by any possible means, get some medicines for their relief.

I should be glad you let me know first opportunity, whether I am to continue here, or how I am to proceed if these companies do not come up. The enemy went off from this night before last; it is conjectured they are to attack Fort Washington, which is about twenty miles from this, and then go into winter-quarters.

We expect to move from this every hour. I have been exceeding hearty since I came here. The camp seems to agree very well with me. We have got plenty of every thing. I shall write you fuller and more particular in a day or two.

I am, dear sir, in haste, respectfully, your very humble servant, JOHN PINE.

To James Tilghman, Esq., Annapolis, Maryland.

COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS TO GEORGE READ.

Philadelphia, November 25, 1776.

SIR: The enclosed resolutions will inform you of the steps adopted in this State for the immediate reinforcement of the Army under the command of General Washington. We wish for assistance from the State of Delaware, and cannot doubt their alacrity in furnishing every aid in their power, in this hour of common danger.

We know not to whom our application ought to be made, but we earnestly entreat your influence and exertions with the proper authorities of your State, to send a speedy assistance of five hundred volunteers if possible, on the same terms and times of service with the volunteers of this State.

We are, sir, with great regard, your most obedient and humble servants,

JAMES WILSON,
GEORGE CLYMER,
SAM'L CHASE.

To the Hon. George Read, Esq., at Newcastle.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL ATLEE.

Head-Quarters, 25th November, 1776.

SIR: I lately received a letter from you, but having sent it forward among other papers, I cannot recollect the date. I do not at all wonder at your earnest desire to return to your family and friends; and you may be assured that every thing in my power, consistent with the resolutions of Congress, shall be done to procure your speedy release. If General Howe shall please to give his assent to the exchange of Mr. Irving, of South-Carolina, for you, I certainly shall have no objection. The reason why the proposal cannot with propriety go from me, is, that Mr. Irving is not in the military line, and, by the terms of our cartel, officers of equal rank only are to be proposed for each other; but either side may dispense with this rule, if they think fit, as was the case in the exchange of Governour Brown (not in the military line) for Brigadier-General Lord Stirling. Therefore, what you are to do is, to obtain General Howe's assurance that Mr. Irving will be received in exchange for you; and upon this being signified to me, he shall be immediately sent for, that the exchange may be carried into execution.

I received a joint letter from Colonel Miles and you, respecting the state of our prisoners for want of clothes and other necessaries. I have laid this before Congress, and desired them to procure a credit in New-York for their supply. In respect to the short allowance of provisions, I can only attribute it to the state of General Howe's stores; for I have too high an opinion of his humanity to suppose that he would willingly add the calamity of famine to that of captivity.

I am, sir, &c., GO. WASHINGTON.

To Col. Samuel J. Atlee, Pennsylvania Militia, prisoner.

---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL MILES.

Head-Quarters, 25th November, 1776.

SIR: I lately had the pleasure of a letter from you, but I am unable to answer it as particularly as I could wish, for want of the letter itself, having sent it forward among other papers. From the best of my recollection, you mention that you had reason to believe that an exchange might be procured of John Foxcraft, Esq., for yourself, and Mr. Dashwood for Colonel Piper, and another gentleman, whose name I do not remember, for Lieutenant De Courcy. If you can obtain General Howe's assent to these several exchanges, I shall on my part most readily comply; but as the gentlemen you have mentioned are not in the military line, the proposal cannot with propriety go from me, as by the terms of our cartel, officers of equal rank are only to be proposed for each other. But General Howe has dispensed with this rule in one instance, by giving up Brigadier-General Lord Stirling for Governour Brown, though not belonging to the Army; and if he pleases again to accept of gentlemen in the civil department for those in the military, I, as I said before, shall have no objection.

I have, in a letter to Colonel Atlee, taken notice of a joint letter from yourself and him, respecting the miserable state of our prisoners in New-York for want of clothes and necessaries. I have wrote to Congress on the subject, recommending it to them to procure a proper credit in New-York for their supply, but I have not yet received an answer from them.

I am, sir, yours, &c., GO. WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Miles, Pennsylvania Militia, prisoner.

COLONEL HARRISON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Newark, November the 25th, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I am directed by his Excellency to acknowledge his receipt of your letter of yesterday, and to inform you the disposition of the troops mentioned in your former letter has his approbation.

In respect to the troops intended to come to this quarter, his Excellency never meant that they should be from your division. He has wrote General Lee since so fully and explicitly upon the subject, that any misapprehensions he may have been under at first must be now done away. He will most probably have reached Peek's Kills before now with his division, and be pushing to join us. No new event has taken place.

I am, sir, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,

ROB'T H. HARRISON.

To Major-General Heath.

---

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEWARK, DATED NOVEMBER 25, 1776.

I have just time enough to inform you that there is very good intelligence that the enemy intend to make a push for Philadelphia. We hear part of their force is embarked, either to go up the Delaware and make their attacks on both sides at once, or else to amuse the Southern States, and prevent their sending any assistance to Philadelphia. We have not force enough to oppose their march by land. We look to New-Jersey and Pennsylvania for their Militia, and on their spirit depends the preservation of America. If in this hour of adversity they shrink from danger, they deserve to be slaves indeed. If the freedom that success will ensure us, if the misery that awaits our subjection, will not rouse them, why let them sleep on till they wake in bondage.

---

COLONEL GUY JOHNSON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, November 25, 1776.

MY LORD: The last letter I had the honour to address to your Lordship was of the 9th of August, giving an account of my arrival at Staten-Island, and of such particulars as I had been able to obtain respecting Indian affairs. Since which I have, by General Howe's orders, waited the event of such military operations as might enable me to proceed to the Indians with such presents and marks of the King's bounty as are absolutely necessary at our interview; but although the advanced season, when these operations commenced, though conducted with much success and rapidity, has hitherto prevented that wished-for opportunity, I have the pleasure to assure your Lordship that the Indians have faithfully observed the promises they made to me, rejected all the proposals of the Rebels, and a considerable number of them proceeded on service. And notwithstanding the artifices practised by the Indians of the Oneida villages, influenced by their New-England missionary Kirkland, the enclosed intercepted letter,* communicated to me by Lord Howe, will show the fidelity of the Six-Nations, and evince their attention to me.

In my last interview with your Lordship I took the liberty to observe that whatever measures had been resolved on by the Indians, were about that time carrying into execution, and that I had a confidence in the treaties made before me at Ontario with the Six-Nations and Hurons, &c., of Detroit, and with the rest in Canada, notwithstanding they were so surrounded by deceivers possessed of the back country, that even their neutrality was an object of some importance. But I hope they will appear in a much superiour light, and that I shall ere long be enabled to collect such necessaries as they want. To pave the way for their future operations, I have, with the approbation of General Howe, lately despatched (in disguise) one of my officers with Joseph the Indian chief, (who desired this service,) to get across the country to the Six-Nations; and from their activity and knowledge of the way, I have hopes of their getting through undiscovered, and of their preparing the Indians to coöperate with our military movements, but the many difficulties which retarded the Northern Army disappointed our hopes of a junction until the hunting season now come on, when the Indians must necessarily provide winter stores for their families. This done, I think I can answer for them, from my confidence in General Howe's enabling me to get what is necessary for the Indians, as I hear that the articles sent out last year are much damaged and deficient; nor should I mention this matter, but that it is an essential consideration in affairs with Indians.

The Rebels on the frontiers of this Government have taken uncommon pains to prevent the success of his Majesty's arms from coming to the ear of the Indians, and have destroyed the effects of all the loyal party there. Mine have been totally plundered and my negroes carried off; but I am sensible that this must be the fate of any man in office, particularly in such a one as mine; and therefore I little regret it so long as I preserve your Lordship's favour and am enabled to serve his Majesty with a zeal and loyalty displeasing to his enemies.

I hope to be honoured with your Lordship's comm on any occurring subject; and I am, with great respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most devoted, humble servant,

G. JOHNSON.

P. S. A gentleman of my acquaintance, who made his escape from Schenectady, is just arrived, and informs me that about six weeks since a large belt came down to the Oneidas and Mohocks from Niagara, from the Six-Nations and others, desiring to know the state of the latter, and that as the whole Confederacy had acted during the campaign agreeable to their promise to me, they wished to strengthen the hands of the Lower Nations, and desired their attendance at a general meeting to concert further measures; and that if they found themselves obstructed by the Rebels, the Upper Nations would come down and open the road for them.

G. J.

The Right Honourable Lord George Germain.

*From six Oneida Chiefs to General Schuyler, dated May 22, 1776.

---

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN ENGLISH OFFICER AT NEW-YORK, DATED NOVEMBER 25, 1776.

I refer you to the publick accounts of our rapid successes in this part of the world. It is impossible I can in this letter follow the Army through its manœuvres. Fort Washington, and the grounds around it, fell with inconsiderable loss on our side, notwithstanding it had every advantage of art and nature.

Colonel Cadwalader was second in command in this fortress. He is the son of a physician at Philadelphia, who showed some civilities to General Prescott when prisoner; of this the General made mention to Sir William Howe, who was pleased to order his immediate release, without parole, or even injunction not to serve the Congress. This was a handsome compliment to General Prescott, and is one of the numberless instances of generosity that mark the character of our Commander-in-Chief.

Lord Cornwallis is carrying all before him in the Jerseys. Two forts, of equal strength with Fort Washington, have fallen into his hands; ten thousand stand of arms, forty pieces of cannon, several mortars, and stores innumerable, have the Rebels abandoned to us, retreating most precipitately toward Philadelphia.

In short it is impossible but that peace must soon be the consequence of our success. An embarkation of seven thousand men will be completed to-morrow: as to its destination no one can even form the least conjecture, for the utmost secrecy is observed. Whilst one supposes it is intended against Rhode-Island, others with equal probability say it is to sail up the bay of Delaware, and second Lord Cornwallis's attack on Philadelphia. General Clinton has the command of this enterprise. Lord Percy goes second, and General Prescott third.

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp Ramapaugh, November 25, 1776.

HONOURED SIR: Every man, and I was going to say every woman, within a large circle of this place who stand for Whigs, and, for aught I know, are really such, are constantly distressing me with their fears and apprehensions from the enemy and Tories. They are confident the latter have so much knowledge of the country as to guide a body of troops any where among the mountains. Their anxiety has gone far towards intimidating some of my own troops.

A considerable part of the inhabitants between this and the enemy have been conversant with the enemy since they came to Hackensack, and have had meetings among themselves. I communicate what intelligence I get, for your information, and not because it at all appears important to your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

JED. HUNTINGTON.

General Heath.

26th.—Your order of yesterday came to hand last night at two o'clock. Colonel Tyler marched at daybreak for Toppon. I hear a large number of wagons are on the road loaded with flour from Toppon, coming this way. It is said Bergen County is to raise a regiment to join the British Army, and that one Buscart, or some such hard name, is appointed Colonel, and that they have given a specimen of their valour by shooting a Whig, one Zabriskie.

---

GENERAL SCOTT TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Haverstraw, November 25, 1776.

SIR: Upon some alarming accounts from Colonel Hay of a probability that the enemy would attempt a landing from their shipping, and of the defenceless state of the country, as well as the danger that many well-wishers would be reduced by fear to a submission, General Heath thought proper to send me over with my brigade. Upon my arrival here I heard a distant firing, supposed to be at Acquachneck, where I am assured our Army were determined to engage the enemy this day. I am told the firing began early this morning. I hope to be able to communicate something agreeable to you, which, if in my power, I shall not fail to do by express.

The sole design of this letter is most earnestly to request the interposition of Convention to prevent the disbanding of my brigade on Sunday next. I have sent an express to General Heath with a request to send me two more regiments and a fieldpiece or two. But what will that succour avail if the service is to last only till Sunday? I hope my request will not be imputed to interested motives when I assure you of my desire to serve my country one month longer without pay. I flatter myself the officers will be ashamed to refuse their service. If our Convention would think proper to furnish me with a bounty for the men, I think I can hold them. You cannot think, sir, of what infinite consequence it will be to this part of the country. Without some proper support, if our troops below should not succeed, the country below the mountains must submit to the enemy. If my views can be seconded by Convention, and General Heath should comply with my requisition, I flatter myself that, with the Militia of the County, numbers of them I am sure will join me if we countenance them by some suitable support, I may fall in the rear of the enemy with two thousand men. You may easily judge that if General Washington keeps them well employed in front, the expedient I propose may be successful; at least if I can be strengthened, I am determined to risk it, if I should fall in the attempt. In short, sir, our cunctandas have put me out of patience.

Let me not forget to tell you that thirty men were inlisted last Sunday into the enemy's service. And can you think, sir, that two thousand men marched southward from this, would not check the growing mischief? Be pleased, sir, to make my respectful compliments acceptable to Convention; assure them of my readiness to obey all their commands; reward the expresses. I keep no accounts with the publick. Believe me to be, sir, with undissembled respect and esteem, yours and the publick's devotedly,

JN. MORIN SCOTT.

To the President of the honourable Convention, State of New-York.

---

GENERAL LEE TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Camp at Phillipsburg, November ye 25th.

DEAR SIR: Would it not be prudent to order all the Continental stores to a more centrical place than Boston? Worcester, for instance, I should think would be a convenient place. There is another reason for this measure: should the enemy take it into their heads to send a fleet before Boston, in the confusion, when every man is attentive to his own affairs, the publick is totally neglected. The small-arms should likewise be moved. For Heaven's sake, sir, devise some means of furnishing us with blankets. Can no method be found of putting a stop to the enormous and impious extortion of the merchants on the soldiers?

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

CHARLES LEE.

The Honourable James Bowdoin.

---

COLONEL HAY TO GENERAL HEATH.

King's Ferry, November 25th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have just now received intelligence that the enemy landed last night from their ships a parcel of their men at the place called Nyack, about ten miles from this place. I must therefore request that you will be so good as to send us over proper guards, or we who have been faithful friends to our country must fall a sacrifice to a cruel and unrelenting enemy. I will esteem it as a particular favour if you will order the Captain of the row-galley to receive a few of my most valuable effects, and carry them to New-Windsor, if we are obliged to move from this place. A number of the Tories from Ramapaugh have gone over to the enemy, and have told persons that they meet on the road that they intended to conduct them up to Colonel Huntington, and surround him and his party. Pray excuse this scrawl; and I am, in great haste, your most obedient, humble servant,

A. HAWKES HAY.

To Major-General Heath.

COUNCIL OF WAR.

Peekskill, November 25th, 1776.

At a Council of War held at General Heath's quarters, this day, report, Major-General Heath, Brigadier-General George Clinton, Brigadier-General Scott.

A Letter from Colonel Hay being read, intimating that a party of the enemy had landed at Nyack, and that a number of disaffected persons had gone over to the enemy, declaring as they went that they would conduct the enemy to the pass in the mountain, and cut off our troops:

The Council are unanimously of opinion that General Scott with his brigade should immediately repair to Haverstraw, to cover the stores at that place, and to prevent the advance of the enemy into the passes of the Highlands, should they attempt it.

W. HEATH,
GEO. CLINTON,
JNO. MORIN SCOTT.

---

ORDER TO GENERAL SCOTT.

Peekskill, November 25th, 1776.

SIR: Upon receipt hereof you will immediately move with your brigade over to Haverstraw. You will post your men in such manner as to cover the stores on that side of the river and to prevent the advances of the enemy into the passes of the Highlands, should they attempt.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

W. HEATH.

Brigadier-General Scott.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read 26th December.]

North-Castle, 25th November, 1776.

SIR: I have this day drawn on you a set of bills for fifteen hundred and forty-nine dollars and two-thirds of a dollar, payable at four days' sight, the value of which I have received in cash of General Morris, for use of the Army, and hope the same will be paid and placed to my account accordingly.

I am, sir, your most humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

COLONEL HAZEN TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read Dec. 9, 1776. Referred to Committee on Northern Army.]

Albany, 25th November.

SIR: On receipt of the order of Congress to recruit the regiment I have the honour to command to its origina establishment, and after having received a sum of money for that purpose, in consultation with Lieutenant-Colonel Antill, it was thought best that I should proceed from Philadelphia to this place and Ticonderoga, and from thence down through the Eastern States on the recruiting service, while Colonel Antill was first to wait on General Washington, and by his approbation appoint some recruiting officers in his army, and from thence make a tour through some of the Southern States, which, notwithstanding we were rather late in that service, left a fair prospect of success, at least to those of our brother officers. But I was unhappy to find on my arrival here a barrier thrown in the way of my recruiting in the Eastern States, by their giving an additional encouragement to soldiers over and above what I was authorized by Congress to offer. I however delayed no time proceeding, with General Schuyler's approbation, to Ticonderoga, in hopes that by the appointment of some officers there on the ground, and those who could be well recommended, I might stand an equal chance to recruit out of the Southern regiments at that place. On my arrival here I found myself again disappointed, as the commanding officers of those regiments were averse to such a measure, and would not consent to their soldiers inlisting into any other corps, until regularly discharged, which Geneal Gates did not think fit to overrule. I hope that some immediate measures will be taken to put the Army of the United States on an equal footing, which will not only leave me an opportunity of raising the regiment from the different States agreeable to the resolve of Congress, but will prevent in your Army the greatest discontent, disorders, jealousies, and confusion, from which the worst of evils can only be expected. I hope Lieutenant-Colonel Antill will be successful in his department; and should we be so fortunate as to recruit the regiments under all the present disadvantages, I must take this early opportunity of requesting the favour of Congress that we may serve the ensuing campaign under the immediate command of General Washington. I have many reasons to back this application, not now necessary to trouble Congress with.

Having foretold the fate of our Northern army and fleet, at least the loss of Canada and the fleet on Lake Champlain, from the knowledge I have of the northern department, from the fortune I have sacrificed by the active part I have taken, and lastly from the rank I have in your Army, I will once more venture to give my opinion of our situation in that quarter, and the necessary precautions to be taken for its defence. It has been wisely determined that we should keep the superiority of a naval force on Lake Champlain, and for that purpose a fleet at a great expense was provided. It has been defeated, the losses great. The consequences may be fatal; for if the war continues, and the enemy enabled to carry it on with spirit, they will most probably make a bold push from Canada, as they have now an open inlet to our frontiers in that part of the country. They have already a formidable army of British troops and hirelings in Canada, which most probably will be augmented early in the spring. They may collect a large number of savages, who will be the most useful troops to them—an inveterate enemy, and might harm and distress, if not depopulate, the frontiers of our Eastern States. They may imbody the Canadians, who will not dare resist any order from military authority. Therefore if we guard Ticonderoga only, the enemy may early in the spring take possession of Crown-Point, encamp a large army at that place, and by the assistance which they may have from the Canadians, and without retarding their other operations, repair that fortress in such a manner as will render it next to improbable for us to dispossess them. They will then have the entire command of Lake Champlain, and serve as advantageous communications, leading directly into the frontier of the New-England States. In vain will you man your lines at Ticonderoga, that American grave, as that will guard a part of the frontiers of the State of New-York on Crown-Point, is surrounded with large settlements, numerous are the inhabitants in a plentiful country for provisions. From Crown-Point to Number Four, on the Connecticut river, is about eighty miles, an open road and settled country. From the mouth of Onion river, on Lake Champlain, to Cohaus on the Connecticut, is about the same distance. All this country totally unguarded, of easy access to the enemy, and it is too much to be feared many of the inhabitants disaffected; at least they will be so if they find themselves neglected. I am therefore clearly of opinion that our frontiers in that quarter will never be secured, until we are once more masters of that lake; that Crown-Point is far better situated for the protection of our frontiers in general than the post we have taken at Ticonderoga, and that it is the proper barrier against Canada. It was by the ablest General and best engineers ever considered as such, and built for that purpose. The old fortress may be easily put into a good posture of defence, and by us at a little expense; for until we are perfect masters of that navigation we must in the summer season keep up a large army of observation in that quarter, who may as well be employed in raising necessary fortifications and preparing a naval force as to lie idle. The enemy is now secure, guarded by their naval force, which leaves them the advantage of carrying on either an offensive or defensive war. If the former, a reinforcement, as I before observed, will probably be sent into this country, savages and Canadians assembled, and a vigorous push made, which will require a large army of observation in that quarter. If the latter, they may, unknown to us, withdraw their troops from Canada, or the most considerable part of the Army, and bring them to act in some other part on the sea-coast, while your Army may be waiting for them at Ticonderoga. I say this may be done unknown to us, if we may judge by the intelligence which we have received from Canada the last campaign. If we can raise a fleet superiour to that of our enemy, and once more make ourselves master of that water carriage, we shall then have nothing to fear from that quarter; but, on the contrary, turn the tables on our enemies, and our Army at that place may be small, and the enemy's large to watch our motions, or otherwise Canada would not be secured to them. If we should attempt to raise a fleet and fall short of the superiority, yet the labour and expense may not be lost, as naval armaments are a great protection to land forces, in such an advantageous situation as Crown-Point. They will there protect in a great measure the fortifications on the land, being so many moving battalions, and the land batteries will most effectually protect the Navy. They may act in conjunction, defend and secure each other, if properly conducted.

You will here see I have given my opinion of this important matter, and have endeavoured to lay down some reasons in support of it, simple as they are, naked and unadorned. I can only say my motive is good, which I hope will atone for the liberty I have taken on this occasion. The whole may be summed up in a few words, viz: Crown-Point is the proper barrier against Canada. We ought to take possession of that post and rebuild the fort. A respectable army you must have in that quarter, a formidable fleet you ought to have. A moment's time you have not to lose in making the necessary preparations, or fatal may be the consequences. I will only add, Crown-Point is a healthy climate, Ticonderoga a sickly one, a proof of which you had the last campaign. This is a matter of consideration.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your most obedient and most devoted humble servant,

MOSES HAZEN.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

ALBANY COMMITTEE TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Albany Committee Chamber, November 28th, 1776.

DEAR SIR: Frequent representations have been made to the Board of the abuses committed on flour by the manufacturers of it, in this County, and several other parts of the State, not only in the quality but the weights thereof; in the latter, so much, that barrels have been found deficient a hundred weight. This being so intolerable an imposition on the publick, that we are constrained to mention it to you, and pray that some effectual means may be devised by the Convention to prevent such practices for the future. We beg leave, with great deference, to submit to you whether a resolve from your House, declaring that no flour should be purchased or sold in the State, under a certain penalty, without having the brand of the manufacturer thereof marked on the barrel, would not, in some respects, obviate the abuse.

On the late alarms to the northward, when the Militia of this County were called forth, particularly from the district of Saratoga, many of the inhabitants, from whom a contrary line of conduct was expected, deserted, and have since joined the enemy at Crown-Point. Some of them have left families in the greatest necessity and want, others have left estates sufficient to maintain their own families and more. The poor, we are apprehensive, must fall a burthen to the district, unless provided for by the Convention. It has been agitated in Committee whether the estates of all should not be seized and disposed of, for the maintenance of the whole indiscriminately. This we also beg leave to mention to you, that the Convention may act therein as they judge most expedient.

We are, most respectfully, sir, your very humble servants.

By order:

JOHN BARCLAY, Chairman.

To the Convention of the State of New-York.

---

COLONEL WAYNE TO COLONEL HURD.

Ticonderoga, 25 November, 1776.

SIR: The enemy retreated from Crown-Point with their whole force, about three weeks since. One or two regiments of them are stationed at the Isle-au-Noix, one at St. Johns, and one at Chamblee; the remainder are cantoned from Montreal to Quebec.

A strong garrison remain here during the winter which will be reinforced early in the spring. But I have no direction respecting matters in your quarter. I shall write to General Schuyler on the occasion. If you should be able to gain any intelligence of the enemy's motions that would affect this post, it cannot be too early conveyed to, sir, your most obedient, humble servant,

Colonel Hurd.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Hartford, November 25th, 1776.

SIR: In a letter from General Lee of the 21st instant, he says, "I shall begin with my application immediately. For Heaven's sake contrive to procure us blankets. Write to Massachusetts if you have none yourselves." A large quantity is wanted for the use of the Army. This State have not a sufficiency for the supply of the men sent from it, which necessitates us to apply to yours. If in your power we trust you'll forward a quantity to the Army with the utmost despatch and alacrity. Inform whether some cannot be supplied to furnish troops raised and ordered to march immediately from this State.

Your speedy answer will much oblige your most obedient, humble servant,

JON'TH. TRUMBULL.

Hon. James Bowdoin.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Hartford, November 25th, 1776.

SIR: In answer to a resolve of your Assembly proposing a convention of the several States respecting further emissions of paper currency, and for supporting the credit thereof, am desired by the Assembly of this State to advise that the proposal would be very agreeable, and might have very salutary effects; yet as we understand that the honourable Continental Congress have taken the subject into consideration with a purpose to act upon it, we are fearful lest a convention as proposed at this time would give umbrage to the other States, and cause some unhappy jealousies, which might prove detrimental. We have already passed sundry acts for the purpose of securing the credit of our currency, by making the Continental bills and our own a tender in all payments; also by stating and regulating the prices of the necessaries and conveniences of life, and enforcing the same, the rapid and exorbitant rise of which has a great tendency to depreciate the currency; copies of which several acts will, if desired, transmit you when leisure permits; wherefore this State beg leave for the present to decline the motion made.

I am, with great truth and regard, sir, your obedient humble servant,

JON'TH. TRUMBULL.

To the President of the Council of the State of Massachusetts-Bay.

IN COUNCIL, December 6th, 1776.—Read, and resolved, that the Committee appointed by this Court to confer with such Committees as may be appointed by the General Assembly of the States of Connecticut, New-Hampshire, and Rhode-Island, respecting further emission of Paper Currency, also on the measures necessary for supporting the credit of the same, be and hereby are directed to proceed upon said conference, the foregoing letter notwithstanding.

Sent down for concurrence.

JOHN AVERY, Dp'y Sec'y.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, December 6, 1776.—Read, and non-concurred, and ordered that Mr. Pitts and Judge Sargent, with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to write to the State of New-Hampshire and the State of Rhode-Island, informing them of the reasons the Committee of this State do not proceed on that business.

Sent up for concurrence.

IN COUNCIL, December 6, 1776.—Read, and the Board reconsider their Resolve of this day, and concur with the honourable House in vote, and Francis Dana, Esq., to be joined on the part of the Board.

JOHN AVERY, Dp'y Sec'y.

New-Haven, November 27, 1776.

Friday last, a flag-of-truce schooner arrived at New-London, from New-York, with a letter from Lord Howe to Governour Trumbull, proposing an exchange of the Navy prisoners, confined in this State, for an equal number of the State's subjects, which are prisoners on board the English fleet.*

---

LORD HOWE'S INSTRUCTIONS TO LIEUTENANT BARKER.

Eagle, off New-York, November 15, 1776.

Lieutenant Barker is to repair in the pilot tender, with a flag of truce, to the port of New-London, in Connecticut, having charge to negotiate, on the part of Lord Howe, with the principal inhabitants, or persons of the greatest authority, in that Colony, an exchange of prisoners, officers for officers in each class, and sailors for sailors, according to the enclosed list of American prisoners now on board the fleet. Mr. William Howland is permitted to attend Lieutenant Barker, in view to forward the proposed exchange by such means as his knowledge of the country and principal inhabitants shall suggest. Mr. Howland is permitted to land from the tender, being by his parole engaged to return with Lieutenant Barker, to receive the benefit of the general exchange, if it take place, or otherwise to remain under the circumstances of restraint from which he is temporarily released for the purpose before mentioned.

HOWE.

Lieutenant Barker.

---

J. HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

November 25, 1776.

We, your Honour's Committee, appointed to consider of the application made by Lord Howe, for exchange of prisoners in the Marine or Naval department, now report it as our opinion, that such an application to this State is altogether improper and inconsistent; and that the same ought to have been made to his Excellency General Washington in the first instance, with whom a negotiation of this sort, between him and Lord Howe, has already been proposed; and that his Honour the Governour be desired to advise General Washington of this singular application, and of the opinion of this Assembly thereon; and that he also signify to Lord Howe, or the commander of the flag, through whom the application was made, as he shall judge proper, the impropriety of said application to this State, assigning the pendency of the negotiation aforesaid.

Signed per order:

J. HUNTINGTON.

* It appears, by a letter dated New-London, November 23d, 1776, from Jedediah Elderkin and Nathaniel Wales, Jr., to Governour Trumbull, that upon the 22d day aforesaid, about one o'clock, a small schooner with a flag appeared in New-London harbour, which greatly surprised the citizens. She came within about one mile of Fort Trumbull, lay to, and lowered sails, with her flag up. A whale-boat was sent to her with armed men, to go on board of her, and soon returned with Captain WILLIAM FRANKLIN TO MRS. FRANKLIN.

Middleton, November 25, 1776.

My dearest Life: I had last Saturday the happiness of receiving your dear long letter of the 5th and 6th instant. The one dated the 16th of September, (which I had given up as lost,) got safe to hand a few days before. But I have not yet been so lucky as to receive that which you mention to have wrote on the 20th of October. Perhaps it may find its way here some weeks hence. Since the new regulations in the post office, never was there greater confusion in the management of any business. I wrote a few lines to you by Mr. A. O. about a fortnight ago, just to let you know that I was well. I am much concerned that that fellow F. should report I had been extremely ill, as I know the uneasiness it must have occasioned you. I had only a slight cold attended with a little fever, which went off in a few days.

If the old gentleman has taken the boy with him, I hope it is only to put him in some foreign university, which he seemed anxious to do when he spoke to me last about his education. As the Cobhams are already sent to Powell's, I would not have them removed. Had I known D. had solicited the matter you mention, I should not have desired you to send him any money; but I suppose it is now too late to stop it.

You have been lucky in your jockeyship. I am sorry, however, for the poor gentleman's loss, which I much wonder at, as Whitefoot always appeared as sound a horse as any I had.

I wish Mr. Mercer had continued in Amboy, as his polite attention to you must have greatly lessened the distresses of your present situation.

I hope your fears about poor Mr. Bonnel are groundless. I shall be extremely concerned if he does not recover from his present indisposition. Remember me kindly to him and his wife.

It gives me pleasure to hear that Mrs. Burnet is in Amboy, as she will help to enliven your little society. My best regards to her and to Mr. S. and the ladies with you. Let Mrs. A. know that I received her message in yours of September 16, and that I now desire my particular compliments to her. Keep up your spirits, my dearest life, and assure yourself of the unalterable affection of your ever faithful husband,

W. Franklin.

P. S. Thomas sends his duty to you, and love to Kitty and the servants. You need make no apology about pen or paper. The fault, however, if any, is not so much in the first as in the latter. Write if you choose it on the folio gilt paper which I used for my despatches. But your letters are all as fair and legible as I could wish.

GOVERNOR COOKE TO MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY.

Providence, November 25th, 1776.

Gentlemen: The enclosed resolutions of Congress were transmitted to me by General Lee, with a request that I would immediately forward them to you. I accordingly send them by express, and beg leave to assure that I am, with great respect, your Honours' most obedient and most humble servant,

Nich's Cooke.

The honourable the General Court of Massachusetts-Bay.

---

In Congress, November 7th, 1776.—Resolved, That the Resolution passed the 14th of October last, "that the allowance to Officers of one and one-third Dollar for inlisting Soldiers be not extended or given on the reinlistment of the Soldiers in camp," be repealed.

November 12th, 1776.—Resolved, (as the opinion of this Congress,) That if the Soldiers to be raised by the State of Massachusetts-Bay be inlisted on the terms offered to them, which are more advantageous than what are offered to other Soldiers serving in the same Army, it would much retard, if not wholly impede, the inlistment of the latter, and produce discontent and murmur, unless Congress should equally increase the pay of these, which it is the opinion of this Congress would universally be reprobated as an immoderate expense, and complained of as a grievous burthen by those who must bear it, and therefore that the Committee from the State of Massachusetts-Bay be desired not to inlist their men on the additional pay offered by the Assembly of that State.

Upon reconsidering the Resolution of the 16th September last, for raising eighty-eight Battalions to serve during the present war with Great Britain, Congress being of opinion that the readiness of the inhabitants of the States to enter into the service for limited times, in defence of their invaluable privileges, on all former occasions, gives good ground to hope the same zeal for the publick good will appear in future when necessity calls for their assistance; and the uncertain length of time which forces raised during the continuance of the war may be compelled to serve, may prevent many from inlisting who would otherwise readily manifest their attachment to the common cause by engaging for a limited time:

Therefore Resolved, That all Non-commissioned Officers and Soldiers who do not incline to engage their services during the continuance of the present war, and shall inlist to serve three years unless sooner discharged by Congress, shall be entitled to and receive all such bounty and pay as are allowed to those who inlist during the continuance of the present war, except the one hundred acres of land, which is to be granted to those only who inlist without limitation of time.

And each Recruiting Officer is required to provide two distinct inlisting rolls, one for such to sign who inlist during the continuance of the war, and the other for such as inlist for three years, if their service shall be so long required.

By order of the Congress:

John Hancock, President.

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO THE MARINE COMMITTEE.

Newport, November 25th, 1776.

Gentlemen: I received yours of October 23d, and have ordered the Cabot round from Boston. The Hamden

Howland. Several gentlemen from Groton and New-London, with Messrs. Elderkin and Wales, examined Captain Howland. He informed them that on the 1st day of November, 1776, he sailed from Bedford, in Massachusetts, for Surinam, loaded with horses, candles, &c., and was taken soon after he sailed and carried to New-York, where himself and his men were put on board of a ship which had one hundred and forty prisoners on board, in one berth between decks, on two-thirds allowance, where the prisoners were very sickly, and many of them died. And that he used his influence to procure the flag of truce to go to Connecticut to endeavour to effect an exchange of prisoners; that he left New-York the Monday previous, and that the news of taking Fort Washington arrived in New-York on the day before; and he saw the prisoners come in, about three thousand seven hundred men, and stated that the garrison surrendered at the moment the enemy were about to take it by storm. Captain Howland had with him a copy of his parole.

Another boat went to the flag from the fort and brought a letter for the Governour of Connecticut. Several gentlemen were sent on board, directed to request Lieutenant Barker for a copy of his instructions from Lord Howe, which he readily gave, and politely remarked that he was distressed for the prisoners, that they were in want of clothing and much interested for an exchange. Lieutenant Barker had a list of all the prisoners, and offered to give a copy, but stated that he came for the prisoners in the naval department alone. They queried the Lieutenant why application had not been made to General Washington for the exchange. He replied that they did not know where to find General Washington, as he changed his location so often.

Messrs. Elderkin and Wales stated that they had been informed in New-London, that a number of sea captains and other officers, who had been taken on board merchantmen and private ships of war, who were brought into Providence and places adjacent, by armed vessels, about sixty in number, had purchased a vessel at Providence, for the purpose of returning to Europe, some of whom were from New-London, and were soon to sail. On the arrival of the flag at New-London, Mr. Elderkin, &c., immediately informed Governour Cooke, of Rhode-Island, of the condition of our prisoners, and sent to him copies of Lieutenant Barker's orders, Howland's parole, &c., and intimated to him the propriety of stopping the officers (who had been taken prisoners) from sailing; that Captain Howland was at New-London, who was not permitted to view the forts, &c., or going to Hartford, as he was a stranger. The flag with Lieutenant Barker and the men, &c., were kept under guard, to wait and learn the pleasure of Governour Trumbull upon the subject.

The General Assembly appointed Colonel Erastus Wolcott and Captain John Deshon to advise and determine on the expediency of entering into any negotiation with Lieutenant Barker for the exchange of prisoners in the marine department, with power, if they should judge best, to inquire after and obtain such marine prisoners as they should be enabled; and to agree on time, place, and manner of exchange, and to treat with said Barker as they should think prudent and best.

Lieutenant Barker, at the time he first sent Captain Howland on his parole on shore, sent by him a letter, dated Pilot Tender, New-London, November 23d, 1776, directed to the Governour, or principal inhabitants of New-London; in which he stated, that he was empowered by Lord Howe to negotiate respecting the exchange of prisoners on board the fleet at New-York, and requested an interview; and stated that he sent him on his parole for three days, to accelerate the exchange. By Captain Howland's parole, it appeared he was authorized to negotiate for exchanges of prisoners, either in Connecticut or Rhode-Island, on board the fleet, for an equal number of British prisoners, officers for officers in each class, and sailors for sailors.—Hinman.

is nearly fitted. The new ships and the Columbus are ready, but not yet fully manned. If they are not manned when the Cabot arrives, I believe I shall take the officers and men out of the Columbus, and attempt to put your orders in execution with all the despatch in my power. Captain Falconer, by whom this comes, will be able to inform you more fully in respect to our circumstances.

Enclosed you have a copy of Captain Jones's letters, which I received last evening by Mr. Walter Spooner, the master of the Alfred, who arrived yesterday at Bedford, in the Active, prize. I hope the ship with the clothing may arrive safe, as that will be of great advantage to the States, by supplying the Army. Mr. Spooner informs that the ship has some quantity of arms, and says he heard the Captain say her cargo was worth sixty thousand pounds sterling. I think it will be necessary for you to send orders for the Alfred, Providence, and Columbus, if she should be left behind, directing them how to be employed. It may be best to direct them to the care of my brother, to forward them to whatever port they may come into. I hope you will give some directions in respect to supplying the sailors out of the prize goods, as they will not be able to do duty well in the winter without, and it is with difficulty we are able to supply them with any.

I have not been able to find a small vessel fit for a tender, and think of making use of the Hamden for that purpose.

I am, with great regard, gentlemen, your most humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To John Hancock, Esq., President of the Marine Committee, at Philadelphia.

---

COMMODORE HOPKINS TO LEONARD JARVIS.

Newport, November 25th, 1776.

SIR: I received yours by Mr. Spooner, and am to inform you that it will be for the publick good and agreeable to the orders of the Marine Committee, that you keep all the clothing, and other things that are fit for the use of the Army or Navy, until you receive further orders. The anchors, cord, and, indeed, every thing that will be wanted by the publick, should not be sold.

You will please to send me, as soon as possible, a copy of the invoice of the brigantine Active's cargo, as there may be some things that are very much wanted by the fleet now near ready to sail. In behalf of the officers and people of the Navy, I now desire you to take care of their part of the several prizes under your care until we send for the same.

I am, with esteem, sir, your humble servant,

ESEK HOPKINS.

To Mr. Leonard Jarvis, Dep'y Agent for the Continental fleet at Dartmouth.

Newport, November 25, 1776.

Thursday a schooner from France went up the bay; she brings advice that a declaration of war was expected every moment; also that there were very great confusions in Ireland; that the British Court were about sending some foreign troops to that island, which increased the uneasiness of the people; that there was the greatest preparations in France for war ever known; and that the British Ministry had applied to the Court of France for leave to march a body of Russians through that kingdom to embark them in the Mediterranean, for America, but were absolutely forbidden.

Last evening arrived in town Mr. Spooner, late Lieutenant of the Alfred, and informs that he arrived at an Eastern port, in a brig of which he was prize-master, taken by the ship Alfred and the sloop Providence, having on board a cargo of stores, cloths, &c., to the amount of six thousand pounds sterling, at prime cost, mounting six carriage-guns, and bound to New-York; also that the Alfred and Providence had taken a very valuable ship, mounting sixteen carriage-guns, having on board forty seamen and passengers, and thirty recruits for the British Army, who, it is not doubted, are arrived in port by this time.

We hear the honourable General Assembly of this State, who met at East-Greenwich last Thursday, have voted one thousand more men, to be raised as soon as possible, for the defence of this island, and ordered all the independent companies to march in, to continue till those men are embodied.

NOAH GOODMAN TO JAMES BOWDOIN.

Boston, November 25th, 1776.

The Secretary has just acquainted me that I was some days since appointed by the General Court a Major in one of the regiments to be raised in the Continental Army. I am much obliged to the Court for the honour they have done me in this appointment; but such is my other engagements, that I cannot possibly accept the appointment.

I am, sir, with great esteem, your humble servant,

NOAH GOODMAN.

JOSEPH GREENLEAF TO JAMES WARREN.

Boston, November 25th, 1776.

SIR: I have ventured to stop a number of bills of credit which had been altered and offered for larger sums than their real value; but as they are neither counterfeit, nor uttered knowing them to be such, the possessors, notwithstanding their innocence, are sufferers, by being deprived of the real value of their bills, and myself made liable to an action for depriving them of their property, which I have presumed to do, to prevent further frauds. If you would propose to the honourable House a resolve indemnifying the magistrate in such conduct as above-mentioned, ordering him to stop all such bills, and to deliver them to the Treasurer of the State, that persons who shall inadvertently take such bills may receive from him the real worth of the bills, I imagine it would be productive of much good. The bills thus received by the Treasurer (if this State's bills) might be destroyed, the Continental and bills of other States, no doubt, they would redeem upon the same terms, if applied to by your honourable House.

I am, sir, your humble servant,

JOS. GREENLEAF.

---

JOSIAH BARTLETT TO WILLIAM WHIPPLE.

Kingstown, November 25th, 1776.

MY DEAR SIR: I arrived here on the 9th instant, after a very agreeable journey, and better in health than when I left you, and am now (Dei gratia) in a comfortable state of health; as I hope this will find you and your worthy colleague. As to news of the movements of the armies at New-York, they are so various and contradictory that I hardly know any thing that is to be depended on since I left you. However, I think it cannot be long before the campaign must be closed and the armies retire to winter quarters. The report of the day is, that the British Army has crossed over Hudson's river into the Jerseys, but whether true or not is very uncertain here. By accounts from the Northern Army, it appears that General Carleton and his army are returned into Canada, and so there is an end of the campaign there. Major Cilley is come with a request from General Gates that the regiment stationed at Portsmouth may be sent to him, and Colonel Poor's regiment, who have undergone the fatigue of the campaign, be sent home to recruit; but, as the officers are not commissioned, and there is no order of Congress, or of General Washington, for their removal, I know not what will be done about it. The men seem very loth to be sent to the northward, as there are very grievous complaints of the soldiers suffering not only by sickness and a total want of medicines, but for provisions and clothing, and that by the exorbitant prices of the necessaries sold by the sutlers, they have been obliged to expend the whole of their wages to prevent them from starving. I really fear we shall be unable to procure an army for that department, unless effectual care is taken to have them better supplied, and cheaper than they have been the year past. I really think an inquiry ought to be made how it happened that the sick soldiers could not have any medicine from the physicians, of any kind, when I know large quantities have been sent there. And I could wish such persons were appointed to supply the Army as sutlers with things at the prime cost, and any necessary expense of dealing them out, and be paid by the publick.

The Convention of New-York have sent our State a present of above two hundred Tories, to be taken care of by us; some of them to be confined in close jail, others confined to certain limits on their parole.

The extravagant rise of things, especially merchants' goods, has raised a great clamour in the country, and has given a handle to some restless persons in the County of Hillsborough to call a convention of the Committees of the several towns, to meet at Dracut, the 26th instant, to redress this and some other grievances. I am informed they have had one meeting, and have now sent to the greatest part of the towns in the State, and to a great number in the Massachusetts, and expect a very grand meeting. What will be the consequence I know not; but am much afraid of some bad effects, and am very sorry that the infamous conduct of some traders, who pretend to be great Sons of Liberty, should give any just grounds of complaint to the people.

I hope soon to receive a letter from you, and hope you will inform me of every interesting particular that you are at liberty to communicate, both foreign and domestick. I suppose the Reprisal has sailed; and I hope got clear off the coast. Has Pennsylvania settled Government, and how? Has Maryland formed a Constitution? I am very anxious to know how things go on. Here all is doubt and uncertainty.

Please to give my best regards to Colonel Thornton and his lady, who, I hope, are safe arrived and well. Remember me to Miss Susy, Captain Dean, Mr. Boyle, &c.

I am, with great esteem, your affectionate friend and humble servant,

JOSIAH BARTLETT.

SILAS DEANE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, 26th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I send you enclosed an open letter for his Excellency Mr. Hancock, which, after perusing, please to seal and deliver. This will save me the saying the same things in this letter respecting the bearer, Mr. Rogers, who will give you good information; and I have only to ask your patronage and introduction of him, as a young gentleman deserving the same, and who has ever interested himself in the cause of his country, with zeal and firmness, and will, I trust, be of eminent service, as he advances in years and experience. He has assiduously studied the theory of war since I have been here, is ingenious at drawing and designing, and understanding something of the French language, will prove, I am confident, a valuable acquisition.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

SILAS DEANE.

SILAS DEANE TO THE SECRET COMMITTEE.

Paris, 26th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: This serves only to enclose and explain the within state of the commerce of Leghorn, which was given me by the Envoy of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, a gentleman of universal knowledge and a warm friend to America, and, indeed, to all mankind. I have the honour of his acquaintance in an intimate degree, and having communicated to him a memoir, setting forth the particular state of the commerce of America, with the history of its rise and increase, and its present importance, it being copy of what I delivered this Court, he marked the articles in demand in general, and those in particular as you will see in the enclosed, after which he enumerated their articles for exportation, which, in my turn, I mark and observed upon as before you. I have only to add, the Grand Duke has taken off all duties on the American commerce to give it encouragement. This, indeed, is done rather privately to prevent complaints of other powers of seeming partiality; when I add to this, that it is agreed on all hands, ships of war may be purchased at Leghorn ready fitted for sea, cheaper than in any other port in Europe, I think a good acquaintance ought to be cultivated with this State.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

SILAS DEANE.

JOHN ARCHER TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Harford County, November 26th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: As I understand some of the gondolas are nearly ready, for which your honourable Board has the appointment of officers, I would therefore beg leave to remind you of two gentlemen who have been recommended to you by sundry persons who are well acquainted with them. Their names are Captain Bennett Matthews and John Stevenson, of Harford County. Captain Mathews is well acquainted with the sea, and is a gentleman of integrity and attachment to the American cause. He applies for a Captain's commission. John Stevenson is a worthy deserving young man, as well acquainted with military discipline as most young men in our country. He applies for a First Lieutenancy; and should your Honours think proper to appoint him, he would be desirous of serving under Captain Mathews. They are both natives of this Province.

I am, gentlemen, with great respect, your very humble servant,

JOHN ARCHER.

The honourable Council of Safety in Annapolis.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, November 26th, 1776.

SIR: In consequence of your despatches by General Mifflin, who arrived here on Sunday evening, the Congress the next day came to the enclosed resolves, which I do myself the honour of forwarding, in obedience to their commands. They will inform you of the steps taken to reinforce your Army at this juncture.

The urgency of affairs will, I trust, induce the Militia to exert themselves in a proper manner on this occasion, as it is extremely evident that nothing but such an exertion will be effectual in our present situation.

The Congress have ordered General Mifflin to stay in this city until you shall require his attendance at Head-Quarters, being well convinced that his influence, which is very considerable over the Associators of this place, will be employed to spirit them on to the most vigorous measures.

I have the honour to be, with every sentiment of esteem and respect, sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

His Excellency General Washington.

---

GENERAL MIFFLIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, November 26, 1776—9 o'clock, A. M.

MY DEAR GENERAL: At ten o'clock last evening I received your letter of the 24th instant, and will make proper applications of your Excellency's sentiments on the probable movements of the enemy.

I came into this town at eight o'clock Sunday evening, and waited on Mr. Hancock with your letter immediately after my arrival. Yesterday morning I was admitted to Congress, in general committee, and went as far in my relation of the wretched appointments of the Army, the dangerous and critical situation of the Jerseys and Pennsylvania, and the necessity of immediate vigorous exertions to oppose Mr. Howe, as their sensibility and my own delicacy would justify. After some debate, a requisition was made to the Assembly now sitting, and Council of Safety of Pennsylvania, of their whole Militia; and resolutions formed for the purpose of establishing wholesome and necessary regulations for this and the next campaign.

I received orders from Congress to remain in this town until your Excellency judged it necessary for me to join the Army. Those orders were in consequence of the divided and lethargic state of my countrymen, who appeared to be slumbering under the shade of peace, and in the full enjoyment of the sweets of commerce.

In the afternoon I waited on the Committee of Safety, and with much success addressed their passions. The Assembly are to meet this morning. Their lesson is prepared by the Committee of Safety and some of their leading members, who say matters will now go on well.

It is proposed to call on every man in the State to turn out. Such as refuse are to be fined five pounds per month, the fines to be distributed among those who inlist.

To-morrow the city Militia is to be reviewed. If they appear in such numbers as we expect, I am to give them a talk well seasoned. The German battalion move from hence to-morrow. Three regiments from Delaware and Maryland are to follow them to Brunswick as soon as possible, by which I fear the shores of Delaware at and near New-Castle will be much exposed, provided Mr. Howe attempts to disembark in this river.

Your Excellency's opinion on the designs of the enemy, and the best means to oppose them should they divert your attention in Jersey and attempt an impression on this State by means of their ships, will be necessary from time to time. The Light-Horse of the State of Virginia are ordered to join your Excellency's Army. The principal military stores are to be removed from hence. Five hundred thousand musket-cartridges will be sent to Brunswick.

A prize ship came in yesterday. She had on board, when taken by a Congress packet, twenty thousand hard dollars, nine thousand of which were lost by an attempt to heave them on board the packet at sea.

I have ordered one thousand wagons to be collected, if possible, near this city, to remove, when occasion requires, the most essential articles belonging to the publick.

I sent Colonel Harrison's letter to him last evening.

Mrs. W.'s letter is in the post office, and will be forwarded by post at eleven o'clock this day.

I am, my dear General, with much attachment, your obedient servant, THOMAS MIFFLIN.

His Excellency General Washington, at or near Newark, West-Jersey.

The Council of Safety, I am just informed, open the campaign this day by moving the principal Tories in and near the city.

---

SAMUEL CHASE TO MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 26th, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: In my last I expressed some hopes of prevailing on Congress to give our State some satisfaction as to the back lands, and the mode by which the proportion of the expenses of the war was to be paid by each State. In this expectation I was delayed and disappointed for two days, by Mr. Jenifer's mentioning that our Commissioners had your orders to proceed. By an obstinate perseverance the enclosed resolution was obtained last Saturday; on Sunday afternoon our Commissioners left this city. On yesterday the Commissioners from Congress, of which Mr. Paca is one, also set off for the camp. Much depends on their success.

The reduction of Fort Washington and easy possession obtained of Fort Lee, has greatly encouraged General Howe, and probably induced him to carry on the campaign much longer than he would otherwise have done. There is great reason to believe that his views extended to this city. On Saturday evening General Mifflin arrived in this city.

Our Army under the command of General Washington, in the Jerseys, are about six thousand, of which the service of about fifteen hundred expires on Sunday next. General Lee has about eleven thousand effectives on the west side of North River, of which the inlistment of about three thousand expires on the same day. The enemy have about twenty-one thousand effectives. They can spare about sixteen thousand, and have a sufficient garrison to maintain New-York. General Howe has six thousand in the Jerseys, opposite to Newark. In this State it is proposed to call out all the Militia of four Counties and this city, immediately, for six weeks. Chester, Bucks, Northampton, and Philadelphia Counties, are the nearest to the Jerseys; and it is also proposed to call out a company of volunteers from each battalion in this State, to enroll till 10th March next. The preservation of this State and the Jerseys, and in great measure the common safety, will depend on the success of this requisition.

New-Jersey is also called on for aid, and Delaware is solicited; and if our State could afford any assistance in time, an application would also be made to her.

If the present cloud should be happily dispersed, the new levies will be the first object of your attention. We can neither prosecute the war nor obtain honourable terms of peace without an army. The inlistment will be only for three years, on the bounty of twenty dollars, and the usual clothing, or the twenty dollars in lieu thereof, by the resolves of Congress. I am informed that the recruiting officers are entitled to ten shillings for each man inlisted and passed, and ten shillings per week for provisions, till the recruits arrive at some place where they can be furnished by the Continental Commissaries.

We have certain intelligence that a number of ships of the smallest draught of water, sufficient to carry ten thousand troops, are now lying ready in the North River, with fascines on their sides. The destination of this fleet is uncertain; some conjecture to land a body of troops at South-Amboy, which is very probable, if this city is the object with Mr. Howe; others guess Virginia or South-Carolina. The latter is the most suspicious, because if they succeed against Charlestown they can pass the winter there. A few days will relieve us from conjecture.

I submit to you the propriety of ordering the Artillery companies at Baltimore town and Annapolis be exercised daily, if the weather will permit, and at least three times a week. Practice alone can make artillerists. In our Army we destroy as many of our own troops as the enemy.

Your letter of the 2d I received by yesterday's post. We have paid for the paper. There are not four hundred dollars in Mr. Paca's hands. Would it not be proper to transmit the account to Congress, or by some means lodge money here to exchange our money?

I delivered the resolves relative to Virginia to the Delegates of that State.

I am, gentlemen, with respect, your obedient servant, SAM'L CHASE.

To the honourable Council of Safety of Maryland, Annapolis.

---

Philadelphia, November 26, 1776.

Yesterday the ship Sam, lately commanded by Samuel Richardson, was sent into this port. She was taken on her passage from Barbadoes to Liverpool, by the Continental sloop Independence, Captain Young, was mounted with four guns, and had on board twenty thousand dollars, two tons and a half of ivory, one hundred bars of iron, &c.

Fort Lee having been evacuated by our troops, and the stores removed to a place of security, part of the British Army we hear took possession of it last Thursday.

We hear that part of General Howe's Army has advanced a few miles into the State of New-Jersey, and that he is preparing with the remaining body of his troops to effect a landing in that State. General Washington is busy preparing to receive them, and if properly reinforced with the Militia of New-Jersey and the neighbouring States, we hope will be able to check their progress. We also hear that General Lee is advancing to join General Washington with a reinforcement from the Continental Army in the State of New-York.

The honourable Congress have promoted M. de Roche de Fermoy, a brave and experienced officer, and formerly a Colonel in the French service, to the rank of a Brigadier-General.

On Wednesday one hundred sail of vessels left Sandy-Hook, and put to sea, but whether they have troops on board is uncertain. Various are the conjectures of their destination, but the prevailing opinion is that they are empty transports, and are bound to Ireland for provisions for the British troops.

LANCASTER (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Observation, Inspection and Correspondence, at the house of Adam Reigart, the 26th November, 1776: Present, Wm. Atlee, Lodwick Lowman, John Miller, Henry Dehuff, Christopher Crawford, Jacob King, Michael Musser, Wm. Bowsman, A. Reigart, George Moore, Mathias Slough. William Atlee in the chair.

Mr. Geo. Moore, Mr. William Bowsman, and Mr. Casper Shaffner, are appointed a Committee to settle the Accounts of the Bricklayers employed in building the addition to the Barracks, and make report to this Committee. They are also to report to the Committee the quantity of bricks delivered by Peter Albright and Lewis Peters and George Lindeberger, to the Barracks for those buildings.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Newark, November 26th, 1776—3 o'clock, P. M.

SIR: By command of his Excellency I have the honour to transmit you the enclosed resolves of Congress, the original of which this minute came to hand; and I am to request you, in his name, to have the purport of it complied with, by sending down with all possible expedition the whole of the troops belonging to the States of Pennsylvania and Jersey, which are in the Northern Department, to join the Army under his immediate command. You will please to order them to fall in on the communication leading from New-York to Philadelphia, at Brunswick, or between that and Princeton, and to direct their march by a back and secure route, that it may not be liable to be intercepted by the enemy. I have mentioned Brunswick, supposing and hoping that we shall be able to make a stand there, if not before. However, his Excellency begs you will direct the commanding officers of those troops to send him frequent expresses to advise of their approaches, by which means their destination may be explicitly pointed out; at present it is conjectural. It must depend on circumstances.

I have not time to add much; therefore shall only inform you that the enemy are in possession of Hackensack, and are now pushing this way. From report they are this side the Passaic. Their number is not ascertained, but it is supposed considerable. They were marching in four heavy columns yesterday evening.

I have the honour, &c., R. H. Harrison.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

P. S. The officers must inquire the situation of our Army and that of the enemy from time to time, and regulate their movements accordingly, and in such a manner as not to run the most distant shadow of risk in falling in with the latter.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO LORD GEORGE GERMAIN.

New-York, 26th November, 1776.

My Lord: I have been honoured with your Lordship's despatches No. 5 and 6, with their enclosures. The duplicates were delivered by Mr. Kemble; to all which I shall pay due regard.

I have communicated to the principal inhabitants of Staten-Island, by an extract from your Lordship's despatch, his Majesty's approbation of the loyal and affectionate conduct of the people of that island, and his most gracious assurances of paternal regard for, and constant protection of, them; but as that island, from the present operations of the war, is not in a state of absolute security, and has within these few weeks been visited by some parties of the Rebels, I have not thought it prudent in the present moment, to make a publick declaration of the Royal disposition in their favour.

As the Militia law is in force I am getting proper lists of officers, as also of Magistrates, that the civil government may have its full operation as soon as it is judged proper to re-establish it with all its powers.

Mr. White, one of his Majesty's Council, arrived here with the last division of the Hessians, and is very useful to me from his influence among the citizens, in such regulations of police as are left me in my restricted sphere of executive power, arising from the present necessity of the times.

The Liberty Pole erected some years ago in this city, and which remained as a monument of insult to Government and of licentiousness to the people, was last month, by my recommendation to the inhabitants, very properly and very quietly taken down and removed by them.*

I am, with all possible respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient and very humble servant,

Wm. Tryon.

Lord George Germain.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN ENGLISH OFFICER, DATED NEW-YORK, NOVEMBER 26, 1776.

On Saturday last we attacked Fort Washington, on the Island of New-York, the strongest post that ever was occupied by an army. The difficulties we had to surmount are almost incredible; hills covered with wood, and almost perpendicular; from the fall of the leaf the footing insecure; in short, there was every thing to favour the Rebels in point of ground. We attacked the south and east sides of the ground; the Hessians, in two columns, made their attack on the north. Hannibal, in his passage over the Alps, could not have met with ground or difficulties more formidable than what the Hessians had to go over. They behaved with distinguished bravery; their General solicited to act separately with his troops, and headed the left column. Notwithstanding the impediments, they preserved their order amazingly. Lord Percy led on the troops under his command with great spirit, and forced the Rebels' works with very little loss; his Lordship's horse was twice wounded, but fortunately he received no hurt. The Rebels all ran into the fort, where they had three thousand firelocks charged. Our men stood laughing at them as they passed, crying out, "Make room for the soldiers!" They hung out a flag of truce, and asked leave to surrender with the honours of war. They were sent word by Lieutenant-General Kniphausen, that if they did not surrender in thirty minutes, the fort should be stormed, and every man put to death; they instantly complied with the terms, marched out of the fort, and grounded their arms. We made two thousand five hundred and eighty-six prisoners, with new clothing for two battalions. At twelve at night they were marched prisoners to New-York.

In two nights after this we went over to the Jerseys, and took Fort Lee without loss, and made two thousand prisoners, who, like their friends at Fort Washington, laid down their arms loaded.

Too much cannot be said in favour of General Howe. If the ardour of the troops could be restrained, he would crush this rebellion without spilling much blood. Lord Howe, in his department, does every thing to support the General; and it is but justice to say, the Navy has contributed greatly to the successes we met with. So great is the affection of the Army for their General, that I am confident they would cheerfully keep the field the whole winter, without murmuring, if he thought proper to employ them.

The people of Pennsylvania have refused to obey an order of Congress for levying money; and they have sent a man, who calls himself Lord Stirling, with a body of the Rebels, to coerce them; but I am in hopes we shall be able to give a good account of them in a few days, as we are now between them and Philadelphia. The Rebels throw up great works, but never stay to defend them.

We have taken on the Jerseys all Washington's baggage, and great quantities of publick stores. They are so much alarmed at Philadelphia, that they are quitting the town.

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp Philipsburg, November ye 26th, 1776.

Dear General: It never was my idea to leave the Highlands unguarded, but only for expedition's sake that Heath should detach two thousand of his corps immediately over the river, and to replace these two thousand by the same number the most lightly accoutred from this body here till the main body with their baggage, cannon, &c., could move. I conceive this movement could be attended with no risk, as he has now nothing to guard but the western passages, for there is no possibility of their approaching by the eastern, having, as I can learn, no vessels on the eastern river to transport their cannon, and the road at King's Bridge by land is now almost impracticable. The want of carriages, and this disappointment with respect to Heath, but above all, the alarms we have been thrown into by the activity of the Tories and the important consideration of leaving this country in a tolerable state of security on my departing, have still detained me here. The enemy kept a very considerable part of their force on this side of King's Bridge till yesterday, so considerable, indeed, that from what we saw, we conceived the numbers transported to the Jerseys not near so great as you were taught to think. This, and the apprehension of their gleaning all the forage of this district, contributed to the other considerations I have mentioned, have detained me so much longer than I could have wished. Yesterday they drew themselves in, and at the same time we made a sweep of the country, from Philips's house. Part of the Army have moved on; I set out to-morrow. No Militia have come in to cover the country. I have wrote most pressing letters on this subject to Trumbull, and hope they will have effect. I have been equally urgent with Mr. Bowdoin, for blankets, shoes, &c.; indeed, our soldiers are not in a moving condition, but seem well disposed and engage themselves beyond expectation. But we are in great want of money for bounty. I have been under the necessity, without authority, to draw for this purpose. Several deserters, come out to day, inform us that a considerable embarkation is made for Amboy.

*New-York, (Royal Gazette,) September 16, 1780.—The gentlemen who supped at the late Widow De le Montagnie's, on the 17th of September, 1776, (after taking down the Liberty Pole,) are informed in this publick manner, that their bill for the supper and liquor still remains unpaid. If the iron that was about the Pole remains unsold, the subscriber will recommend a purchaser, and if the bill is not paid very soon, the subscriber will be under the necessity of publishing the names of the gentlemen that supped on that occasion. John Amory.

I shall take care to obey your Excellency's orders in regard to my march, as exactly as possible; and am, dear General, yours,

CHARLES LEE.

To his Excellency General Washington, Newark.

---

GENERAL LEE TO GENERAL HEATH.

Camp Philipsburg, November y^e^ 26th, 1776.

SIR: I perceive that you have formed an opinion to yourself, that should General Washington remove to the Straits of Magellan, the instructions he left with you upon a particular occasion have to all intents and purposes invested you with a command separate from, and independent of, any other superiours—that General Heath and General Lee are only two Majors-General, who perhaps ought to hold a friendly intercourse with each other, and when their humour or fancied interest prompts, may afford mutual assistance, but that General Heath is by no means to consider himself obliged to obey any orders of the second in command. This idea of yours, sir, may not only be prejudicial to yourself, but to the publick. I could wish, sir, before things go any further, you would correct the notion. I enjoined you to send two thousand men over the river, and informed you that I would replace 'em with an equal number. This was the only mode in my power of complying with the intentions of the General; but it seems your danger was so imminent and your instructions so positive, that instead of taking a step which both duty and common sense dictated, you are so kind as to advise me to send the troops from hence, the two days' march from hence to Peekskill, and the want of wagons, with the badness of the roads, making no sort of difference; but I must inform you, sir, that we could not have been (such are our circumstances) in less than five days at Peekskill; and that five days may turn the fate of an empire. If any misfortune should happen from this refusal, you must answer for it. If any misfortune had happened to your present post by the detachment of these two thousand men from your corps, the blame would have fallen upon me; but enough on this subject. I shall therefore conclude that the Commander-in-Chief is now separated from us; that I of course command on this side the water; that for the future I will and must be obeyed.

I am, sir, your most obedient servant,

CHARLES LEE.

To Major-General Heath.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

North-Castle, 26th November, 1776.

MY DEAR GENERAL: Enclosed is a warrant on the Paymaster-General, for one hundred thousand dollars, which I beg you to sign and send me by the bearer. I expect he will find Colonel Palfrey removing into Jersey, and therefore have put a receipt on the back, that he may take the money from him, and bring it on here to me.

I am, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

JOS. TRUMBULL.

His Excellency General Washington.

COLONEL LIVINGSTON TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENT.

Camp, North-Castle, 26th November, 1776.

GENTLEMEN: I am now with General McDougall, and have seen some of the officers you have been pleased to appoint to the regiment you, gentlemen, have been pleased to honour me with the command of. Of those, Captain Wiley, Lieutenant J. Harton, Lieutenant Thomas Lefoy, resign. It is also very uncertain whether Major Ledyard will serve. James Bownel, who is appointed an Ensign, I am under the necessity of requesting you to change, as General McDougall accuses him of throwing away his arms in time of action, which at least argues a want of presence of mind that every officer ought to be possessed of. However, this you are better judges of than your humble servant,

HENRY B. LIVINGSTON,
Col 4th N. Y. Reg't of Cl Forces.

To the Gentlemen of the Committee of Arrangement.

N. B. If no Paymaster should be appointed for the regiment, I beg leave to present for your approbation Mr. John Lawrence, formerly Paymaster to the First Regiment of New-York troops.

INTELLIGENCE FROM NEW-YORK.

Examination of David Hunt, of West-Chester, a known friend to America, taken by Brigadier-General McDougall, November 26, 1776, viz:

Mr. Hunt says that he left New-York on Wednesday, the 20th instant. That he understood from the inhabitants and soldiers, that fifteen thousand were to embark, and that the transports were preparing for them; but their destination was not known; that he also understood summer clothes were making for the officers; that there were not a great number of troops then in the city, the most of which were Hessians; that provisions in general were scarce and dear, flour in particular, and all kinds of vegetables; that our officers who are prisoners with the enemy were walking about, but the soldiers were closely confined, and allowed but half allowance; that the prisoners were very sickly, and died fast; that he returned to West-Chester about three o'clock on Wednesday last; that General Howe's head-quarters at that time were at James De Lancey's Mills; that there were there at the same time, General Agnew, Adjutant-General Patterson, and Sir William Erskine, the Quartermaster-General. That he saw the Hessian encampment at West-Chester, between our late hospital there and the mills, and understood there were eight thousand Hessians there, but did not imagine there were so many; that he saw a number of Highlanders and British troops encamped on the east of the Hessians; that many of the enemy's troops died at West-Chester; that on Sunday morning last, General Howe and the staff moved off for New-York, and on Monday General Agnew, with his brigade, and the Hessians, struck their tents at six in the morning, and were ordered to march at seven; that Mr. Hunt left West-Chester at six o'clock yesterday evening, and that from what he could collect, the Rangers were then there. That they had collected twelve hundred sheep, nine hundred hogs, and several hundred cattle, and drove them on Willett's Neck, and since gone off to New-York.

GENERAL HEATH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Peekskill, November 26th, 1776.

DEAR GENERAL: I have to acknowledge the honour of the receipt of yours of the 24th instant. I do not recollect to have sent any letters by the Friday's post, who lost his mail in an infamous manner.

I have also received from Colonel Harrison the resolves of the honourable Continental Congress of the 19th instant, with a signification of your Excellency's pleasure that they should be published in orders, which shall be done to-morrow.

I have for several days been exerting my utmost endeavours to secure the stores on the west side of the river, and have the pleasure to acquaint your Excellency that, through the vigilance of Colonel Tupper and his party, the provisions, warlike and naval stores, near the river at Tapan, Slot's landing, &c., have been safely brought off, although the ships fired a number of cannon-shot at the boats.

Major Clark, who was posted at Tapan, informed me yesterday by letter, that there was at that place a considerable quantity of flour, and that he was ordered to join his regiment. I immediately sent order to Colonel Tyler's regiment to march down to Tapan, and to impress all the teams between Colonel Huntington's post and that place, and to bring off the flour, part to the entrance of the mountains and part near to King's Ferry.

In the afternoon I received a letter from Colonel Hay, acquainting me that many of the disaffected in that vicinity had gone to the enemy, some of whom had hinted that they would conduct the enemy up and cut off our troops; upon which, having consulted my Brigadiers, I ordered General Scott's brigade over the river, to cover the provisions, to support Colonel Huntington in case of need, or possess the mountain on the back of Fort Montgomery. I have also stationed the Lady Washington galley at the ferry, to prevent insults from the enemy's boats or tenders.

General Mifflin's goods have been brought over to this place.

A survey of the river and soundings has lately been taken, and is now before the Convention of the State of New-York.

General Clinton is confident that obstructions may be effectually made by the sinking of blocks. I have wrote the Convention that if they should think it practicable, and should make the attempt, I will assist them all in my power. The place proposed is some miles above Fort Constitution.

Our numbers in a few days will be much diminished. General Scott has wrote to the Convention to encourage his brigade to continue a short time longer in the service, and thinks he shall be able to persuade many of them to tarry; but sad experience has taught me to expect but little from soldiers after the expiration of the time of their engagements. I think the recruiting of a new army will be successful if the men can, by and by, somehow or another, a few at a time, be indulged to go home, which seems to be a darling object with them.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, your Excellency's most humble servant,

W. Heath.

To His Excellency General Washington, Newark.

GENERAL HEATH TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, November 26th, 1776.

Sir: The time to which the several regiments of General Scott's brigade stand engaged expire on Saturday next, as does that of the garrison at the forts Montgomery and Constitution, and Colonel Tash's regiment of Militia from the State of New-Hampshire, which is now at this post. I also expect that part of the other troops now here will be ordered to march southward. Should this be the case, a pass of vast importance (and now enhanced by the loss of Fort Lee and the enemy having the entire possession of the river up to the fort) will, I think, be much exposed. I think it my duty, therefore, to give you this hint, that if his Excellency General Washington has not wrote to the honourable Convention on the subject, such measures may be adopted as the honourable Convention may think proper. I think that if the several regiments whose time is now expired, could be prevailed upon to continue a little longer, it would greatly promote the service. But of this I despair, having been too often convinced that it is hard to persuade them.

If any of the before-mentioned troops have received arms, accoutrements, or ammunition, from the State of New-York, I submit it to you whether it would not be expedient to appoint some person or persons to receive them from the soldiery.

I have not received any thing lately from the southward, either particular or interesting.

I am, sir, with respect and esteem, your most obedient and very humble servant,

W. Heath.

Honourable Pierre Van Cortlandt, Esq.

GENERAL HEATH TO THE NEW-YORK CONVENTION.

Peekskill, November 26th, 1776.

Sir: Since I wrote you in the morning, I have received letters from his Excellency General Washington; and as they do not contain the least intimation that any part of the corps under my command are to move from this post, I shall assiduously pursue the plan of securing the passes through the Highlands.

I have been informed that a survey of the river and sounding has lately been taken and laid before the honourable Convention; and if it appears that the obstruction of the river is practicable, and it should be thought advisable to attempt it, I shall cheerfully afford all the assistance in my power.

I am, sir, with respect and esteem, your most humble servant,

W. Heath.

Hon Pierre Van Cortlandt.

GENERAL HEATH TO COLONEL CHEEVER.

Peekskill, November 26th, 1776.

Dear Sir: I desire you would immediately furnish me with a list of the number of arms, accoutrements, and the quantity of ammunition which has been delivered to the several regiments of General Scott's brigade, viz: Colonel Lasher's, Malcom's, Drake's, and Humphries's or Hardenbergh's; and also Colonel Tash's regiment of Militia, belonging to the State of New-Hampshire, if the latter has received any. The time to which the before-mentioned regiments are engaged expires on Saturday next. I think it will be proper for you, or some other person or persons under you, to be at this post on Thursday or Friday next, to receive the arms, &c., or at least to take the necessary steps for the reception of them.

I am, dear sir, yours affectionately, W. Heath.

To Ezekiel Cheever, Esq., Commissary of Artillery Stores.
